WHY HARMON?

HARMON name on real estate is synonymous with "STERLING" on silver—ask anybody.

HARMON salesmen never sell an inferior property—you know that.

HARMON improvements are always the best and are finished first—see for yourself.

HARMON property has never failed to produce big profits, in 26 cities over 40 years, consisting of 218 developments, sold to 100,000 satisfied customers—ask dad, he knows.

HARMON trained men are at the head of most all of our friendly competitors—and we are proud of them.

HARMON salesmen are the best paid and most contented of any sales organization in the world, because they get 100% training and cooperation—ask THEM.

HARMON commissions are never DUE; they are paid at once.

HARMON can use a few real men (experienced or not) to fill new division forming to sell the best located properties in New York City.

? ? WHY HARMON ? ?

FOR REAL WATERFRONT PROPERTY.

Long Island, North Shore.

An exceptional opportunity for you to make money.

A most beautiful development, unique of its kind, located on the North Shore of Long Island, with waterfrontage of 6,000 feet and 4,000 feet of a wonderful sandy beach. Lots are nearly all within two or three blocks of actual beach or are on the beach.

The property is contiguous to Long Island Railroad Terminal, 38 minutes from Penn Station, New York, with 72 trains daily, part of a town of 14,000 people and between large estates of prominent men, many of them the finest in America.

Improvements and landscaping are actually costing $5,000 per acre and are now two-thirds finished and being hurried to completion.

Prices include all improvements, without any assessments.

Prices are not high but the property is priced to assure a profit. Lots are as low as $1,200 with easy terms. Owners will build 40 houses, of which a number are almost completed. Property is just ready to show, although sales of several hundred thousand dollars are already consummated.

The completed property of only 90 acres with landscaping and improvements and without houses represents an outlay of $1,000,000. We believe this is the most salable residential property from a home or investment standpoint in the entire East. The owners have unlimited financial resources and are completing all improvements on schedule. They own approximately $30,000,000 worth of property in the same vicinity.

Cooperation includes plentiful leads. In fact, all the leads qualified salesmen can handle, assistance in closing and free transportation daily for prospects and salesmen.

Commissions are generous and paid promptly and in full out of first payment of 25 per cent.

We want clean-cut salesmen, ambitious, of good appearance and willing to work and determined to make big money. Real estate experience is desirable but not essential. We are spending approximately $2,500 a week now for leads and are just in the process of organizing a sales force. If you mean business, are willing to put in a real day's work six days a week to make real money on a commission basis, call at once, Room 501, 12 East 41st St.

SALESMEN.

We have five leads, excellent literature and offer you 100% cooperation. We manufacture the "Submerged System" of domestic water heating resulting in a 70% saving in the cost of heating water in large buildings. You call on architects, engineers, owners and contractors. We require three high calibre men, not high-pressure, capable of building up a clientele and who want a permanent connection. New and old buildings cost the same. No seasons. Liberal commissions. 300,000 people use water heated by us in New York and Chicago. We must insist upon quality representation—not quantity.

Phone Mr. Chase, Ashland 2020, for appointment.

Public School Notes.

FLAG PRESENTED—Mrs. Henry A. Wise Wood, representing the Woman's Roosevelt Memorial Association, presented an American flag and pole yesterday to Public School 101, Brooklyn. At the presentation exercises Mrs. Wood made an address, to which Miss Katharine Callahan, Principal, replied. The pupils gave quotations from the writings of Theodore Roosevelt and sang patriotic songs.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 17.—Forecast: The northern disturbance has moved northeastward beyond the field of observation, and the southwestern disturbance has moved northeastward to Illinois with decreased intensity (Chicago 29.64 inches) and a trough of low pressure extends southward to the Alabama coast.

Another disturbance is moving rapidly southeastward over British Columbia and Alberta. Pressure is high over all other regions, with centre over Manitoba, and off the New Jersey coast.

The Illinois disturbance will continue to move northeastward and will be attended by rains in the Atlantic States and rain, changing to snow, in the Upper Ohio Valley, the lower lake region and the Appalachian region on Thursday, and by rain or snow flurries on Friday in portions of New York and New England. Following the passage of this disturbance colder weather will overspread all sections east of the Mississippi River.

The temperature will fall as far east as the Appalachian Mountains Thursday night and in the Atlantic States Thursday night and Friday.

COUNTRY-WIDE WEATHER CONDITIONS.
In the following record of observations at United States Weather Bureau stations yesterday, the temperatures given are the highest during the twelve hours from 8 A. M. to 8 P. M. and the lowest during the preceding twelve hours from 8 P. M. to 8 A. M.; the barometer reading and condition of weather are those recorded at 8 P. M., and the rainfall is for the twenty-four hours ended at 8 P. M.

Transcontinental Air Mail

The transcontinental air mail service is operated in both directions daily, leaving Hadley Field (New Brunswick, N. J.) at 11 A. M., Eastern Standard Time, and San Francisco at 8:45 A. M., Pacific Time. The planes carry mail for intermediate points as well. Connections are made at Cleveland for Detroit, arriving Detroit 5:15 P. M., and at Salt Lake City for Los Angeles, arriving Los Angeles 5:25 P. M. At Elko, Nev., connection is made for Reno, Nevada, and by rail from that point to cities in Washington and Oregon, arriving the morning of the second day after leaving New York City; and at Cheyenne, Wyo., for Denver, Colorado Springs and Pueblo, arriving the morning of the next day after leaving New York. Mail for points not on the air route is forwarded by rail from the nearest air mail station.

The New York daily closing time for the mail is 8 A. M., Eastern Standard Time, at the General Postoffice and 8 A. M. to 7:55 A. M. at the air mail letter boxes, painted red, white and blue, which are located in various parts of the city, depending on the route.

Tuesday's air mail from San Francisco arrived at Hadley Field at 8:19 P. M. yesterday and was forwarded by rail to New York City.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 17.—Tuesday's transcontinental air mail from New York reached Elko, Nev., and is due to arrive here Thursday at 9:50 A. M. Wednesday's transcontinental air mail running from San Francisco to New York was started running on time into Salt Lake City, Utah.

Chicago and Southwest Air Mail

The New York-Chicago air mail is operated in both directions nightly, leaving Hadley Field (New Brunswick, N. J.) at 9:35 P. M., Eastern Standard Time, and Chicago at 8 P. M., Central Time. The planes carry mail for intermediate points. Direct connections are made at Chicago for Detroit, arriving Detroit 11:40 A. M.; for St. Louis, arriving St. Louis 5:15 A. M.; for St. Paul-Minneapolis, arriving Minneapolis 10:40 A. M., to connect there with points in North and South Dakota and Montana, and for Dallas, Texas, via Rock Island, Davenport, St. Joseph, Kansas City, Wichita, Oklahoma City and Fort Worth, arriving Dallas 6:35 P. M. Direct rail connections are made at Dallas and Fort Worth for points further south and west.

The New York daily closing time is 8:45 P. M., Eastern Standard Time, at the General Postoffice and 9:10 P. M., or a little later, at the air mail letter boxes, painted red, white and blue, which are located in various parts of the city.

Tuesday's air mail from Chicago arrived at Hadley Field at 4:25 A. M., yesterday and was forwarded by rail to New York.

Postoffice Notices

Postmaster John J. Kiely invites attention to the following announcements by the Postoffice Department:

"In line with the policy of the department in the matter, the first step toward turning over the transcontinental air mail service, as well as the supplemental, overnight service between New York and Chicago, is being taken by forwarding to postmasters on the prepared routes of an advertisement and blank forms inviting proposals for the transportation of mail by aircraft under contract on the transcontinental and overnight route to supersede the present Government-operated air mail service.

"Proposals will be received at the department until 12 o'clock noon, Jan. 15, 1927.

"Christmas" stamps or other labels may be affixed to the back of mail articles for foreign countries and not to the address side of the covers; unless the foregoing condition is complied with, articles bearing nonpostage stamps will not be dispatched, but will be returned to the senders, if known, or sent to the Division of Dead Letters.

Scottish Blue Underwear Made of Silk and Wool

Fine Imported Garments for Men May Be Had Also in White; Others from Saxony and England

The Men's Underwear Department, on the street floor at Macy's, considers a season ill spent if it does not introduce some novelty, some choice specimen of netherwear, from abroad. Fine foreign weaving is always well represented; and just at present the department is featuring a particularly worthy line of Scottish shirts and drawers.

These garments, for the sake of being in the masculine vogue, and harmonizing with the outer apparel of fashion, are colored a pale chaste blue. They are made of smooth silk and soft wool in desirable weight, and they cost seven dollars and forty-four cents each. However, if one should not care to be so thorough about following the style, there are white garments also, of the same material. All this underwear is fashioned on the machine.

From England, fine vicuna wool shirts and drawers have just been received. These are superweight, and therefore appropriate for the days immediately ahead, and may be had either in the natural color or a light oak shade. Like their Scottish cousins, they are fashioned in the knitting; and they are pleasantly soft against the skin. Their price is ten-seventy-four each.

It's not far, where underwear is concerned, from Anglo-Saxons to Saxony. The German provinces has sent over some two-piece and union suits entirely of silk, designed and tailored with thoughts of comfort and durability well in mind.

KNIT JACKETS SCOTTISH, TOO

Deftly Woven Sweaters Matched by Hose and Mufflers

Just in from the land of heather and kilts are many fancy sweater coats, in new designs and new colors, and they may be seen in the Men's Shop on the street floor at Macy's. The patterns are most attractive: subdued yet odd and striking in concept. Only in one or two New York specialty shops may they be had, unless one is sagacious enough to get one at Macy's for twenty-five dollars and fifty cents.

In themselves these fine jackets from Scotland would be desirable. However, they offer further inducement in the fact that mufflers and golf hose to match are available. Wearing all three, the sportsman need fear no handicap insofar as smart get-up is concerned.

Men's Underwear Moves to Fifth

To prepare for the pressure of Christmas shopping throngs on the street floor at Macy's, the Men's Underwear Department is about to remove to the fifth floor, to become a neighbor of the other men's shops there. Monday morning, and till January, it will be established in the central area of the front of the east building, fifth floor, in more spacious quarters.

Thus men in search of comfortable and luxurious insulation from wintry, cold weather—such as suits of silk or silk and wool or all wool—will not be crowded unduly. The department will continue to feature, of course, athletic suits and union suits in many novelty weaves at attractive prices.

AMERICAN FORCES READY TO COMPEL NICARAGUAN PEACE

Kellogg Seeks First to Induce Liberals to Accept the Diaz Government.

HIS WORDS STIR MEXICANS

Responsibility for Gun-Running Is Disavowed and Similar American Feats Are Cited.

WARNING IS RESENTED

Mexico, It Is Contended, Has as Much Right as United States to Extend Influence.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The situation that has developed in the relations between the United States and Mexico, growing out of the latter's alleged interference with the internal affairs of Nicaragua, may still further complicate American negotiations with respect to Mexican oil and land laws and possibly result in diplomatic exchanges dealing with the apparent aim of Mexico to extend her sphere of influence into Central America.

It was made known at the State Department today that this Government will exercise its good offices in an endeavor to compose political strife in Nicaragua in compliance with the appeal of Adolfo Diaz, new Nicaraguan President, who in a communication transmitted to Washington by Lawrence Dennis, American Chargé at Managua, made the charge that Mexico had invaded the sovereignty of the Central American republic.

President Diaz solicited the help of the United States to restore order in Nicaragua, stating that whatever means might be chosen by American States Department toward attainment of that end would meet with his approval.

May Land Marines in Nicaragua.

While no decision has yet been reached by Secretary Kellogg as to the form of action to be taken in response to the Diaz invitation, it is understood that, in the first instance, Mr. Kellogg will attempt to persuade the Nicaraguan Liberals to lend their support to the new Conservative Government. If this step fails the United States may intervene by landing marines in Nicaragua, acting in this manner in cooperation with President Diaz in an effort to effect the establishment of a stable Government.

It also has been suggested that if the Nicaraguan Liberals turn a deaf ear to the persuasive influences that may be brought to bear by Secretary Kellogg the United States may lift the embargo on shipments of arms to Nicaragua so far as it applies to the newly recognized Government of President Diaz.

The United States has strong naval forces in the South which can be quickly impressed into service in case of trouble in Nicaragua requiring action on the part of the United States. Two American cruisers are now in Nicaraguan ports — the Rochester at Bluefields and the Galveston at Corinto. The cruiser Cleveland is en route to Key West, the gunboat Tulsa is at Puerto Cabezas, Honduras, and the cruiser Denver is en route to Balboa. The destroyer Humphrey is at La Ceiba, Honduras, and the destroyer Panding at Cape Gracios, on the border between Honduras and Nicaragua.

Bolshevist agencies in Mexico are held by American officials to be partly responsible for the present state of affairs in Nicaragua. That there have been gun-running expeditions between Mexican ports and centres of Nicaraguan revolutionary activity has been substantiated to the satisfaction of this Government. Aside from the Bolshevist aspect of the case, so far as Mexico is concerned, there was also discernible in the present crisis, it was said today, a settled purpose on the part of the Calles Government to extend its influence southward. It was said further that this Government would not sit idly by in face of any move by Mexico to overlap the territory lying between the Mexican border and the Panama Canal.

Just what the Nicaraguan affair, which involves Mexico, may have on pending negotiations between Mexico City and Washington with reference to oil and land laws is now a matter of lively speculation. The belief is general that it will accentuate the somewhat taut relations now existing between the two Governments.

President Diaz's Appeal.

A summary of President Diaz's letter to Mr. Dennis made public by the State Department, after referring to Mexican aid of revolutionists and armed intervention in Nicaraguan political affairs, reads:

"For these reasons and appreciating the friendly disposition of the United States toward repnblics and the intentions which your Government has always manifested for the protection of the sovereignty and independence of all the countries of America by morally supporting legitimate Governments in order to enable them to afford a transqual field for foreign capital needed for the prosperity of these countries, I apply to you to solicit, with the same good-will with which you have aided Nicaraguan reconciliation, for my Government and in my name the support of the Department of State with a view to reaching a solution in the present crisis and avoiding further hostilities and invasion on the part of the Government of Mexico.

"I desire to say to you at the same time that whatever may be the means chosen by the Department of State they will meet with the approval of my absolute confidence in the high spirit

British Troops Sent to Stop Human Sacrifices in Burma

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

RANGOON, Burma, Nov. 18.—To prevent human sacrifices, said to have been arranged in the Nagas district, two Government detachments have set out from Putao.

Sir Spencer Harcourt Butler recently visited the district and insisted on the release of slaves and the abolition of human sacrifice. He will make a second journey there in January.

Burma, a Province of India, has been under British control since 1796. Sir Spencer Harcourt Butler was appointed Governor in 1923. He rules with a Council of Chiefs and a legislative council of 103 members.

Irish Playwright Says He Has Money Enough and More Fame Than Is Good for Him.

By T. R. YBARRA.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—George Bernard Shaw has refused the $40,000 awarded to him in conjunction with the Nobel prize for literature for 1925. In a letter sent tonight, through the Swedish Minister here, to the Swedish Royal Academy in Stockholm, Mr. Shaw, in his usual witty manner, says that he accepts the award, but refuses the money that goes with it.

He has quite enough for his needs, he remarks, and therefore the prize is like a lifebelt thrown to a swimmer who has already reached shore.

The playwright suggests that the money part of the prize, instead of going to him, should be used as a fund for making Swedish literature and art better known in Great Britain, and British literature and art better known in Sweden.

Ever since the announcement of the award of the 1925 Nobel literature prize to him, Mr. Shaw has adopted a sardonic "I don't care" attitude toward the world-famous Swedish annual distinction. At first he remarked that it probably had been given to him because he wrote nothing in 1925, and now he spurns with a grand gesture an amount which would make many writers giddy with happiness.

All of this is taken here as typically Shavian and as another instance of the extraordinary luck Mr. Shaw has in finding opportunities for publicity and the extraordinary ability with which he utilizes them.

For instance, it may be remarked that Mr. Shaw's "The Doctor's Dilemma" was revived here tonight and it may be taken for granted that the Nobel prize incident will not exactly decrease the interest of the audiences in the brilliant Irish dramatist.

Roosevelt Diverted His $40,000.

LONDON, Nov. 18 (AP).—The action of George Bernard Shaw in declining to accept the monetary award associated with the Nobel prize is somewhat in line with that of President Theodore Roosevelt, to whom the Nobel peace prize was awarded on Dec. 10, 1906, for his activities in bringing about peace between Japan and Russia.

President Roosevelt devoted the $40,000 prize to a foundation for the promotion of industrial peace, a general instrumentality for arbitrating the differences between capital and labor.

Text of the Shaw Letter.

Mr. Shaw's declination of the prize money was made in the following letter:

"The award of the Nobel prize for 1925 to an English work is a very wel-

QUEEN MARIE ENDS HER AMERICAN TOUR; TO SAIL NEXT WEEK

Alarmed by Cabled Advices on King's Illness, She Will Hurry to His Side.

SHE STARTS FOR NEW YORK

Her Decision Abruptly Made, She Carries Out Only Part of Louisville Program.

WILL LEAVE ON BERENGARIA

Nicholas to Visit Two More Cities, Then Join Mother and Sister, Sailing on Wednesday.

The New York Times Associated Newspapers.
From a Staff Correspondent.

ON BOARD THE QUEEN OF RUMANIA'S TRAIN AT LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 18.—Queen Marie withdrew from social activities in America today because of the illness of her husband, King Ferdinand, and at midnight started back to New York on her special train with all intermediate stops canceled.

The Queen's train is due to arrive in Jersey City at 9 A. M. Saturday. From there the Queen and members of her immediate party will go by motor car to the home of Charles E. Mitchell at Tuxedo, N. Y., where the Queen expects to spend the few days remaining before her sailing on the Berengaria in semi-seclusion. It is understood that the Queen will receive a few of her intimate friends there, but will participate in no further formal social engagements.

The route to be covered as at present scheduled will go through Cincinnati, Parkersburg, W. Va., Baltimore and Philadelphia, bnt the only stops to be made will be those necessary to the operation of the train. It was stated late tonight, however, that even this schedule might be changed.

Nicholas to Visit Ante Fiasts.

The decision of Queen Marie to hurry home to the side of her sick husband necessarily compels the abandonment of the plan for Prince Nicholas and Princess Ileana to attend the Army-Navy football game in Chicago on Nov. 28.

According to present plans, Prince Nicholas will fulfill a part of the remaining program scheduled while his mother and sister hasten on toward home. The Prince will leave the special train at Cincinnati tomorrow and afterward will visit Cleveland and Detroit, inspecting automobile factories at the latter city. He is expected to arrive in New York on Sunday afternoon.

Ira Nelson Morris, who has been in charge of the arrangements of the Queen's program at the various cities along her route, sent out telegrams today to reception committees all along the line expressing regret at the inability of the royal family to visit them and explaining that the Queen was forced reluctantly to give up the rest of her program because of the King's illness.

Advised to Return at Once.

Meanwhile, the Queen is still trying to get direct word concerning the condition of her husband. It was learned today that the cablegram arriving last night at Indianapolis which so distressed the Queen and caused her to cancel the remainder of her tour was not to the Queen herself but to Colonel Athanesco, the King's aide, who is accompanying the Queen on her present trip as aide to Prince Nicholas. This cablegram advised that the Queen return at once. Its text was withheld by the Rumanian officials, but, so far as could be learned, it gave no particulars as to the condition of the King.

This absence of direct advices is contributing to the Queen's nervousness over her husband's illness. She has sent a half dozen cablegrams in as many days without receiving the information she seeks. At the same time

Elizabeth Trapper Is Found Slain by Gun, Which Went Off After Fall in Catskills

Epscial to The New York Times.

WINDHAM, N. Y., Nov. 18.—The body of Edwin Probst, who left his home here last Sunday morning to visit raccoon and wildcat traps which he had set along the side of South Mountain, was found today at the bottom of an eighteen-foot rock crevice two and one-half miles from this village. Probst had been shot through the left side just below the heart. His shotgun was discovered on a shelf of rock about six feet above the body.

Dr. Horace G. Baldwin of Tannersville, Greer County, Coroner, declared after an inquest this afternoon that Probst met death accidentally. The gunshot wound, Dr. Baldwin said, indicated that Probst had tripped and fallen into the crevice, at the same time dropping the shotgun so that it was discharged, killing Probst instantly.

Since Sunday afternoon searching parties made repeated excursions to the mountainside to look for the missthe mountainside to look for the missing trapper. They found Probst's knapsack and lunch pail and a milk bottle in which he carried his bait a short distance from the last of his line of traps. These had been freshly baited, and the searchers were led to believe that, having sighted a wildcat or bear, he had started off to trail the animal.

After twenty-six hours the searching parties were compelled to return home at dusk on Monday when rain and a heavy fog descended upon the mountain. But despite inclement weather the search was resumed the following morning and parties had scoured the mountainside daily.

Early today while Roland and Daniel Miles, two of this best-known trappers in this vicinity, were climbing the mountain directly behind Coe's Hotel they passed along the brink of a rock crevice and noted what appeared to be a heap of clothing at the bottom. The trappers climbed down into the crevice and found Probst. Then they returned to the village and notified State Troopers Allen and Frey, who have been in charge of the search.

Up to a few months ago Probst lived at 758 Pennington Street, Elizabeth, N J. It was on the advice of his family physician, that he moved to the Catskills. He had been living at the boarding house of Fred Makley in Hensenville, and was preparing to move to a house of his own, which he had recently purchased. The house was formerly occupied by Harrison Beach, known hereabout as a "hermit."

Probst's brother George and his sister Gladys arrived here on Monday after news of his disappearance had reached them. They have taken charge of the body, which will be sent to Elizabeth for buriel.

Instant to Arctic by Radio, 5 Months by Mail From There

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 18 (AP).—About one sixty-fourth of a second was required to transmit the sound of an orchestra and a human voice from a Vancouver broadcasting station to Baffinland by radio, but it has taken more than five months for a letter telling about the reception to reach here from that remote corner of Canada. Late in May officers of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police outpost at Ellesmere Island picked up a radio program broadcast from Vancouver and on the following day a letter was written to the station, announcing the fact. The letter was borns out of the frozen North by dog team, snowshoe messenger, motor stage and train.

Programe broadcast from Vancouver have been picked up recently in New Zealand, some 13,000 miles away.

MEREDITH PROPOSES FIXED PRICE ON CROPS

Ex-Secretary of Agriculture Asks Federal Guarantee on Six Major Farm Products.

SURPLUS ONLY INVOLVED

Commission Would Buy It Year After Harvest, He Tells State Commerce Chamber Here.

A governmental commission to fix guaranteed prices to the farmer for six major crops—wheat, corn, cotton, wool, butter and sugar—was advocated by former Secretary of Agriculture Edwin T. Meredith in the course of an address last night at the one hundred and fifty-eighth annual dinner of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York at the Waldorf. Other speakers were William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor, who said labor was ready to give to industry and to society "the benefit of its organized strength and service," and United States Senator Hiram W. Bingham of Connecticut, who described the methods used to intimidate members of Congress by powerful lobbies pushing social welfare legislation in Washington.

Mr. Meredith Tells Plan.

Former Secretary Meredith said any plan to eliminate crop surpluses, ought to bring about an articulation of the laws of supply and demand and "the law of incentive," so that there would be "a production in accordance with demand." He declared a careful study had convinced him that price determined production, and it was the price at the planting season which caused farmers either to enlargs or decrease their acreage.

"The real problem, then, is not to handle the surplus, but to work out an agricultural policy which will eliminate the surplus and give us a balanced production," said Mr. Meredith.

"My proposal is that a commission composed of the Secretary of Labor, Secretary of Agriculture and Secretary of Commerce, and four additional men to be named by the President, with the consent of the Senate, be created and charged with the duty of naming minimum prices to be guaranteed to the farmer on six major crops produced during the ensuing year. The commission is not to buy any crop nor any portion of a crop until one year after harvest, and then only the surplus not absorbed either in our domestic or export trade, at the price bid."

Green Pledges Aid of Labor.

Mr. Green said in part:

"Notwithstanding the fact that many employers of labor and many owners of industry have recognized the principle of collective bargaining, there are employers, owners and managers of industry who have failed to accept the new conception of human relations in industry and who exercise the power of fixing arbitrarily the wage rates and prescribing the conditions of employment under which men and women must work. This policy and this attitude followed by some employers of labor constitute a prolific source of industrial strife, dissatisfaction and unrest.

"Labor stands ready to give to industry and to society the benefit of its organized strength and service. Labor, through its trained and efficient representatives, can assist in the solution of managerial problems and in the adjustment of differences which may arise between employers and employes. If reason and judgment are enthroned, directing the lives and actions of man, we can establish a relationship in industry which will speed the cause of peace, satisfaction and prosperity."

"Must we who sit at desks in Washington make rules and regulations for the ordering of the lives of 115,000,000 people?" asked Senator Bingham, who enumerated, among the social reforms sought at Washington, the following: Child Labor Amendment, Federal Department of Education, Federal Children's Bureau, the Federal Women's Bureau and the Maternity act.

"Now these organizations, as I have pointed out, are concerned with promoting social welfare. They are working without self-interest for what they believe to be the public good. They are inspired by sincere devotion to the public interest. They are ably aided by lobbyists in Washington who tell us of the millions of voters thus organized to carry out programs of social and political action. These legislative agents use as their chief weapon the size of their voting strength. They tell us frankly of the millions of voters they represent. They put pressure where pressure counts. Sincere in their profound belief in the righteousness of the causes for which they are working, they do not hesitate to attempt to override the sound judgment of members of Congress by appealing

Board of Estimate Hopes to Reach Definite Policy at Meeting Next Week.

GRANT BY BOROUGHS LIKELY

Mayor's City-Wide Plan Opposed by Majority—McCooey Also Is Against Further Delay.

TERMINAL PLAN OUTLINED

A. C. Bossom Proposes to Build 3 Large Stations Here to House Interurban Cars.

Members of the Board of Estimate will try to reach an agreement on a policy on bus franchises, it was learned yesterday, at a conference next week, at which it is hoped a start at awarding the franchises may be made.

George W. Olvany, leader of Tammany Hall, was credited with having inspired or stimulated this conference, which probably will be held on Tuesday, bnt it was learned that he would not attend, although he has let it be known that he believes action by the board on the approximately sixty applications for franchises should be taken as quickly as possible. Judge Olvany has told city officials that he believes there has been too much delay in the consideration of the bus situation and that the Administration is likely to be subjected to considerable criticism if much more time elapses without some action.

The chief point of difference among the members of the Board of Estimate is on whether one franchise shall be granted for the Boroughs of Manhattan, the Bronx, Brooklyn and Queens, for so-called city-wide operation, or whether franchises for borough-wide operation shall be granted. Mayor Walker is known to favor city-wide bus operation and the Borough Presidents, with the possible exception of John A. Lynch of Richmond, who is not personally interested, favor the grant of borough-wide franchises. Controller Charles W. Barry has expressed the belief that bus lines will be valuable chiefly as "feeders" for rapid transit lines and he stands with the Borough Presidents. The latter and the Controller constitute a majority of the board.

McCooey Also Counsels Action.

There is no difference among the members of the board as to the advisability of an early decision on the award of franchises. John H. McCooey, Brooklyn Democratic leader, also is understood to be in favor of a speedy determination of policy, because, like Judge Olvany, he believes the Democratic organizations in the city are responsible for the City Administration and might lose popular support if the delay is protracted much longer.

When the City Administration took office on Jan. 1 last it was hoped that the franchises might be awarded and that buses would be put in operation during the Summer. An agreement on the policy to be followed would make it comparatively easy to decide on the applicants to whom the franchises should be awarded. Several members of the Board of Estimate expressed belief yesterday that this might be done before the end of the year.

In its report to the Board of Estimate, the Board of Transportation in effect recommended a grant of a city-wide bus franchise and indicated that the Equitable Coach Company offered the terms that seemed most advantageous to the city. The present indication, it was said, was that this course would not be followed and that the board would adopt the borough as the bus operation unit.

Another difference of opinion, it was said, is likely to arise in determining to whom the borough-wide franchises shall be awarded. There will be a strong effort to have these franchises go to companies affiliated with existing transportation lines, both because sponsors of this method believe it would result in better service and because such a course would avoid litigation, already threatened by some of the existing surface lines.

Tells of Bus Terminal Plans.

Announcement that he had prepared plans for three central interurban bus terminal stations in Manhattan was made yesterday by Alfred C. Bossom, architect, of 680 Fifth Avenue. Mr. Bossom said that support for his project had been assured but withheld the names of his associates.

The architect's plan proposed to utilize basements for bus storage and to lower and raise each bus on an elevator. Elevators, he said, were more economical than long ramps descending into an underground terminal because the ramps took up so much space. One proposed terminal, he said, would be built west of Broadway for New Jersey buses, another east of Broadway for Long Island buses and still another for Westchester buses. Each terminal will have a waiting room with lighted bulletin boards announcing the time of arrival and departure of buses.

"By taking these enormous buses from their parked locations on street corners, traffic congestion will be relieved considerably," Mr. Bossom said. "A stationary bus occupies the space of three ordinary automobiles, and when two of them stand side by side in a street, waiting to be filled up, they block and paralyze traffic."

Mr. Bossom said that capital was available to put his plan into effect and that it was proposed to have the terminals in operation by 1928. He said that the officials of several bus lines were interested and that existing bus companies would be invited to use the terminals. The exact location of the terminals had not been determined, he said, but they would be near the shopping and theatrical districts.

MRS. GIBSON, FROM BED IN COURT, PICKS FOUR AS AT SCENE OF HALL MURDER; CRIES, 'I TOLD THE TRUTH; YOU KNOW IT'

Wife of Henry Stevens Says Mrs. Gibson's Story Shows That She Is Not Normal Mentally

Mrs. Henry Stevens, wife of one of the defendants in the Hall-Mills case, expressed herself, after court adjourned yesterday, at Somerville, N. J., as follows:

"I was never so glad to see any one come into a room in my life as I was to see Mrs. Gibson brought in to the courtroom today," she said, "and Henry felt as I did. We had been so terribly worried that the trial might have to be postponed for two or three weeks, or perhaps indefinitely, and we are anxious to heve it over with. Henry was positively entertained to have Mrs. Gibson testify that he was in De Russey's Lane at a time he knows he was on the beach at Lavallette, seventy miles away.

"My own opinion was that Mrs. Gibson was not normal mentally. Her manner of speech, the way she repeated the same word several times, for instance, 'scream, scream, scream,' her nervous gesticulations with her fingers as she testified, her inability to remember when or where she was married, all seemed unnatural to me.

"I can't understand why, if she frequently fired a gun to frighten trespassers away, as she has said she did, she failed to take the gun with her in her chase after suspected corn thieves. I am also puzzled by her ability to recognize the defendants at the scene, although when, according to her statement, she was within thirty feet of the rattly wagon, she could not recognize any one in it. I wonder why the people like Gorsline and Erling who were in or near the lane neither saw nor heard that wagon?"

She Saw 'Glittering Thing' in Man's Hand—Heard Shots, Then Fled on Her Mule—Denies She Offered $100 to Another to Back Her Story or That She Has Altered Her Version of the Murder.

Here is the complete testimony of Mrs. Jane Gibson, the State's star witness at the Hall-Mills murder trial in Somerville, N. J., yesterday:

Senator Simpson—If it pleases the Court, the State produces the witness, Jane Gibson, and asks to have her sworn—Jans Easton [her married name].

Direct examination by Mr. Simpson:

The Court—Before you proceed with the examination, I was wondering whether Mrs. Easton's voice is sufficiently strong for the jury to hear. I mean, is it advisable for the stenographer to repeat the answers as they are given?

Senator Simpson—If they do not bear I should say that can be done.

The Court—You may proceed.

Q.—On the night of the 14th of September, 1922, what was your occupation? A.—Farming.

Q.—Where was your farm? A.—Hamilton Road, New Brunswick.

Q.—On that night where were you between the hours of 8 and 9? A.—Between 8 and 9 I was sitting outside listening. I had been robbed on Sunday, or I discovered it on Monday, and I tied the dog out to a tree between the road and the house, and I listened there, I listened every night.

Q.—On Thursday night were you listening? A.—Yes, sir. I was listening then.

Q.—What had you been robbed of on Sunday? A.—Corn, two rows, they took all the ears off.

Q.—How many acres of corn did you have? A.—I had twenty-three acres.

Q.—How many acres of farmland did you have? A.—Sixty-one acres.

Q.—How many have you now? A.—Well, not quite twenty.

Q.—When you heard the dog bark on Thursday night what did you do? A.—I went outside and I walked down where the dog was and listened, and when the dog stopped barking I walked back, and I sat on the swing and listened.

She Heard the Bus Pass.

Q.—Did you hear anything? A.—Well, then the bus passed coming from Millstone to New Brunswick.

Q.—What time did that bus pass there? A.—A quarter to 9.

Q.—After the bus passed what did you do? A.—Then a wagon came, a rickety old wagon that rattled and rattled and rattled.

Q.—Where did it go? A.—It went down the road right in the middle of my cornfield.

Q.—Is that the same cornfield that had been robbed? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—What did you do then when you heard the wagon stop in the middle of the cornfield that they had stolen from the Sunday night before? A.—I went to the barn and put the saddle on Jenny and I started out on the road.

Q.—Which way did you go? A.—Toward New Brunswick.

Q.—Did you or did you not hear the wagon ahead of you as you followed? A.—Yes, I did. It rattled and went down De Russey's Lane.

Q.—And did you keep following it? A.—I did. When I got down in the lane the mule brayed.

Q.—What happened to the wagon? A.—And I was afraid to go too close, so I stayed about fifty feet behind. I was afraid.

Q.—After the mule brayed what did you do? A.—Then the man got going and going and going and going. He got down Easton Avenue before I did. The sound of the wagon sounded like it was going to New Brunswick.

Q.—Did you see anything up to that time? A.—Yes.

Saw Mrs. Hall and Brother.

Q.—What did you see? A.—When the wagon got out and turned around toward New Brunswick an automobile came in the lane a little ways and I saw two people.

Q.—Who were they—a man and woman or two men or what? A.—No, I saw a white woman and a colored man—and she didn't have no hat on.

Q.—Did you know who she was? A.—I see her face before but I did not know who she was.

Q.—Now have you learned who she was? A.—Yes; Mrs. Hall.

Q.—Have you learned who the man was who was with her? A.—Yes.

Q.—Who? A.—Stevens.

Q.—Which Stevens? A.—Willie Stevens.

Q.—After you saw those two get out of the automobile— A.—They didn't get out of the automobile.

Q.—Where were they? A.—Standing in the road.

Q.—Were you on your mule then? A.—Yes, right across from that, when I looked at them. When the car backed down I went to Easton Avenue and I turned around to try to listen to the wagon, but I could not see it. Then I came around and I saw a sedan standing on the corner.

Q.—Then what did you do? A.—Then I came back in the lane.

Q.—What lane did you go into? De Russey's Lane.

Q.—Where did you go in De Russey's Lane? A.—I kept going up and peeking and peeking and peeking, and I thought it might be some of those Italians that live in the colony back in there. Of course they neard the braying of the mule. They knew who it was that was following them and they wanted to go away.

Tied Her Mule There.

Q.—When you went np in De Russey's Lane for the reason that you give what, if anything, did you do with the mule? A.—Oh, I went way far back and I tied her back there.

Q.—Do you know what you tied her to? A.—Yes, two little cedar trees, and there is a stump there, too.

Q.—As you went up this lane that you describe, did you go right in the lane itself, or parallel with it, in the field? A.—No. I did not want to go in the lane. I wanted to go in and tie the mule way back.

Q.—Where was that, in the field? A.—Yes, in the field.

Q.—Now, after you tied your mule to the cedar tree, did you get off the mule? A.—Oh, yes, I had to get off to tie her.

Q.—Then, after you tied her, where did you go? A.—I walked slowly to De Russey's Lane. I was going to look for the wagon and follow him on foot.

Q.—You thought he was ahead of you? A.—Yes. I thought if Jennie brayed back there he would not think I was close by.

Q.—As you came down the lane did you hear anything? A.—I got to where there is a big cedar tree.

Q.—Look at this picture [pointing to Exhibit S-29]; does this look like a picture of the cedar tree that you were at? A.—That is it there.

Heard Mumbling Voices.

Senator Simpson—Pointing to Exhibit S-29.

Q.—As you got to that cedar tree what, if anything, did you hear or see? A.—I heard mumbling voices toward the left of me.

Q.—Men's voices? A.—Men's voices and women's voices.

Q.—What did you do then, still keep coming? A.—I stood still. They were coming closer all the time.

Q.—The voices seemed to be coming closer? A.—Yes. Then they went over that way and came back again.

Q.—When you say that way, do you mean away from the cedar tree or toward the cedar tree? A.—Toward the cedar tree. They were coming from De Russey's Lane right over toward the cedar tree.

Q.—Were you able to make ont any words when they got closer to you? A.—Yes.

Q.—What words? A.—Well, the men were talking and a woman said very quick, "Explain these letters."

Q.—And what did you hear the men say, if anything? A.—They were saying, "G—D it," and everything else. All that kind of stuff.

She Describes the Fight.

Q.—Did you hear more than one man say anything? A.—Somebody was hitting, hitting, hitting. I could hear somebody's wind going out, and somebody said "Ugh." Then somebody said, "G—D it, let go." A man hollered—

Q.—What do you mean, a man or a woman? A.—A man hollered.

Q.—And immediately after that what did you hear? A.—Then somebody threw a flash toward where they were hollering.

Q.—A flashlight? A.—Yes, and I see something glitter and I see a man, and I see another man like they were wrestling together.

At this point the nurse leaned over the bed and applied cold cream to the

DRAMATIC DAY AT TRIAL

Eyewitness Story of the Shots and Screams Unfolded to Jury.

SHE IS WEAK, BUT DEFIANT

Swears She Saw Mrs. Hall Kneeling at Bodies in the Moonlight.

NOW INCLUDES H. STEVENS

Defense Delves Into Her Past—Simpson Hints at Possible 'Miscarriage of Justice.'

Propped in a bed in the hushed courtroom, her face as waxen white as the coverlets, Mrs. Jane Gibson told her story yesterday in the Hall-Mills murder trial at Somerville, N. J. The recital took her only twenty minntes, and a white-clad nurse stood at one side of the bed and a physician at the other as the painfully slow sentences of accusation were uttered.

It was a story of shots in the darkness and of faces dimly seen in the flare of a flashlight, a narrativs of mumbled voices, curses and a struggle, and the dull sound of the falling of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills before four bullets. A story that was simple, yet one that clutched the auditors in a spell of silence broken only by the words issuing from the parched lips.

Down through the night of the murder the "pig woman" rode again on her mule. Along the winding way of De Russey's Lane to the crabapple tree, leaves a-rustle in the whisper of a breeze, to the scene of the crime. There, in the vague second's beam of a flashlight, the State's chief witness placed Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and her brothers, Henry Stevens and Willie Stevens. Placed there, too, the widow's cousin, Henry de la Bruyere Carpender, the fourth defendant, who is to be tried later and alone.

She Names Carpender, Too.

Mr. Carpender, a broker, whose kindly bearing suggests peace rather than violence, was in court. He stepped to the bedside for a brief moment while the sunken eyes of Mrs. Gibson scanned him and her weak voice carried the charge that he was in the group of four persons. Not once, however, did the witness name a defendant as the actual slayer. They were there, she said, the men on her first trip and Mrs. Hall and the "colored man"—her way of identifying Willie Stevens—on the second, when Mrs. Hall was bending over "shadows under the crabapple tree" and "screeching like an owl." On previous occasions Mrs. Gibson has said that Mrs. Hall was weeping softly.

Sauve, but solemnly persistent, State Senator Clarence E. Case, for the defense, cross-examined the witness. For three and a quarter hours he tempered his desire to search deeply into the story he charges is false with a wish not to lash unmercifully a sick woman. Sinister insinuations against the woman as a person of loose moral code, dark qnestions abont her shotguns, searching inquiries as to where she etood and how long, were dropped, almost silkily, on the figure in the bed. She answered them all and evaded contradictions; but it was plainly a strain.

Defense Sees Discrepancies.

Although Mrs. Gibson's story was a simple one, there were discrepancies from earlier versions. Four years ago, according to the best available authority, she identified Henry Stevens as the man with "the glittering thing" in his hand. Last August, at the hearing, with great effect, Mrs. Gibson placed her hand on Henry de la Bruyere Carpender as the man she saw. Now she has switched back to Mr. Stevens.

But in her replies to searching questions on this all-important point she said, yesterday that all were at the scene. The reason she failed to include Mr. Stevens in August, she said, was that she had not been asked. Senator Case reminded her that at the August hearing she had been asked whether she "saw anybody else" and that she had then replied negatively.

Mrs. Gibson's explanation, seeking to overcome this apparent impasse, was that she had looked around the courtroom at that time and had seen no one there, beyond Mr. Carpender, who had been at the scene. Henry Stevens was not under arrest then and did not join the defendants until September, when the Grand Jury voted its indictments. The defense questioner, turning to another phase of the cross-examination, sought to impugn Mrs. Gibson's credibility by questions on her marital status in other years.

"I Told the Truth," She Cries.

At the end, as the slender inquisitor turned back to his table, a purposely fixed look of disbelief on his face, Mrs. Gibson settled her disordered, gray-streaked head back on the pillow. Her eyes closed and her fingers pulled nervously at the blankets. Two attendants moved forward at either end of the stretcher to lift it. Mrs. Gibson's eyes opened in their caverns and for a second stared at the ceiling.

The jury was filing out and all save

DEMOCRATS PROPOSE $300,000,000 TAX CUT

Garner and Simmons Agree on Permanent Reduction Which May Reach $400,000,000.

LOWER CORPORATION TAX

Repeal of Nuisance and Automobile Imposts Also Suggested—Treasury Experts Doubt Feasibility.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—A tentative tax reduction program has been agreed upon by two Democratic leaders of Congress—Representative Garner of Texas, ranking minority member of the Ways and Means Committee, and Senator Simmons of South Carolina, ranking minority member of the Finance Committee—with a view to lifting from $300,000,000 to $400,000,000 of the present tax burden. The corporation income tax would be reduced from 13½ to 11 per cent., possibly 10 per cent., if the Treasury surplus would permit, and all so-called nuisance taxes and the automobile taxes would be repealed.

An agreement was reached further to consider suggestions by Senator Simmons for a cut in the middle income surtax brackets—those between $38,000 and $88,000—and also the propriety of repealing leaf tobacco taxes. The understanding with regard to the surtax and tobacco taxes did not bring those items into the program agreed upon beyond the question of considering them.

Mr. Garner declared today that there would be a surplus of $500,000,000 in the Treasury at the end of the current fiscal year on June 30, 1927. Receipts since July 1, he said, indicated an even greater surplus than that if the gains should continue during the rest of the fiscal year.

Administration experts said that if the proposals made by Representative Garner and Senator Simmons were put into effect without any reduction of surtaxes or tobacco taxes, revennes during the fiscal year 1928 would be lower by about $350,000,000 than those of the current fiscal year under existing rates. Reduction of the income tax on corporations to 11 per cent., in the belief of these experts, would reduce tax collections from that source by about $380,000,000. Elimination of the admission taxes would take off $25,000,000 and of the taxes on automobiles $75,000,000, a total of $350,000,000.

In addition, it is estimated that what are known as non-recurring revenues—which will be about $250,000,000 this fiscal year—will be not more than $50,000,000 in 1928, thus showing a loss of revenue of $200,000,000 in addition to that caused by the tax reductions proposed, giving the total of $550,000,000 decrease in the fiscal year 1928. Non-recurring revenues include the difference in favor of the Treasury between tax refunds and the collection of back taxes, liquidation of farm loan bonds, repayments on loans to railroads, and other miscellaneous items.

While Administration experts hope for the continuation of active business in 1927 which will assure heavy tax payments through 1928, there is as yet no proof at hand that corporation and individual incomes will continue at the same high levels. Therefore, with a decrease of $200,000,000 in non-recurring revenues in the fiscal year 1928 in sight and little probability that governmental expenditures will decrease, the Administration fight against alteration of rates at this time will be continued strongly.

Application of the $300,000,000 in surplus revenues to debt reduction instead of returning it as a credit to the taxpayers, would mean an additional reduction also of about $11,250,000 in the annual interest charges on the public debt which otherwise must be obtainable from tax revenues.

At the Treasury Department Secretary Mellon indicated today that there had been less public interest in the present tax reduction and tax rebate talk than on any previous occasion when the problem was a matter of discussion in the newspapers. The department has not been flooded with communications offering suggestions.

AMERICAN PIE WINS NEW JERSEY LAURELS

Succulent Apple Succeeds a Foreign Entry—Policeman's Vote Breaks a Tie.

Special to The New York Times.

WATCHUNG, N. J., Nov. 18.—Watebung's 100 per cent. Americans were reassured on the safety of the nation's future and gratified here tonight at the second annual pie contest of the Watchung Community Pie Association to learn that the taste of New Jersey pie-eaters has reverted to 100 per cent. American pie.

The 100 per cent. Americans were worried last year because a pastry called cocoanut meringue, an attractive but none the less foreign confection of practically no subetance, won first prize. They waited twelve months with some misgiving, but with considerable hope, for the contest tonight, and they watched the judges carefully. The judges were Mayor James P. McMurray of Plainfield, Mayor Willard N. Algar of Dunellen, Mayor Charles F. Battersley of Bound Brook, Mayor Frederick Clarkson of Metuchen and Alfred Olmstead of North Plainfield.

They were relieved after each of the judges had tasted twelve pies that they had decided to choose the prize winner from one of four. They felt misgiving again when the judges, unable to agree, called upon Patrolman L. A. Bellis of Somerville for help, and then they breathed a sigh of relief, for Patrolman Bellis voted that the apple pie baked by Mrs. Anna Nordheim of Watchung was the best pie.

Mrs. Marion Renrall won second prize with a lemon meringue pie and Mrs. Ray Zeller third prize with a cheese pie.

GIVES $750,000 TO MUSEUM.

Curtis Gates Lloyd's Will Offered for Probate in Cincinnati.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 18.—The will of Curtis Gates Lloyd of Lloyd Brothers, manufacturing pharmacists, filed with Judge Lueders for probate today, leaves the bulk of an estate, estimated at $750,000, for the care and maintenance of the Lloyd Library and Museum here. He had already spent about $500,000 to establish it.

The Lloyd Library and Museum is to receive all books, specimens, photographs, negatives and material of every kind in connection with the study of mycology stored in a building here, and all livestock, fowl and farm implements at Critlenden, Ky.

Hundreds of specimens of fungi which Mr. Lloyd gathered from the four corners of the earth, forming the most valuable collection of the kind in the world, belong to the museum.

FOCH REPLIES TO KING IN WAR CONTROVERSY

Marshal Contends He Prevented Albert's Retreat From the Yser River in 1914.

PARIS, Nov. 18 (AP).—Marshal Foch has replied to the letter from King Albert of the Belgians which categorically denied Marshal Foch's quoted assertion that he persuaded King Albert not to allow the Belgians to retreat from the Yeer River in 1914. The Marshal will probably allow sufficient time for the King to receive and consider the communication before permitting its publication.

Marshal Foch is said to feel that he was unworthily treated in that the King's letter, questioning statements attributed to the Marshal by Stephane Lauzanne in Le Matin, was published in the newspapers at the same time he received it.

The tempestuous interview which is reported to have occurred between King Albert and Marshal Foch in 1914 continues to be discussed animatedly by friends of the Marshal, who say he has talked more than once about the incident, which in his judgment was one of the crises of the war.

"When I went to King Albert's headquarters," Foch has said in substance to his friends, "the Belgian Army was beginning to retreat from the Yeer. I was obliged to point out to the King with great earnestness that this was a fatal course—that he could not thus abandon the last bit of Belgian territory held by him; it were better to die on the spot.

"'No one has ever spoken to me as you are now doing,' said Albert.

"'There never before, your Majesty, has been a situation requiring it,' I replied.

"I prevailed upon him to hold the line of the Yser."

It is said of Marshal Foch that he has never made the least imputation on King Albert's personal courage, but believed that the King's alleged order to retreat was to save his army so it might resist in stronger positions in the rear.

King Albert's letter to Marshal Foch said that when the Marshal called on him, on Nov. 16, 1914, his own proclamation to the Belgian troops that mention of retreat would be treason was already three days old. The King denied any recollection of the Marshal leaving the memorandum against retreat, which Marshal Foch was quoted as saying he gave to the King and to the British Commander-in-Chief.

15,000 FILM MEN PLAN UNION IN NEW JERSEY

Independent Theatre Owners Charge Leaders in Industry Seek to Crush Them.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, Nov. 18.—Charges that certain leaders of the motion picture industry were endeavoring to crush independent producers and that Will H. Hays, as head of the motion picture producers and distributors, was not protecting the interests of the small theatre owner were made at the annual convention of the New Jersey Theatre Owners' Association at the Ambassador Hotel today.

Plans for the amalgamation of 15,000 independent motion picture theatre owners are being worked out and, according to Joseph M. Seider, President of the New Jersey association and Chairman of the National Administration Board, will be announced by the Board of Directors at tomorrow's session.

The amalgamation, according to the independent leaders, is for the purpose of "meeting the monopolistic companies that are producers, distributers and exhibitors in one."

Will Hays's Administration was severly criticised by Mr. Seidar, who said:

"We have been forced into compulsory arbitration by what at first seemed the Magna Charta of the motion-picture industry, I refer to arbitration as represented by Will H. Haye. Mr. Hays has taken us for children and since he represents those powerful organizations that, because of finance and business methods, are beginning to dictate to us, he has forgotten to protect the small man."

KASTEL CONVICTED OF GRAND LARCENY

Fonda Jury Finds New York Broker Defrauded Amsterdam Client of $5,565 in Stock.

FONDA, N. Y., Nov. 18 (AP).—Philip ("Dandy Phil") Kastel, New York broker, was found guilty of grand larceny, first degree, by a jury here tonight. Sentence was deferred until Nov. 26 and bail of $20,000 was continued.

Kastel was charged with defrauding Fay Shaul, retired Amsterdam merchant, of $5,565, paid for United Drug Company stock in August, 1921. Kastel at that time represented Dillon & Co. of New York. The stock, Shaul charged, was never delivered.

Kastel was turned over to the Montgomery County authorities after his arrest in San Fracsicso and after he had been brought to trial twice in New York, disagreements resulting in both cases. At the third trial he was convicted, but appealed and was released on bail of $20,000.

SCARSDALE FILES APPEAL.

Baike st Court Order to Reinstate Police Chief Kenison.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 18.—A peremptory writ of mandamus, issued by Supreme Court Justice Joseph Morschauecr ordering officials of the Village of Scarsdale to appear before him on Monday to explain their noncompliance with a court order reinstating Frank P. Kenison as Chief of Police of the village, resulted in the service of papers by Village Attorney William C. White, giving notice that an appeal had been taken from Juetice Morschauser's ruling.

Kenison, ousted as Chief of Police in Scaredale on June 24, 1924, on the greund that his appointment had expired and that his tenure of office was only for a year, brought action last April to compel his reinstatement on the ground that his appointment had been indefieite. Sitting without a jury Justice Morschauser ruled that Kenison must be reiostated. The filing of the appeal papers automatically stays the proceedieg of the mandamus until the case had been decided by a higher court.

LINKS DAWES PLAN WITH WAR CLAIMS

Fraser, Counsel to Gilbert, Advises House Committee Not to Ignore It,

FAVORS WINSTON'S IDEA

He Holds That Dawes Plan Should Not Be Weakened by Saperate Deal With Germany.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The Dawes plan assumed increased importnnce in connection with the disposition to be made of seized alien property in the United Statee and the satisfaction of American claims against Germany, when Leon Fraser, general counsel to S. Parker Gilbert, agent general for reparntion payments, told the House Ways and Means Committee that any settlement as to alien property that ignored the Dawes plan would be "unthinkable." Mr. Fraser, who is here on a vacation, made it quite clear that he spoke not in an official capacity but solely as an American citizen who had been invited by Chairman Green to appear.

Supporters of the Winston plan for a Congresional appropriation of $100,000,000 to pay off American claimants pending receipt of reperations, were greatly encouraged by Mr. Fraser's picture of the tremendous influeece the Dawes plan, and countries pledged to it, could have in blocking or delaying the United States if it seeks a separate settlement with Germany. He said the Winston plan did not interfere. Thus he differs with David Hunter Miller, counsel to the American Peace Commission, who advocates a treaty arrangement between Germany and this country.

Lays Down Four Principles.

Regarding this and other pending plans involving a direct or separate settlement with Germany, Mr. Fraser warned that, if adopted, they would endangar the Dawes plan, which, he asserted, has been operating with great succees and under which Germany had been meeting her reparations payments with great "punctiliousness."

"America," he said, "should not be the first to cast a stone. Any effort to break down the Dawee plan will open the door to other nations to make special requests and demands."

Four principles were laid down by Mr. Fraser, who has been in consultation with Treasury officials on the problem. These he outlined as follows:

"One—American claimants should be paid in full without discrimination and as speedily as possible.

"Two—Alien property should be returned to German nationals at the earliest possible moment.

"Third—The simplest method is for the United States to return the property forthwith, and then repay the United States Treasury out of the Dawes annuities as they accrue at the rate of $30,000,000 a year. But if this simple solution is not practical, then a sufficient amount of the German properties should be retained as security until the American claims are paid or some arrangement satisfactory to the claimants is found.

"Fourth — Any such arrangement must be consistent with the international agreement known as the Dawes plan, and with the Paris agreement of Jan. 14, 1925, which was signed by the United States."

Continuing, Mr. Fraser said, in part:

"One or two proposals have been made which call for the return of German property, or, rather, a part of it, and the use of the property not returned, or of the claims of German shipowners, for the immediate payment of the American claimants, whereas Germany will be called upon to pay immediately in Germany, to German nationals, the value of the property not returned or the value of German shipowners' claims which are not satisfied. These payments by Germany are to be paid immediately in cash or by bond issue floated in Germany. The United States on its part is to assign to Germany the Dawes annuities as they accrue in the future.

Such a solution is inconsistent with the Dawee plan, because the plan provides that no hurden whatever shall be placed on Germany because of war claims of any power, in addition to the fixed annuities which Germany is regularly paying."

Backe the Winston Idea.

Mr. Fraser constantly warned against doing anything that might upset existing arrangements in Europe, and endersed the Winston plan.

Ex-Judge Edwin B. Parker of the Mixed Claime Commission told the committee the awards already made on American claims amounted to about $141,456,000, of which $99,500,000 were those of individuals and the remainder the Government's.

Claims in 4,685 oases, aggregating more than $500,000,000, have been dismissed and awards made in 2,600 other cases, he added.

EXPECTS NORMAL RISE IN THE STATE BUDGET

Senator Knight Says Gasoline Tax Would Be Favored as New Revenue Source.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Nov. 18.—Explaining the preparation of the State's budget for the fiscal yenr 1927-28 already tentatively astimated at $200,000,000, Senator John Knight, majority leader in the Upper House, said in an interview tonight:

"The present purpose is to introduce the general appropriation bill nt the beginnieg of the session. Department requests will aggregate upward te $200,000,000, as they did last year. Unless new financial aid is given to the schools there is no apparent reason why the appropriatione should exceed those of last year any more than by the normal increases. Last year the total appropriation eggragated $185,000,000. The normal increase will bring thle up a few million more. Recent extensions of the activities of the Stats will make a considerabis addition to the cost of government.

"Whether it will be possible to refund any portien of the income tax and maintain the direct State tax at the present rate or lewer can eely be determined when we have a more definite understanding of the probable receipts and disbursements of Government. I am eure it will be the policy of the Legislature to reduce taxes whenever possible. In case it is necessary to look to new sources of revenue, considerable sentiment will be found in favor of a gasoline tax.

"The Industrial Survey Commission will have numerous recommendations to make in regard to labor laws and the Workmen's Compensation law. The Baumes Committee will propose important amendments to the Criminal law and the Code of Criminal Procedure. At the time of the enactment of the Cole Education bills in 1925, it was conceded that these did not fully meet the needs of all the schools, and more especially the city schools and schools with more than five teachers. The question is receiving consideration again and it should be the purpose of the Legislature to meet the problem fairly.

"It is quite probable the Legislature will pass again the reapportionment bill and it is to be hoped that it will then receive executive approval.

"I am confident every effort will be made by the Legislature to cooperate with the Executive. We expect the same spirit from him. I believe that every decision will be made solely on merit."

PRISON KEEPER SUSPENDED.

Punished for Losing Pistol Which Was Returned by Sing Sing Inmate.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, Nov. 18. — Charged with carelessness under prison rules, Harry Quarles, a Sing Sing keeper and the only colored attendant in the State prison service, was suspended today for fifteen days for losing a loaded pistol on the prison premises that was picked up and turned in by a prisoner a week ago.

Petro Novello, serving two years for assault in Manhattan, received honorable mention when he found the weapon and gave it to the prison attendants.

Warden Lewis E. Lawes, after giving Quarles a hearing, took into consideration the fact that Quarles had reported the loss of the weapon and also that he had had a previous good record in the State service. Quarles, who lives at 510 Classon Avenue, Brooklyn, is a World War veteran.

DECLARES COLLEGES FAIL IN ENGINEERING

Investigators' Report to 164 Institutions Urges That Courses Be Revised.

ABLE TEACHERS HELD VITAL

Extension of Social Studies Is Also Advocated in Findings, Submitted in Washington.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—American engineering colleges have been so outstripped by science and industry that they must revise their methods, according to the report of the Board of Investigation and Coordination of the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education, of which Professor Charles Scott of Yale is Chairman.

The report was made public today at a meeting of the deans and administrative officers of 164 engineering institutions of the United States and Canada. It represented the results of a three-year fact-finding investigation just completed in this country and in Europe at a cost of more than $200,000. More than half this expense was met by the Carnegie Corporation.

To remedy the situation the board urged that a program of sweeping changes be put into effect at once in all the engineering colleges of the country to link up with activities of the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education, the great national engineering societies, the industries, the secondary schools and the non-engineering colleges.

Financial aid from the Engineering Foundation of New York in carrying out the plan had been promised, it was announced.

Elimination of "Waste" Is Urged.

The report condemned curricula that are "too soft," recommended that the normal length of the undergraduate curriculum should remain four academic years, including increased work in humanistic subjects, and appealed for the elimination of "gross waste in men and money imposed by the present system," in which the misfits were said to be unduly numerous.

"The development of greater social insight and a larger sense of social responsibility should be a definite objective of the engineering profession if it is to gain recognition for more than its technical profiolency," the report declared in recommending that general economics be included in all engineering curricula.

"At the same time it has need to improve its proficiency in dealing with problems of economy as related to the technical problems of engineering," the report continued.

"The ability of the engineer to extend his influence in industrial organizations and in public ills, to claim his due share of leadership and to discharge more adequately his function in society at large now appears to hings primarily on his attainment of greater competency and greater recognition on the economic and social side of his work.

High Standards Are Stressed.

"Adequate and sustained emphasis should be given to the bearings of engineering on the broader problems of society and to the social responsibilities of the engineering profession.

"Due regard for the profession and for the industries and public it serves calls for an educational policy designed to protect and elevate professional standards rather than to increase the number of engineering colleges, to improve the quality of student personnel rather than to expand enrollments.

"The pressure for more extended provision for technical education and the demand for increased technical personnel should be met, for the present, by expansion of the facilities and programs of non-collegiate types of training.

"Policies of admission to engineering colleges should have in view the positive attraction and selection of suitable personnel. A joint agency for cooperation with organizations of secondary schools and secondary school teachers should be created.

"Admission by certificate should be accompanied by more selective methods, including a test of general intelligence, training and aptitude tests in specific subjects, and a physical and health examination to discover and provide for remedial defects and eliminate in advance those too seriously handicapped for the successful pursuit of a rigorous college program."

Non-Graduates Called a Problem.

The non-graduating student was described as a problem to be faced, the report saying:

"The present proportion of non-graduating students in engineering colleges is plainly excessive, and indicates a negative handling of a group of important problems. More positive and constructive measures are needed.

"The most far-reaching remedy for the present situation is to be sought through selective admission at the outset."

The report stressed the need for action in developing teaching personnel. A critical situation is threatened, it said, because of increasing difficulty in enlisting able men for the highest posts in engineering education.

"Efforts to broaden and enrich engineering education will be largely unavailing unless teaching service is able to enlist and hold able and inspiring men," the report continued.

Prompt Action Recommended.

"There is abundant evidence that increasing difficulty is being experienced in filling vacancies of the highest importance; that the more gifted younger men in teaching ranks are not being developed to the same degree as their equals in active life, and that the administrative heads of institutions have not yet given the same concern to attracting and holding men of high professional distinction to chairs of engineering that has been shown in certain other realms of professional education.

"Prompt action should be taken to meet and offset the declining drawing power of the teaching career in engineering before a more critical situation arises.

"A laissez-faire policy will not meet this situation. Every engineering college should have a carefully worked-out policy and program for enlistment and upbuilding of its teaching staff. The engineering colleges should aim to establish a scale of compensation, including economic protection and retirement features, and a plan of tenure for engineering teachers which corresponds closely to the status of engineers of like maturity and of substantial attainments in the more stable industrial organizations.

"The present agencies and programs of engineering education fail to supply an adequate recruitment for the line or operating direction of industry, as distinct from its expert staff activities."

Many Institutions Represented.

Today's sessions of the engineering educators at the Cosmos Club were followed by a dinner tonight at the Willard Hotel at which Dr. Frank Aydelotte, President of Swarthmore College, was the principal speaker.

Deans attending the sessions included H. J. Hughes, Harvard; C. H. Warren, Yale; George B. Pegram, Columbia; Dexter S. Kimball, Cornell; President of the American Engineering Council; J. B. Whitehead, Johns Hopkins; A. M. Greene Jr., Princeton; John Fraser, University of Pennsylvania; M. E. Cooley, University of Michigan; M. S. Ketcham, University of Illinois; E. J. Strcubel, Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute; E. A. Hitchcock, Ohio State University; C. H. Snow, New York University, W. E. McCourt, Washington University, St. Louis; J. R. Benton, University of Florida, and E. J. McCaustland, University of Missouri.

Alfred D. Flinn of New York represented the Engineering Foundation, Lawrence W. Wallace of Washington, the American Engineering Council, and Vernon Kellogg, the National Research Council. Many other organizations are represented, including the Carnegie Corporation, the American Society of Civil Engineers, the Bureau of Education and the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

Gas Kills Woman Getting Dinner.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Nov. 18.—Mrs. Rose Bender, 55 years old, of 430 Darrow Avenue, Plainfield, was fatally overcome by gas while preparing dinner today. She was found unconscious in the kitchen by her son, Morris Bendar. Dr. Raphael Yood was summoned and city firemen used a pulmotor, but they were unable to resuscitate the woman.

Forger Did Not Attend Princeton.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 18 (AP).—Princeton University authorities said today that their records did not show that a man named Albert Schellenberger, sentenced at Kansas City, Mo., last Monday to five years for forgery, was ever a student at Princeton. Reports from Kansas City said Schellenberger asserted he not only was a student at Princeton but played on the football team in 1910 and 1911.

AMERICA MAY BRING NICARAGUAN PEACE

of justice of the Government of the United States."

Recognition of President Diaz by the United States evoked a protest today from T. S. Vaca, representative of the Nicaraguan Liberals in Washington, who characterized it as an exemplification of "dollar diplomacy" and in the interest of Wall Street bankers. Mr. Vaca indicated that in his opinion the next step in our reintione with Nicaragua would be "armed intervention" in favor of an administration that wanted to sell the national banks and railweye to New York bankers.

Denial was made that this Government has any official knowledge of a protest reported to have been made by President Green of the American Federation of Labor against this alleged proposed sale on the ground that the stock in the two corporations belonged to the Nicaraguan people. General Chamorro, who is represented as interested in the alleged deal, has no authority, it was asserted, to dispose of it.

KELLOGG'S WARNING ASTONISHES MEXICANS

Responsibility for Gun-Running to Nicaragua Is Disavowed in Official Circles.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 18.—A dispatch from Washington, published in the local press, stating that the White House could not permit Mexican Bolshevism to form a barrier between the United States and the Panama Canal and had called attention to the interference of Mexico in the internal affairs of Nicaragua, caused great surprise today in political circles.

It had been believed thnt the reture of Ambassador Sheffield, now on his way to Mexico City, indicated that complete harmony existed between the two Governments and that agreements had been reached on the alien oil laws. The deepest gloom prevails as the intimation thnt Weshington is unwilling to permit Mexican influence to spread in Central America is taken to mean that formal withdrawal of recognition of the present Mexican Government is close at hand.

It is known that the Mexican Government will answer that officially it has no knowledge of any assistance to the Nicarsguan rebels and that if rebel sympathizers have succeeded in smuggling arms and munitions to Nicaragua the Government is not responsible, as the country's extensive coasts prevent the patrols from covering every inch of territory. In support of this it will point to the constant invasione of Mexico by armed bands from the United States as proof that even the United States, with all her desire to prevent revolutions in Mexico, cannot keep filibusters from crossing her own border.

Nicaragua lacks shame when she requests intervention of the United States in her own affairs, which are purely domestic, said former President Alvaysde Obregon this afternoon at Chepultepec Castle. The United States has no more right to interfere in the internal affairs of Nicaragua than any other country has and intervention of any sort is a plain violation of sovereignty.

General Obregon, who is spending a few weeks at Chapultepec as the guest of President Calles, was in juvial mood when interviewed by reporters, who showed him the latest news from Washington. He laughed as he read it.

"This is pure professional jealousy on the part of the United States," he said. "She hee been accustomed to foment uprisings and revolutions in the countries of Central and South America and naturally dees not wish to see this profitable trade slipping away from her. New Orleans has long been the centre of supplies for revolutions and possibly American merchants are unwilling to see the centre of revolutionary supplies shifted to some other country. Seriously, though, Mexico has enough revolutions of her own without planning movements in other countries. I personally see no menace to Mexico in the present situation in Nicaragua, as Mexico is a sovereign nation minding her own business."

Referring to the charges that Mexico is spreading Bolshevism throughout Central America, General Obregon said:

"That, perhaps, is a matter of opinion. The United States is often charged with spreading her imperialism just as Mexico is now charged with spreading her ideas. I hope the ideas of Mexico will spread to other countries, as she is taking the lead in helping to uplift the masses and spreading benefits to millions, not to a few Wall Street magnates."

The American Embassy, through Chargé d'Affaires Arthur Schoenfeld, says that no representations have been made by the State Department in the case stated by the press.

To the Nicaraguan colony in Mexico City the Washington diepatch came as a disagreeable surprise.

The colony here, headed by Juan Salmon de la Selva and Dr. Pedro Zepeda, has for several months formed a revolutionary junta which has openly aided the rebels in Nicaragua. Former President Sacasa, who visited Mexico City recently, has left via Puerto Mexico for Bluefields, where it is said he will take a direct part in the military operations. Sacasea was a guest of the revolutionnry junta. He came to attend meetings to decide on a plan of campaign for the rebels.

For several weeks rumore have been coming from the Gulf of Mexico that ships carrying arms and ammunition had left Mexican porte en route to Bluefields and other Nicaraguan ports where the cargoes were to be delivered to the rebels. It is known that the Junta has expended large sums in purchasing arms and in propaganda.

Right to Extend Influence Claimed.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 18 (AP).—Intense general interest, considerable feeling that the situation contains possible grave aspects, and eot a little excitement have been caused by Washington dispatches declaring that the United States Government views with concern outside influence on Nicaraguan affairs, in connection with the direct accusation by the Nicaraguan President, Adolfo Diaz, that Mexico has invaded the sovereign rights of Nicaragua.

The official attitude of the Mexican Government is a denial that it has interfered in Nicaraguan politics or revolutions, or has promoted any filibustering expeditions to Nicaragua. Government officials, however, thus far have declined to make any direct official comment, because the United States Government's attitude has not been brought officially to the attention of this Government.

The indication that Washington considers the possibility of its Mexican relations being complicated further by Mexican Bolshevist influences manifesting themselves in Central America is regarded generally here as one of the most significant aspects of the situation. It is believed that the Government is giving careful thought to what reply, if any, it will make to this intimation.

Mexican officials declare their country has precisely the same interests in Central America as the United States has and naturally desires a sphere of influence. Mexico has and desires to continue close relations with the Central American countries and the officials contend that the United States has no right to criticize Mexico for precisely the same desiree she entertains herself.

EXPECT AMERICAN LOAN.

Nicaraguans Say New York Bankers Are Ready to Make It.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Nov. 18 (AP).—Announcement has been made that a group of New York bankers is ready to advance an immediate loan of $300,000 to Nicaragua. A larger loan, amounting to $6,000,000, it is declared, will be made later.

President Adolfo Diaz, who took office on Sunday last and whose Government has since been recognized by the United States, is forming a commission headed by an American to settle the claims arising from recent and old revolutionary activities.

New York bankers identified with the finances of the Nicaraguan Republic were without confirmatory advices yesterdny on a report from Managua indicating the newly recognized Government of Adolfo Diaz desired an immediate loan of $300,000, to be followed by a $6,000,000 loan later, according to The Associated Press.

It was said that no approaches had been made for a loan, but it was likely that Diaz might be in need of $200,000 or $300,000 for immediate uses.

It was indicated that such a loan, if received, probably would be taken care of. Any $6,000,000 loan at this or any other time in the near future was out of the question, it was learned, as there was no need for any such sum.

COSTA RICA IS STIRRED.

News of Our Recognition of Diaz Causes Sensation at San Jose.

SAN JOSE, Cota Rica, Nov. 18 (AP).—News that the American Government had extended recognition to the Diaz Government in Nicaragua has created a sensation here.

The Costa Rica Government has not as yet decided its attitude toward the new Nicarnguan régime.

The Diario de Costa Rica aske editorially today whether the American State Deartment has changed its policy in regard to the Latin American countries and whether the work of former Secretary of State Hughes in bringing about the Central American peace compact and guaranteeing the constitutioeality of the Central American Governmente has been eclipsed.

The attitude of the Nicaragunn Liberal revolutionaries is to continue the fight, it is announced by Liberals here. Their forces now count 5,000 men.

Kellogg Aske Mexico to Oust Agrarians on Mrs. King's Property.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The State Department today took steps to prevent further confiscation by Agrarians of American property in Mexico, instructing Chargé Schoenfeldt at Mexico City to make representations to the Mexican Government looking to removal of trespassers reported to have taken possession of 164 acres belonging to Mrs. Virginia King.

Mrs. King, who is owner of the sugar mill El Potrero, in the State of Vera Cruz, had reported inability to clear her property of the Agrarians.

Dr. Egloff Informs Pittsburgh Conference There Is Motor Fuel for 800 Years.

NEW ANTHRACITE DESCRIBED

C. V. McIntire Says His Company Makes Artificial Hard Coal in West Virginia.

RESEARCH IS PROPOSED

President of Carnegie Institute Expects Foundation to Back Investigations There.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 18.—Impressed by the revolution in the methods of utilizing coal as described by distinguished scientists from England, France, Germany and Japan, as well as by American authorities, there appeared to be unanimity of sentiment today among the visitors to the International Conference on Bituminous Coal at the Carnegie Institute of Technology for the establishment of a coal research foundation to continue work on the problems presented at the conference.

Dr. Thomas S. Baker, President of Carnegie Institute, said tonight that the four days' sessions just ended far exceeded the hopes of the Institute's officers who organized the meeting.

"The papers that were presented will mark an epoch in the scientific treatment of coal," he declared.

This statement was seconded by other fuel authorities, who were of the opinion that the conference marked a transition to a new era in coal research.

Business Interested in Research.

"We have been particularly impressed by the very keen interest of the business interests in this county in our meeting," continued Dr. Baker. "Many of the large companies sent several of their technical men. It is clear from this meeting that American business men are interested in research. They realize that industrial progress can be made more rapid and permanent through the aid of science.

"The Carnegie Institute of Technology will become the establishment of a foundation to make it possible to carry forward the study of some of the problems that have been presented at this conference. No plans have been made for the establishment of such a laboratory, but I feel that no city in the country is better situated to study the questions connected with the scientific treatment of coal than Pittsburgh.

"I am not prepared to make any definite announcement of our plans other than to say that we should be most happy to carry further the work which the Carnegie conference has shown to be of the very greatest importance and interest to many of the American industries."

Informal opinions expressed by delegates indicated that there was a possibility that two or three industries might soon discuss the advisability of assessing themselves in order to establish an endowed foundation along the lines formulated by President Baker.

Industries at the Conference.

Among the industries represented at the conference were gas, power, fertilizer, coal, oil and motor fuel and chemical and metallurgical industries. All were interested primarily in cheap power, which, it was said, would be hastened by intensive coal research in this country.

Announcement was made of the perfecting of an artificial anthracite, a smokeless preparation, made from bituminous coal and pressed into briquets, which it is expected will soon be offered to consumers in commercial quantities at a price lower than anthracite.

Speakers described various methods of cracking oil obtained from coal which, it was asserted, would make the world independent of natural oil. The liquefying of coal at the mine mouth and the piping of the resultant gas and oil to centres of use was said to be feasible. Various processes for the low temperature distillation of oil were set forth in detail by experts.

The formal sessions ended this evening. Tomorrow the delegates will visit important plants near by. Many will go to the experimental mine maintained by the United States Bureau of Mines at Bruceton, Pa., to witness a demonstration of coal dust explosions arranged for their benefit.

Anthracite Substitutes Described.

The anthracite substitute was described by C. V. McIntire of the Consolidation Coal Products Company of New York, a subsidiary of the Consolidation Coal Company, in which John D. Rockefeller is said to have a substantial interest.

After three years of effort and the expenditure of $500,000, explained Mr. McIntire, the Consolidation Coal Products Company has developed by low temperature distillation at Fairmont, W. Va., a substitute for hard coal. The Board of Directors will soon decide on the question of spending $1,500,000 for a plant to turn out 250 tons of briquettes a day, and further additions to a total expenditure of $4,000,000 will permit the manufacture of 1,000 tons a day.

The coal is now made at the Fairmont demonstration plant of the company at the rate of 50 tons a day and has been shipped to New England and Washington for sale at about $2 a ton less than hard coal.

According to Mr. McIntire, the briquettes have withstood the abuses of commercial handling and have been pronounced an excellent artifical anthracite by customers. The basis for the development at Fairmont was the process known as carbcoal, developed at the expense of millions of dollars by the International Coal Company, he said.

"An artificial anthracite of good quality and at a price lower than anthracite and available in ample quantity offers a solution of the smoke problem," said Mr. McIntire. "The manufacture of artificial anthracite offers the producers of hituminoue coal an outlet for his coal; it opens a new field free of rapid price fluctuations, where the demand is constant."

C. W. Watson Called Originator.

"The idea of an artificial anthracite was first broached by C. W. Watson, President of the Consolidation Coal Company, about three years ago, and his thought was corroborated by Coverdale and Colpitts, consulting engineers," continued Mr. McIntire. A subsidiary company was formed and work was begun.

After describing the process Mr. McIntire said that severe tests had been made by shipping the briquettes by freight and truck to many points in the United States.

Dr. Gustav Egloff, technical director of the Universal Oil Products Company, Chicago, who spoke on "the cracking of low temperature tars by the Dubbs process," declared that the bituminous coal deposits of the United States are sufficient to supply the world with motor fuel for 800 years. Coal deposits, he explained, represent the largest known potential of oil in the world today.

"It is estimated that there are 3,154,000,000,000 tons of bituminous coal in the world, of which the United States has approximately 1,600,000,000,000 tons," said Dr. Egloff. "By means of low-temperature distillation of thie quantity of bituminous coal, 800,000,000,000 barrels of tar can be produced, which, under cracking conditions, will yield 240,000,000,000 barrels of motor fuel of high anti-knock properties."

Dr. Egloff stressed the point that the motor fuel produced from low-temperature carbonization and cracking "will give over douhle the mileage per gallon of motor fuel when compared to ordinary gasoline while operating a high-compression motor." He described the Dubbs cracking process, which transformed tar into motor fuel, coke and gas.

Advocates Distillation at Pits.

Harald Neilsen of London, discussing the distillation of coal, spoke of the possibility of handling the coal at the pit, distilling it, recovering the valuable primary oils and gas and then transmitting them by long distance piping to where the products were wanted. He said that carefully worked out calculations showed that the cost of transmitting 100,000 British thermal units of the gas would be a trifle over a cent and a half for seventy-five miles.

"There is a vast scope for properly conducted investigation on sound lines on coal and oil shale," he added. "One need only glance at the very report of the Federal Oil Conservation Board on the natural well oil resources and the shortcomings of these in the next decade to realize that the only reserves civilization can throw into the breach are the scientific handling and distillation of coal and shale to supply the products no longer obtainable directly from a bore hole in the ground."

Mr. Neilsen said that the British coal strike brought home to every thinking man and woman in every civilized country the vital importance of coal and fuel resources and their efficient utilization as the main factor in the industrial well being of the community.

Professor S. W. Parr of the Chemistry Department, University of Illinois, prophesied a great future in the investigation of coal.

Clarence C. Wisner of the Carbocite Company, Canton, Ohio, told of six years of effort which have resulted in the manufacture from bituminous coal of a coal ball about the size of an egg, which looks like coke which has been shorn of some of its irregularities.

Other speakers were Dr. Walter Rung, New York; F. C. Greene, Chicago, Ill.; Emil Piron, New York; W. A. Darrah, Chicago, Ill.; Richard B. Parker, New York, and F. E. Brocker, New York. W. R. Addicks, Dr. S. W. Parr and William E. Fohl presided at the morning, afternoon and evening sessions.

OFFERS TERMS TO CHINA.

Belgium Waits Before Taking Treaty Dispute to The Hague.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 18.—Today's announcement that the Belgian Government had renewed its offer to place before the Court of International Justice at The Hague the Sino-Belgian Treaty recently denounced by China, has aroused the interest of the United States, Great Britain, France and other Chinese treaty powers.

Belgium has asked Peking to define the points of difference so that a new basis for an understanding can be arranged.

If the Peking régime does not accept this procedure then Brussels will, it is believed, make a unilateral appeal to the Court.

The action of China in denouncing her treaty with Belgium has centred the eyes of other interested powers on the way in which the issue will be settled, for it is not at all unlikely that the other nations may soon find themselves in a position similar that of Belgium in regard to China.

It is thought here that Belgium has been in communication on the subject with London, Paris and Washington.

Girl, 17, and 12 Men Seized as Robber Gang; Police Make Secret Raids on Mysterious Tip

The police rounded up yesterday twelve men and a 17-year-old girl on suspicion of being members of a band which had committed many safe robberies and hold-ups in this city, but maintained unusual secrecy as to the significance of their captures. The girl was reported to have identified herself as Katheryn McKinley of Alberta, Canada, when she and one man were arrested last Wednesday night in an apartment in West 113th Street.

This raid was led by Detective Stephen Brady of the Automobile Squad, who had received information from a mysterious source that the man occupant of the apartment was one of a gang of about fifteen cracksmen who had robbed safes in many theatres and business places in the city in the last year.

It was reported that when the girl was questioned late Wednesday night by Inspector Coughlin, head of the Detective Division, she revealed that the gang had a rendezvous in three apartments, including that in which she was found, and squads of detectives were ordered to raid the two other places. In one of these, in the Borough Park section of Brooklyn, it was said, six men were arrested. The detectives were said to have uncovered several magazine pistols and two acetylene gas torch burners, such as are used by modern cracksmen, but no trace of the tanks or the rest of the apparatus could be found.

Three men were arrested at about the same time in a raid on another apartment occupied by the gang members, it was reported, at Columbus Avenue and Sixty-fifth Street. These men were hurried to Police Headquarters, where the girl and all of the men prisoners were subjected to continuous questioning. Shortly after 8 o'clock last night detectives arrived with two more prisoners. These were taken before the Inspector for questioning after the other men prisoners had been placed in separate rooms in the Detective Bureau to prevent them from talking to one another.

Inspector Coughlin refused to discuss the arrest of the girl and the twelve men. He said no information would be given out until he was certain that all the members of the gang had been caught and information about their alleged crimes had been thoroughly investigated.

QUEEN MARIE ENDS HER AMERICAN TOUR

she is reading alarming reports of the King's illness in news cabled from abroad and published in newspapers along the route.

After the Queen made known her desire late last night to return home immediately, officials of the train stayed up all night making arrangements to call off the rest of her program and arrange for her swift return. Early this morning it was announced that all engagements in Louisville, where an elaborate program had been arranged, would be canceled, but leaders of the Louisville Reception Committee appealed to the Queen in person, and she consented to go through part of the program in order not to disappoint those who had prepared for her coming.

"My Old Kentucky Heme."

At 11 o'clock the Queen, accompanied by Prince Nicholas, left her private car and motored with her party to the City Hall, where she was greeted by Mayor Arthur A. Will. Princess Ileana did not accompany them, but remained in her room recuperating from the strain and exposure of her motor trip of the day before, in which she narrowly escaped a serious accident.

From the City Hall the party motored forty-five miles to Federal Hill, the mansion in which Stephen Collins Foster wrote "My Old Kentucky Home." There the Queen was greeted by Governor William J. Fields and entertained at luncheon in one of the great halls of the old mansion. Queen Marie made every effort to hide her present anxiety and listened with interest to stories of the old house, once the home of Justice John H. Rowan, an old-time Southern gentleman, who fought a duel with a neighbor who criticized his Greek and who was host to Foster when Foster wrote his famous song. During the luncheon a quartet of negro servants sang "My Old Kentucky Home" and other Southern favorites.

The day was bitterly and unseasonably cold, but the royal party motored on to Hodgenville, seventy-five miles from Louisville, where the Queen laid a wreath at the foot of Abraham Lincoln's statue there, and proceeded on a few miles to Lincoln's birthplace, where the Queen viewed with great interest the reconstructed log cabin enclosed in its marble temple.

Affront to Newspaper Men.

On the way back to Louisville some unpleasantness was caused by the action of militia officers accompanying the Queen's party. The officers' car was stopped by a puncture. They halted the next car following, which contained two correspondents traveling with the Queen's train and a woman guest of the royal train, and without preliminary explanation ordered them out. The occupants of the car declined to leave it, since they were guests of the Queen. Willard Johnson, a Ford employe here, who was in charge of the Lincoln cars used by the royal party, then appeared and informed the correspondents and the others that he was in charge of the cars and that the occupants would have to leave it if the militiamen wanted it.

Major George M. Cheshire, in command of the officers' detail, then stated that he was aide to the Queen by appointment of Governor Field, and was acting under the authority of the Governor. He peremptorily ordered the occupants out. The original occupants of the car, including the woman, stood in the cold.

The officers took over the good car and rode away, leaving the original occupants, including the woman, to wait a half hour in the road in the cold, under a light snow, while the other car was being repaired.

When word of the incident was brought to officials in charge of the train, they sent a telegram to Governor Field asking him to investigate it with view to an apology from the officers. Later tonight Major Cheshire sent word that no offense had been intended.

The entertainment in Louisville closed tonight with a ball at the Brown Hotel, at which Queen Marie appeared for a few minutes at the urging of her hosts. Prince Nicholas and Princess Ileana attended it throughout the evening.

LOIE FULLER EXPECTS TO MEET MARIE HERE

Former Dancer Denies Friction on Royal Train and Says She Was Not Asked to Leave.

Miss Loie Fuller, whose presence in the entourage of Queen Marie during part of the transcontinental tour has been reported as the cause of some of the dissension on the royal train, denied emphatically yesterday at the Hotel Plaza that she left the train at the request of the Queen. She said the reported friction in the party was newspaper talk without foundation in fact. In support of her contention that she left the train voluntarily to come East to attend to urgent business matters, Miss Fuller showed a letter she had received from Queen Marie, in which the latter deplored the published accounts of the alleged circumstances attending Miss Fuller's departure and assured her that they were entirely false.

"I never was asked to leave the train," Miss Fuller declared, "and the only indication to that effect I ever saw was in the newspapers. I read these accounts with amazement, and my only impulse was to laugh at them. It was only after I had left the train that I saw the stories. So far as I was able to observe, there was no dissension, no bickering or friction."

Miss Fuller spoke in high terms of Samuel Hill, whom, she said, she had known for many years, and whom she introduced to the Queen. Both Colonel Washburn and Colonel Carroll, she said, had treated her with the greatest consideration.

Asked whether she expected to see Queen Marie on the latter's return to New York, Miss Fuller replied in the affirmative. She paid a tribute to Marie as "first of all a woman of unique gifts, devoted to humanity, who chanced to be a Queen."

IMPERIAL SUITE FOR MARIE.

Queen to Occupy Quarters Originally Designed for Kaiser.

Officials of the Cunard Line yesterday afternoon confirmed the report that Queen Marie had booked passage on the Berengaria, which will sail from New York at 10 A. M. next Wednesday. The Queen will occupy the imperial suite. The Berengaria was formerly the Imperator and the group of cabins, C 47 to C 53, were intended for the use of the Kaiser. They were occupied by the Prince of Wales when he came to this country.

The suite is on the starboard side just forward of the main companionway. It consists of two bedrooms, each with a bathroom; a breakfast room, with a completely equipped serving pantry, which will enable the Queen to take all her meals in the suite, if she wishes; a large reception room, two trunk rooms and a shower bath compartment. There is also a large private veranda, with seven plate-glass windows.

KING "CAUSES NO ANXIETY."

But Cure Will Be Slow, Premier Tells Rumanian Parliament.

BUCHAREST, Nov. 18 (AP).—King Ferdinand's condition causes no anxiety, Premier Averescu told Parliament last evening, but as his malady is of long standing, the cure is necessarily slow.

(Ferdinand's ailment has been designated as sigmoiditis, or inflammation of the large intestine.)

FRENCH DEBT PARLEY IS SAID TO BE SOUGHT

Poincare Is Reported to Desire Negotiations to Pave Way for Parliament Action.

PARIS, Nov. 18.—At the French Finance Ministry today neither confirmation nor denial was obtainable of the report published this morning in the Echo de Paris, which is usually well informed, that Premier Poincaré would "probably begin new negotiations with Washington and London on the debt question, so as to be able to present the question as favorably as possible to Parliament when the occasion arises."

Tomorrow the Finance Commission of the Chamber of Deputies will meet to hear the report of Deputy Dariac on behalf of the special subcommission on debts. The call for the convocation of the Finance Commission reads, "Decisions to be taken," but it is far from being the intention of any parliamentary body in France just now to make any decision on this issue.

"Dariac himself has carefully refrained from making any recommendation which would look like a decision on his part, and tomorrow the only decision the commission is likely to make will be to appoint Deputy Chappedelaine in his place. The new committee reporter will then have to begin all over the study of the documents involved.

The National Association of War Cripples and Former Combatants held a large mass meeting in Paris tonight and renewed with added vigor its protests against ratification of the Melon-Bérenger debt accord in its present form. A similar attitude was taken in regard to the debt agreement with Britain. Copies of strongly worded resolutions were forwarded to the Government.

Beaverbrook Says 'Beau Geste' Is Favorable to the British.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—A tribute to the American film "Beau Geste" is paid today by Lord Beaverbrook, proprietor of The Daily Express, in a letter to the editor of that paper. Beaverbrook writes:

"There is a great deal of criticism of American films published in England. Particularly it is asserted, often in violent terms, that Americans make use of their opportunities in this direction to spread their own propaganda. Therefore, when an American film with a powerful and moving balance in favor of Great Britain reaches this country we here ought to make due and public acknowledgment of the fact.

"I refer to the film 'Beau Geste,' which presents a most favorable view of British character in the form of excellent entertainment.

"We owe this production to Mr. Zukor of New York, who is famous for his friendship to British institutions."

The Daily Express gives the letter prominence on its first page.

ENGLISH BISHOP HITS VANDERBILT DECREE

Attack on Annulment as 'Insult' to Anglicans Is Cheered in Church Assembly.

DUCHESS QUIT OVER REMARK

Resented Words by Duke at Dinner Party and Left Blenheim—Marriage Dot $2,500,000.

LONDON, Nov. 18 (AP).—Addressing the National Assembly of the Church of England today the Right Rev. A. E. Burroughs, Bishop of Ripon, referring to the annulment of the Marlborough marriage, declared that it was an insult to the "old communion to which we are proud to belong."

The Bishop's utterance was greeted with cheering.

The Church Times, organ of the group in England which is endeavoring to bring about a rapproachement between the Anglican and Catholic Churches, takes the ground that, assuming that the marriage was brought about by duress upon one party to it, it cannot be denied that it is invalid. It says, however, that the protest of the Bishop of the diocese in which the ceremony was performed should be considered. It regrets the decree of annulment, believing it has done much to weaken the sanctity of the marriage tie.

"It is disconcerting," says The Church Times, "that this annulment should be announced at a moment when it is reported that marriage is entirely abolished in Russia."

Remark By Duke Caused Break.

Amid all the incidents that have been brought to light through the annulment of the Marlborough marriage, one stands out prominently. At a dinner party at Blenheim some years ago the Duke made a remark to which his wife took exception. The Duchess immediately left Blenheim, setting up her own establishment in a magnificent new Curson Street mansion.

Through all the intervening years the Duke and Duchess and their friends have maintained secrecy as to the nature of the remark, which, intimate friends say, had much to do with wrecking the marriage. The Duchess entertained lavishly, forming a new circle of friends. Her two young sons, the Marquis of Blandford and Lord Ivor Charles, were sent to public school, spending most of their holidays with their mother. Occasionally they visited the Duke at Blenheim.

Some years later mutual friends endeavored to bring about a reconciliation. The Duke and Duchess agreed to make the trial. Accordingly they were brought together at a house party for several days. But all efforts went for naught, for the Duke abruptly departed. Soon after, he intimated to the Duchess by letter that he regretted the experiment had been a failure and informed the Duchess that he felt that after so many years in which they had lived separate lives there was little prospect of a permanent reconciliation. From that time on they lived apart, meeting only for occasional conferences on family affairs.

The Duchess spent some time in southern France, and in war times met Colonel Jacques Balsan, who was then connected with the French Red Cross. Obtaining a divorce from Marlborough, she married the Frenchman.

Opposed Annulment at First.

ROME, Nov. 18 (AP).—The Duke of Marlborough opposed the annulment of his marriage to the former Consuelo Vanderbilt until it was explained to him that the two children resulting from the union would not lose their legitimacy.

This is shown by the "motives" for the decision of annulment pronounced by the Catholic Diocesan Court of Southwark, England, and confirmed by the Holy Rota Tribunal here, which have just become available for publication.

After it was proved to him that the marriage was "apparently legal" until declared otherwise, he favored the proceedings for annulment.

Terms of Marriage Settlement.

William K. Vanderbilt, in his marriage settlement upon his daughter, Consuelo, and the Duke of Marlborough, created a trust of $2,500,000, the Duke to receive the income during his lifetime and at his death to be paid to Consuelo during her lifetime, and at her death to the male heir of the Duke. He also entered into an agreement to pay his daughter $100,000 a year in four equal quarterly instalments "if the said marriage be solemnized." Both agreements revealed in papers filed three years ago at Riverhead, county seat of Suffolk County, in transfer tax proceedings.

Mr. Vanderbilt died on July 23, 1920, in France, and the gross value of his estate as appraised for transfer tax purposes in 1923 was $54,530,966.69.

His agreement with his daughter, in part, follows:

"On this indenture further witnesseth that for the consideration of aforesaid the said William Kissam Vanderbilt hereby convenants with said trustees or trustee, administrator or assigns, that if the said marriage be solemnized, he, the said William Kissam Vanderbilt, will pay to the said trustees, or trustee, during the life of him, the said William Kissam Vanderbilt, and of the said Consuelo Vanderbilt, the yearly sum of $100,000, commencing from day of said marriage and payable by equal quarterly payments on the 25th day of December, the 25th day of March, the 24th day of June and the 29th day of September in every year, but to be deemed as accruing from day to day."

The Trust for the Duke.

The agreement with the Duke in part reads:

"Whereas, a marriage is intended shortly to be solemnized between the said Duke of Marlborough and the said Consuelo Vanderbilt, and whereas, pursuant to an agreement made upon the treaty for the said intended marriage, the sum of $2,500,000 in 50,000 shares of capital stock of the Beach Creek Railway Company, on which a payment of an annual dividend of 4 per cent. is guaranteed by the New York Central Railroad Company, is transferred this day to the trustees.

"And shall during the joint lives of the said Duke of Marlborough and Consuelo Vanderbilt pay the income of said sum of $2,500,000 unto the Duke of Marlborough for his life, and from and after the death of the said Duke shall pay the income unto the said Consuelo Vanderbilt for her life, and from and after the death of the survivor of them, the said trustees shall stand possessed of the said trust fund and the income thereof for the successor of the said Duke of Marlborough provided that he shall be a male heir of the body of said Duke."

FRENCH COURTS ANNUL NEW YORK MARRIAGE

They Hold Young Archdeacon and Mme. Savoli-Lang Falsely Represented Him as of Age.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 18.—The French courts today pronouoced an annuiment of the marriage in New York on June 9, 1924, of Tanneguy Archdeacon and Mme. Savoli-Lang on the ground that the husband was then a minor. He is the son of a well-known French sportsmao, Ernest Archdeacon, whose name was closely linked with those of Orville and Wilbur Wright during the first trial flights of the American airmen in France. Mme. Savoli, a young Frenchwoman, was the divorced wife of an American citizen, Albert Lang, whom she met while employed in a bank in New York.

Her marriage with Archdeacon was not happy, the young couple parting within two months after the wedding. The wife demanded a legal separation in the New York Supreme Court on July 2, 1924, and was provisionally allotted $20 alimony weekly. Meanwhile Mr. and Mrs. Archdeacon heard about the affair and brought their son home, depositing $3,000 bond. On Jan. 30, 1925, the New York Supreme Court gave final judgment, raising the alimony to $40 weekly. The French courts have now declared the marriage null and void on the ground that Tanneguy Archdeacon and Mme. Savoli were accomplices in a false declaration of age, he being only 20 years of age at the date of the wedding. But the courts added a rider ordering Archdeacon to pay his former wife 25,000 francs damages.

DE LA HUERTA REPORTS BIG REBEL MOVEMENT

20,000 Armed Mexicans Have Asked Him to Lead, He Says, —Washington Skeptical.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 18 (AP).—More than 20,000 men are in arms in various States in Mexico in a general rebellious movement against the Calles régime, according to an announcement here today by Adolfo de la Huerta, former Provisional President of Mexico. Leaders of every unit, with the exception of one, had proclaimed him their leader, he said.

The former President, who assumed office in 1920 when the Carranza régime was overthrown and left it when Alvaro Obregon was elected President seven months later, produced documentary evidence to support his assertion that the rebel movement was being prosecuted with a view to placing him in political power when control of the republic is obtained.

This evidence was in the shape of letters brought to him through various channels, some printed on silk cloths, direct from rebel leaders asserting their faith in him.

The American authorities, de la Huerta said, were cognisant of his position. In due time he expected to take his place at the head of his sympathizers, he declared.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (AP).—Informed officiale here took a highly ekeptical view tonight of Adolfo de la Huerta's announcement in Los Angeles that more than twenty thousand men were in revolt against the Calles Government in Mexico and had declared themselves for de la Huerta. Official advices from Mexico and the border do not reflect any such situation in that country.

RUSSIAN LABOR UNION EXPELS BOURGEOIS GIRL

Her Attempted Suicide Draws Soviet Condemnation on the Labor Federation.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Nov. 18.—Cruel light on the real meaning in terms of human life of the Soviet struggle against the bourgeoisie is thrown by the story of a girl, Anna Ethersonski, told by the Kharkof newspaper Proletariat.

Anna is the daughter of a small business man—thus of the bourgeois—living in a Ukrainian village near Poltava. The girl found work in a Poltava stocking factory and became a member of the Labor Federation. Then she went to Kharkof, where she stayed with an uncle who is a member of the Communist Party, and got another job in a metal factory, again becoming a member of the Labor Federation.

A few weeks ago, after she had been employed some time, the Shop Committee received information from her native village that she was of the bourgeois. Whereupon she was expelled by the Labor Federation, consequently losing her job.

The young woman then took poison, leaving a note saying:

"Blame no one for my death save the trouble with the Federation."

As it happened, prompt treatment at the hospital saved her life, but the story has created a great stir because it is by no means an isolated case.

Soviet writers emphasize most strongly that such action on the part of the Shop Committee was entirely unjustified and that all measures directed against the bourgeois element were meant to apply to persons living at ease by exploiting others, but certainly not to any one, whether ex-bourgeois or their children, trying to earn a living by their own labor.

ECONOMIC PARLEY IS SET FOR MAY 4

Preparatory Committee Offers Agenda to League Council, Providing Only Discussion.

AMERICAN DEMANDS ACTION

But Delegates Will Be Without Treaty Powers, So His Motion Is Defeated.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Nov. 18.—The draft of the Agenda for the International Economic Conference was approved today by the Preparatory Committee, and instead of being agenda for a constructive conference it is merely a program for a general consultation by Government representatives. It may be hoped that this consultation, when it comes, will pave the way for a real conference at which agreements and recommendations for improving world economic conditions will be adopted. Next May 4 is suggested as the meeting day.

The mandate to the committee was that it consider international economic difficulties and point the way to practical solutions. This is taken to mean that the committee would point out some of the most obvious difficulties susceptible of solution and the coming conference would decide on solutions or recommendations.

The American agricultural expert, Arthur Witter Gilbert, made a plea that such a constructive method of work be adopted. M. Jouhaux of France also pleaded that the conference be not an academic debating society but a practical conference, which at least would adopt recommendations. But the Governments are not considering sending to the conference plenipotentiaries with powers of drafting agreements, so Mr. Gilbert's demand was voted down.

In the report to the League Council the committee says:

"The committee has borne in mind throughout that the economic conference must be regarded not as an isolated event but as a stage in the continuous work of international collaboration in the economic sphere which had begun before the project of a general conference was launched and will continue after the conference itself is over."

Recommends Five Representatives.

It recommended that all economically important States be asked to send five representatives who will be chosen for their personal qualifications and not be representatives of the Governments; that the Council also have the right to make appointments, either directly or through appropriate organizations, and that questions of procedure be settled by a majority vote.

While the conference meeting-place is not mentioned, it is generally considered best to convene outside Geneva to obtain Russian attendance. Amsterdam is popularly considered.

The program for the conference is divided into two general and three particular headings. The first general heading is "The Present Economic Position" and provides for the Governments to put forward the principal features of the problems as seen by them. The second heading permits the delegates to express their opinions on the economic factors and tendencies which affect the peace of the world. The second part of the program deals with commerce, industry and agriculture.

The commerce subheadings are:

Freedom of commerce, import and export prohibitions and restrictions, limitation and regulation of commerce, monopolies, economic treatment of nationals and enterprises when one country is permitted to work in the territories of another.

The customs tariffs and commercial treaties section deals with obstacles to international trade arising from instability of export and import tariffs, customs nomenclature and classification. The section on indirect methods of protecting national commerce and national shipping contains: Direct or indirect subsidies; dumping and anti-dumping legislation; discrimination in conditions of transport; discrimination against foreign goods after importation.

Industries to Be Investigated.

Under industry are enumerated conditions of the principle industries, productive capacity, output, consumption, employment, nature of the present difficulties of industry, organization of production, including industrial agreements considered from the point of view of the producer, consumer and labor; the connection between such agreements and customs, customs problems, the importance of the collection and prompt exchange of statistical information concerning industrial production.

Under agriculture there are the present position of agriculture compared with pre-war conditions in respect to population, consumption, stocks, prices and free movements of agricultural products; causes of present difficulties in agriculture, the possibilities of international action, the development and international collaboration between producers' and consumers' organizations, including the cooperative systems, the continuous exchange of adequate information concerning agricultural conditions, the means of increasing the purchasing power of the farmer.

It was remarked in the report that it was thought unnecessary to add a special group for financial questions which would claim a place only as they directly affect the specific economic problems before the conference.

The change of wording from "inequalities in treatment of foreign nationals" to "economic treatment" is thought to have resulted from fear of jeopardizing American participation in the conference because of our attitude on immigration.

RETAINS CZECH ARMY TERM.

Minister Says Shorter Period Is Unwise, but Reduces Budget.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PRAGUE, Nov. 18.—Despite the impression that he would recommend a reduction in the term of compulsory military service from eighteen months to a year, Minister of War Udrzal, in his address to Parliament yesterday, urged the continuation of the eighteen-month training period in view of the present situation. The military budget for the current year shows a decrease of 13 per cent.

The adoption of a shorter term of military service would be inadvisable, the Minister declared, because Czechoslovakia's neighbors were not following the same general disarmament policy.

"The equipment of our army," he said, "is not yet up to the standard it should attain. We have an insufficient number of machine guns, field pieces and cannon. Our air service is still in the course of development and our stores of war material are very modest, especially if we should be forced into a conflict."

BULGARIAN ELECTION FAVORS OPPOSITION

Communal Contests on Party Lines Bring Defeat in Cities to Government Group.

SOFIA, Nov. 17.—Almost complete results on the cummunal elections held in Bulgaria on Sunday reveal that the Government was badly defeated in Sofia and in other large towns but, as usual in all the Balkan countries, it won more than half the seats in the rural districts. The vote, therefore, is considered as extremely favorable to the opposition, especially to the coalition Alexander Malinoff recently formed among Democrats, moderate agrarian followers of former Premier Stamboliski and the remains of the National Liberal Party of the war Premier, Radoslavoff, now in exile.

Despite the minor importance of Communal Councillors, the results of the election are regarded as highly significant, as they were fought on strictly party lines in an effort to feel the public pulse, the first serious attempt in that direction since the 1923 coup d'état overthrew Stamboliski, as a preliminary skirmish before the Parliamentary elections next Spring.

In Sofia Premier Liaptcheff's Democratic Entente, or Government Party, polled a third of the total of 29,632 votes, winning nine of twenty-four seats. Malinoff's coalition got 8,900 votes and seven seats. The remainder were divided among four parties: Independent Liberals, Workers, Socialists and Independent Agrarians.

It is noteworthy that the last three groups, which are on the extreme Left, gained five seats.

Premier Liaptcheff was formerly a member of the Democratic Party, seceding after 1923 and forming the Democratic Entente which supported the régime of Tsankoff, whom he succeeded a year ago.

Malinoff, who became leader of the Opposition, seems now en route to the Premiership. He demands the formation of a Cabinet including all parties in order to conduct the Parliamentary elections fairly.

COLI-TARASCON PLANE NEARS COMPLETION

French Machine for Transatlantic Trip Is Light but of Large Lifting Capacity.

PARIS, Nov. 18.—The airplane in which François Coli and Paul Tarascon hope to fly from Paris to New York and return next year for the Ortaig prize of $25,000 is nearing completion at the Bernard Ferbois works.

The main features of the airplane are its lightness and carrying capacity. It is a thick-winged monoplane without external wires or other impediments and has a trapezoidal shape. The fuselage is rectangular with rounded edges. Two pilots' seats with double controls are side by side and communicate with the navigator's cabin, where 3,300 liters (about 825 gallons) of gasoline are stored. The tanks have a rapid emptying device. The wheels may be cast away when the machine leaves the land.

A single Gnome-Rhone Jupiter motor of 420 horsepower and air cooled has nine cylinder, three carburetors and two magnetos.

It is 11.40 meters (about 36 feet) long and 16.80 meters (about 51 feet) wide; weight loaded, 4,200 kilograms (about 9,240 pounds); weight empty, 1,200 kilograms; lifting capacity, 100 kilograms per square meter or ten kilograms per horsepower; speed, over 200 kilometers (about 120 miles) an hour.

"COUNT'S" WIFE WAS DEAD.

Chance Paris Acquaintance Costs Sympathetic American Money.

PARIS, Nov. 18.—An imaginative confidence trickster recently found what is deemed in Paris a new and original method of relieving a highly credulous and kind-hearted American of a roll of bank-notes. The tourist, whose name is given as Hall, while sitting in a well-known boulevard restaurant, got into conversation with a neighbor, having been intrigued by the extremely agonized expression of worry and anxiety on the face of the very distinguished-looking young man. Mr. Hall learned that this was Count Van Dyck, who modestly confided that he was a direct descendant of the great painter of that name.

Delicate inquiry concerning the Count's obvious trouble, after considerable reticence, brought the information from the young man that his father was in Rome painting a portrait of Mussolini, seemingly having inherited some of his great ancestor's talents. The young man went on to say that his wife had died suddenly that very morning and he did not have sufficient funds in Paris to pay the funeral expenses. The kindly American immediately offered him 3,000 francs (about $90), which, after much hesitation, he accepted.

Meeting the young man by appointment in the same restaurant next day, Mr. Hall learned that the sum was insufficient and was persuaded to part with 24,000 francs—this time in exchange for a duly drawn up I O U. Next morning Mr. Hall received a telephone call at his hotel. It purported to be from the "Count's father, who had just arrived from Rome and who desired to express his profound thanks for the American's kindness to his son. A few moments later the latter arrived to get the I O U, as he was going to the bank for the funds." Mr. Hall gave it to him. Since then he has not set eyes on the Count. The police are searching for the young man.

The "dear wife" swindle is familiar to every police department in America. In the West it is usually the "dead brother," the body in the baggage car and no money left for the funeral.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—Another assertion that cancer has been cured is being investigated by the British Medical Research Council.

According to The Daily Sketch, Dr. Grabham, an octogenarian specialist with long experience in cancer research, has placed before the council details of seventeen cases treated by a method discovered accidentally by Dr. Fortunato Pitti of Funchal, Madeira.

The effective agency is said to be a discharge from an irritation of the human eyelid. It is asserted that the destroying virus is selective in action, leaving healthy tissue or non-malignant tumors untouched.

"I have had forty years of cancer research," said Dr. Grabham, in an interview, "and am completely satisfied a cure has been found."

Lenin Saved Him From Death When He Was Accused of Deserting Cause.

MOSCOW, Nov. 18.—One of the prominent figures of the first moments of the Bolshevik revolution came back into the limelight today with the announcement that Pavel Ephimovich Dybenko had been appointed Chief of the Red Army Supply Service, succeeding Oskin, retired by reason of ill health.

Dybenko, at the age of 26, did more than any other in winning over the Baltic fleet, whose intervention decisively turned the scale against Kerenski to the Bolshevist cause. Gay and charming, he became the idol of the sailors and hard-handed workers of the Putiloff factory, who were the backbone of the early Red Guard. His feats of strength and reckless courage became legendary and it seemed that he might aspire to the best position, when an unfortunate incident brought about his downfall.

In a critical moment of the struggle Dybenko suddenly vanished, and his horrified comrades found he had taken advantage of the new, easy marriage law to "register" with a woman, celebrated for her charm and intelligence but old enough to be his mother, and retired to the country for a brief honeymoon.

Communist leaders and serious minded folk were hitterly angered at Dybenko for "desertion in the face of the enemy." At a stormy meeting of the Central Committee they demanded his exemplary punishment, Trotsky, in particular, insisting that Dybenko should be shot "to encourage others."

Lenin let them talk. Then at last he said quietly: "Comrades, I agree with you—this young man behaved abominably and deserves a penalty far severer than death. I propose to inflict it. I sentence Dybenko to be faithful to his partner in this deplorable adventure for a term of five years," and the incident ended in roars of laughter.

Dybenko, however, was sent to Petrograd to fight the counter revolution in the outlying districts and rendered excellent service, winning the Triple Order of the Red Flag.

The incident had direct consequences to Trotsky, which might have changed the course of history if the future Red war lord, then Commissar of Foreign Affairs, had been less of a person than he is.

A mob of sailors, learning of their favorite's disgrace and the part played in it by Trotsky, rushed to the latter's office, clamoring for his blood. The terrified secretary ran to his chief, crying, "You must fly immediately; they have come to kill you."

"Who have come," said Trotsky, coolly stamping a document he had just signed. The Secretary gasped his explanation, and the shouts of the mob became audible in the courtyard.

Trotsky ran swiftly down the stairs to meet them and jumped on a marble pedestal beside the steps.

"You want Trotsky," he shouted. "Well, comrades, here he is."

Without an instant's delay he began a speech. Five minutes later the orator held the mob spellbound. In ten minutes it carried him around the court, cheering enthusiastically.

Imperial Conference Committee Predicts End of Our Supply in Twenty-five Years.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—"A review of the forestry situation throughout the world leads to the conclusion that available supplies of the principle timbers of commerce are daily approaching exhaustion," states the report of the forestry subcommittee of the Imperial Conference, which was presented today.

"There is every liklihood," continues the report, "that in less than thirty years the shortage of soft woods will be severely felt."

The United States, it is reported, has only a twenty-five years' supply of timber left, apart from the product of second growth areas. It is understood that the resources will soon be limited to a few Western States. Canada has only twenty-seven per cent. of her original forestage left and her virgin soft wood resources will last only another quarter of a century.

The Imperial Conference decided today that the Imperial Economic Committee, appointed at the last conference, should be continued on an ad hoc basis. It will be asked to complete its investigation of the marketing of Empire produced foodstuffs in Great Britain and make surveys which will show what the empire is producing and what it is buying.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—A copy of the Kilmarnock edition of Burns, once owned by Lord Glencairn, a friend of the poet, was sold today at Sotheby's for £780 to a London man. The record price for this edition in the original blue paper wrapper is £1,600. The Glencairn copy is bound in calf.

The poet named his sons after Lord Glencairn and wrote a lament on his death.

FASCISTI TO ORGANIZE ITALIANS IN PORTUGAL

Rome Deputy Will Enjoin Group Not to Mix in Politics, but to 'Serve Italy Silently.'

LISBON, Nov. 18 (AP).—Organization of a Fascist group in the Italian colony in Portugal will be undertaken by the Italian Fascist Deputy, Colonel Evis Gray, who has arrived here on an official mission to this end.

Colonel Gray said the Fascisti in Italy feel the necessity of ascertaining the morale and economic situation of the various Italian groups working beyond the Italian frontiers, who should be informed of the results of four years of Fascist rule in Italy.

The groups will be enjoined to maintain strict neutrality as to the internal politics of the country in which they reside, to respect its Government and laws and at the same time serve Italy loyally and silently.

'BIG BUSINESS' RULES HERE

It Is Idealized by Public, While Government Is Severe With Labor Agitators, Editor Asserts.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—Obviously alarmed at the increasing tendency among British business men to advocate the application in Great Britain of methods which have made the United States rich and prosperous, The London Times, in a leading editorial in tomorrow's issue, will sound a solemn warning against the growing belief that a "golden panacea" is to be found in America for British economic ills.

The writer of the editorial admits that certain lessons are to be learned from the Americans which would benefit Great Britain, but he also seeks to show that the differences between the two countries are such that much of what has succeeded in creating American prosperity is wholly inapplicable to British conditions.

What particularly strikes one as different in America is the complete domination by big business interests and the pitiful weakness of organized labor there, the writer declares.

Says "Big Business" Controls Us.

Of the former he says:

"Big business is in the saddle. It controls the United States today, with the full approval of most Americans. The strong popular movement of the 90s, President Roosevelt's 'trust busting' campaign and President Wilson's 'new freedom' from business dictation have given place to an attitude of grateful confidence toward the leaders of industry and an idealization of business as service.

"The Administration, following public opinion, is exceedingly severe toward labor agitation. But the Federal Trade Commission, the Interstate Commerce Commission and other bodies created to check exuberant enterprise have today a blessing instead of a scowl for those businesses which, by combination or merger, can contribute to efficiency and cheapening of production.

"Two members of the Administration who enjoy the greatest prestige, Mr. Mellon and Mr. Hoover, are leading apostles of financial and industrial efficiency. Politics were never more secondary."

Unions' Policy Termed "Mild."

Of American trade unions the following is said:

"Not only are trade unions small in numbers, embracing only some 4 per cent. of the population, but they are exceedingly mild in policy. They have very little to offer, and it is the policy of the leaders of industry to forestall their possible demands."

Referring to President Coolidge's recent remarks about the unpopularity of Americans abroad, the editorial says:

"At present it is an uncomfortable truth that while the influence on other peoples of the United States action is enormous, the interest taken by Americans in the rest of the world is exceedingly slight.

"There is no understanding that the language of altruistic idealism, habitually used by American speakers, can sound at all incongruous to foreign nations.

"It is not realized that the resentment felt in various parts of the Continent is based on the belief that the United States is largely responsible for the difficulties that have depressed Europe since 1918."

Less Room to Learn From Us.

Passing then to the growing desire among British business men to investigate American ways of doing business in order to see whether these, if applied to Great Britain, can bring the latter something approaching the boundless prosperity of America, The Times continues:

"These investigations are all to the good provided we do not expect any golden panacea for our industrial troubles from the example of a country so exceedingly different in circumstances and outlook.

"Americans are people always eager to try some new thing, and their industrial history is a record of experiments sometimes highly successful and sometimes disastrous.

"It is thus singularly easy to find examples in the United States for all kinds of industrial practices, and most investigators go with preconceptions and return with the required evidence. But if care is exercised and it is remembered, in particular, that expedients of industrial conciliation are easy to apply when things are going well, there are many useful lessons which we shall do well to learn from a people ready to teach."

CLASH ON SECULAR SUNDAY

Games on Church Property Arouse Protest in England.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—The growing tendency in England to "secularize" Sunday, of which striking evidence was furnished recently by a decision of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners of the Church of England to permit Sunday games on church properties, inspired vigorous protest at today's meeting of the Church Assembly.

A resolution censuring the Ecclesiastical Commissioners was moved by Sir George A. King, who declared that the Lord's day was a protector of the feeble against the strong, of the poor against the claims of the rich and of the rich against the wiles of the devil.

"The Sabbatarian idea was a Puritan tradition without any historical foundation," replied the Rev. H. R. Gamble, Dean of Exeter. That was the idea which Sir George sought to fasten on the Church, said the Dean, and he would oppose it because it was false and lay on no historical foundation. Sunday, he said, was not Sabbath and was not in any way governed by the fourth commandment, "Remember thou to keep holy the Sabbath day."

The idea of Christianity was that all days were the same, but one day was set apart for public worship. Sunday recreation, he went on, had come to stay and the Church should guide, not oppose, it.

The resolution of protest eventually was passed after omitting reference to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners.

HINDENBURG 'ASSASSIN' ARMED WITH LETTER

Feeble-Minded Man Leaps on Car at Army School Dedication in Dresden.

DRESDEN, Nov. 18.—What first looked like an attack of an assassin, but turned out to be merely a half-wit's harmless manifestation, momentarily marred President Hindenburg's visit here today for the opening of the Reichswehr's new infantry training school. As the President was motoring along a crowded thoroughfare a young man wormed his way amid the cheering throngs and the police cordon, flung himself on the running-board of the Presidential car and stretched out his right hand against Marshal Hindenburg. The onlookers, expecting to hear the report of a pistol or see the glint of a dagger, were thrown into a panic. Policemen instantly seized the young man and found he carried nothing more dangerous than a letter which he had tried to force on the President.

Muttering "I am Jesus Christ," the man was dragged away from the infuriated crowd, which threatened to lynch him. He was identified as an unemployed waiter, released only yesterday from the Institute for the feeble-minded. At the police station alienists were summoned to examine his mental condition.

President Hindenburg preserved complete calm throughout the entire incident, which lasted only a few minutes. He stood up in his car to show the multitude, which believed he had been the object of an attempted assassination, that he was unhurt. The day's program then was carried through without a hitch.

This is the first time that President Hindenburg has been exposed to an individual demonstration of this kind, hitherto he has been only hooted at by mobs of Communists, who pursued similar tactics here today. The Reds' efforts to stage an anti-Hindenburg parade was barred by the police.

The Saxon military authorities made the celebration of the opening of the training school belonging to the army of the German Republic as monarchistic as they dared. Before the formal opening of the establishment Reichswehr soldiers paraded before President Hindenburg to the strains of "Fridericus Rex," the royalists' pet march. The Saxon cadets' belt buckles are embossed with the old crown of Saxony. A retired Saxon General delivered a speech "in the name of the Royal Saxon Officers' Corps," to which Field Marshal Hindenburg replied with a dignified appeal for the preservation of fidelity to the Fatheriand. None of the speakers addressed Marshal Hindenburg as President and the republic was not mentioned.

The inside of the school buildings was adorned with both the Saxon and Imperial German coats of arms and with paintings of Frederick the Great and the warrior Kings of Saxony.

President Hindenburg was accompanied by Defense Minister Gessler and General Heye, who recently succeeded General von Seeckt as chief of the Reichswehr.

TCHITCHERIN CONFIRMS COMING VISIT TO PARIS

Russian Foreign Minister's Aim in Seeing Briand Interests Other Diplomats.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 19.—Confirmation of the report that M. Tchitcherin, Russian Commissar for Foreign Affairs, will soon come to Paris for a conference with M. Briand caused considerable discussion today in diplomatic circles.

M. Herbette, French Ambassador to Moscow, had a long conversation with Tchitcherin today, during which the approaching visit was discussed. The first date mentioned for M. Tchitcherin's arrival—Nov. 24—probably will be changed to later in the month, since he intends to break his journey at Frankfort, Germany.

After seeing M. Briand here Tchitcherin will go to the South of France for a vacation of several weeks.

The importance of Tchitcherin's first interview with a high official of the French Government is not minimized here, although at the Quai d'Orsay they profess to know very little concerning the purpose of his trip.

One of the most obvious questions outstanding is a settlement of the Russian debt to France, and it has been suggested that Tchitcherin will bring with him new proposals with the idea of cleaning this long drawn-out issue off the slate.

Then there is the matter of loans, of which Russia is believed to be especially in need. The visit would offer a graceful opportunity for him to see not only the French bankers, but those of London as well.

Finally, there are the recent Odessa conversations between M. Tchitcherin and the Turkish Minister of Foreign Affairs, about which so many conflicting reports and rumors have been circulating around Europe. Dispatches from Russian sources say that Tchitcherin wishes to discuss the Odessa meeting with Briand, presumably for the purpose of obtaining the French Foreign Minister's advice or approval.

Whatever the object of the Russian official's coming, his meeting with Briand will engage the close attention of European Governments.

Prince Radziwill Returns to Warsaw With Pledges From Magnates of Lodz.

WANT PILSUDSKI AS KING

Monarchists Get Support From Powerful Landowners in Other Parts of Country.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.

WARSAW, Nov. 18.—Prince Januss Radziwill returned tonight from Lodz, Poland's industrial centre, with the pledge of the financial princes of Poland to join the movement which started with the conference on Oct. 26 of the group of monarchists who urged Marshal Pilsudski to assume the throne of Poland.

The enlistment of the industrial barons, irrespective of birth or religion, coincides with similar conferences at Cracow of Central Poland landholders and practically all the genuinely titled personages of the country. Among the long list of persons engaged in this new political enterprise are Germans, Jews, Roman and Orthodox Greek Catholics and members of all minorities of the Polish State.

Call for Members Issued.

Following the return of Prince Radziwill, who was the first Secretary of State under the German occupation of Poland during the war, the statement was made tonight that the new National Right Party "humbly begun in 1926, invites factory hands, farm workers and everybody who has respect for personal and property rights to join ranks upon a basis of equality of rights for both capital and labor." The dictum further appeals to American interests, specifically declaring that its policy is one of granting power to those best fitted to guide the destinies of all classes without bitter conflict.

Ostensibly the new party hopes to dominate the new elections whenever they are decreed, but members of the group, including the secretary, who outlined its organization, declared today that the movement is one of Marshal Pilsudski's most brilliant ideas, intended to unite all intellectuals of Poland as a bulwark against the "misguided political movements," and declared plainly that the hope is to find a way to establish an elective monarchy with Marshal Pilsudski as the first King. This is said to be not the ambition of the Marshal, who prefers to remain in the background and inspire the huge uneducated masses of the nation with the single purpose of arousing loyalty to the Government.

Will Be Pilsudski's Courtiers.

The result of the combination of nationalities in the new party, a member explained, will be that the aristocrats, financiers and landowners will not sully their hands with plain politics, but will remain members of Parliament and be a sort of clique of courtiers for Marshal Pilsudski, to whom all are pledged. There will be a ruling class, designated by mere membership in the party. But should an elective monarchy arise, as most members hope, they would constitute without question the court.

The Socialist intellectuals are alarmed by the gathering of Poland's chief notables, fearing re-establishment of class rule in the country, and are making overtures to the party.

Most prominent in the new party, in addition to Prince Radziwill, are Michael Bobruzynski, former Viceroy of Galicia under the Austrian régime; M. Abrahamowicz, former President of the Austrian Reichstag, and M. Steckowski, Premier of Poland under the German régime. Prince Radziwill, during his visit to Lodz, lived in one of Poland's grandest castles as the guest of M. Poznanski, the cotton king. Among the enthusiasts enrolled were M. Barcinski, woolen textile operator; Alfred Biedermann, of German birth, who speaks broken Polish, and M. Strohmann, also of German birth, one of the iron and textile magnates. The Prince was accompanied by Professor Krasyzanowski of Crasow University.

The predominance of Germans in the Pilsudski entente, though they are naturalized, is considered as a gesture to the West, as there is a distinct coolness toward Russia.

RUMANIAN STATESMAN DIES.

Constantinescu Was One of Most Bitterly Assailed Men in Country.

BUCHAREST, Nov. 18.—Alexander Constantinescu, Rumanian political leader and one of former Premier Jonel Bratianu's foremost lieutenants, died today of pneumonia. He was 77 years old.

Entering politics forty-four years ago, Constantinescu was elected to seventeen Parliaments and was a member of all the Bratianu Cabinets since 1909. Agrarian reform was carried out under his direction as Minister of Agriculture.

Constantinescu's political shrewdness was proverbial and his death is a severe loss to the Bratianu machine. He began life poor and died one of the wealthiest men in Rumania. His fortune is estimated at several million dollars.

His powers of sarcasm and his alleged unscrupulous greed made him one of the most bitterly attacked men in Rumania. A Fascist paper during his illness exceeded even the previous extremes of local personal politics and asked, "Why does he not die and free the country?"

come reinforcement of the cordial understanding between British and Swedish culture established by the famous bequest of Nobel. It will not be lost on my native country, Ireland, which already claims one distinguished Nobel prize man (W. B. Yeats, 1923.)

"It is naturally very gratifying to me personally that it has fallen to my lot to furnish the occasion for such an act of international appreciation.

"I must, however, discriminate between the award and the prize. For the award I have nothing but my best thanks. But, after most careful consideration, I cannot persuade myself to accept the money. My readers and audiences provide me with more than sufficient money for my needs; and, as to my renown, it is greater than is good for my spiritual health.

"Under these circumstances money is a life belt thrown to a swimmer who has already reached the shore in safety. I therefore respectfully and gratefully beg the Swedish Royal Academy to confer on me the additional and final honor of classing my works in that respect hors concours (out of competition).

"Should this event have been unforeseen and unprovided for by the founders of the prize, it may have the effect of placing at the disposal of the Nobel directors a sum as to which they are not bound by the difficult and occasionally impossible conditions of prize-giving. May I therefore seize this opportunity to call the attention of the board to the following consideration:

Points to Trade Exhibits.

"Some of the most advantageous sites in London are being rapidly filled up with agencies in which not only the British dominions overseas, but European powers, exhibit their choicest products and advertise the attractions and traveling facilities of their country.

"Fruits, cereals, stuffed animals and birds and fabrics of all sorts tempt the importer. The one thing that is rarely exhibited is a book. Sweden invites us to buy her paper, but there is nothing printed on it. The function of Swedish paper, it seems, is to wrap Australian apples in. And yet Sweden's most valuable export is her literature, of which we in Britain are deplorably ignorant.

"The Swedish Minister in London, Baron Palmstierna, who is a proved friend of British men of letters and an indefatigable champion of Swedish literature in our country, has informed me of Swedish books of great value, which for lack of means cannot be translated, and of organs working for intellectual intercourse between us which are in need of support.

"I therefore venture to propose to you that the money which accompanies the award be funded by the Royal Academy or by the Swedish Minister in London, and that the annual proceeds be used to encourage intercourse and understanding in literature and art between Sweden and the British Isles.

"It would be desirable for many reasons that the Swedish Minister should be a member of the board controlling the fund."

REVEALS 'SECRETS' OF BRITISH COURT

Anonymous Author Declares King Edward Said Queen Victoria Hated Him.

RAILS AT HIGH PERSONAGES

General Townshend Called "A Born Fool"—Jamison Raid Laid at Door of Joseph Chamberlain.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—Excitement is sure to be caused here by the publication Friday of a book entitled "The Whispering Gallery," wherein an anonymous author, who declares himself to be a diplomat whose name is a household word, tells amazing and frequently discreditable yarns concerning numerous celebrities.

Among Americans mentioned are Woodrow Wilson and Mark Twain, but the bulk of the disparaging comment in the book is lavished upon Britons like Lloyd George, Asquith, Balfour, Winston Churchill, Cecil Rhodes and a small army of others.

Already five of those mentioned, all members of the present British Cabinet—Lord Balfour, Lord Oxford and Asquith, Lord Reading, Viscount Cecil and Winston Churchill—have, on seeing advance copies of the book, denied statements attributed to them in it.

These denials are printed in The Daily Mail which makes a furious attack on the anonymous author, branding his statements as "reckless and impudent inventions."

A portion of the book dealing with the World War gives an alleged conversation among Lloyd George, Sir Edward Grey and Asquith, wherein the last named says, "Haig is confident that things are moving at last," to which Lloyd George retorts, "Probably they are—backwards." An alleged peevish outburst of Lloyd George against Kitchener is also set forth, to which Asquith is quoted as rejoining, "Are you jealous of Kitchener?"

The author remarks that he once asked Kitchener if anything would make him really happy, whereupon Kitchener is quoted as replaying:

"Yes. First secure a full sitting of the House of Commons; then bolt all the exists and entrances except one; next place me with half a dozen men and a couple of machine guns at that one, and finally set fire to the building."

The Daily Mail remarks apropos of the author's assertion that he belongs to the diplomatic service that "the vulgarities of his style and matter would alone throw doubt on his membership of that distinguished service."

When Viscount Cecil saw a statement attributed to him he said:

"To the best of my belief, the whole incident described is absolute invention."

Lord Balfour on seeing passages referring to him remarked, "Quite absurd," and Winston Churchill called the "conversations puerile in their ignorance."

Lord Oxford and Asquith, commenting on a conversation purporting to have been held between him and Lloyd George, wherein they call each other "David" and "Asquith," said:

"I have never in my life called Mr. Lloyd George David nor did he ever address me as Asquith."

Lord Reading, alluding to conversations in the book wherein he figures said, "I have no recollection of any such meeting, but the conversations as recorded in the book are ridiculous."

Among other celebrities mentioned in the book, often in a most disrespectful manner, are Kaiser Wilhelm, Czar Nicholas, the Emperor Francis Joseph, Edward VII, Sir John French, Marshal Joffre and Lord Northcliffe.

LONDON, Nov. 18 (AP).—In "The Whispering Gallery" the author quotes King Edward VII as having said to him:

"My mother (Queen Victoria), whom I greatly admired, hated me because she imagined I had hastened my father's death. I never in my life had a real heart-to-heart talk with her. Toward the end of her life we were mutually obnoxious, and I never left her presence without a sigh of relief."

The author relates that Queen Alexandra erased the names of seven persons from a list of those to be presented at court, although she was informed they were included at King Edward's request.

The late Earl of Ypres, Field Marshal French, is described as "a lady's man and in certain respects childish." General Charles Townsend, Commander of the British forces in Mesopotamia in the World War, is called "a born fool."

The author asserts that Cecil Rhodes, the South African capitalist, told him Joseph Chamberlain was responsible for the Jameson Raid in 1895. He narrates that Mr. Chamberlain, then Colonial Secretary, finding that the Government of the day would not send an ultimatum to President Kruger of South Africa, for fear of public opinion, authorized the raid, but told Rhodes candidly that if it failed he would be compelled to disown the Rhodes group, which later he did. Mr. Rhodes added that, by threatening revelation of the affair, he induced Mr. Chamberlain to release and compensate those who took part in the raid.

Alluding to the reference to the Czar of Russia, in which the late Emperor is described as "a cad, coward, butcher and blackguard," The Mail says, "This suggests the suspicion that the book may be a piece of insidious Bolshevist propaganda."

INGE CALLS ENGLISH LAZY.

"Gloomy Dean" Says Tendency to Sloth Runs Through Nation.

LONDON, Nov. 18 (AP).—Dean Inge, the "Gloomy Dean" of St. Paul's Cathedral, has about arrived at the conclusion that Englishmen generally are lazy.

A tendency to sloth and to arrogance, and a certain indulgence in eating and drinking, were faults other nations saw in Englishmen, asserted the Dean before the Bishopsgate Institute, and, in a way, he said he agreed with this.

"On the whole," he added, "I think we are a lazy people—not only our workmen, but the employers, right on down through the nation."

COUNT WOUNDED IN DUEL.

Former Premier Teleky of Hungary Scratched by Count Karolyi.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUDAPEST, Nov. 18.—A scratch on a finger of former Premier Count Paul Teleky caused by the sabre of Count Emmerich Karolyi ended the duel between them today without restoring honorable relations, severed since the franc forgery affair.

Count Karolyi last Spring wrote an open letter to the press saying he was amazed how a certain man who was responsible for bringing Prince Windisch-Graetz, Police Chief Nadossy and Major Geroe together in the counterfeiting plot could still sleep peacefully after they had been in prison for months.

LULL IN FRANC RISE HELPS AVERT CRISIS

Halt in Rapid Advance Stops Paris Losses and Foreign Stocks Hold Up on Bourse.

SPECULATORS ARE SCORED

Meanwhile the Weekly Statement of the Bank of France Shows a Steady Improvement.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 18.—There was a lull in the rise of the franc today and in Bourse trading, with the consequence that the acute crisis which yesterday was foreseen for today did not materialize. Sales of foreign stocks were less numerous than yesterday and were easily absorbed.

Indeed, there was indication that the market had taken a slight turn, an indication which was reflected in the day's exchange operations. The franc opened at 29.07 to the dollar and 141 to the pound and showed the same tendency as during the past few days, rising quickly to 28.68 and 139.15. The market later, however, showed this difference from yesterday: That there were buyers for all foreign stocks, which held well, with the result that the franc fell again to 29.19 to the dollar during the Bourse session.

After the Bourse closed, when the New York opening came in, there was a new rise to 28.82 to the dollar and 139.38 to the pound.

Of the operations of the past two days the general explanation is that the Amsterdam group which has been heavy purchasers of francs since the present Government came into office has begun to take to cover. It may be that their operations are not yet completed. Yet it was a noticeable feature of today's market that all foreign stocks found ready purchasers, whereas it was the turn of French industrials to record a steady drop.

At Mercy of Speculators.

On the Bourse, the situation, it is frankly admitted, is at the mercy of the speculator, and it is naturally the foreign speculator who is being attacked in the financial newspapers and the other press.

Of the Government's attitude and intentions it is extremely difficult to obtain the slightest indication. From financiers there is a growing cry for stabilization. From industrialists there is a like demand, with the added recommendation that the figure fixed be the same as the Belgian franc. From the general public there is a growing protest against the fact that while the franc has improved 102 points on sterling since the middle of July and the wholesale price index has fallen 37 points retail prices continue steadily rising.

When in the middle of April the dollar last stood 29 the retail index was 703. Today it is well over the October figure of 624. In the shops there is a general complaint that business is slowing up.

But despite these complaints the Government has this card still in its hand, that there is not yet any real distress. Fortunes made and lost in the stock market do not interest France. Minister Poincaré nearly so much as the steady rise of French rentes which has accompanied the rise of the franc. He is paying close attention to the fall of wholesale prices, knowing that retail prices must follow them on the downward course. In the meanwhile he is pushing the budget through the Chamber without trouble, for it is in getting the nation's accounts thus into good shape and securing a surplus at the end of the year that will enable him to repay 1,000,000,000 francs to the Bank of France and that will see a beginning of the return to "sane money."

He refuses to be hurried into any stabilization schemes which will depend on foreign loans and holds stoutly to his ambition to save for those French men and women who invested their money in their country before and during the war at least a quarter of its value.

Today's balance sheet of the Bank of France showed further improvement in the situation, 200,000,000 francs being repaid by the State, while circulation decreased 862,000,000 francs.

Public Relieved on Circulation.

Yesterday's official explanation that the amount of banknotes used for purchase of foreign currency and gold—which item now amounts to 1,400,000,000 francs—is included in the total figure of circulation, and has relieved certain doubt on this matter.

There still appears on the bank's statement, however, under the heading, "sundries," on the asset side the rather large item of 4,866,000,000 francs. Before recent events this item used never to bulk above a mere 20,000,000. Now it stands at a higher figure than the bills.

From the political viewpoint the situation is sound. The incident of the Marin speech showed to what extent Premier Poincaré is master of the Chamber. No one is to try to upset him during this session, and if time is given to him there is little doubt he will be able to pull the franc up on to solid ground. There is, however, the ever present danger which showed itself yesterday of the effect of its speculative rise.

The loses of French investors from this too rapid improvement have been enormous and there is among them bitter compiaint that the same people who first stripped them through driving down the franc are stripping them again. The Bourse has had its first shaking and it may soon have another. The bull movement which has been going on now for three months cannot be expected to continue indefinitely. If it lasts much longer it will be the industrialists who will feel the worst effects. But as stated above, there are today indications of a certain amount of covering, and a relapse of the franc is a thing which is not entirely to be discounted. If it does come it will, however, find the Government this time in a position to prevent its becoming catastrophic.

During these three months the amount of the Morgan credits have been made good and the Treasury has in its hands other means of meeting bear speculation, holding the franc nearer where it wants it.

Franc at New High in New York.

French francs reached their highest point in more than seven months here yesterday when they sold up to 3.50 cents. This compares with a record low of 1.93¾ cents, established in mid-July, or an appreciation of approximately 80 cents from that level.

Buying orders for the franc came from all parts of the world and poured into Wall Street's foreign exchange quarter in such volume that it surpassed the volume reached during the Ministerial crisis when the record low was made. Sales of five and ten million francs were frequent, completely overshadowing the lesser business of one and two millions.

The French Government played a part on both sides of the revived "battle of the franc" at times repurchasing previous sales, and then again putting out fresh "short" lines in an official attempt to check the rise which is having a bad effect on the country's export trade and internal price level.

In usually well informed quarters this opinion was expressed that the present wave of buying is an aftermath of the days when the Herriot plan for a capital levy on wealth was being discussed in the Chamber. At that time wealth of all sorts was diverted to every known source. The repatriation which is now going on represents a different picture of the financial and political situation in France which has come with reports that the French Government has not only bought enough exchange to cover next year's commitments but has also restored the Morgan loan of $100,000,000, which was employed during the depression of last Spring.

An additional influence was the splendid weekly report of the Bank of France which yesterday revealed a decrease of 862,000,000 francs in circulation, and a cut in advances to the State of some 200,000,000 francs. Recent trade statements of the Government disclosed a surplus of exports aggregating one billion francs, which has proved of some weight in reducing the adverse trade balance which piled up during the early months of this year.

BRUCE TO VISIT MUSSOLINI.

Premiers Will Discuss Emigration of Italians to Antipodes.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—Premier Bruce of Australia will visit Premier Mussolini of Italy in Rome next month to discuss the question of Italian emigration. His visit tentatively has been arranged for Dec. 16 and he will spend two days in Rome.

Premier Bruce received the invitation from Premier Mussolini before he arrived in England for the Imperial Conference. Southern Italians, deprived of their former outlet to the United States, have been emigrating to Australia, where the climatic conditions are well suited to them and where they can adapt themselves more easily than other types of immigrants. But they live in Italian colonies, keep their own language and do not become Australians.

For this reason, and because Australia wants British immigrants first, last and all the time, it is unlikely that Premier Bruce will be able to assure Mussolini that there can be a general letting down of the bars for Italians.

VESSEL ASHORE IN AEGEAN.

Braga, Due in New York Dec. 12, Grounds With 273 Passengers.

LONDON, Nov. 18 (AP).—A Lloyd's dispatch from Alexandria says that the French steamship Braga, bound from Beirut to Mediterranean ports and New York, is ashore in a rough sea on North Aspra Island, near Lipso Island, in the Aegean Sea.

A salvage steamer is assisting the Braga and the steamship Roma is expected to arrive to take off 273 passengers.

The Braga is of French registry and runs in the Fabre Line Mediterranean service from New York and Providence, R. I. She is 5,890 tons gross, 415 feet long and was built in 1907 at Glasgow, Scotland.

According to the sailing schednie the Braga was to leave Marseilles Nov. 4, and Beirut, Syria, on Nov. 13 for Providence and New York, with stops at Alexandria, Jaffa, Constantinople, Smyrna, Naples, Palermo, Algiers, Lisbon and the Azores Islands. She was due at Providence Dec. 11, and at New York the following day.

She carries a crew of about 100 and has accommodations for about 120 cabin and 750 third class passengers.

French Air Mail Pilot and Mechanic Slain, Third Flier Seized, by Natives in Sahara

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 18.—The first instance of where aerial mail men have been the victims of native African savagery is described in a brief report, received here today, from the Madrid authorities telling of the death of a pilot and a mechanic and the serious wounding of a second pilot, all of whom had been engaged in operating an airplane of the postal service in the heart of French West Africa between Daker and Casa Bianca.

Last since Oct. 22, fear was felt that the French airmen might have fallen into the hands of the superstitious blacks who sometimes regard a disabled airplane as legitimate prey.

The message from Madrid gave no details, merely recounting the death of Henry, the pilot, and Pintado, the mechanic, and the wounding of the second pilot who is now in the hands of the natives. Their machine developed engine trouble, forcing a landing in a wild part of the Sahara desert in the low lying country near Cap Bojador in Spanish territory. The Spanish police operating in the Western Sahara have taken steps to obtain the liberation of the wounded man.

LLOYD GEORGE AGAIN SEEKS PARTY PEACE

Would Fuse Liberal Wings and Put Both Funds in Charge of a New Committee.

OFFER MAY BE ACCEPTED

Countess of Oxford and Asquith Says Husband Quit to Avoid "Auctioning" of the Party.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—Lloyd George has made his final offer for the reconciliation of the warring sections of the Liberal Party; that is, the section he leads and the one formerly led by the Earl of Oxford and Asquith.

He now proposes a financial and administrative reorganization of the party which will involve pooling the financial resources of the two sections. Lloyd George has undertaken to place the entire income from his separate campaign fund, which is considerable, at the disposal of the party without reservation, except that the cost of carrying out his land scheme, and also an industrial inquiry, should be the first charge on the income. He proposed that this money and the moneys at the disposal of the other section of the party be paid to a new organizaion committee to be set up.

This would involve the displacement of the present officials in charge of the organization at the official headquarters of the Liberal Party in Abingdon Street, and also the resignation of Vivian Phillips, for many years Asquith's private secretary, chief whip and later party organizer. Phillips was one of the twelve signatories of the famous letter in which prominent Liberals declared that they could not work with Lloyd George. The proposals would probably mean closing down the famous Abingdon Street offices.

It is said that Lloyd George's offer has a good chance of being accepted.

Interesting comment, in view of Mr. Lloyd George's overtures was made by the Countess of Oxford and Asquith while opening the Liberal Bazaar today.

"My husband," she said, "did not resign the leadership of the Liberal Party for reasons of health. I am thankful to say he had never been better in his life. He resigned because he saw there was danger of the great Liberal Party being put up for auction. "The Liberal Party is never to be bought, nor can it be bribed. Money isn't everything. If not wisely administered it can do infinite damage."

BRITISH MINERS VOTE TO CONTINUE STRIKE

Leaders Are Expected to Throw Out District Vote and Order Individual Ballot.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—The district vote of the coal miners on the Government's proposals for a settlement of the coal strike will show a majority of over 100,000 against acceptance.

The Executive of the Miners' Federation met here today to receive the returns. The unlooked-for position was discussed at great length, but the Executive will make no recommendation to tomorrow's delegate conference, on which the responsibility of determining the next step will fall.

Nine thousand more miners returned to work today and the total employed now is 366,000.

Deputations representing the coal owners today asked the Secretary of Mines to remove the regulations forbidding the export of coal, but were told definitely that the Government thinks preference to home industry should come first. Statistics show that nearly $150,000,000 has been paid for imported fuel during the last seven months.

In view of the rejection of its peace proposals, the Government has decided that all the emergency powers and regulations must be renewed when they expire on Saturday.

Representatives of the mining industry in the House of Commons tonight expressed the view that tomorrow's delegate conference would take one of two courses, either order an immediate start of district negotiations on the ground that a two-thirds majority was not obtained for continuance of the strike, or take an individual ballot of members of the Miners' Federation.

UPWARD WAS WRITING A NEW LIFE OF CHRIST

British Coroner Finds Novelist Committed Suicide While of Unsound Mind.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—The Coroner's verdict at the inquest on Allen Upward, the novelist and writer who shot himself in his rooms in a cottage near Wimborne, was suicide while of unsound mind.

A curious feature of the tragic affair is that although it occurred last Friday, the news of it only leaked out this morning.

At the inquest Upward's ten-year-old adopted son told how he left the novelist writing downstairs when he went to bed. Next morning when the boy went downstairs he found the lamp still burning and Upward sitting dead by the table with a rifle by his side.

Upward's sister testified that her brother had occasional fits of depression, but she could not account for his taking his life. He was not in financial difficulties and his chief worry was about his books.

At the time of his death Upward was engaged on a Life of Christ.

ASSAIL WOMEN'S COLLEGES.

Oxford Debating Society Favors Destroying All at University.

LONDON, Nov. 18 (AP).—Reflecting the feeling against the enormous growth in the number of women students, the Oxford Union Society tonight by a vote of 223 to 198 adopted a motion that "the women's colleges of this university should be leveled to the ground."

The union is the debating society of students, of which many of England's leading men have been Presidents. Its vote carries no operative effect.

Thanksgiving and Tuxedos

TO thoroughly enjoy a good dinner, one must be so sure of one's clothes that they are completely forgotten.

To attain this stage of blessed forgetfulness was once an expensive matter. Men used to have their dinner clothes made at some frosty Fifth Avenue tailor shop . . . and pay a thumping big sum for the privilege.

Nowadays, a man can buy a $50 or $65 tuxedo "in the New York manner" . . . and take his place in any company, serene in the conviction of his correctness.

Our tuxedos are luxurious in quality, suavely and scrupulously tailored, correct in every metropolitan essential.

We recommend them as a perfect complement to the perfect dinner.

MEDICAL ACADEMY IN $2,000,000 HOME

Dedicates Structure at Fifth Av. and 103d St., Replacing 36-Year-Old Building.

SEPARATE HOUSE FOR BOOKS

Library of 140,000 Volumes Is Third Largest of Its Kind in the World.

The new $2,000,000 building of the New York Academy of Medicine at Fifth Avenue and 103d Street was dedicated yesterday afternoon, thus replacing the inadequate structure at 17 West Forty-third Street which served as the centre of New York's medical profession for thirty-six years. When Dr. Arthur B. Duel, Chairman of the Building Committee, turned over the new building to the members it marked the end of years of striving to find a suitable site and an adequate building.

The chief difficulty was to find space for the institution's library, which has grown until it contains 140,000 volumes, the third largest medical library in the world. In the new structure the books are housed in a separate building, four and a half stories in height, already containing nine floors of stack space with almost indefinite room for additions.

In its architecture the new building contains striking features. York and Sawyer, the architects, used early Romanesque, on the outside as well as the interior, to replace the more usual classical designs. The exterior of the six-story building is of limestone and sandstone, with arched windows. An impressive arched doorway leads into the entrance hall, floored with marble and roofed with a hand-painted ceiling. The auditorium, seating 700 persons, forms a separate wing of the building, with marble and stippled walls, soft blue and old gold hangings and intricate carvings around the windows and the proscenium.

The library is on the third floor, with two reading rooms seating 180 persons. Dr. Samuel A. Brown, President of the academy, said yesterday that "the academy library occupies the same position regarding medical literature that the Public Library occupies in general literature." Its books are open to all medical students and to physicians who are not members of the academy. It is also rich in rare works on the history of medicine, collections of paintings, documents, surgical instruments and models of original instruments which are of great value. The periodical library alone contains 100,000 pamphlets and 1,500 current medical and scientific journals.

Offices, lecture halls and headquarters of medical societies take up the remainder of the building. The new academy has been so constructed, it was explained, that additional floors may be added when needed through the growth of the academy's activities.

How the building was financed was recalled yesterday by Dr. Duel, in his dedicatory address. The Carnegie Corporation gave $1,550,000, enough to enable the academy's officials to start plans for their new building. Other gifts included $100,000 from George F. Baker, $50,000 each from Helen Hartley Jenkins, Edward S. Harkness and James B. Ford, while the Rockefeller Foundation agreed to give $62,500 annually for the extension of the academy's educational and intellectual activities.

Those on the platform at yesterday's dedication were, in addition to Dr. Duel and Dr. Brown, the Rev. Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin, President of Union Theological Seminary, who delivered the invocation, and Dr. Lindsly Williams, Director of the academy.

A meeting was held last evening in the auditorium of the new building at which the election of Honorary Fellows of the Academy took place. Certificates of Fellowship were presented by Dr. Samuel A. Brown, President of the academy, to the following: Edward William Archibald of Montreal, Professor of Surgery at Magill University; Harvey W. Cushing of Boston, Professor of Surgery at Harvard University; George E. de Schweinitz, Professor of Eye Diseases at the University of Pennsylvania, and William Sidney Thayer, Professor Emeritus of Medicine at Johns Hopkins University.

The executive session was followed by the Wesley M. Carpenter lecture on ionization and chemical reactions, by Professor Michael I. Pupin of Columbia University.

BAR QUEENS PLAZA PARKING

Long Island City Police Announce Restriction at Diagonal St.

The practice of motoring to lunch at Queens Plaza will have to cease and Long Island City business men may no longer park their cars near the restaurants in that district. Parking within two blocks has been stopped by the police. The restricted area is from Diagonal Street viaduct north to Skillman Avenue.

Some motorists who parked their cars yesterday and went into restaurants found summonses awaiting them. They appeared before Magistrate Conway later and were fined $2 each.

Policemen say the restricted area is a busy junction, where hundreds of persons take surface cars daily. Automobiles passing in this area makes it extremely hazardous, the police assert.

GUARDIAN NAMED FOR W. B. FRENCH

Alleged by His Own Lawyer to Be Incompetent From Habitual Use of Liquor.

CLIENT'S CONSENT IS CITED

Son of Late Morgan Partner Had Been Arrested as Forger—Family and Doctor Concur in Move.

William Barton French, son of the late Seth Barton French, who was a partner in J. P. Morgan & Co., was described as incompetent because of habitual drunkenness in a petition made yesterday for the appointment of a special guardian for the alleged incompetent by his counsel, Outerbridge Horsey, 30 Broad Street. Supreme Court Justice Francis B. Delehanty named Charles L. Hoffman commissioner to have the Sheriff empanel a jury to investigate the petition and appointed Philip J. Dunn as the guardian.

Mr. Horsey in his petition says he made the application at the request of French, who will appear in court to consent to the move. The attorney also says that French's two half-brothers, Dr. John H. French, 43 West Fifty-first Street, and John B. French of Southampton, L. I., have also consented.

Accused in $3,500 Check Forgery.

The petition resulted from the recent arrest of French on the complaint of Thomas Cook & Sons, who alleged that they cashed a check for $3,500 for French before he sailed from France recently and the check was returned for lack of funds. When French was arrested aboard the French liner Paris at Quarantine he maintained that his arrest was due to a mistake.

Supporting Mr. Horsey's petition is an affidavit made by Dr. Joseph S. Wheelwright, 377 Paark Avenue. Dr. Wheelwright says he has known French since childhood and that French is incapable of managing his affairs "by reason of habitual drunkenness induced by the use of alcohol and other intoxicating substances over a considerable period." The affidavit further says that French is incapable of understanding his present condition further than to realize that he needs medical treatment.

In his petition Mr. Horsey says the alleged incompetent is the beneficiary of two trust funds which provide French with approximately $975 a month. He has a contingent interest in the residuary estate of his father from which he will benefit if he survives his mother, and a contingent interest in real estate at 15 West Fifty-first Street also.

Had Been Twice Divorced.

The petition sets forth that French has been twice married and twice divorced; that at present he is unmarried; that he has a daughter, Marie Louise French, 9 years old, living with her mother, Mrs. Jennie E. Pierce, 58 Central Park West, and that his mother, Mrs. Mary French, lives at Roca Marine, Villefranche-sur-Mer, France.

The address of French in the petition was given as 293 Central Park West. At the time of his arrest he had given his address as 1 East Sixtieth Street, the Metropolitan Club. When arraigned in the Tombe Court on a charge of being a fugitive from justice he was held for examination on Nov. 24. His bail of $5,000 was furnished by a surety company.

Following his arraignment the police said they had been advised by Paris authorities that French was wanted also for passing worthless checks aggregating $2,900 at the California Hotel in that city.

W. G. M'ADOO NAMED IN A MORSE DEAL

Witness Says Ex-Treasury Head Negotiated Contracts for Shipping Companies.

WITH TWO GOVERNMENTS

Tells of Reconstruction Cost of Smaller Concerns—Two Prosecutors Ill.

William G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, negotiated the contracts for the shipment of coal with the French and Italian Governments obtained by the Morse companies, according to the testimony of Nehemiah H. Campbell, former Treasurer of the United States Steamship Company, a Morse concern, given yesterday in the Federal Court before Judge Thomas D. Thacher and a jury.

The contracts were read into the record on Wednesday at the trial of three sons of Charles W. Morse and seven other defendants for using the mails fraudulently to promote stock sales in companies organized by Charles W. Morse. It was brought out further that shipping contracts for the Virginia Shipbuilding Company, another Morse concern, were negotiated through the law firm of Barber, Watson and Gibboney, and that Mr. McAdoo's name did not appear on them.

Campbell was cross-examined by W. J. Lahey, of Washington, on the cost of reconstruction in some of the small boat companies and called upon to explain the entry of these costs as charged to profit and loss. LIQUOR CRAFT, 3 MEN; ONE ESCAPES

Pilot Asks Guard for a Watch, and Walks Away From Barge Office.

HOLIDAY CARGO CAPTURED

Gin and Whisky Valued at $30,000 Taken With the Albertina After a Chase.

A prisoner, one of five held at the Barge Office yesterday aboard the rum-runner Albertina, escaped by the simple method of walking up to the Coast Guard man who was guarding him, asking him for a match, and then strolling slowly down the gangway.

The Coast Guard man said that he thought the man, who was clad in dungarees, was one of the customs house boatmen who were unloading goods from the vessel. Later, Collector Edward Barnes, before the remaining four prisoners were brought, declared that the man who escaped was the supercargo of the vessel and believed to be the pilot of the vessel. He said that the customs officials had information which would lead to his identification.

The Albertina, which carried Thanksgiving cheer, having an estimated value of $30,000, was captured half a mile off Scotland Light yesterday by the Coast Guard patrol boat Tiger under the command of Boatswain Thomas Simpkins. Simpkins were aroused when the 110-foot vessel was discovered moving without lights. The Tiger gave chase and soon overtook the rum runner. There was no resistance when the Coast Guard men boarded her. A cargo of 500 cases of gin and whisky were aboard the Albertina, according to George Jeffries, believed to be the pilot. Both boats put into the Barge Office.

Questioning of one of the men who said he was the boat had been at the dock a short while. Half a dozen customs officials were present. Captain Thomas in charge of the local Coast Guard station refused to make any statement.

PROHIBITION AGENTS DROPPED.

Two Charged by Major Mitchel Seized in the Bronx.

Chester P. Mills, Federal Prohibition Director, announced today that five prohibition enforcement agents of his district had been dismissed from the service on charges of incompetency and lacking necessary qualifications for their work. Neglect of duty was charged in one case.

Those dropped were Michael Philip Lowenthal, Thomas Edward Licker and Lawrence Kenny.

Mills also announced that 1,000 gallons of denatured alcohol had been found in a garage in Boone Avenue near 178th Street, the Bronx. The alcohol was stored in 600 drums and none of it was found to be missing. No arrests were made.

GRANGE URGES LEASE OF MUSCLE SHOALS

Farmers' Organization Rejects a Resolution Favoring the Cyanimid Company.

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 18 (AP).—After a two-hour debate the National Grange tonight adopted a resolution recommending the leasing of Muscle Shoals to a responsible company making the best offer and complying with conditions designed to benefit agriculture. The contest over the question required the only roll-call of the meeting and was decided by a vote of 27 to 21.

The delegates favored leasing the Government plant to a company "agreeing to manufacture a high-grade fertilizer material carrying not less than 40 per cent. plant food and waiving all royalties and carrying the terms and conditions set up by Congress, and in full compliance with the terms of the National Defense act of 1916 in the manufacture of nitrates for fertilizer in time of peace and the production of explosives in time of war."

The resolution was a compromise between two introduced respectively by A. G. Goss of Washington, who advocated Government operation, and by David H. Agans of New Jersey, who asked the National Grange to favor a lease to the American Cyanimid Company of Warner, N. J.

The Agans faction waged a vigorous fight, but their efforts to substitute his original resolution reported by the Resolutions Committee were defeated by six votes when the roll-call was taken. Mr. Goss did not oppose the compromise measure.

NEW EVENING PAPER TO START IN MEMPHIS

Publishers of Commercial Appeal Make Announcement—Knoxville Merger Reported.

Special to The New York Times.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 18.—The Commercial Publishing Company, publishers of the Commercial Appeal, a morning newspaper, has announced that in a few days it will establish the Memphis Evening Appeal. The exact date of its publication of the new newspaper has not been disclosed. C. P. J. Mooney, President and managing editor of The Commercial Appeal, made the announcement tonight.

The Memphis Evening Appeal will have the full leased wire report of the Associated Press and will be the only evening paper in the city with the Associated Press service.

Special to The New York Times.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 18.—The Scripps-Howard newspaper syndicate, owner of The Knoxville News, is understood to have purchased The Knoxville Evening Sentinel and that these afternoon papers would be consolidated. While it was generally asserted, however, that the deal had been made for a consideration considerably in excess of $500,000, no confirmation of the sale and merger could be obtained from Editor Meeman, of The News, or General Manager Wiley Lee Morgan of The Sentinel.

Formal announcement of the deal is expected to be made tomorrow.

What disposition is to be made of The Sentinel's A. P. membership is no known. Formal announcement of the deal is expected to be made tomorrow.

LOWER 5TH AVENUE RESTRICTED BY CITY

Estimate Board Votes to Permit Only Business and Homes From 12th to 23d St.

MANUFACTURING EXCLUDED

Whole Street From 12th to 60th Now a Business Zone—Action Follows Owners' Petition.

The Board of Estimate voted yesterday to change from an unrestricted to a business and residential district, under the zoning law, that part of Fifth Avenue between Twelfth and Twenty-third Streets. This makes the entire avenue from Twelfth to Sixtieth Streets a restricted business zone, excluding manufacturing without affecting its residential characteristics.

The action was at the request of the Fifth Avenue Association, which was represented at the meeting by Captain William J. Pedrick, Vice President and General Manager. He submitted a petition of many property owners in the area requesting the change. This was accompanied by a communication from H. Prescott Beach, President of the Fourteenth Street Association, which also favored the change.

The report says the petitioners represented approximately 70 per cent. of the frontage proposed to be altered. The Fifth Avenue Association announced that an extensive survey showed 80 per cent. of the buildings in the area conformed with the requirements of a business district.

The report of the Fifth Avenue Association said in part:

"At the present time all property within this area is unprotected. There is no restriction upon the amount and type of manufacturing that might be done, nor is there any protection against undesirable or objectionable trades. Public garages or heavy manufacturing plants are typical examples of the sort of industry which might be legally maintained anywhere in this section.

"This section has excellent transit facilities. In addition, the wealth of tradition and its proximity to the fine Washington Square residential area on the south and to the new Madison Square insurance and wholesale centre on the north give it an atmosphere of distinction that must be protected in order that the property owners may capitalize on it to the fullest extent."

For a number of years, the association reported, the section was largely occupied by clothing manufacturers, but many of these have moved "and it is hoped that the new restrictions will have the ultimate effect of clearing the neighborhood of all such industries that remain."

Rules on Club Initiation Fees.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (AP).—Club initiation fees were defined by the Court of Claims today as payments made for the purpose of becoming a club member, and not as including investment in stock of clubs. The decision was rendered in a series of cases involving the purchase by members of stock in club corporations under provisions of club by-laws. The Alliance Country Club of Alliance, Neb., was assessed $1,756 by the Revenue Bureau under the theory that such purchases were initiation fees, but the Court of Claims ordered the money repaid with interest.

ANOTHER JUDGE BALKS ON THE BAUMES LAW

Martin Refuses to Give Limit to Four—Won't Substitute 'Injustice for Justice.'

Judge George W. Martin in the Kings County Court yesterday declined to apply the heavy penalties provided for under the Baumes law on offenders previously convicted. There were four defendants, all indicted as second offenders, but none was charged with the so-called violent crimes. The attitude of Judge Martin was in line with that of Judge Franklin Taylor in the same court, who refused the District Attorney's request to resentence a defendant for life as a fourth offender. Judge Martin said:

"I am unwilling to believe that the Baumes laws should be interpreted to defeat their own purpose by substituting injustice for justice."

The new laws, Judge Martin held, did not deprive the courts of discrimination in their application to petty offenders, while allowing measures of extreme punishment for the hardened criminal.

"The Baumes laws," he commented, "are giving valuable service in striking terror into the breast of the hardened criminal, and there is force enough in them to accomplish that purpose without trying to make them shackle Judges, District Attorney and jurors in the proper administration of justice."

In the absence of District Attorney Charles J. Dodd, who was in Albany, an assistant in his office said the question of application of the Baumes law now rested in the review to be made of Judge Taylor's ruling by Supreme Court Justice Harry E. Lewis.

AID IN CELEBRATION SOUGHT

Battlefields Commission Wants Conference on 1927 Sesquicentennial.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Nov. 18.—The State Battlefields Commission today adopted a resolution to ask the State Board of Regents to permit the commission to consult with them as to the character of the sesquicentennial celebration next year, which is to centre around the American victory over General Burgoyne's army in 1777. The Regents have charge of the celebration and the commission has charge of the rehabilitation of the Burgoyne battlefields at Saratoga, Bennington and Oriskany.

It was said today that a pageant depicting one of the pivotal battles of the Revolutionary War at Saratoga would be most appropriate.

The commission will meet again early in December, when it is expected that a draft of the amount of appropriation required would be made. The money which is given by the 1927 Legislature will be used for the rehabilitation of the battlefields.

HEAR TOMBS TIP-OFF HERALDED OFFICIALS

Banton Aides Told Violations by Keepers and Prisoners Then Ceased.

INCLUDING CARD GAMES

Rossisky Refuses to Let Grand Jury Visit Prison—Wallis Is Silent.

Members of the staff of District Attorney Joab H. Banton who are investigating the Tombs jailbreak of Nov. 3, which resulted in five deaths obtained evidence yesterday regarding a so-called "tip-off" system in the Tombs by which an alarm was said to be sounded for the benefit of employes and prisoners alike of the approach of Commissioner of Correction Frederick A. Wallis or any other official.

As soon as the alarm was given, all violations of rules ceased. Prisoners who had been allowed out of their cells rushed back into them and were locked up. It was alleged that in some cases lenient keepers were permitting crap games, poker and other card games among the prisoners, when everything was considered safe. Sometimes, it was said, these were interrupted by the word of warning which traveled swiftly through the whole building. Commissioner Wallis and other officials have made a practice of dropping into city institutions unexpectedly to discover how well rules were being observed when prison employes were supposedly off their guard. But the Tombs employes and their keepers were never caught off their guard, it was alleged, because of the perfection of their information service.

Tipping was absolutely forbidden at the Tombs. Keepers were threatened with dismissal if caught accepting gratuities. But the prisoners were permitted to keep "pocket money" running up to $1,000 apiece. And in practice, it is alleged by witnesses questioned by Assistant District Attorneys William P. Ryan, Harold W. Hastings and George N. Brothers, the anti-tipping rule was violated wholesale. The violation of this rule, it was asserted, was reduced to a system, involving a graduated scale of gratuities, which is said to have run from 50 cents or $1 for the freedom of the corridors up to $10 or $15 for the use of private rooms for the reception of visitors.

Judge Rosalsky of the Court of General Sessions denied the request of the Grand Jury yesterday for permission to visit the Tombs and study the physical conditions there at first hand. He said:

"I feel, in the absence of the defendants, that it would not be proper for you gentlemen to make such a visit. You will be able to visualize the interior of the Tombs from the diagrams and drawings which will be submitted to you. In the event you visited the prison and should later indict your visit might be the means of causing a mistrial or upsetting a possible conviction."

The Grand Jury then adjourned until 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, when it will again consider the case.

A. J. Friedman, a prisoner in the Tombs, who had been a cellmate of Hyman Amberg, one of the dead bandits, did not go before the Grand Jury yesterday. While he was waiting and in the presence of his attorney, Samuel Markewich of 51 Chambers Street, he told reporters that Hyman Amberg had been visited two nights a week in the Tombs by a woman and that for this privilege, which was contrary to all prison rules, Amberg had told him he paid $100 per visit. Friedman also said that one night when he was in the act of borrowing a blanket from Amberg's cot he discovered a revolver under the blanket in the cot and that Amberg told him to put it back where he found it. This was a week or ten days prior to the attempted escape, he said.

Commissioner of Correction Frederick A. Wallis refused yesterday to discuss the attack made upon him by Martin G. McCue, who charged him with responsibility for the outbreak, or other phases of the case.

"At the present time I have nothing to say," said Commissioner Wallis.

BURGLAR REASSURES GIRL.

Tells Her He's Phone Repair Man, Then Takes Gems and Flees.

Special to The New York Times.

PELHAM MANOR, N. Y., Nov. 18.—Jewelry valued at several hundred dollars was stolen from the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Migel, 630 Wolf's Lane, shortly before last midnight. The burglar invaded the room of the Migel's 11-year-old daughter, aroused her and told her, "Hush, I'm the telephone man and I'm here to repair a wire blown down in the storm."

Reassured the girl remained quiet while the thief collected the loot and fled. Several residents of White Plains reported to the police this morning that men with flashlights had been prowling about their homes.

WANTS TRINITY CHURCH FOR TOWN IN OREGON

Bishop Remington Tells Need for Edifice in Bend Like New York's Trinity.

A descriptive story contrasting the work and influence of Trinity Church, and its several chapels here, with that of a little church in Eastern Oregon, was told last night by the Right Rev. William F. Remington, Bishop of Eastern Oregon, at a dinner at the Aldine Club, 200 Fifth Avenue. It was the third annual dinner under the auspices of Trinity Church and its eight chapels throughout the city, which was attended by 600 younger men of the various church organizations.

Bishop Remington described his present diocese geographically as a mountain country of 65,000 square miles, with a population of only 160,000.

"I have a little town in Central Oregon called Bend," continued the Bishop. "Four years ago I put the first resident clergyman of our Church in that section and we put up a small building on property which lies at the head of the town's Wall Street, which is the town's main thoroughfare. The church is growing and thriving.

"We must build a fine church to meet the needs of our congregation there; we must have another Trinity Church at the head of the Wall Street of Bend. Wouldn't it be a fine thing if Trinity Church could take part in helping to build another Trinity Church in this little town of Oregon?"

Other speakers were the Rev. Dr. Caleb R. Stetson, rector of Trinity Church, and Dr. John Erskine, who presided.

EDUCATIONAL EXHIBIT PRESENTED TO N..Y U.

First Installment of $50,000 Whitehouse Gift Accepted at Notable Gathering.

The first instalment of the Whitehouse Educational Exhibit, valued at $50,000, was formally presented to New York University in the Council Room at Washington Square yesterday afternoon by John Howard Whitehouse, Chairman of the Society for Experiment and Research in Education of England. It was received in the name of the university by Dr. Elmer Ellsworth Brown, Chancellor, in the presence of representatives citizens, members of the George Washington-Sulgrave Institution, members of the School of Education and Faculty of New York University.

The offer of this gift was accepted in the name of the United State Government by the late President Warren G. Harding. New York University was selected as the depository on the recommendation of John A. Stewart, Chairman of the George Washington Sulgrave Institution.

The collection is designed to show the recent development in the English educational system, in regard to creative work done by students in relation to their routine studies.

COURT TO HEAR A RADIO TO SEE IF IT'S TOO NOISY

Dealer Will Bring Set Before Magistrate on Complaint That It Shatters Nerves.

Magistrate George W. Simpson decided in the Tombs Court yesterday that the only way he could tell whether a radio set in front of a dealer's establishment at 65 Cortlandt Street was being operated in violation of the Sanitary Code and was "an unnecessary noise, dangerous to life or detrimental to health" was to have a demonstration of the set in his court at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Herman Knopf, the dealer, was haled to court by Patrolman Lawlor of the Old Slip Station on a summons, after Miss Alice Leaky, a publisher with an office at 74 Cortlandt Street, across from Knopf's place, had complained that the raucous sound of the set was nerve shattering and was interfering with business in offices and stores in the vicinity.

Knopf said the set was used for demonstration purposes, but that it always was toned down so that it could be heard only by passersby.

IRATE AT FRATERNITY DIN.

Neighbor of Columbia Chapter Tells Court Noise Goes On Till 3 A. M.

Following a recital yesterday by Walter Murtha of 617 West 113th Street of the disadvantages of having as neighbors the members of a college fraternity group, Chief Magistrate William McAdoo warned members of the Columbia University Chapter of the Theta Delta Chi Fraternity, whose chapter house is at 619 West 113th Street, that early morning jazz music and boisterous language were a nuisance, and threatened the offenders with padlocking proceedings if the alleged nuisance continued.

Murtha, who has lived at the West 113th Street address for nine years, said that the neighborhood had been noted for quiet up to six years ago, when the fraternity house was opened. Since then, Murtha said, conditions have grown gradually worse. It was nothing unusual, he declared, to be kept awake till 3 A. M. by the wailing of a saxophone or by the concentrated attack of an entire jazz band. The music over, he said, the students generally adjourned to the backyard and spent some time in throwing bottles. Then, he said, it was customary to go into the street and blow the horns of any automobiles parked there. Murtha declared that because of this his wife was almost a nervous wreck. Magistrate McAdoo ordered a probation officer to watch the premises next Saturday and ordered a John Doe inquiry of Murtha's complaint, which will be heard next Tuesday afternoon. Seven fraternity members were served with summonses.

FOR HIGHER MILK STANDARD

New Jersey Health Head Offers Help to Dealers' Conference.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, Nov. 18.—Dr. Henry B. Costill, director of the State Department of Health, offered today the fullest cooperation of his department in raising the standard of New Jersey's milk supply to members of the State Department of Agriculture and representatives of milk dealers meeting in conference at the State House.

The gathering, under the direction of Paul B. Bennetch, dairy marketing expert of the Agriculture Department, was called to discuss ways to aid the marketing of New Jersey milk through an improvement in quality and safety.

Dr. Costill spoke for uniformity of the milk standards of the various municipalities and said that these should also be reconciled with a State standard.

Leopold to Testify in Killing.

JOLIET, Ill., Nov. 18 (AP).—Nathan F. Leopold Jr., who, with Richard Loeb, murdered young Bobby Franks in Chicago three years ago, will be brought from the State Penitentiary, where he is serving a life sentence, to testify in the trial of six convicts charged with the murder of Peter W. W. Klein, Deputy Warden, in a prison break. He will be a defense witness and may testify Saturday.

WOMEN STILL OUTSIDE OF POLITICS, SHE SAYS

Ruth Lewinson, Hunter Trustee, Calls Furore About Few in High Offices 'Window Dressing.'

Furore about the few women who have reached high places politically was called "window-dressing" by Miss Ruth Lewinson, the youngest member of the Board of Trustees of Hunter College, and a member of the Board of Higher Education for Greater New York, who addressed the meeting of Assistants to Principals at the Waldorf yesterday afternoon. Miss Lewinson declared that men have not yet permitted women to "invade the inside of the shop."

Speaking on "Civic Responsibility," Miss Lewinson urged women to align themselves with a major political party. "And don't attempt to reform politics or party," she admonished, "for you can't reform until you know what's going on."

Miss Mary Kelly, assistant to the principal of Public School 39, the Bronx, talked on "Enriching the Curriculum for the Bright Child." The superior endowed child, she said, needed an enriched curriculum throughout eight grades instead of being hurried through to high school in fewer years. "Some of the schools in New York," she said, "have tried to solve the problem of rewarding ability by dividing classes into 'bright,' 'normal' and 'slow.' This is not so successful, for some children under this system reach high school at the ages of 10 or 11 and are socially miscast there from the start." Bright children should get more to do, she declared, for when they take the same lessons as the mediocre they develop indolence and learn to "coast."

Mrs. Frances Greenberg, Chairman of the Salary Committee, reported her interview with the Mayor's Committee on increased wages for teachers. She said she thought the committee had been impressed by the plea of the teachers.

ASKS PUBLIC TO HELP CUT RISING BUDGETS

McAneny Says Study by Civilian Agencies of City's Needs Alone Will Lower Costs.

WANTS SUBWAYS TO PAY

Tells Civitan Club It Is Poor Policy to Have Them Operate at a Loss on a 5-Cent Fare.

Former Transit Commissioner George McAneny called yesterday upon the city Administration and the public to take stock of the "prodigious increase in the scale of city spending," with a view to a general overhauling of the city's financial methods. Mr. McAneny's review of the steady rise in the cost of city government was made at a luncheon of the Civitan Club at the Hotel Astor, which was attended by seventy-five members and guests, including Julius Miller, President of the Borough of Manhattan, and Joseph V. McKee, President of the Board of Aldermen.

The speaker pointed out that the proposed budget for 1927 called for the raising through taxation of $474,893,300, which did not include the $N32,000,000 received from sources other than taxation, to be expended by the departments, and $150,000,000 more to be spent for permanent improvements. The total of about $650,000,000, he said, represented about $100 a head for every man, woman and child in the city. The cost has increased, Mr. McAneny asserted, an increase since 1917 of [illegible] per cent.

Sees Another Big Raise in 1928.

"The increase for the coming year," he added, "is more than $40,000,000 and there is little reason to believe that at the present rate of progress and under the persistent and unceasing demand for increases at nearly every point the bill for 1928 will not rise $40,000,000 more."

"There is, in my judgment," he continued, "but one way to check these alarming tendencies. Members of the City Government, with the best of intentions, will continue to find it difficult to do so without a more militant and a more intelligent public support. Agencies must be established for the day-to-day study of departmental expenditures of every sort, as well as for the need of the use of the city's capital funds.

"A reduction of the amounts carried in the budget for expenses or for deficiencies that ought to be met through other means than public taxation offers another field for improvement. No public utility owned by the city should be operated, or its service given to those who use it, for less than the cost of such service. The current budget carries not much less than $5,000,000 to make up deficiencies in costs of public operation. The city has wealth enough, and so have its people, to pay properly for service rendered."

Calls Subway Losses Poor Policy.

It was poor business for the subways to continue to carry fares at a loss, Mr. McAneny continued. "I leave aside the question of what the fare should be," he said, "but even with the peak loading at rush hours it costs the subway 5.1 cents for each passenger and the elevated 6.35 cents. The trouble is that efforts are constantly made and multiplied, usually under the atmospheric conditions of politics, to make the people believe that they are getting something for nothing, or for less than cost, through the simple device of charging them with the losses at another point."

Both Mr. McKee and Mr. Miller replied briefly to the speaker's statement. "A great deal of our forced expenditures come as inheritances," said Mr. McKee, "some of them without justification. Moreover, we at City Hall hear only from those who demand expenditures for some particular purpose. We don't hear from the others."

The Borough President declared that the great increase in the budget since 1917 was largely due to the decreased buying power of the dollar.

Other guests of the club included Henry M. Goldfogle, President of the Board of Taxes, and Lawrence B. Elliman, President of the Real Estate Board. George W. Ochs-Oakes, President of the club, presided.

DEFERS CROSSINGS ACTION.

Estimate Board Gets History of Plans Aimed at Railroad Menace.

The regular weekly session of the Board of Estimate yesterday lasted only one hour and ten minutes, in striking contrast with the meeting of one week ago, which consumed the entire day. In the absence of Mayor Walker, who was confined to his home with a severe cold, Aldermanic President McKee presided and Vice Chairman Charles A. McManus of the Board of Aldermen sat as Acting Aldermanic President.

Pursuant to a recent resolution submitted by Controller Berry calling for early action on the elimination of the nineteen dangerous grade crossings on the Atlantic Avenue Division of the Long Island Railroad, Secretary Peter J. McGowan of the Board of Estimate, made a report analyzing the history of negotiations to that end which had been conducted by earlier city Administrations. The McGowan report was referred to the Committee of the Whole.

Mr. McGowan's conclusions were that now there was no definite project on the subject for the consideration of the board. However, since the Berry resolution calling for the McGowan report, Mayor Walker has called a conference of all city agencies having to do with the elimination, and a committee of engineers has been appointed and has met to study the physical aspects of the problem with the department heads.

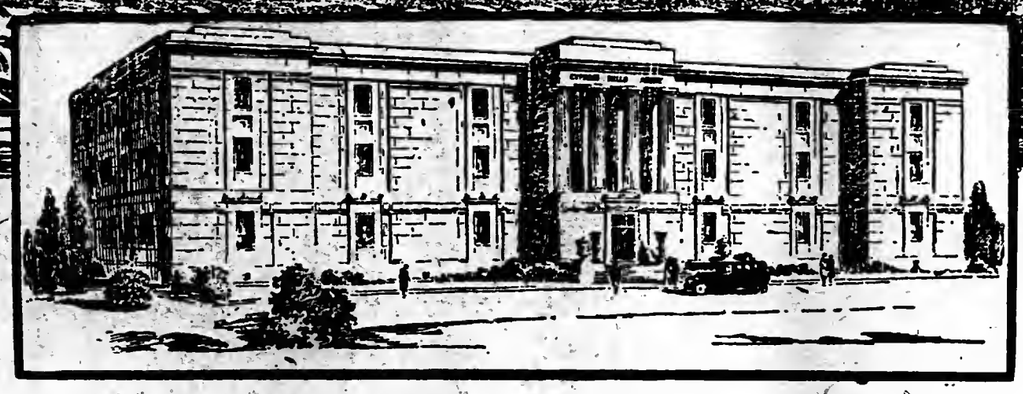
CHICAGO UTILITY MAN SUES.

Clarke Says Indianapolis Official Libeled Him on Campaign Funds.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 18 (AP).—Alvah J. Rucker, Indianapolis Coporation Counsel, who recently charged that Chicago utility interests contributed $19,000 in the 1924 campaign in Indiana to obtain favors from the Public Service Commission, was sued for $250,000 in the Federal court today by Harley L. Clarke, a utility operator of Chicago. Clarke charges libel and alleges damage has been done to his good name and credit.

Rucker's charges were made in a petition filed in Circuit Court asking a temporary injunction against a hearing by the Public Service Commission on a proposed merger of the Indianapolis Light and Heat Company, controlled by Clarke, and the Merchants' Heat and Light Company, controlled by Samuel and Martin Insull, both of Chicago. The petition was denied yesterday, and the hearing was started by the commission today.

Rucker made no comment on the Clarke suit other than to declare he felt "highly complimented."



LEADING FAMILIES WHO HAVE PERFORMED A MOST IMPORTANT DUTY

A partial list of thinking families who have already provided for their last resting place in Cypress Hills Abbey---Greater New York's Greatest Mausoleum

Dr. S. Parkes Cadman said: "We can do nothing better in life than the erection of this Abbey for the disposal of the honored dust of our departed ones. To this end, we have commanded, as far as I can understand, the best advice and co-operative service which we could secure, that all may have this common benefit who participate therein."

Dr. Frank Gough, President of the Brooklyn Rotary Club said: "The advancement of civilization may be said to be shown almost by the manner in which peoples and nations have cared for the dead."

Rev. S. Edward Young, Pastor of the Bedford Presbyterian Church, writes: "... Your program eliminates the most undesirable features of interment and adds much that is needed. Knowing some of the men who head your organization, I am confident that you will command the support of the community and achieve the best possible results in the lines of dignified, appropriate mausoleum arrangements."

Rev. John M. Moore, Pastor of the Marcy Avenue Baptist Church, said: "... and there are many people who will welcome the announcement of the provision that you are making to help, in some measure, at least, to mitigate their revulsion of death and the grave."

The Rev. Charles Carroll Albertson, Pastor of the Lafayette Avenue Presbyterian Church, writes: "Your plan contemplates furnishing at a comparatively modest cost what heretofore has been possible only to persons of large means. The experience of other cities has proved the wisdom of your plan. I shall be glad to hear of its successful completion."

Mr. C. J. Kenny, active head of the Kenny Construction Company who is building the mausoleum, said: "It is without doubt the finest mausoleum I have ever worked on. The design is exceptional and the quality of the materials, in fact every construction detail, is such that it is a pleasure to be identified with the Abbey."

Mr. William Miles, President of the Cypress Hills Cemetery, said: "The mausoleum is undoubtedly the manner of interment of the future. Cypress Hills Abbey ... is one of the most distinctive in the land. ... I am proud of the great memorial that will always be visible to future generations of visitors to Cypress Hills Cemetery."

Dr. Frank Crane said: "This respect for the dead is the keynote of civilization. The advancement of any people can be measured by the honor which they show to those who are departed."

Mr. Frank K. Fairchild, President, Fairchild Sons, said: "We have no hesitancy in saying this is a modern, beautiful and most desirable form of interment.... Our knowledge of the manner in which Cypress Hills Abbey is being established leads us to subscribe heartily to the enterprise."

Dr. Frederick M. Gordon, Secretary, Brooklyn Federation of Churches, said: "The building of the mausoleum meets a real need which some of us have felt for a long time and will solve a constantly increasing problem.... I join with many other Brooklyn ministers in wishing you God speed in your undertaking."

Mr. George F. Spence, President, Peoples National Bank of Brooklyn, writes: "The building of Cypress Hills Abbey is an innovation in this section of the country, but sponsored by men of established reputation for integrity and responsibility, should in the light of the manifest experience of some of our most progressive communities, be a benefit."

Rev. J. J. Brubeck, Pastor of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Epiphany, writes: "You have undertaken a splendid work in providing the citizens of New York a sepulchre for their dead. I regard the mausoleum as the most sanitary and economical way of putting away our dead. ... I heartily endorse it."

The Rev. Charles E. Clark, Archdeacon of Brooklyn, writes: "The matter of the proposed Cypress Hills Abbey has just been brought to my attention and I am sending you just a line to heartily commend the plan to all who may be interested."

The Rev. Lewis T. Reed, D.D., Minister of the Flatbush Congregational Church, sends this statement: "The erection of such a mausoleum as your plans indicate in which dignity and beauty are combined, will undoubtedly be a service of comfort to a great many people. The personal acquaintance which I have with some of the gentlemen interested gives me confidence in the entire project."

FUND TO PAY COSTS OF CHARITY DRIVE

Jewish Federation Seeks to Meet Drive Expenses Without Using Money Given for Poor.

HAS $11,250 FOR PURPOSE

Largest Contribution is $2,500 From Juilliard & Co.—Women Have Honor Roll.

Creation of a special fund to help defray campaign costs of the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies was announced yesterday by Frederick Brown, General Chairman of the present $4,720,000 campaign.

Figures submitted yesterday by the Budget Committee of the Federation to Mr. Brown showed that the cost of administration and distribution of federation funds for 1926 was 3.47 cents on the dollar, and the purpose of the special fund was to meet special advertising expenses and other emergency campaign costs without using any of the funds contributed for the beneficiaries of federation.

The largest contribution received to date for the special fund, it was announced, was $2,500 from A. D. Juilliard & Co.

Other contributors to this fund include William Skinner & Co., Corn Exchange Bank, Bank of Manhattan, Best & Co., Fairchild Publishing Company, Bank of the United States, National City Bank and the Otis Elevator Company, $1,000 each; Chatham and Phenix Bank, $500, and Ufitted Publishers, $250.

These sums represent donations obtained from corporations and individuals not solicited in the regular course of the campaign, $11,250 having been thus obtained to date.

There was no tabulation of additional subscriptions yesterday. Mr. Brown announced that the official status of the campaign would be made known again next Monday night, when the councilors and divisions of the Business Men's Council would meet to plan for the final spurt of the drive.

Last night Mr. Brown made known contributions to the drive of $5,000 from the estate of the late Marck Stroock and $2,000 from Joseph Stroock. Among the larger individual subscriptions announced yesterday was $10,000 by Charles Kaye, Vice President of the Hospital for Joint Diseases, one of the ninety-one constituent societies of the federation. John T. Underwood contributed $2,000; Richard M. Lederer, $1,000, and the Anderson Galleries, $100.

Mrs. Sidney C. Borg, Chairman of the Women's Division, announced yesterday that the group had added 1,200 new members to the federation rolls. She also issued the first honor roll of women workers, citing Mrs. Samuel D. Levy, wife of Justice Levy, for industriousness. Mrs. Levy is a Vice Chairman of the Women's Division and is actively associated with the Committee on Field Activities of the Jewish Board of Guardians.

The other workers mentioned include Mrs. M. R. Schwartz, Mrs. Charles A. Klein, Mrs. Bertha Login, Mrs. Leopold Plaut, Mrs. Ernest A. Grunsfeld, Mrs. Frederick Brown, Mrs. Sol M. Stroock, Mrs. Herman W. Frauenthal, Mrs. Minerva Abeles, Mrs. Samuel Ancelewitz, Mrs. Leo J. Goldberger, Mrs. Bessie First, Mrs. H. M. Block and Mrs. David E. Schwab.

Following a luncheon meeting of the Special Prospects Committee at the Uptown Club yesterday, Henry Morgenthau, Chairman, and Eli H. Bernheim, Associate Chairman, announced that the committee expected to raise more than $250,000 toward the campaign fund. Already $175,000 has been reported by this group.

Parretti Appeals Death Decree.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Nov. 18.—Tony Parretti, Brooklyn gunman, convicted for his participation in the shooting of Nicholas Morello and Charles Ubriaco in Brooklyn on Sept. 7, 1916, appealed to the Court of Appeals today through his attorney, Robert H. Elder. Parretti is now in the death house at Sing Sing.

CENTURY OLD GRAVES DUG UP FOR CAR YARD

200 Bodies, Some Believed to Be of Revolutionary Soldiers, Are Moved From Nagle Cemetery.

More than 200 human bodies, some believed to have been of soldiers of the Revolutionary War, have been disinterred in the last two weeks at Nagle Cemetery, 212th Street, between Ninth and Tenth Avenues, to clear the way for a vast car yard made necessary by the new Eighth Avenue subway. Remnants of headstones and coffin plates show that some of the bodies were buried there more than a century ago. Time, however, has reduced them in most cases to skulls and a few scattered bones, making exact identification impossible. The remnants of brass buttons such as were on the uniforms of Revolutionary soldiers give rise to the belief that old soldiers were among the persons buried there.

Utmost care is taken to insure proper respect for the human ashes. Excavation by machinery is forbidden, although steam shovels are in operation in other parts of the site. Workmen have been instructed to excavate by shovel wherever a grave is believed to be located, and where any part of a body is found it is carefully removed, placed in a wooden box and removed to a city-owned plot at Woodlawn Cemetery. Relatives of many persons known to have been buried there have visited the cemetery since the work was started and have given approval to the method employed, according to E. G. Haines, Assistant District Engineer of the Board of Transportation, who is directing the work.

to their natural fears that these well-organized and widespread organizations will take revenge on them at some future time. There is danger that some of us may be misled. For example, both houses of Congress passed the Child Labor amendment by large majorities, only to find that the people back home really did not want it."

Senator Bingham said he opposed Federal legislation on those subjects because it meant further centralization of Government and extension of bureaucracy. He said it would eventually "succeed in killing off the very spirit of self-reliant citizenry which has made America possible."

William L. DeBost, President of the Chamber, also spoke.

"I am sure that I may pledge for the members of this Chamber their hearty and earnest support of every measure tending to the betterment of our country, its commerce, its industries and its labor, as well as I can promise their criticism of every move tending in the other direction," he said.

NO IOWA SENTIMENT FOR SMITH, HE SAYS

E. T. Meredith Reports Little Enthusiasm for Governor as Nominee for President.

Edwin T. Meredith, Secretary of Agriculture under Woodrow Wilson during the last year of his second Administration, who was in this city yesterday, said at the Hotel Biltmore that there was comparatively little sentiment for Governor Smith as a possible prospective nominee for President in Iowa. Mr. Meredith's home State. He was here in connection with his appearance as principal speaker at the annual dinner of the Chamber of Commerce.

"There is some sentiment for Governor Smith among Democrats in Iowa," Mr. Meredith said, "but not enough to provoke enthusiasm among his followers and admirers. Iowa is dry."

The former Secretary of Agriculture has been discussed more or less during the last two years as a possible compromise candidate for President on the Democratic ticket in 1928.

"What is the use of talking about that?" he said by way of comment. "I am not a candidate. All my friends know that."

FESS FOR FEDERAL LOANS.

Senator's Proposal to Aid Farmers Received in Silence by Rail Men.

A gathering of 1,500 railroad men received in silence last evening the suggestion of Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio that the Government lend funds to cooperative associations of farmers wherewith to purchase crops to be held until market conditions warranted their unloading. The occasion was the eighteenth annual dinner of the Railway Business Association at the Hotel Commodore. Most of the Senator's suggestions had been received with applause.

Senator Fess followed Whiteford R. Cole, President of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company, on the program, and agreed with him that an alteration of freight rates was not the solution of the farmers' problem. Mr. Cole said the farmers should take a leaf from the book of the trade unions and 'make us pay for what they have to offer the same way we oblige them to pay us for what we give.' He and Senator Fess agreed that Congress should leave adjustment of freight rates to the Interstate Commerce Commission and confine itself to regulatory rather than administrative legislation as affecting the railroads.

"The farmer is controlled in the sale of his products by the law of supply and demand," declared Senator Fess, "whereas he buys in markets artificially controlled by labor legislation and similar procedure. If the Government lends funds to him directly every other industry will demand similar aid. But a cooperative farm group which buys the crops, pays to the farmer 75 per cent. of their value, holds them until the market can take them and then pays the other 25 per cent. after sale is a solution of his problem."

Elections will be fought on the issue of prices if the Government ever tries to set prices directly, the Senator said. He warned the railroad men that there was a widespread feeling in favor of Government-owned railroads and that the Government would take over necessary lines and run them if the owners ever failed. Transportation must be maintained at any price, he said, but he opposed consolidation of roads at Government direction. The habit of running to Washington for legislation whenever an economic problem arose was one of the great menaces of the nation, he added.

PRAISES NEWSBOYS AS SELF-RELIANT

Buffalo Schools' Head Tells Charities Meeting Such Work Permits of Ample Play.

MENTAL HYGIENE IS URGED

Dr. Davies Says Its Greatest Usefulness Is With Children Presumably Normal.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, Nov. 18.—Dr. Ernest C. Hartwell, Superintendent of the Buffalo Schools, told the New York State Conference of Charities and Correction tonight that the experience of newsboys taught them self-reliance, aided them to meet and deal with the world intelligently and gave them a broader outlook on life.

He said that it was only the occasional or non-resident boy who was found sleeping in alleys.

"In one year," said Dr. Hartwell, "a survey of conditions in Buffalo disclosed that only forty-eight boys were selling papers after 8 o'clock at night." Dr. Hartwell added that, more than 1,100 boys were licensed to sell papers in Buffalo.

"Newsboys are not by that work deprived of recreation." Dr. Hartwell went on. "They do not begin work until after 3 P. M. and they finish, as a rule, before 7 o'clock. That leaves ample opportunity for recreation and play."

A course in mental hygiene was advocated by Dr. Stanley P. Davies, Secretary of the New York State Committee on Hygiene of the State Charities Aid Association.

"It is not a fad or a fancy," said Dr. Davies, "but an established science that has a vital relationship to education.

"What mental hygiene has to offer is not limited to the mal-adjusted, unmanageable, the queer and the difficult children, but has its greatest mission with the great group of presumably normal children.

"The well-established clinic holds out hope for straightening out the mental kinks that stand between the problem child and normalcy, but mental hygiene in its general educational implications will not get very far until parents and teachers learn its general principles and begin to apply them.

Urges Best Milk for Children.

"Parents should obtain the best milk possible for children and use the newest anti-disease methods during the first five years." Dr. Frank Richardson of the State Department of Health decared in his talk on "Reducing Children From Disease and Neglect." Dr. Richardson said the child of pre-school age reflects its home environment.

Franklin Thomas, Superintendent of the New York Orphanage at Hastings-on-the-Hudson, said there would be fewer institutions when the underlying causes of child dependency—ill-health, poverty, ignorance and the broken home—have been corrected.

The solution of the question of public health, mental hygiene, social and economic conditions must be improved, Mr. Thomas said. The suggestion of charity, he asserted, must be left far in the background.

The general topic of discussion for the day was "children." The morning session was presided over by James H. Foster, Superintendent of the Division of Children of the State Board of Charities at Albany.

The discussion following Mr. Thomas's address was opened by John P. Anderson, General Secretary of the Social Welfare League of Rochester.

Miss Ruth Taylor, Deputy Commissioner of Public Welfare of Westchester County, discussed "The Public Official and the Dependent Child."

At noon several luncheon discussions were held under the general topic of "the family." Oscar W. Knolt, General Secretary of the Council of Social Agencies of Rochester, and Dr. Frank H. Richardson also spoke.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon round-table discussions were held in several of the Hotel Statler rooms. Speakers at these included Stanley P. Davies, New York City; Dr. Monford Schley of Buffalo and Douglas Falconer, Superintendent of the Children's Aid and Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children of Buffalo.

Other round tables were held throughout the afternoon at which "Newspaper Selling and the School" were discussed by Dr. Hartwell and others. "Rural case work was the subject of addresses by Charles H. Johnson, Executive Director of the State Board of Charities at Albany, and others.

At 6 o'clock the American Association of Social Workers, meeting in conjunction with the State Conference of Charities and Correction, gave a dinner for visiting members.

Last night the association held its fifth general session, which was addressed by several speakers on general topics. The business meeting closed at 10 o'clock, after which, following the custom of the conference, members and guests danced until midnight. The conference will be ended tomorrow.

We hate the word service

Yet, try as we may, the hovering holidays won't let us avoid saying service. The incipient air of Christmas calls special attention to a utility phase of The New Yorker so likely to escape casual readers.

No Manhattanite can cover one-twentieth of the shops before Christmas. The New Yorker's "On and Off the Avenue" staff, agile as you please, can't fine tooth comb it either, but it does find many new individual things, so desirable for Uncle or Auntie—or too desirable for anyone but yourself!

"On and Off the Avenue" is conducted like all other New Yorker departments—not in the manner of the pundit nor with a beating of tom-toms; but brightly and discerningly. As it treats a new art exhibit, or a new piece by the Provincetown, Guild or the Shuberts. Whatever creative morsel the town offers each week.

BIG PARADE TODAY TO HONOR BROADWAY

Five Divisions With Floats and Bands to March South From 72d Street.

GOLD AND SILVER PRIZES

Celebration in Early Afternoon to Make Up for Restriction Caused by Weather.

The Broadway celebration was checked yesterday by the weather. Airplanes, which were to have circled over the Rialto and dropped flowers and taken pictures of the city, were prevented from flying by mist and threatened rain.

Last night a faint suggestion of a celebration was made by the release of many toy balloons. These were swept, back and forth in the air currents above the street and were chased by boys when they dropped near the ground.

Today a parade, which will start at Seventy-second Street and move south to Thirty-fourth Street at 2 o'clock, will make up for the lack of excitement yesterday. There will be twelve bands and many floats portraying the history of the city. The parade will be reviewed from a stand in front of the Hotel Astor.

Prizes to Be Awarded.

Nine silver and gold cups will be awarded for floats and automobiles in the parade. The best decorated automobiles will have a first and a second prize. There will be three silver cups for the best floats. The band organizations will compete for three gold cups, and for the best outdoor decoration there will be a silver cup.

The parade will be under the direction of Colonel Georgs Vidmer, U. S. A., who said the preparations were so perfect that the police officials predicted it would be one of the best organized parades ever held in the city. The first section will be headed by a platoon of mounted police, followed by the Grand Marshal and his aides, Lieut. Col. Arthur M. Wolff and First Lieutenant Albert Klavac Jr. A company of soldiers from the Sixteenth Infantry and a naval detachment will follow army and navy bands. Then will come President Lee Eastman of the Broadway Association, floats portraying Father Knickerbocker and Miss Broadway, a Broadway float by Frank E. Campbell and floats portraying Adrian von der Donck and Miss Yonkers. The Packard Motor Car float will also be in this division.

In the second division, under command of Marshall O. I. Holman, will be three floats of the Famous Players, THE NEW YORK TIMES Band, Paramount floats, the Empire Trust Company's float and the float of the Hecker-Jones-Jewell Milling Company. In the third division, led by Captain Geoffrey Galway, U. S. A., will be the National Biscuit Company Band, the float of the Consolidated Gas Company and floats of the Automobile Merchant's Association, United Electric Light & Power Company, Hotel McAlpin, Bumee Sales Corporation, a car of Grant & Wadsworth and the Cycle Trades of America.

In Other Divisions.

In the fourth division, led by Captain Gilbert Rieman, will be floats from the New York Edison Company, Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, Fifth Avenue Coach Company, a Chatean Shanley decorated car, L. E. Waterman Company and Harry A. Chandler cars.

In the fifth division, led by Lieutenant Frank E. Powers, U. S. A., will be the Broadway Association's float, two floats from the Chamber of Commerce of Staten Island, Hesbec Sales Company, Eighth Avenue Association, Roseland Amusement Company, Garment Center Capitol and the Rivoli Theatre.

One of the Broadway Association floats will represent the "Bridge of Time," illustrating the evolution of transportation from Indian times to the present day. It was contributed by Joe LeBlang. The Frank A. Campbell float will be a huge magnet suspended from two pillars at the Gateway to America, Battery Park, where Broadway begins. The scene illustrates the first settlement on Manhattan. Many of the floats will typify public service.

Abe Hummel Left Only $56,717 Estate; Lawyer Reputed to Have Spent Millions

Abraham H. Hummel, who was said to have made and spent millions when a member of the law firm of Howe & Hummel, notorious twenty-five years ago, left an estate of only $56,717 at the time of his death in London last January. A list of all the assets, as of the day of his death, was filed in the Surrogates' Court yesterday by the Guaranty Trust Company.

Reports had placed the estate at from $5,400 to $1,250,000. His will, which left virtually the entire estate to his two sisters, Mrs. Sophie H. Karfenburgh and Miss Bertha Hummel, is being contested by Henry D. Hummel of South Portland, Me., who says he is the son of Hummel and Leila Farrel, an opera singer who died many years ago.

The list, which was filed yesterday by order of the court, gives the assets as follows: A joint banking account with the London branch of the Guaranty Trust Company, in the names of Hummel and his two sisters, showing balance of $3,444; a similar account in the same bank showing balance of $1,281; an individual account with the Westminster Bank, Ltd., London, showing balance of $1,458 on depositor's account and $521 on current account; individual account with Bankers Trust Company, Fifth Avenue, $1,468, and personal effects, $312.

Securities are listed as follows: One hundred shares of Southern Pacific common, $10,025; 100 shares of United States Steel common, $13,312; 100 shares of Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe common, $13,025; $4,000 par value Erie Railroad first construction general lien 4s, $2,720; $3,000 par value corporation stock of the City of New York 4½s, W14, $3,157; $3,000 per value corporation stock of the City of New York 4½s, V15, $3,157; $2,000 par value Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul general 4½s, Series C, $1,812, and $1,000 par value United States First Liberty Loan convertible 3½s, $1,008.

An account with Boyd Neel & Co., Paris, showed a balance of $4.17. As the joint accounts in London may be entirely withdrawn by the sisters, these balances are deducted from the grand total of $56,717, which leaves the net amount of $51,991.

$20,000,000 SOUGHT TO INCREASE YALE PAY

Alumni Are Asked to Create Endowment Fund to Relieve Underpaid Staff.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 18 (AP).—Because the need for "reconstruction of salaries" at Yale University is so acute, the proposed $20,000,000 endowment fund is to go wholly for teaching and research work, President James Rowland Angell said in a campaign statement sent today to 30,000 alumni.

To fail in the drive, which alone will make better salaries possible, would mean that Yale would have to drop out of the front rank among universities, he added.

That not one cent of the $20,000,000 is to go for buildings is considered "a remarkable development in American university life" by Yale authorities. Heretofore, many large sums have been given for dormitories, recitation halls and other collegiate structures.

The endowment will have a single duty: to provide income which will permit Yale to raise professors' salaries to a mode adequate level and in other ways to better inner facilities of the university, "intangible perhaps, but more vital to the real life of the institution than any building, however imposing and fine."

Yale teaching salaries are now only 50 per cent. above the 1913 level, it is pointed out, while the cost of living was 77.9 per cent. higher in December, 1925, than it was in 1913.

To raise the salary scale to its proper place means a minimum increase of $221,000 a year for salaries and promotions in the twenty-three departments which chiefly serve the undergraduate schools and the graduate schools.

ROB GIRL OF PAYROLL.

Two Men Snatch Portfolio and Escape With $1,000 in Brooklyn.

Two men, apparently unarmed, darted from a hallway on Richardson Street near Graham Avenue, Brooklyn, yesterday and snatched a portfolio containing the $1,000 payroll of the National Form and Fixture Company from Miss Sadie Heilbaum of 277 Amales Street, Brooklyn. The girl chased them three blocks down Graham Avenue to Withers Street. Here she lost sight of them.

Miss Heilbaum had drawn the money from the Manufacturers' Trust Company at Grand Street and Bushwick Avenue and was on the way to the plant at 105 Richards Street when she was waylaid.

Burden Sues Newport Contractor.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, Nov. 18.—F. Townsend Burden of New York, a member of the Newport Summer colony, and other prominent Newporters today levied writs of attachment upon the real estate of Thomas F. Keeler, a local contractor. These suits involve a deal in Florida real estate near Miami last year in which a group of Newport residents, through the urging of Mr. Keeler, pooled $250,000 as the first payment on the land. Mr. Burden's individual suit is for $7,000.

NAVY AVIATOR DIES IN FALL.

Lieut. Curtis Killed and Lieut. Cornwell Hurt at Norfolk.

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 18 (AP).—Lieutenant Edward B. Curtis of New Orleans died at the Naval Hospital tonight from injuries received in an airplane crash today at the operating base.

Lieutenant Delbert S. Cornwell of Phillippi, W. Va., the pilot, was severely injured but is expected to recover. Curtis's wife lives in Philadelphia.

Bodyguard of Slain Reid Ice Cream Employe Points Out Only One Defendant.

Louis Caponzi, alias Kid Ruff or Ruffy, of Newark, one of four men on trial on a charge of murdering George N. Condit, aged paymaster of the Reid Ice Cream Company, and the robbery of a $13,260 payroll, was identified by Joseph P. Duff, bodyguard to Condit, as the one who had pointed a pistol at him just before he fell to the sidewalk, injured by a bullet from the gun of a second thief. He failed to identify any of the three other defendants, Big Joe and Little Joe Juliano and Christopher Barone, who are being tried before Judge Edwin C. Caffery in Newark.

Duff described how he and Condit, who was carrying the satchel containing the money, had alighted from their car in front of the plant on Mount Pleasant Avenue, Newark, on the morning of July 19, when there was a command to "Hold up your hands!" Before the command could be carried out, however, firing began and he fell with a bullet wound in the leg.

Three witnesses were put on this stand yesterday, the first Robert Boudreau, returning for further cross-examination. Philip Seigel, a Kearny (N. J.) druggist, was the second and then Duff. Boudreau stuck to his earlier testimony in which he identified the robbers. He drove their car. The druggist also identified the defendants.

DENIES CLIENT ABUSED HIM.

Counsel Says Mershel Was Not Violent When He Got Life Term.

Julius S. Berg, counsel for David Mershel, 26 years old, of 139 Somer Street, Brooklyn, who was reported in THE NEW YORK TIMES on Nov. 13 to have become violent and abusive to his counsel after his conviction in the Bronx Supreme Court to life imprisonment under the Baumes law, denied yesterday that Mershel was abusive to him or disorderly at the time of his appearance for sentence.

According to the information received by THE TIMES, Mershel fought with attendants in the jail after he was taken from the courtroom. Mr. Berg said that his relations with Mershel had been amiable and that he had been retained to prosecute an appeal, which will be taken at once.

MAY ASK LAND BANK LAWS.

Mellon Considers Seeking Legislation for Stronger Control.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (AP).—Secretary Mellon is considering asking Congress for legislation to make the control of the Federal authorities over the joint stock land banks and other agricultural credit agencies stronger.

The Government is not satisfied with the administration of the land banks, and the Department of Justice is conducting an investigation at St. Paul and in some other cities. Several proposals for legislation have been laid before Mr. Mellon but he has reached no decision.

two had gone through the oaken door. The Black-robed Judges, Supreme Court Justice Charles W. Parker and Common Pleas Judge Frank L. Cleary, had left the bench. But the three defendants, with Mr. Carpender bending over the back of them, remained in their places.

Summoning a reserve of vitality, Mrs. Gibson half-raised herself from the canvas carrier. A wasted hand was thrust suddenly at the accused, each absorbed in watching her. Mrs. Gibson's voice rose shrilly, with an eerie shriek in it. Then it died away in a choking sound.

"I have told them the truth!" she cried. "So help me God! And you know I've told the truth!"

She fell back on the stretcher. Bessie Lockwood, the nurse, quickly drew a sheet over the patient's face.

Mrs. Hall Smiles Faintly.

Mrs. Hall stared at the woman under the covers. A faint smile came upon her lips. That was all. She half-turned her head in an odd little movement. The smile fled as quickly and as vaguely as it had come. She was again the calm, seemingly nerveless woman, wrapped in impenetrable reserve. If she felt the dramatic tonch there in at the last minute by the accusing witness, she did not register it outwardly.

Willie Stevens sat on the edge of his chair, his large eyes fixed in fascination on the white-sheeted stretcher. When Mrs. Gibson uttered her startling assertion, Stevens rubbed his nose. Then he replaced his soft, thick hands on his knees and watched on.

Henry Stevens, with one arm hitched over the back of his chair, seemed not to have heard the words of the witness. He is hard of hearing, and possibly failed to catch what was said. He followed the white finger, once accustomed with farm work, pointing at him, but merely looked on. A curious look was on the features of his wife, who has followed the trial with marked earnestness, as she sat back of him, peering between his shoulder and Mrs. Hall's head.

Mrs. Gibson Back to Hospital.

The stretcher was borne from the courtroom and Mrs. Gibson, having witnessed the climax of the case of Assistant Attorney General Alexander Simpson, sped back to the Jersey City hospital, whence she set out early Monday morning. The advent of the witness in the court virtually closed the prosecution and last night in Jersey City Senator Simpson made a public announcement. He said that if there was a miscarriage of justice in the case there would be three and possibly seven more trials, each costing Somerset County $125,000. He refused to explain his reference to a miscarriage of justice, advising his questioners to "use your own judgment."

Three hours before Mrs. Gibson reached the white marble steps of the courthouse in Somerville, hundreds of persons were waiting. The corridors of the court building were jammed and scores of State troopers and county sheriffs were battling to keep the curious ones from forcing their way into the tiny courtroom. The doors of the courthouse were shut from time to time in the crowd. Every car that was heard was mistaken for the white ambulance which was bearing Mrs. Gibson over the thirty miles between Somerville and Jersey City.

Bed Installed in Court.

The bed which the witness later testified from was installed early, in front of the Judges' bench. It was an ordinary hospital bed, with a iron frame, and it was so placed that it faced the jury and away from the chairs of the defendants. Just before 10 A. M., the hour of opening court, Mrs. Hall and her brothers came through the door leading from the jail and had to pass within a foot or two of the bed, mute evidence that their chief accuser was expected.

Mrs. Hall was dressed in the same black coat with gray squirrel collar she had worn during the twelve days of the trial. Her brothers were dressed in gray. The widow walked slowly past the bed but gave no sign that she saw it. So did Henry Stevens. Willie Stevens was frankly interested in it, and as he moved over to the chair he cast several looks backward over his shoulder.

Then the court settled down to await the arrival of the sick witness. Now and then the door was opened at the rear of the court to admit some favored friend of the guards. Then a rustling of voices came into the room to mingle with the rising and falling murmur of those in the seats. Every seat had an occupant, an eager, expectant occupant, and at the back the standees reached in solid rows to the walls.

Mrs. Hall watched the crowd for a while, and then she, too, gazed at the "props," the bed and the blanket folded across it. She looked as a careful housewife, with a pride in her own possessions, might look at an article of furniture from a neighbor's collection. Henry Stevens, however, was much amused. He smiled a greeting to friends in one of the galleries and nodded their attention to the bed. He chuckled when they nodded back and grinned.

Tense Wait in Court Room.

Word came to the waiting court room Mrs. Gibson, said the hulleting, was now entering Plainfield. The ambulance was halted and a detective got her a bottle of ginger ale. Now she was passing through Dunellen, and should be "here any minute now." The door of the Judge's chamber opened. John Bunn, veteran Bailiff of the court, came out, heavy with the dignity of his office and grave with the responsibility of the occasion. He strode to the bench platform.

"Silence!" he thundered, one hand aloft. Silence fell but for a moment. Titters came into the huzz of conversation. A chair was overturned in the press section and startled gasps ran along the rows of spectators. Senator Simpson sat at his table, dropping 3 cents and a nickel from one hand to the other, and shooting an impatient glance at the clock high in the rear of the room. Defense counsel, headed by the ruddily jovial Robert H. McCarter, dean of the New Jersey bar, waited amid a rustling of papers at their own table.

There was a movement at the doors. Red-faced from hurry, Inspector John J. Underwood came into the room. He talked to the special prosecutor and then to Bailiff Bunn.

"Clear those lanes," snouted Bunn and the standees shrank away to leave a clear path from the door down the side of the room to the pit where the lawyers and defendants waited. The jury chairs were piled to one side to admit the stretcher. With a stalwart Jersey City motorcycle man at the head and two of the State's investigators at the other end, the stretcher was borne down to the prosecution table.

Witness Placed on Bed.

It held then what seemed to be only a bundle of blankets and sheets. While the bed was swung around so that the foot was directly in line with the empty witness stand—a move calculated to permit the witness to gaze to one side of the defendants—the stretcher and its burden rested in the oak table. Throughout the court room persons rose to their feet; several stepped to the seats to get a vantage view.

Carefully, the bundle of sheets and blankets was lifted from the stretcher and placed on the bed. Then the nurse pulled down the coverings and Mrs. Gibson was revealed. Dr. Charles Snyder moved over to the bedside. The looped earpieces of a stethoscope peeped from the pocket of his blue serge suit.

Mrs. Gibson seemed a different woman to observers who had seen her on the stand in August when she testified at a preliminary hearing. The cheeks had fallen in and a curious pallor was on her face. The hands that had been brown and broad in August were thin and veined. The bobbed black hair of the witness, showing white here and there, fell in confusion about her face on the pillow.

A half-circle of lights, high above the bench, beat down full on the motionless figure on the bed. Outside the day was rainy, windy and dismal, and some of the melancholy of the weather appeared to have passed through the panes and permeated the atmosphere of the court room. There was a strained look on the countenances of those in the room.

Jury Surprised at the Scene.

Mrs. Gibson lay there with closed eyes as the jury came in. The twelve men, all but two of them past middle age, took their seats. They seemed overwhelmed by the spectacle—shut off by guards from news outside the courtroom, they knew only that the witness was ill and knew nothing of the plan to have her produced to testify from a bed.

The melodrama of the scene, which the defense regarded as distinctly "stagey," brought a grin to the face of Robert H. Neilson of counsel for the defense. He seemed to regard the affair as the production of a showman. Timothy N. Pfeiffer, whose face has thinned from work on the case and the concern which he, as a friend of years, feels for Mrs. Hall, did not smile. He looked with piercing black eyes at the special prosecutor and waited.

Dr. Snyder patted the sheets down close about his patient. The pageant of the court room, even the testimony of his patient, was not for him. He regarded Mrs. Gibson as in dangerous state and through it all he gave his attention only to her—counting the pulse as it throbbed under his fingers, or placing the glass thermometer under the tongue as he anxiously watched the fluctuation of temperature.

"Silence," came the booming tones of Bailiff Bunn once more.

The judges' door opened and Justice Parker, a solemn picture in his flowing satin gown, entered. He was followed by the youthful-appearing Judge Cleary. They were seated and Justice Parker with admonishing raps of his gavel halted the medley of sound. Senator Simpson stepped to the bed and placed his hand on the foot rail.

"If it please the Court," he said, "this State produces the witness, Jane Gibson, and asks to have her sworn."

He paused. Then recollected that he had taken to calling the witness by her married name of Easton:

"Jane Easton," he corrected.

Bailiff Bunn moved over, with the Bible in his hand. He found Dr. Snyder in the way. There was an interlude while the physician gathered his bottles and swabs—for the application of cold cream to the patient's lips during her recital—and this pause was punctuated by a bit of strategy on the part of John Gregory Jr., chief of the defense detective corps.

Her Mother in Court, Too.

The illness of Mrs. Gibson, which began two weeks ago when she was about to take the stand, dated from the hour when the defense confronted her with her mother, Mrs. Salome Cerenner, an old woman of an age lost in a network of wrinkles. Quietly Gregory maneouvred Mrs. Cerenner down to a seat in the first row.

"Sit there," he said, "and don't let nobody move you out—watch her as she testifies. That's all."

The spare form of the old woman settled obediently into the undertaker's chair, scores of which were pressed into service yesterday. She was dressed in ancient black. A flat black hat, relic of a decade or more ago, was perched primly on her gray hair. Her red-rimmed eyes blinked uncertainly. Gnarled hands were folded in her thin lap. A long pointed chin, sharpened by age and the passing of teeth, moved up and down. She might have stepped from a portrait of a peasant by an old Dutch master.

"She's a liar," she mumbled, peering at her daughter lying silently on the bed. "A liar, liar, liar," she added, as though to herself. She screwed up her nose. "A liar," she supplemented, "that's what she is. Ugh!"

The second of the defense's main witnesses, Joseph Reilly, was slipped into a seat back of Mrs. Cerenner. He is a loose-limbed, shambling lad of 18 years, but looks barely 14 years old. His jaws worked mechanically as he chewed gum.

Meanwhile Mrs. Gibson's hand rested on the Bible, and she looked up at Court Clerk Walter Crater.

"Do you solemnly swear to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth—so help you God?"

"I do," was the barely audible reply.

Mrs. Gibson's Voice Weak.

Then under the patient guidance of Senator Simpson the witness began her story. Her voice was faint and could scarcely be heard beyond the bed's length. The prosecutor was quick to realize that the jury, now bending forward with interest, could not catch what was being said. He asked the witness to raise her voice. A weak shake of the head indicated that it was beyond her power. He turned to the stenographers and directed them to read out the answers. Thus, with the testimony relayed for the most part, but with Mrs. Gibson now and then stressing a statement so that it carried itself, the events of the night of Sept. 14, 1922, were unfolded as Mrs. Gibson swore they took place.

"On the night of the 14th of September, 1922, what was your occupation?" came the question in the regular order of examination.

"Farming," said the witness.

"On that night where were you between the hours of 8 and 9?" said the Senator.

"Between 8 and 9 I was sitting outside listening—"

And the narrative began in question and answer form. The prosecutor leaned against the table. The nurse sat with a temperature chart in her lap. Dr. Snyder, watch in hand, his finger on the witness's wrist.

"A rickety old wagon, that rattled and rattled," caused the witness to think of Jenny, the mule and pursuit of corn thieves. The testimony continued.

"I put the saddle on Jenny and I started out on the road—" On and on went the weak voice, coming from the lips whitened with the cream.

She Names Mrs. Hall.

"I saw a woman and a colored man—" And on rode the pig woman astride the mule. "It was Mrs. Hall; it was Willie Stevens."

Down through the famous lane—then an unknown streak of red mud—the mule picked its cautious way with its rider "peeking and peeking and peeking," and thus to two cedar trees, where Jenny was tethered, and she "heard mumoling voices to the left of me." A woman's voice rose out of the darkness, said the witness, and it was saying, "Explain these letters." Men's voices swearing came to her, too.

Somebody was "hitting, hitting, hitting," and a man's voice in the pitchy voice shouted, with an oath, "Let me go." A flashlight split the darkness, and in the white beam Mrs. Gibson said she saw "something glitter and I see a man and I see another man like they were wrestling together."

"Have you identified those two faces since then?"

"Yes; one was Henry Stevens."

You need not identify the other one. Did you see Willie Stevens there?"

"No."

"But there was one man that you saw, and Willie Stevens?"

"Yes."

This curious variance of the testimony was passed by and Senator Simpson asked whether, after having seen Henry Stevens's face, the witness heard anything.

"Yes," came the faint voice of Mrs. Gibson, "the light went out and I heard a shot."

Heard Shots and Ran.

Three others echoed through the night as she fled to Jenny and, remounting, rode for her home. A moccasin she had lost, a loss she discovered when her bare foot touched a puddle of water at her doorstep, sent her back on the second trip. The moon had risen and the scene was flooded with light, she testified. She rode again through the lane, dismounted and went afoot past the cedar trees, and "I see a big white-haired woman doing something with her hand, crying, something." She was kneeling down, fixing something, said the witness. It was Mrs. Hall, the woman she had seen with Willie Stevens, the "colored man—" the woman she had earlier heard said: "Oh, Henry!" in a manner the witness described as "easy, easy, easy."

The twenty minutes were up and Senator Simpson turned the witness over to Senator Case. Just then Mr. Carpender, pale from his weeks in jail, entered the courtroom with Warden James P. Major. It was 11:15 as the defense attorney took up the task of searching through the story told against his clients.

He asked Mrs. Gibson if she knew former Somerset County Detective George D. Totten and Middlesex County Detective Fred A. David. Yes, she knew them. Senator Case asked her if she had not told a totally different story of the murder night to these investigators four years ago. Mrs. Gibson denied that she had done so.

The name of Captain James Mason, chief of the Essex County detectives, who was the principal investigator for Special Deputy Attorney General Wilhnr A. Moff in 1922, was introduced. The witness said that she recalled Captain Mason, but denied positively that she had told Mason that she heard the shots while still riding Jenny through the lane.

Did she not go to George Siepel, a defense witness, who was a neighboring farmer four years ago, and seek to indues him, by an offer of $100, to falsely support her story of the events of the night of Sept. 14, 1922? "No," said Mrs. Gibson, "why should I?"

"I don't know," said Senator Case, "I am asking you. "Did you?"

"No, I did not," said Mrs. Gibson, lapsing back with closed eyes.

Examination Proceeds Slowly.

The questions and the pauses of the witness were many. Dr. Snyder took the patient's temperature and Mrs. Gibson was fed from a thermos bottle.

Senator Case resumed his painstaking examination. He asked Mrs. Gibson if she had not met former Sheriff Roger T. Conkling in July, 1923, in connection with her complaint against a negro who lived near her farm in Middlebush. After some quarrity Mrs. Gibson recalled the incident.

"And didn't he say to you at a point in front of the Second National Bank here in Somerville, or at a point between the Second National Bank and Samuel Packer's barber shop, didn't he say:

"'Jane, do you think the Stevens family had anything to do with the murders, and you said, 'No'?'

"No," said Mrs. Gibson.

Then he asked if she had not talked to a reporter named John Fitzgerald, now employed on a paper in Camden, N. J., and again the witness gave a negative reply when asked, "Didn't you tell him that you could not identify anybody?' Mr. Carpender then came to the bedside and Mrs. Gibson said, "That's one of the men." This caused smiles of incredulity in the defense ranks, for in August Mrs. Gibson had identified him as the man with "the glittering thing" in his hand, a role she now assigns to Henry Stevens.

Delve Into Her Past.

The cross-examination then turned to Mrs. Gibson's past. She was asked if she were really married to William H. Easton, with whom she lives. "Certainly," she replied.

"When and where were you married to him?" asked Senator Case.

"In 1918, somewheres in church—the Little Church Around the Corner—somewheres in church," said the witness, aimlessly.

Pressing the advantage, Senator Case demanded a more specific answer. Finally, Mrs. Gibson admitted that she did not know where the ceremony was performed, but was insistent that it was somewhere in New Jersey.

Name after name was raked from the past—names of men. Frederick Kesselring was one. The witness denied that she had married him, and the Senator promptly produced a certified copy of a decree of divorce granted to Kesselring against Mrs. Gibson on Jan. 9, 1922. "He was a married man with a child," was the witness's only reply. "I couldn't marry him." Henry Ray, was another name put to her, but she could not remember him either.

An old, faded photograph in sepia was handed to the witness. She was asked if the picture was not one of herself and a sister. No, she said, it was not.

"In October, 1922," said the Senator, "did you not say to Ford A. David that you could not identify Mrs. Hall, Willie Stevens or Henry Stevens?"

"No."

The name of "Stumpy Gillan," who once ran a roadhouse near New Brunswick, came in. He was another Mrs. Gibson did not know—no, she had not lived at his roadhouse. Senator Case produced an interview in The New York American, published under the signature of "Jane Gibson" on Aug. 1, 1926.

"This says that you saw three figures in the moonlight that night," said the Senator, in effect.

"I don't remember making such a statement," replied the witness.

On and on went the Senator. During one of the many halts, when the nurse was bending low over the witness, Mrs. Gibson said to Dr. Synder: "It's nothing but chatter, chatter, chatter and talk, talk, talk."

Finally the ordeal for defendants and for the witness was over and the court adjourned for a belated luncheon. It was 2:30 when it reconvened and under an agreement made earlier the cross-examination of the witness was read to the jury by John P. Dengler, official stenographer. This occupied the remainder of the session. Before leaving the court Senator Simpson said he would call several more witnesses today. He expected to rest his case before the luncheon recess, according to his present program. He added, however, that he was searching for another witness and if his search was successful he probably would take the entire day.

AMUSED THRONGS GREET MRS. GIBSON

Jeers and Laughter Come From Unsympathetic Crowds on Her Trip to Court House.

'FEELING FINE," SHE SAYS

Smiles at Hospital After Ordeal of Testifying and Nearly Seven Hours in Ambulance.

It was a curious, morbid and amused public that greeted Jane Gibson, the State's star witness in the Hall-Mills case, along the sixty miles of highways and streets traversed by the ambulance that bore her from the Jersey City Hospital to Somerville and back.

If there was a solemn or sympathetic note in the reception it was lost in the raucous clamor of "wise cracks" and catch phrases that were addressed to the little procession of cars as it crept along the route. The public received Jane Gibson not as a Spartan but as it receives Jackie Coogan.

"Do your stuff, Jane!"

"Oooh, the Pig Woman!"

"Now's yer chance, Jane. Do yer squealin'!"

"Hurry, there goes the Pig Woman!"

Ambulance Moves Slowly.

These were exclamations aroused as Jack Kenney, acting under physicians' orders, drove the neat white ambulance at ten miles an hour through Newark, Springfield, Scotch Plains, Plainfield, Bound Brook and Somerville. The procession, led by Captain Harry Walsh of the Jersey police, who has been an active figure in the investigation, started from the hospital at 7:35 A. M. Mrs. Gibson was removed from her bed on a specially built air cushion, four policemen adjusting the stretcher in the ambulance. Dr. Charles Snyder and Miss Bessie Lockwood entered with her. Miss Genevieve Loftus, the night superintendent of the hospital, rode with the driver.

Following the ambulance were six cars carrying newspaper men and photographers. The line moved slowly into Montgomery Street, directly west to Hudson Boulevard and through West Side Park on the Newark Turnpike, then out to Clinton Avenue, Newark, to Springfield Avenue and to the State highway.

With the public prepared for Mrs. Gibson's dramatic appearance, there were few places enroute where the nature of the surinus caravan was not guessed. As it came into Broad Street, Newark, the ambulance bell clanged to clear a traffic jam held up by a red light. The officer mechanically turned the signpost, and as he discovered the ambulance bearing the Jersey City Hospital sign in gold letters, he smiled.

Smiles and Shouts Greet Her.

"The Pig Woman!" he asked as he gestured good-naturedly to the driver. There was a nod. Scores hurrying to work had paused at the corner. As they heard it was Mrs. Gibson they smiled and watched. Taxi drivers sped their vehicles to keep abreast of the procession; truck drivers leaned perilously from their seats to see the woman who had become the most celebrated witness in the history of crime.

Dr. Snyder, with a professional air, was comfortably settled on the collapsible seat at the side. Miss Lockwood leaned over from the wall seat, talking to Mrs. Gibson. Two windows in the ambulance were open, one at the rear and one at the right side. At no time was it necessary to close them. Now and then Dr. Snyder called to the reporters: "Mrs. Gibson is doing very nicely."

Shopkeepers opening for the day left their counters to view the caravan. Hod-carriers and brick-layers already at work smiled down from their perches. The bolder ones shouted. Some laughed.

Women smiled but were generally silent.

The trip to the court house took three hours and forty minutes. There was only one stop, at Plainfield, where Captain Walsh, having hurried ahead, returned with two bottles of ginger ale. Mrs. Gibson had asked for a drink.

Near Bound Brook an emissary of Senator Simpson's intercepted Captain Walsh's car to advise him that the court was awaiting the witness; that the Senator had urged greater speed if it were possible. For the rest of the trip an average of fifteen miles was maintained. A Somerville motorcycle officer had joined the procession.

Crowds at Court House.

The sight at the court house in Somerville as the ambulance came into view was impressively dramatic. Hundreds of persons had crowded the steps, perched on the marble abutments, crowded the corriders and balconies in the court house and gathered on the lawns. There they pressed in spite of a drizzling rain.

Photographers and motion picture camera men had balanced themselves at incredible angles on window frames, on marble gargoyles fifty feet and more above the street. The crowds pressing close about the ambulance interferred with their pictures and they shouted.

The ambulance came into Main Street and stopped for a moment. A motorcycle policeman advised the driver that a runway to the curb had been provided. Kenny made the incline with painful caution. The vehicle then moved through the hushed gauntlet of the curious, coming to a stop with its step almost flush with the second step of the court house. Four Jersey City detectives lifted the stretcher from the springs. But Mrs. Gibson did not see the spectacle. Dr. Snyder had advised that her face be covered and in this manner she was carried into the court room. Policemen had to beat back persons who tried to follow the stretcher.

Falls Asleep on Return Trip.

Shortly after leaving Somerville Mrs. Gibson fell asleep. She awoke at Maplewood and said she felt refreshed. At Irvington she asked for ice cream and Captain Walsh brought some to her. A stop was made for five minutes while Captain Walsh was on the errand.

On the Newark Turnpike the procession became wedged in a traffic block. Its bell, however, brought it safely out and soon it was running smoothly through West Side Park and to the hospital. It arrived at the institution just three hours after the start, which had been made at 2:35 P. M.

Again four detectives lifted the stretcher. The doors closed and Mrs. Gibson was taken to her room on the second floor.

"I'm feeling fine," she called, smiling at an employe who knew her.

Officially Jane Gibson's most eventful day had ended.

CRANK TRIES TO SEE MRS. HALL IN HER HOME

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 18.—Mrs. Hall returned from Somerville tonight to find that a man described as a "crank" had been hanging about her home during the day. The man, according to the maid, had come to the front door and asked for Mrs. Hall. On being told that she was not at home he asked what time she would return and expressed a desire to see her.

The maid, thinking there was something "peculiar" about the man, told him that Mrs. Hall would not be home until late. He then went away saying he would return later.

As soon as he had gone the maid notified the home of Edwin Carpender and when the families returned from the trial, the cousins, Sydney, Edwin and Commander Arthur Carpender, went at once to Mrs. Hall's home. They searched through the shrubbery and among the trees on the extensive grounds, but found no one.

Later in the evening, Robert Neilson of counsel for the defense came and spent the night.

While Mrs. Hall herself expressed no opinion on the proceedings of today, it was learned that she regarded Mrs. Gibson's testimony and the courtroom setting in which it was given, somewhat melodramatic.

While members of the Carpender family, confident of the innocence of the defendants, looked lightly upon the testimony of Mrs. Gibson, James Mills took it very seriously.

"I don't know what to think," he said slowly shaking his head. "It don't seem possible that a woman, maybe on her deathbed, would accuse innocent people." He paused and then added, "I can't see Mrs. Hall into this thing."

An AMERICAN Rug For Your Home

IN days gone by Oriental rugs were created by artists who devoted their lives from childhood to the perfection of their masterpieces.

And the prices of such Oriental rugs today for room sizes range from $500 to $10,000 and even higher.

But within recent years the name "Oriental" has been applied to a cheap rug that has crept in from abroad. And the word "Oriental" has become commercialized. It has lost its true meaning.

Today—in beauty, quality and wear no Oriental rug can compare on an equal basis of price with the rugs made in this country.

When you buy a Bigelow-Hartford rug you are buying a strictly American product—a product backed by the experience and reputation of more than one hundred years in rug craftsmanship.

You know you are getting full value for the price you pay.

American-made Bigelow-Hartford rugs are manufactured of the finest wools and dyes, woven by skilled American craftsmen, created and designed by Bigelow-Hartford exclusive artists, and made throughout under the highest sanitary conditions.

Before you decide upon a rug for your home, consider the value of your own country's products.

Call on your dealer and see the variety of Bigelow-Hartford rugs: Servians, Wiltons, "Hartford Saxonys" and Axminsters. If he cannot show you the rug that pleases you, come to our show rooms, where our complete lines may be seen. Bigelow-Hartford Carpet Co., 385 Madison Ave., New York.

Mrs. Gibson Describes the Fight, Shots and Screams at Crime Scene

dried lips of the witness. Senator Simpson, dropping coins from one hand to the other, waited. Dr. Snyder still counted the pulse of the patient. The examination was continued:

Q.—Did you see any faces there? A.—Yes, I see two faces.

Q.—Have you identified those two faces since? A.—Yes.

Q.—Who were they? A.—One was Henry Stevens.

Q.—You need not identify the other one. Did you see Willie Stevens there. A.—No:

Q.—You did not see his face there? A.—Nn.

Q.—But there was one man that you saw, and Willie Stevens? A.—Yes.

Q.—After you saw Henry Stevens's face did you hear anything? A.—Yes. The light went out and I heard a shot.

Q.—Then what did you hear? A.—Then I heard like something fall heavy. Then I run for the mule.

Q.—Did you hear a woman say anything? A.—Yes. There were two women.

Tells of Woman Screaming.

Q.—Did you hear a woman's voice after you heard the shot? A.—One said, "Oh, Henry"; easy, very easy; and the nther began tn scream, scream, scream so loud, "Oh my, oh my, nh my." So terrible loud.

Q.—After you heard the shot and heard the woman say: "Oh, Henry" in a soft way and the other woman scream very loud, did you hear anything in the way of shots after the first shot? A.—I ran for the mule after the first shot, but that woman was screaming, screaming, trying to run away or something; screaming, screaming, screaming, and I just about got my foot in the stirrup when Bang! Bang! Bang!—three quick shots.

Q.—Three more shots? A.—Yes, three more shots.

Q.—Then what did you do when you got your foot in the stirrup? A.—I stumbled over a stump and I ran home then.

Q.—When you say you ran, do you mean that you ran or that the mule ran home? A.—The mule ran home.

Q.—When you got home, what happened? A.—I got off the mule and then got the mule in the stable, put the mule in the barn and I got my foot wet, that is the first I missed the moccasin.

Q.—Then where did you go? A.—And I went in the house and I sat around awhile, and I got thinking over the corn and about other things, and about the moccasin, and I knew we belonged in there, and I knew he belonged in there, and I was so nervous, that I started back, when I found that the moon was out.

Heard Screeching of an Owl.

Q.—When you got back there did you see these people still there, or were they gone? A.—After I walked over and I tied the mule, I looked around because I was sure my moccasin was there; it was bright moonlight but I could not see it because it was close to the hrush and probably in the brush.

Q.—Underbrush? A.—Underbrush; yes, sir. Sn I felt around, I held the mule by the bridle, and I felt around, all around the stump, all around the place, and I heard what I thought was the screeching nf an owl, and I didn't think much of it at tha time, but then when I heard it again I listened.

Q.—What did you find? A.—Well, then, when I heard that screeching, why, then I stopped and listened again, and I heard it again, and I said, "Something is the matter out here," and then I listened and then I heard the voice of a man. It seemed kind of like a woman hollered along there or some one, and then I heard the vnice of a man, and the moon was shining down very bright, and so I heard it again, and I looked right at the cedar, and I crossed over the lane right at the cedar, and I seen a big white-haired woman doing something with her hand, crying, something.

Q.—Standing up? A.—No, bending down, facing something.

Woman Kneeling at Scene.

Q.—Was she standing up? A.—No, kneeling down, fixing something.

Q.—Did you see who it was? A.—Yes, the woman I seen in tha lane earlier in the evening.

Q.—The same woman you say was Mrs. Hall? A.—Yes.

Q.—You know the St. John the Evangelist Church on George Street, in New Brunswick? A.—Yes, I know where it is.

Q.—Before the night that you have described were you there at a rummage sale? A.—No. That was years ago.

Q.—Have you seen a man who is pictured nn S-120 for identification (showing paper)? A.—Yes. He is older than that, though.

Q.—I mean, have you seen that man? A.—That is him.

Q.—You have seen that man of whom that is a picture? A.—Yes.

Q.—You say at the time you saw him he looked older? A.—Yes.

Q.—Where did you see him? A.—At my house.

Q.—Did you have any conversation with him? A.—I was watching the cars. The cars were coming and coming and coming, and I seen a green car coming along the road and slowed up by the lane, then went on and passed the little house, and all at once I saw somebody coming around the corner of the little house, right straight from there to my house. The man stood there. He says, "Is this Mrs. Gibson?" I said, "Yes."

Senator Case—We object.

Senator Simpson—This is De Martini, which has already been ruled nn.

The Court—As to what he said?

Senatnr Simpson—Yes; it has already been admitted on the theory of Markin against the State.

Defense Is Overruled.

The Court—We have considered heretnfore the question of agency was sufficiently established tn make it a jury question. And if it is, that permits the statements to be given in evidence, and you may have your exception.

Senatnr Case—Exception.

Q.—What did he say to you? A.—He shook his finger at me right through the screen.

Q.—Were you in the house? A.—I was in the house.

Q.—What did he say tn you? A.—He said, "You had better keep your mouth shut; it will pay you better to keep out of this"; and I jumped up and I said, "Who are you?" So I took the gun and banged it on the floor.

Q.—Did he stay or go away? A.—No, he began to move. I told him to move. I said, "Move, and move quick." I was afraid of him.

Q.—When he said, "You had better keep your mouth shut and stay out of this," did he say what he meant by "this"? A.—The Hall case.

Q.—How long was that after you had made public what you knew? A.—Not long.

Q.—It was not long? A.—No.

Hayes's Arrest Recalled.

Q.—At the time you told the authorities what you knew, was there a young boy under arrest named Howell, or something of that kind, charged with the murder—Hayes—Clifford Hayes?

Senator Case—I object to this, your Honor. The question as pnt has no relevancy to the case or proof of the guilt or innocence nf the defendant.

Senator Simpson—The State's position is that they will attempt to say this woman's story is untruthful because she did not tell it two weeks nr a month after the homicide, and I want to show the reason she did nnt tell it was she wanted to keep out nf any connection with the case until a young boy was accused of the murder, whom she knew to be innocent.

Senator Case—This is merely a statement——

Senator Simpson—I want to show the purpose.

The Court—You are anticipating the cross-examination.

Senator Simpson—Yes.

The Court—Would it not be better to have the whole examination nf Mrs. Gibson read at once?

Senator Simpson—Yes; they can read it from the beginning.

Senator Case—That means, of course, including the cross?

The Court—Yes. Have you finished the direct?

Senator Simpson—Yes.

The Court—Are you willing that the reading be postponed?

Senator Simpson—No; it will be of no use nnless it is done before the cross-examination.

Senator Case—The consent given a minute ago had relation to reading the entire testimony, providing it is not now read.

The Court—You will be entitled to change your view.

She Points Out Mrs. Hall.

By Senator Simpson:

Q.—Do you see the lady in the room? A.—That looks like the lady.

Q.—When you say that is the lady, ynu mean that is the lady you have been describing all through your testimony? A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you recognize the gentleman whn sits at the end—not William? A.—Right there (indicating).

Senator Case—I object to pointing to a man and saying, "Is that the man?"

Q.—You say Willisme Stevens? Can you point him out? A.—Right there, with the glasses.

Q.—Next to the gentleman with the bald head? A.—Right next to Mrs. Hall——

Senator Case—Now——

Senator Simpson—Do you want her to get out of bed and go down and put her hand on him?

Senator Case—I do not want Mr. Simpson to tell her what to say.

The Court—Let her say whether he is to the right or left of Mrs. Hall.

Q.—Which side is he on? A.—Right here, looking at me.

Q.—At the end of the table? A.—With the hrown tie and the glasses.

Sure of Identity, She Says.

Q.—And do you see Henry Stevens A.—Yes, over there.

Q.—Where is he? A.—Right there on the end.

Q.—And those are the men that you saw that night? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Have you any doubt at all about the certainty? A.—No, no doubt. They are the same man.

The Conrt—Mr. Simpson, is that all with the exception of the reading?

Senator Simpson—Yes. As I understand you have ruled out one question I asked as to the reason for the witness not stating to tha authorities what she knew until the time that she did state it. With that exception, that is all I want.

The Court—That was ruled out temporarily as being premature.

Senator Simpson—Yes. Will you read the testimony from the beginning?

Senator Case—I object to that. We have had a suggestion, as I got it, that after the testimony was completed, direct and cross, the whole thing should be read. That was not agreed to by Senator Simpson for the reason that he wished to have something read that had been taken down by the stenographer now in the room and not in the room at the time the Senator asked to have the reading made. There is a small part of her direct examination that has not been read by the stenographer. All the rest has been read. I object to anything now being read except that part which was reqnested and which, because of the absence of the stenographer from tha court room, could not be read.

The Court—That will now be read.

Dispute Over Reading Testimony.

Senator Simpson—I made the suggestion that from a certain point it be read. The Court made a much wiser suggestion that it being uncertain how much the jnry heard, that the whole direct be read.

The Court—Not the whole examination.

Senator Simpson—Whatever it was. The Court then asked if they had any objection to it and they said no. I certainly object to waiting until the end to read the direct examination, because of what value will any cross-examination be if they have not heard the direct testimony. The purpose of reading this direct testimony is to advise them nf what she testified to and of what earthly use will it be to read it after a cross-examination? That is the pnrpose of reading it, and I nbject to reading this whole examination, direct examination, at the end of the cross-examination.

The Court—The question of reading the whole examination for the present may be considered as off. Now you are asking to have read a portion of that which has not heretofore been read of the direct.

Senator Simpson—I am asking to have it all read. Your Honor can interrogate them. I cannot. Your Honor can interrogate them as to whether they heard all of the direct testimony. It is very important to the State.

Senator Case—It has all been read with the exception of a small part.

The Court—It is really a question of reading it more than once. I suppose the defense will claim undne emphasis is being placed on it, but the Court does not take it that way. The Court considers that it would be more logical and consistent, if you please, to have the whole direct read, and if necessary at this time before the trial proceeds further, and then you can read the whole of the cross.

Case Says Most Has Been Read.

Senator Case—I would like to note an exception in view of the fact that everything has been read by the stenographer to the jury as the questions and answers were put, except a very small part of the examination.

Senator Simpson—For the record, that is a misstatement of fact.

The Court—The Court does not quite agree with you as to the accuracy of that statement. That is not our recollection of it.

Senator Case then expressed concern lest the carefully placed Mrs. Cerenner have her view obstructed. The aged woman had been coolly planted in the press section, set apart by Justice Parker for the exclusive use of working newspaper men. A reporter, taking notes while he stood, was singled out by the Senator, who made a great fuss about it.

The Senator directed attention to the fact that the elderly mother was in court waiting to contradict her daughter, in this way:

Senator Case—Apparently the prosecution has surrounded the mother of Mrs. Gibson so that she is not visible. There is a reporter standing in front of her and a Jersey City police officer standing behind her, and I would like to know why that barricade is being placed there.

Senator Simpson—It is not a barricade. This is Mrs. Gibson's mother, who was put here by a detective for the defense early this morning. She has the choicest seat in the house. She may have been put there by the defense with the idea of making an outcry some time during the testimony.

Senator Case—That is not our method.

Senator Simpson—I said to Underwood, "You had better put a policeman there so that if this old lady attempts to get up and say anything—so that order can be preserved in the court." The other gentleman I am told is a reporter. He has nothing to do with us. I am told that the gentleman Senator Case objects to is a reporter. Of course, the courtroom is unduly crowded, maybe that is the reason he is standing up, but we will take the responsibility of putting Officer Ciecluch.

Mrs. Gibson's Mother Rises.

The Court—Where is the mother of Mrs. Gibson?

Senator Case—She is sitting right there alongside of Officer Ciecluch.

The Cnurt—Will you have her stand up for a moment?

(Mother nf Mrs. Gibson stands up.)

The Court—You say she cannnt see nor hear?

Senator Case—I do; this man is standing directly in front of her and there is a police officer standing alongside nf her.

The Court—The police nfficer does not interfere with her seeing nr hearing. Perhaps the reporter may. The Court is not responsible fnr the reporter being where he is. Perhaps he had better move. That gentleman of the press, we are sorry, but he must get out of the way so that Mrs. Gibson's mother can see the witness. Lieutenant Ciecluch may stand there.

The direct examination of the witness was then read to the jury.

Senator Simpson—Prosecutor Bergen suggests that in the beginning of that she swore she was robbed of twenty rows of corn, and, I think, it was read twenty ears of corn.

The Stenographer—No; twenty rows.

Senator Simpson—And I suggested to the doctor that he get on the other side so that the jury might be able to see the witness while being examined, but he seems to prefer this side. It is a matter for the Court to tell him.

Mrs. Gibsen Cross-Examined.

Cross-examination by Senator Case:

Q.—Mrs. Gibson, are you acquainted with Mr. George Totten? A.—Yes.

Q.—And are you acquainted with Ferd David? A.—Yes.

Q.—And do you remember that one evening while the investigation was being made, after you had told of yonr experience, and also an evening when Mr. David and Mr. Totten followed you in an automobile and they asked the route from your house down to the scene of the murder? A.—Yes.

Q.—You were requested by them to do precisely what you had done on the night of the tragedy, were you not? A.—Yes.

Senator Simpson—I object as not proper cross-examination. What she was requested to do was nf no import. What she did might be of import, but what they asked her to do——

The Witness—They didn't ask me to do nothing. Just the same thing over and over. They didn't ask me nothing.

The Court—Does she say "No"?

Q.—You say you went over the same thing? A.—Yes, I did.

Q.—You remember that evening—it was at night, wasn't it? A.—Yes, the next night after Hayes was arrested. I knew there was no boy there; there was a man.

Senator Case—I ask that all except the answer to my question be stricken. I asked if it was at night.

Senator Simpson—I object to striking it ont.

Senator Case—The answer is "Yes." I am simply asking her whether she remembers it and whether it was at night, and she said, "Yes." I do not want any explanatory statement as to why she remembers it nr what night it was, nr anything of the kind.

Senator Simpson—I object to striking it out.

(Question and answer repeated.)

Senator Simpson—Of course, "I knew there was no boy there" should be stricken out.

The Court—The only qnestion is whether it was at night?

Senator Case—Yes.

The Conrt—You may strike out everything except "It was at night."

Denies Telling Investigators.

Q.—On that evening did you not tell Mr. Totten and Mr. David that while yon were riding yonr mule along De Russey's Lane you saw the flash and heard the shots? A.—No, I did not.

Q.—Nothing like that? A.—No. There was no flash or shot.

Senator Case—Nn, no. I ask that the rest be stricken out. I am simply asking her whether she said it.

The Court—Whether she said it, that is all the answer that is called for.

Q.—Did you not say to them that evening that after you saw the flash and heard the shots you proceeded on home without getting off your mule? A.—No, I was off the mule.

Q.—No, just answer whether you said that to them or not. You did not say that? A.—No.

Q.—Or anything like that? A.—No, I could not because that would not be right.

Senator Case—I simply asked whether she did, your Honor.

The Court—The answer is "No."

Q.—Did you not tell them that while you were on your mule and before you reached home you found that you had lost your moccasin nad kept on riding home? A.—No.

Q.—Did you not tell them that one reason why you returned to the scene of the tragedy on that night after you had once been there was to find your lost moccasin? A.—At the corn field.

Q.—My question was whether you did not tell that to Mr. Totten and Mr. David? A.—I don't remember; I don't remember that.

Q.—Do you know Mr. James Mason, a detective connected with the prosecutor's department of Essex County? A.—I heard of him.

Q.—Do you know him? A.—I might know him if I see him.

Sticks to Her Denial.

Q.—Do you remember while this investigation was on in 1922 whether or not you said to him that you heard the shots while you were still on your mule going up De Russey's Lane? A.—No, sir.

Q.—You did not say that to him? A.—No, sir; to nobody. I don't remember that I said anything like that at all.

Q.—Is it a fact that you did or did not return the next day after the tragedy in the daylight to find your moccasin? A.—No, I never went back again until I went with David and Mr. Totten.

Q.—And is it not the fact that nne of the reasons why you returned on the second trip to De Russey's Lane and Phillips farm on the night of the tragedy is that you went to find your lost moccasin? A.—No, I went to find the wagon. I thought he was back again, I thought I heard him rattling back in the lane.

Q.—And do you mean that the finding of your moccasin had nothing to do with your returning to the scene? A.—No, not that exactly, but I was there, so I looked for it.

Q.—I am asking you whether or nnt one of the reasons for your leaving your home and going back to the scene was to find your lost moccasin? A.—That was one reason.

Q.—Do you know Mr. Sipple? A.—I have heard of him.

Q.—Mr. George Sipple? A.—I don't know his name, but I think I know who you mean.

Q.—He lived at the time on the Cedar Grove Lane? A.—Some place there—Middlebush, some place.

Q.—Do you remember having a conversation with him on nr about Sunday, the 12th day of November, 1922? A.—Yes, right at my farm.

Q.—At his home? A.—No; my place.

Q.—And do you remember having a conversation with him nn nr about that date at his farm? A.—No.

Asked About $100 Offer.

Q.—Do you remember making a proposal to him whereby he, for a consideration in money, to be paid by you, should tell a certain story as to what he had seen on the night of the murder?

Senator Simpson—I nbject——

A.—I remember, yes——

Senator Simpson—On the ground that if this is for the purpose of——

A.—When he was tn my farm——

Senator Simpson—laying a foundation, the witness is entitled to have whatever she stated and not to ask her to give an npinion as to whether or not that conversation meant a proposal.

The Court—Yes; the question is one which involves a conclusion.

Senator Case—I will reframe the question.

The Witness—He came to my farm on Sunday and asked me what I wanted for that pair of mules, and I said a hundred dollars.

Q.—Just a minute. Did yon say to him that you would like him to testify or to state that on the night of the murder he was driving home out Easton Avenue from New Brunswick, and that when he came to De Russey's Lane he decided to cross over to Hamilton Avenue; did you say that to him at that time? A.—No. No.

Q.—And further that you would like him to say that after turning into De Russey's Lane and proceeding a little way he saw an auto standing to the left nf the road? And two men and a woman close by? A.—No, no; I never said anything like that; never talked to him about it.

Q.—And did you further say to him that he wnuld not have to identify these people? A.—Why should I say that?

Denies She Said It.

Q.—The question is, did you say it? A.—Why should I? What did he have to do with it nr with me?

Q.—I am just asking you whether you did say that to him? A.—No, I didn't. Why should I say it?

Q.—Did you fnrther say that you would like him to say that a little further up the road to the right he also noticed a horse or a mule with either a man or a woman riding it? A.—Ah, no, I never said.

Q.—Did you further say that you would like him to say that in view nf the fact that he had a considerable amount of cash on his person he felt that he was going to be held up, and therefore proceeded— A.—There is something the matter with him.

Q.—I have not finished my question.

Senator Case—Is it all right to proceed?

The Doctor—We would like to take her temperature.

(Question repeated).

Q.—(Continuing)—to back you toward Easton Avenue, and that as he did so the light from his car threw a reflection down the lane and that it was then that he saw the things which you outlined as necessary to corroborate your statement? A.—No. never talked anything like that to that man.

Q.—And did yon not tell him that if he would tell such a story you would give him $100. A.—Why should I give him a hundred dollars?

Q.—That is not the question. The question is simply, did you say that to him? A.—A hundred dollars was mentioned, bnt he said, "How much do you want for that little pair of mules?" I said, "A hundred dollars."

Q.—Did yon say what I have now asked ynu? A.—No, never did.

Q.—Did you not say to him also that there was no one who could dispute the fact that he was there, that you could say that he was the man, and that the people themselves would not dare say that he was not the man, as by doing so they would admit that they themselves were present at the time? A.—All that talk must have took about three hours or four hours. I saw the man about a half an hour at my farm.

Q.—Did you say that to him? A.—I did not say anything like that, no, never, no time, never talked about anything——

Q.—Did you at the same time mention how somebody had received $25 from some newspaper for posing, and that you had received $150 for posing for a picture fnr a newspaper in West Virginia? A.—No, I never got $150.

Tells How Conkling Helped Her.

Q.—Do you know Bogart T. Conkling, former Sheriff of the County of Somerset? A.—I think I know him.

Q.—Isn't it a fact that you do know him? A.—I know a good many people by name. I don't know, maybe I do know him.

Q.—Don't you remember that some little time before these murders he helped you to get a negro off your place who had been living there at the farm?

Senator Simpson—I object as not proper cross-examination.

Senator Case—I want to identify a man.

The Court—I suppose it is merely introductory to the identification. I think we will allow it.

(Question repeated.)

A.—Which one, there was two.

Q.—Don't you remember that Sheriff Conkling helped you in such——? A.—No, he wrote a letter for $5 to them to get out.

The Witness—I give him $5; then the colored man moved.

Q.—Do you remember that Sheriff Conkling went down to your place and put the man nff, do you remember that? A.—No, he did not.

The Court—You are only trying to identify Sheriff Conkling?

Senator Case—That is all, just trying to identify Sheriff Conkling.

Q.—Anyhow, do you know Sheriff Conkling? A.—Yes, I guess I know him.

Senator Simpson—She has answered, he had written a letter for her.

Denies Absolving Stevenses.

Q.—Do you remember that in or about the month of July, 1923, Sheriff Conkling had a conversation with you on Main Street, Somerville, either in front of the Second National Bank, or just between the Second National Bank and Samuel Packer's barber shop, in which he said to you, "Jane, do you think the Stevens family had anything to do with the murders?" A.—No.

Q.—And you replied, "I don't"? A.—No, he never asked me that.

Q.—That did not take place? A.—No, that never took place.

Q.—Do you remember that on nr about the 17th of October, 1922, you were at the Prosecutor's office in New Brunswick and given an opportunity to identify Mrs. Hall, William Stevens and Henry Stevens?

Senator Simpson: Objected to as calling for a conclusion. What happened at the Prosecutor's office I do not object to. But to ask her for the conclusion, whether she was given the opportunity is not of any evidential value, because it is her opinion. What was done there at the office I have no objection to.

The Court: What do you say to that?

Senator Case: I think it is a fact. This witness can plainly answer whether she was given an opportunity to identify certain people whom I have named.

The Court: Given an opportunity, I suppose, is a conclusion. You might as well ask her if she was able to identify them, or something of that kind.

Q.—On or about the 17th day of October, 1922, at the Prosecutor's office in New Brunswick, were you able to identify either Mrs. Hall or William Stevens or Henry Stevens? A.—I went in there—Prosecutor Beekman was not in Somerville so I had to go down to New Brunswick——

"Not Supposed" to Identify Them.

Q.—I am not asking you about Mr. Beekman at all. I am asking you whether you were able to identify those three people. A.—I am able to tell you.

Q.—I am not asking about Mr. Beekman. I am asking whether you were able to identify them. A.—I was nnt supposed to identify anybody.

Q.—Do you know Mr. John Fitzgerald, then a reporter for The Camden Daily Courier? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you not on that occasion say to Mr. John Fitzgerald that you could not identify anybody? A.—Reporters were asking a lot of questions. What would you do, stand there and tell them all ynu know?

Q.—The questinn is did you say that? A.—I said I had nothing to say.

Q.—Did you say to him: "I could not identify anybody?" A.—I told him I had nothing to say, like I did to all of them. "Nothing to say."

Q.—Whatever else you may have said is aside from the point, Mrs. Gibson. I am asking you whether you said to him that you could not identify anybody? A.—I didn't say that; I said I had nothing to say.

Q.—Now, Mrs. Gibson, ynu remember testifying at the preliminary hearing held in August, 1926, in this courthouse, in this courtroom? A.—Yes, I guess I do.

Saw Glittering Thing.

Q.—Did you not then say in response to a question asked you by Senator Simpson—page 54: "Then I saw something glitter and I saw a man's face." Did you say that? A.—Yes.

Q.—And the further qnestion: "Whose face did you see?"——

A.—I saw——

Q.—I haven't finished yet. The further question: "Whose face did you see? Can you pick him nut in the courtroom?" To which yon answered: "This man here." A.—Yes, that is right.

Q.—And the further question: "Pointing to Henry Carpender?" And the answer, "Yes."

A.—Yes.

Senator Case—Will Henry Carpender stand? Will you come around here, please?

Q.—And is this the gentleman that you then identified? A.—That is one of the men.

Senator Case—I ask that that be stricken out.

Senator Simpson—I nbject to it being stricken ont.

Senator Case—I want to state my reasons.

Senator Simpson—I object to it being stricken out. It is a complete answer. The question is, "Is this the gentleman that you then identified?" And she says, "That is nne of the men."

The Court—The Court denies to strike it out.

Senator Case—Exception.

Q.—You did not say anything about there being any other man there, at that hearing, did you? A.—I did not see him.

Simpson Is Overruled.

Senator Simpson—I object to that. I think she is entitled to have the testimony read to her which he says bears that construction. I do not think she can be called upon for a conclusion as to what her testimony was. If it is a fact that Henry Stevens was in the room at the preliminary and she did not identify him at that preliminary, that nf course is in the preliminary, and that should be read to her; bnt to ask her for her general opinion as to whether nr not she identified any man, I submit is nnt the way to lay a foundation for contradiction. She is entitled to have the time, place and the statement made as accurately as possible. I object to the question.

(Question and answer repeated.)

The Court—That may stand.

Senator Case—I ask that the answer be stricken. It is not responsive to my question.

The Court—We conclude the answer is not responsive. It will be struck, and the question may stand.

(Question repeated.)

The Court—What does that mean, "You did not say at that hearing about there being any other man there"?

Senator Case—Yes.

A.—Nobody asked me.

Senator Simpson—The whole testimony here is now that there were men quarreling and struggling and so on. Therefore, it becomes necessary to me, representing the State, to have her attention directed to that specific testimony in which she said there was no other man there. Otherwise, it will become valueless. Then I will ask to read the whole preliminary.

The Court—I do not understand the question now. Does counsel mean that at the preliminary hearing where she was interrogated, she did not speak about anybody else being at the scene of the murder? Is that the idea?

Senator Case—Rather than interpret it, perhaps I can frame it better, your Honor.

The Court—Make it clear, whatever you do.

Was Not Asked About Other Man.

Q.—At this preliminary hearing we have been speaking of, did you at any time during your testimony mention any other man as having been seen by you at the time the shots were fired, than Henry Carpender? A.—No. Nobody asked me that—"Do yon see the man here?"

Q.—All right. You did not mention any other man?

Senator Simpson—I did not get that answer.

A.—"Do you see anybody here you saw there that night?" Then I looked around and did see somebody I saw, but not everybody.

Q.—Now, do you remember this testimony, page 59? You were asked this question: "So that this is the only man in the case that you saw there but did you see any other objects that were there like men walking around?

Senator Simpson—Is that the official record?

Senator Case—This is the official record.

Q.—To which you answered, "I could not see. There was something moving, but I could not tell. I could not see, it was dark." Was that your answer? A.—[Mumbling] Yes I could not see anything until I seen the flash.

Q.—That was your answer? A.—[Mumbling] I could not see anything until I seen the flash light.

Questioned About Buying Farm.

Q.—You have said that at that time—and by "at that time" I mean the time of the murders—you owned a farm on Hamilton Avenue, consisting of about 81 acres, I think you said, is that right? A.—I did.

Q.—Do you remember when you bought that farm? A.—Yes, I do.

Senator Simpson—That is nbjected to as not proper cross-examination. She says at that time she owned a farm. I don't object to any cross-examination as to whether she did or not, but upon cross-examination to ask her when she bought the farm is not proper. It might have been twenty years ago, but it is not proper cross-examination, I submit.

The Court—What is the materiality of the question?

Senator Case—I want to find out how long she had been a property owner there, what her familiarity with the neighborhood was, and so on.

Senator Simpson—I nbject. This murder occurred two miles from her house, so that her familiarity with the neighborhood where she owned the farm is nf no consequence and is not a subject fnr cross-examination.

The Court—The Court regards it as immaterial and will exclude it.

Defendants except.

Q.—How long did you live on that farm? A.—A great many years.

Q.—Can you tell me about how long? A.—No, sir; I don't know. I don't remember.

Q.—You were sworn here today, I think, as Jane Easton? A.—Both Easton and Gibson.

Q.—Which is your name? A.—Both.

How She Got the Name Gibson.

Q.—Your name is Jane Easton and it is also Jane Gibson? A.—I acquired the name from having a farm. They always got Gibson's farm prodncts; people got calling me Mrs. Gibson and I never said nothing.

Q.—You took title to your farm under the name of Jane Gibson, did you not? A.—I sure did.

Q.—Therefore, if you took title to the farm as Jane Gibson, how do you explain what yon have already said? A.—How do I explain it?

Q.—Yes.

Senator Simpson—I object to that. How is that proper cross-examination that she took title to the farm as Jane Gibson? It may be evidential for the purpose of attacking the credibility to show that she was sometimes called Gibson and that other times Easton, or that she was at one time called Gibson, but it may be open to an honest explanation. But the fact that she took title to her farm under one name or the other it seems to me is utterly immaterial, and also it is immaterial to ask her how she explains taking title to any other name than what she now uses.

The Court—Senator Case, the Court will hear you nn why you regard the question as material.

Senator Case—I think I will stand on my nuestinn.

(Question overruled. Defendants except.)

Q.—How do you get the names Easton and Gibson? A.—My marriage name.

Q.—And by yonr marriage name you mean that you were married tn a man named Easton? A.—I was.

Q.—When and where were you married to him? A.—1919.

Uncertain Where She Wed.

Q.—Where? A.—Somewhere in a church—the Little Church Around the Corner.

Q.—Will you tell us where you were married? A.—I don't remember that.

Q.—Do you remember the name of the city or town in which you were married?

Senator Simpson—I object to that as not proper cross-examination. The fact that she may not be married may be material, but the city or town, if she remembers it, or whether it was canonical, or civil, is no question for cross-examination. If they contend she is not lawfully married to this man, it may be material to affect the credibility of the witness. That, of course, I suppose, they can establish, bnt certainly the name of the city or town is of no consequence.

Q.—Do you remember the name of the city or town where you were married? A.—No, I do not remember.

Q.—Do you remember the name of the State where you were married? A.—Jersey.

Q.—In New Jersey? A.—Yes.

Q.—Under what name were you married?

Senator Simpson—I object to that as nnt proper cross-examination.

The Court—Objection overruled.

Q.—What name did yon give to the person performing the marriage ceremony as your name?

Senator Simpson—I object to that as not proper cross-examination.

Senator Case—I want to be heard, your Honor. It is relevant to the case that we should establish this woman's identity, and unless we know the name under which she says she was married, it is impossible for us to have a proper search made of the records of the State where she says she was married, as to whether she was, in fact, so married.

Senator Simpson—I never heard cross-examination was proper that would elicit evidence that might be material to the defense which was not in any way bearing on the direct, and if that is the purpose, I certainly nbject to it.

The Court—The question is overruled.

Senator Case—Exception.

Her Name Also Eisleitner.

Q.—Your maiden name was Eisleitner, was it not, Mrs. Gibson? A.—I never used Eisleitner.

Q.—But your father's name was Eisleitner, was it not? A.—Yes.

Q.—Will you tell us under what various names you have been known during your life?

Senator Simpson—I object——

A.—You know them now.

Senator Simpson—as not proper cross-examination. First, it assumes that she has been known hy various different names. She explains Gibson and her name Easton. The question contains a demand for an npinion by her as what other people knew her by. It does not call for any action on her part. He does not say, "What names did you use?" but "By what other names were you known?" When, where, by whom? How can she tell that?

The Court—Do you wish to be heard?

Senator Case—Only to this extent, your Honor, that this is a witness which apparently the State intends to rely upon heavily, and as a matter of cross-examination I think we have a right to have her as thoroughly identified as may be. If there are aliases hy which she was known we are entitled to have them identified and brought out as well.

Senator Simpson—I object to that.

The Court—The question is overruled.

Senator Case—Exception.

Q.—Now, were you not known at one time, Mrs. Gibson, as Mary Easton?

Senator Simpson—I object to that for the same reason.

A.—Mary Jane Easton, that is right. That is my husband's name.

Simpson Keeps Up Objections.

The Court—I suppose the question is whether other people called her Mary Easton.

Senator Simpson—They don't say that.

The Court—That should be the question. The other involves a conclusion.

Q.—You were born and known in early youth as Mary Eisleitner, were you not?

Senator Simpson—I object to that. It has been ruled on four times.

The Court—You are asking for either a conclusion or hearsay—whether by that name somebody else knew her.

Senator Case—That is not exactly so. When we say, "By what name was a person known?" It carries with it the general reputation in the community.

The Court—You can ask her whether she held herself out to the community as Mary Eisleitner? A.—Yes. Mary Jane Leitner.

Q.—You called yourself Mary Eisleitner, didn't you? A.—I never nsed the word "Eis"; always "Leitner." Every place.

Q.—You were known as Mary Leitner?

Senator Simpson—I object.

Q.—You permitted yourself to be known as Mary Leitner?

Senator Simpson—I object.

A.—That was my maiden name; I had a right to use it.

Q.—You were baptized Mary, were you? A.—Mary Jane——

Senator Simpson—I object to that. How can she have any present knowledge nf an event that occurred perhaps when she was two weeks old?

Senator Case—We, most of us, know how we were baptized.

Senator Simpson—I don't know it, and I don't know who was there.

The Court—The rule of law is that she may testify to that.

Q.—You were baptized Mary, were you not? A.—Mary Jane.

Q.—You were baptized Mary Jane? A.—Mary Jane Leitner.

Husband Called Her Jessie.

Q.—And you were called at various times Jane Easton and Mary Easton, were yon not? A.—After I was married. I had a right to my marriage name, didn't I?

Q.—And Jessie Easton? A.—Well, my hubby called me that—Jessie. He liked that name.

Q.—And ynu were also called, were you not, Janet Hilton? A.—No.

Senator Simpson—I object unless he claims somebody who called her that.

A.—No, I never knew such a name as that.

Q.—Were you not called also, with your permission, Anna King? A.—No.

Q.—You were not? A.—No, sir.

Q.—I hand you a picture and ask you if you identify the subject of that portrait?

Senator Simpson—Objected to unless it appears who it is of. If it is intended to be a picture of herself I have no objection to it. If it is any one else except one of these defendants, I object to it.

The Court—He can ask her to identify the portrait.

A.—Who is that?

Q.—I am asking you if you identify the portrait?

A.—No, I don't know him, I don't know that.

Senator Case—I will ask to have this portrait marked for identification.

(The portrait is marked "Def. 10 for identification.")

Senator Simpson—If it please the Court, the witness says she said the date nf her marriage was 1919; she must be mistaken, because her boy is 22 years old.

The Court—Senator Case, apparently the witness wants to correct the date of her marriage.

Married in 1900, She Says.

Q.—I understand you to say that the date when you were married to Mr. Easton in your testimony before was that you were married to him in 1919? A.—Oh, that's foolish, I made a mistake.

Q.—What is the year, do you know? A.—1900.

Q.—You still don't know where you were married to him? A.—I do not, I don't just remember, it is a long while ago.

Q.—How many husbands have you had? A.—How many husbands, how many husbands have I had?

Q.—Yes? A.—I have had one husband that I can remember.

Q.—And that is who? A.—William H. Easton.

Q.—Do you know Mr. Kesselring? A.—He was a married man who had a baby; I could not be his wife.

Q.—Do you remember Mr. Kesselring? A.—I remember his name, yes.

Q.—You lived with him as his wife, did you not? A.—No, sir, I did not. I lived in the house.

Q.—Were you not married to Frederick Kesselring in Paterson on the 13th day of August, 1890? A.—I don't remember that. I don't remember anything about such a marriage.

Q.—You don't remember anything about such a marriage. A.—No, sir.

Q.—Do you remember that Mr. Frederick Kesselring nbtained a decree of divorce from you from the Court of Chancery in the State nf New Jersey on the ground of adultery. A.—What?

Senator Simpson—I object to it unless the time is fixed.

Senator Case—I will fix the time.

Q.—Do you remember that Mr. Frederick Kesserling obtained a divorce from you from the Court of Chancery in the State of New Jersey on the ground of your adultery, obtaining the final decree, filed Jan. 4, 1899. A.—No. That is mixed up with somebody else. That man was a married man and had a wife and baby.

Denies She Was His Wife.

Q.—Did you not live with Frederick Kesselring as his wife from on or about the date of the marriage on Aug. 13, 1890, until about Feb. 16, 1892, in the City of Paterson? A.—No.

Senator Simpson—I object to this, unless he makes her his own witness and is bound by her answers, because it certainly does not affect her credibility. If she lived with a man to whom she was married, in Paterson, that does not affect her credibility.

Senator Case—I think it is obvious, your Honor, that it goes to the witness's credibility in her statements. That is the ground on which I asked it.

The Court—It may not be important, but the Court will allow it.

Q.—(Question repeated.) A.—I never lived with no such person no time.

Q.—Have you ever known a man named Harry Ray? A.—No.

Q.—You never lived with Harry Ray? A.—Who is he?

Q.—Well, now, I am asking you. A.—I never lived with—how many should I have—a dozen? Such talk!

Q.—Did you ever live with a man? A.—No, I didn't.

Senator Simpson—I object, unless he specifically frames this question. She may have lived in a house or a flat. "Did you live in open lewdness or in lewdness with such and such a man without being married to him," I do not object to. But I do object to his saying, "Did you live."

Q.—I am handing you this picture that I showed you a little while ago and it was marked D10 for identification, and I ask you if the young woman that appears in that picture is not yourself? A.—Does that look like me?

Senator Simpson—I object to the repetition. The picture has been shown to her, and she said, "I don't identify that picture." That was a complete answer.

The Court—We will allow further questioning on the subject.

Not Her Picture, She Says.

Q.—Isn't that your picture? A.—How can it be my picture?

Q. Just tell me, please, whether it is or not? A.—It cannot be my picture.

Q.—Do you know the picture? A.—It certainly is not. I ought to know my own picture.

Q.—You were at one time a singer in a concert hall, were you not?

Senator Simpson—I object. A.—No, sir.

Senator Simpson—How does that affect her credibility? Because she had a poor voice? Because she did not please her audience? Does that discredit her? He might ask her if she was a lawyer at one time and that might have some effect, but not a singer in a concert hall.

Q.—Do you know a man named Stumpy Gillan?

Senator Simpson—I object on the ground that Stumpy Gillan is not on trial.

The Court—Answer the question.

A.—No, sir.

Q.—I hand you a photograph and ask you if you recognize either of the persons shown in that picture? A.—No, I do not know what that is.

Q.—Aren't you one of the persons shown in that picture? A.—Well, of course not; no.

Q.—And isn't your sister the other person shown in that picture?

Senator Simpson—I object——

A.—I don't know either one of them.

Senator Simpson—What is the effect of showing her a picture of her sister? What has that to do with this cross-examination?

The Court—The question will be allowed.

Q.—And do you not remember that that picture was taken at the gate of the cemetery on Front Street in New Brunswick about the year [illegible]

Senator Simpson—I object to that for the same reasons.

A.—No; I never had no picture taken—I didn't live in New Brunswick at the time.

Q.—Weren't you then living at Gillan's road house? A.—I was living in Trenton with my husband.

Senator Simpson—I object to that. Is that the cemetery where Mrs. [illegible] is buried?

Senator Case—When it comes your turn you may do with the witness whatever is lawful. I would like to have that picture marked for identification.

Senator Simpson—No objection.

(Marked Exhibit D-11 for identification.)

Doctor Asks a Recess.

Senator Case—The doctor suggests that we stop for a while.

Senator Simpson—I object to any recess until we are finished with the witness.

The Court—How long are you going to continue?

Q.—On or about the 17th day of October, 1922——

The Doctor (to the witness)—Do you feel all right? (To the Court)—The patient says that this is the last and she wants it finished as soon as it can be.

Q.—On or about the 17th day of October, 1922, did you not say to Mr. Ford David at the Prosecutor's office in New Brunswick that you could not identify Mrs. Hall? A.—No.

Q.—Did you not at the same time tell him that you could not identify Henry Stevens? A.—No.

Q.—Did you not at the same time tell him that you could not identify William Stevens? A.—No.

Q.—I understand you to say that you had been robbed from time to time of some of your farm products—corn, particularly, I think you mentioned; is that right? A.—Yes.

Q.—And you also spoke about a Mr. De Martini's coming to your house, did I understand correctly? A.—Yes.

Q.—And that you took a gun? A.—Yes.

Q.—and went at him? A.—No; I pointed the gun on the floor and I told him to get out. I said, "Get out of here."

Q.—Where was the gun? A.—Right in the room, in the corner.

Q.—In the corner? A.—Yes.

Q.—What time of day was it? A.—11 o'clock.

Q.—In the morning? A.—Yes.

Q.—What firearms did you have? A.—A 12-gauge double barreled shotgun.

Denies She Had Pistol, Too.

Q.—Didn't you also have a pistol? A.—No.

Q.—Didn't you make a practice of carrying a pistol in your automobile when you went out? A.—I never owned a pistol.

Q.—Did anybody in your house own a pistol? A.—Not that I ever knew of.

Q.—Was there no pistol in your house? A.—No, I never saw any and I never knew of any there.

Q.—This double barreled shotgun you speak of, was that the only firearm you had in your house? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Why did you keep that there? A.—Why?

Q.—Yes. A.—Why would I keep it there?

Q.—Well, I am asking you. A.—Because when I went out at nights I would use it to scare thieves away.

Q.—You knew that you had been robbed and you were endeavoring, as I understand you to say, to lay a trap whereby you could catch the man whom you believed had been robbing you, nr whoever it was? A.—To get a search warrant and to get my corn.

Q.—That was why you tied your dog out there where you did? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—You had been having your dog tied out there every night through the week since Sunday? A.—No, I didn't have him there Snnday; I was robbed on Sunday and I tied him out on Monday night, nn Monday night I tied the dog out there.

Q.—Then you had him ont there on Monday night and Tuesday night and Wednesday night? A.—Yes, sir.

Trailed Thief nn Crime Night.

Q.—On this Thursday night you speak of, you thought you were on the track of the man who you believed it was had robbed you of your corn? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—And when you got on your mule to go, you went out with the knowledge that you were pursuing somebody who you thought was the thief of your corn? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—What sort of a firearm did you take with you? A.—I did not take any with me, nothing.

Q.—Although you say you had a gun there for the specific purpose of going out to catch thieves at night? A.—If I heard anybody around the fields, to try to scare them off.

Q.—Who was in the house that night? A.—My husband.

Q.—William Easton? A.—Yes.

Q.—Bill, that is, known as Willie

"I Told the Truth," Mrs. Gibson Says, Pointing Accusing Finger at Defendants

Easton? A.—No, that is my son.
Q.—Who is this Bill, Bill Whittaker? A.—Yes, Bill Whittaker, he worked twelve years for us, and worked for us in Trenton when we had a place there.
Q.—And your son, Willie? A.—Yes.
Q.—How old is Willie? A.—23 now.

Denies Reilly Was There.

Q.—Anybody else? A.—Nobody else.
Q.—Was there a boy named Reilly? A.—No.
Q.—Wasn't there a boy named Joe Reilly there? A.—There was, yes, before that.
Q.—Not at that time? A.—Not that night, no.
Q.—So there were three men in your house when you went out that night to catch the corn thieves? A.—My boy was not in the house, because he always slept in the little house.
Q.—Where was the little house? A.—Out in the lane.
Q.—You pass it going through the road? A.—Yes.
Q.—It is only a few feet from your residence? A.—Yes, fifty or sixty feet.
Q.—It was very dark, when you started out, wasn't it? A.—Yes.
Q.—And did you at any time get a close view of this wagon that you followed? A.—No.
Q.—How close did you get to it? A.—Oh, I guess the closest I was about 30 feet.
Q.—That was not close enough to see what, if any, occupants there were in the wagon? A.—I did not have to see; I just followed the wagon.
Q.—I understand, just answer my question please; that was not close enough for you to see what, if any, occupants there were in the wagon? A.—No.

Listened for the Wagon.

Q.—How did you know it had stopped in the middle of the corn field? A.—I listened to it.
Q.—Where was your cornfield with respect to your house? A.—Right in front.
Q.—In front of your house? A.—Yes, around the barn, twenty-three acres.
Q.—Up against the road towards New Brunswick? A.—Yes.
Q.—And you heard this wagon stop in the highway? A.—On the road.
Q.—That is Hamilton Avenue? A.—Yes.
Q.—In front of your corn field? A.—Yes.
Q.—Have you any idea how far away from you it was at the time? A.—Oh, it might have been a thousand feet.
Q.—It was not that wagon that had started the dogs, was it? A.—No. Something started the dogs before that.
Q.—The thing that started the dogs was something separate and apart from this wagon, was it? A.—It might have been a stray dog.
Q.—Now, if you did not see this wagon, how did you know how close you were to it? A.—By the rattle of it.
Q.—It made such a noise? A.—It sure did.
Q.—You followed and it turned into De Russey's Lane, and you also turned into De Russey's Lane? A.—Yes, when the mule brayed.
Q.—Of course you knew where De Russey's Lane was, didn't you? A.—Well, I did and I didn't. I had never been through it.
Q.—You had lived on this farm at least since 1915 for seven years? A.—I guess so—that or a little longer.
Q.—And De Russey's Lane shot off Hamilton Avenue almost in front of your cornfield, didn't it? A.—No.
Q.—Not far away, was it? A.—Way down past my farm.
Q.—Between you and New Brunswick? A.—Yes.
Q.—Only a few hundred feet, however, beyond the limit of your property, was it not? A.—No; more than that—a whole lot more than that.

Never Noticed the Lane.

Q.—You had passed De Russey's Lane many times, had you not, during your ownership and occupancy of your farm? A.—Passed the lane, but I never took any notice of it.
Q.—Now, then, there was on that corner for many years prior to this murder, and there still is, isn't there, a sign reading, "De Russey's Lane"? A.—I don't know. I don't remember now; for years there was no sign there.
Q.—But there was at the time of the murder and for years prior to it a sign at De Russey's Lane? A.—There might have been. I never took any notice.
Q.—Had you ever been throufh De Russey's Lane prior to this time when you followed the rickety wagon into it? A.—No.
Q.—How many times have you been there since? A.—The night I went down and went back and the day I went back with David.
Q.—You went down following a rickety wagon? A.—Yes.
Q.—You came home and you went back again the same night? A.—Yes.
Q.—And then later you went down one night with Totten and David, and those are the only times you have ever been down De Russey's Lane; is that right? A.—That is right.
Q.—And the only times that you were ever on Phillips farm; is that right? A.—Yes.
Q.—Now, you followed on behind for a distance and then your mule brayed, and you thought you might be discovered? A.—Well, they knew who was coming when they heard the mule.
Q.—How would they know that? A.—Because everybody knew the mule—all those Italians.
Q.—Did everybody know the braying of the mule? A.—All those Italians in that settlement when I used to lose fruit—I would go looking for them, and when that mule brayed they knew it.
Q.—You followed on down De Russey's Lane, and you lost track of this wagon somewhere near Easton Avenue? A.—I was on Easton Avenue. I got out when the car came in.

She Went There Again.

Q.—How do you know it was Easton Avenue? A.—I have learned since what it was.
Q.—You have not been there in the daytime any time, have you, since then? A.—Yes.
Q.—When? A.—Not so long ago.
Q.—I understood you to say that there were only three times you have been there, and you have recounted three timee to us—when was this time you speak of? A.—I don't remember when that was, I know it was daytime, anyway.
Q.—When did you learn it was Easton Avenue? A.—I just don't remember when I did learn it was Easton Avenue.
Q.—How far were you from Easton Avenue when you lost track of the wagon? A.—I was out on Easton Avenue. I was, maybe, about ten feet.
Q.—You were on De Russey's Lane, were you not—the wagon turned into Easton Avenue. How far were you on De Russey's Lane from Easton Avenue when the wagon turned into Easton Avenue? A.—I was about 40 or 60 feet.
Q.—You were quite close, were you not? A.—Yes, sir.
Q.—You were not afraid of his hearing your mule bray? A.—No. The mule did not bray then. The car came in then when I lost the way. The car came in and showed in the turn, and then I got out of the road to allow it to come in, and then I walked down, I turned and I walked down, and I looked right at them.
Q.—You said a little while ago your mule brayed, and, because you were afraid he might bray again and he might hear it, you got away from that place. A.—Yes, about 40 or 50 feet.
Q.—Is that as far back as you were? A.—Yes, sir.
Q.—You thought he would not hear your mule bray for that distance of forty or fifty feet? A.—He did not bray any more.

She Trailed the Wagon.

Q.—You get back so that if he did bray the man would not hear it, was that not the idea? A.—I don't know what the idea was, I was following the wagon.
Q.—You thought at that time that it would be a good idea to get ont there if your mule brayed again? A.—I suppose so.
Q.—You had not any idea he would not? A.—No.
Q.—You still thought the mule might bray? A.—She might any time.
Q.—And yet you were quite close to the wagen, were you not? A.—Forty or fifty feet, when the car came there.
Q.—How far in did the car come? A.—About ten or twelve feet.
Q.—And where were you? A.—About thirty or forty feet.
Q.—How long had the wagon been out before the car turned in? A.—Just a second, a few seconds.
Q.—How far from you were the two people whom yen say you saw there? A.—Right ahead of me.
Q.—How far ahead of you. A.—About six feet.
Q.—About six feet ahead of you? A.—Yes; that is, the car stopped and I started to get out of the way, and then it backed up, and I began to move out, because I wanted to hurry out and catch the wagon.
Q.—About six feet ahead? A.—And the car started to back out; then I began to move up, because I wanted to hurry up to catch the wagon.
Q.—And they waited for you to pass? A.—They were standing in the road like they expected the car to come on.
Q.—You were standing there for the same reason? A.—But I kept moving. I see the car start to back. I kept moving. I got right opposite them people and I looked right at them.
Q.—They stood right there, looked right at you, made no attempt to conceal their identity at all? A.—Whether they did or didn't I did not notice, I did not see.
Q.—And you went on past? A.—Yes, I did.

Returned to the Lane.

Q.—When you came back you did not turn off any lane to go into the place, did you? A.—No, I came right on through De Russey's Lane again.
Q.—Where did you turn off of De Russey's Lane? A.—Why, I turned out Easten Avenue way.
Q.—And you came back again, that is what I am asking? A.—Then I kept coming. Them people were gone.
Q.—Where did you go after you came back? A.—I kept going up, going up, and thinking, and thinking, and thinking about that wagon. Then I made up my mind it was some of the men back in the Italian colony. I says, "Well, you are going to come back." All right. So I found a place alongside that lane that goes into there, Phillips Lane, I think they call it, and a lot of brush growing along there, and I traveled back, back, way back.
Q.—You did not go up the lane? A.—No.
Q.—But you went by the lane? A.—No.
Q.—Passed by the brush, did you? A.—I got into the field then.
Q.—And you had it in mind that this man may have been an Italian from that settlement there off of De Russey's Lane? A.—Yes.
Q.—How do yon know that there was that Italian settlement off of De Russey's Lane if you did not know anything abont De Russey's Lane? A.—Everybody knew it.
Q.—Everybody knew about De Russey's Lane? A.—I don't know whether they did or didn't, but they used to come out at the other end past my place, going down, and go in it again.

Wanted to Tie Her Mule.

Q.—And how did you know that there was a lane going in, Mrs. Gibson, on such a dark night? A.—You cannot help but see it. You can see n bare spot if it is dark.
Q.—Could you tell what the surrounding. were there? A.—Oh, I might have seen there was a lane, but I didn't want o go in anybody's lane. I wanted to tie the mule away, way way back, and walk back, and watch.
Q.—How far off that lane did you go, off De Russey's Lane, before you turned in? A.—Oh, about five or six feet.
Q.—Whnt better off were you going five feet beyond it than going up the lane itself? A.—What should I go in the lane for?
Q.—Why did you want to go in the field? A.—To tie the mule, so that she would not interfere with anybody.
Q.—But you got in and tied your mule? A.—Yes.
Q.—What could you see what you were getting to in the darkness of the night? A.—How could you see? You could feel.
Q.—You could see all right, could you? A.—Yes.
Q.—And how far in from De Russey's Lane did you go? A.—That I don't know; I know I went way, wny, way back.
Q.—Now, why did you go so far back? A.—Well, if the mnle brayed, why, whoever it was would think I was way back there and would not look for me at all.
Q.—But you tell us you were following a wagon 40 or 50 feet ahead of you with your mule? A.—Yes.
Q.—Then why, when you tied the mule, was it that you tied it so far back? A.—Because when I came in thnt lane she brayed. If she heard a horse walking or a mnle walking ahead of her she would bray and if nhe did that, whoever it was would not think I was in De Russey'n Lane, he would think I was away back, from the sound of the braying, if he heard it.

Did Not Go to Crabapple Tree.

Q.—Now why did you go around to the evabapple tree? A.—I did not go around to the crabapple tree.
Q.—What was there between you and the crabapple tree? A.—There was a lane—Phillips Lane.
Q.—How do you know that? A.—How do I know it? I could see it.
Q.—And how did you get to the crabapple tree? A.—I wasn't by the crabapple tree.
Q.—How near the crabapple tree were you? A.—About fifteen feet.
Q.—How did you get within thnt distance of it? A.—Just stepped over.
Q.—Over what? A.—Stepped over a mound.
Q.—What kind of a mound was it? A.—Right there at the big cedar.
Q.—Why did you do that? A.—Why did I do it? I heard a mumbling and talking and swearing and quarreling and fighting and —e hammering and the swearing and the cursing and everything else.
Q.—And did you want to find out what it was all about? A.—Well, I stopped to listen.
Q.—But you said you walked up to it? A.—No, I didn't walk up to it.
Q.—You did not approach any nearer to them than you were when you tied your mule? A.—Oh, yes.
Q.—How much nearer? A.—I was abont ten feet from the big cedar.
Q.—Bnt you were further away than that lane was that you speak about, weren't you? A.—The lane?
Q.—Yes. A.—No.
Q.—You said you had gone five feet beyond the lane before you turned in. A.—Oh, I did way, way back.
Q.—The lane was between you and the crabapple tree, wasn't it? A.—Snre—between the cedar tree.
Q.—And there was brush between you and the lane, wasn't there? A.—Yes.
Q.—Brush between the lnne and the crabapple tree? A.—Yes, lots of it.
Q.—You were on the far side of all that? A.—I was across where the brush was.
Q.—You had not crossed through the brush, had you? A.—No.

Sound of Fight Came Nearer.

Q.—And you at no time got nearer to the crabapple tree on this particular occasion, than you have just mentioned, did you? A.—I was near enongh to it—about ten feet from the cedar tree, when the squabbling started way off there and began to go wny over that way then. It seemed like it came around again, and then the blows started.
Q.—It began quite a distance off? A.—Way over that way.
Q.—And traveled nearer? A.—Yes.
Q.—How long was it going on? A.—Oh, I guess nbout ten or fifteen minntes, maybe a little longer; I don't know.
Q.—The people, as they quarreled, were walking, apparently, were they? A.—Yes, they were fighting back and forth.
Q.—What do you mean, fighting back and forth? A.—They were talking, talking, talking; swearing nnd swearing; and mumbling and mumbling and mumbling.
Q.—And they kept coming nearer? A.—Kept coming nearer and finally went to the right and then to the left and finally came to the blows.
Q.—Up to that time there had been no blows, had there? A.—No, I do not think there were.
Q.—The blows came right at the crabapple tree? A.—Right there somewhere near that cedar tree.
Q.—Between the cedar tree and the crabapple tree? A.—Somewhere near it.
Q.—And you had stood still all the time? A.—I stood still.
Q.—And yon could not see anybody? A.—No.
Q.—Now this Mr. Carpender had this flashlight, you say, in his hand? A.—No.
Senator Simpson—I object to that. She did not say anything of the kind.
A.—No; somebody on that side (indicating with right hand).

Former Testimony Recalled.

Q.—Do you remembsr that in the preliminary hearing held here in the month of August you were asked at page 68:
"What was the next thing you saw? A.—Then I saw something glittering and I saw a man's face.
"Q.—Whose face did you see? Can you pick him out in the court room here? A.—This man here.
"Q.—Go down and put your hand on him. A.—This man here.
"Q.—Pointing to Henry Carpender? A.—Yes, sir. And he flashed a light, and as he flashed the light around, something glittered in his hand."
A.—He didn't flash the light at all.
Q.—Wait a minute. Do you remember that testimony? A.—No. Something bright flashed ovsr here (indicating to the right of the witness).
Senator Simpsen—I object to that. That has all been gone over. I don't object if it is understood that we can read without subjecting the witness to any redirect examination, that we can read any part of her testimony given on the preliminary which makes it clear whether or not she saw the flashlight flash arsund. There are other parts of the testimony besides what the Senator reads. If it is understood we can read them I will not object, and I think we have the right to do so under the law.
The Court—But while you have been arguing the witness has answered the question.
Q.—Then were you not asked, the next question: "Q.—And after you saw him and something glittered in his hand, did you hear any report? A.—Yes, right quick."
Q.—Was that your testimony? A.—"G— d— it, let go," and then somebody flashed the light and I saw something glitter.

Witness Nods Assent.

Q.—The question is, whether being asked: "After yon saw him nnd something glittered in his hand, did you hear nny report?" And you answer, "Yes, right quick." Is that what you testified to? A.—(No answer.)
Q.—Was that what you testified to? A.—(The witness nods "Yes.")
Q.—How far had you gone from the place where you tied your mule to the place where you stood when you heard this and saw this? A.—Right opposite the big cedar tree.
Q.—Can yeu give us an idea of the distance? A.—No.
Q.—You cannot tell us anything about that? A.—No.
Q.—But you were still ont in the field, weren't you? A.—Just two or three feet—about 10 feet from that big cedar tree, that is where I was.
Q.—But you were on the far side of the lane, weren't you? A.—Far side, the side toward Hamilton Avenue.
Q.—Then you heard this report, as you say, you saw something in Mr. Carpender's hand glittering, and then you heard the report, and then what happened?
Senator Simpson.—I object. She does not any she saw it in Mr. Carpender's hand.
Senator Case.—She did.
Senator Simpson.—Oh, wait a minute until I make my objection. She said nothing of the kind, because I distinctly remember on direct examination she said she could not tell whose hand the glittering object was in. If she said on preliminary examination it is subject, of course, to proof, but it is a misquotation now to say you said you saw a glittering object in Henry Carpender's hand.

She Saw the Flashlight.

The Conrt—You say she said that on preliminary examination?
Senator Case—The record will show that the answer was "yes." If it was not yes, I want to put it again. I do not want to take time unnecessarily, but I want it clearly of record what her answer to that question is.
The Court—Let it stand on the record that she said yes. Then the next question will be whether that was the fact. If she said yes, you can go on with the question you are now asking.
Q.—You did see a flashlight? A.—Yes. Some one here (indicating) said, "G— d— it, let go," and then somebody—
Senator Simpson—I object.
Q.—Now you did see a flashlight you say? A.—Yes, someone here said G— d— it, let go and then somebody—
Q.—Wnit a minute—
Senator Simpson—I object to that, wait a minute, let her answer.
The Court—If the answer is irresponsive of course, counsel is not required to take it.
Senator Simpson—Nobody, of course heard it completely, it was stopped.
Q.—Now, you say you saw a flash? A.—Yes, from that side.
Q.—Now, who held the flash? A.—I don't know, I could not see.
Q.—You did not see who held the flash? A.—No.
Q.—How many people were there that you saw? A.—There were three or four people.

Her Newspaper Interview.

Q.—You have given, have you not, Mrs. Gibson a number of official interviews to newspapers? A.—No.
Senator Simpsen—I object to that as not proper cross examination.
The Court—Be specific in your inquiry.
Q.—Did you not give to The New York American, published on the first day of August, 1926, an official interview published as authorised by and bearing the name, the caption, "By Jane Gibson."
Senator Simpson—I object to that, what is an official interview?
The Court—Lenve out the official, I don't know whnt that means.
Q.—Did you not give an interview authorized to be used with your name to The New York American and published by them on the first day of August, 1926? A.—No. I do not remembsr.
Q.—And did you not say at that authorized interview, "I saw three figures in the moonlight?" A.—No.
Q.—Yon did not say that? A.—In the moonlight? No. I seen the woman in the moonlight.
Q.—You did not say that?
Senator Simpson—She has said no.
A.—No.
Q.—Now then, you are not able nt this time to tell us whether there were three persons of four persons there? A.—Well, they were struggling and falling back and forth and the light didn't last only a second, but I see those faces and I see the other bodies where they were shaking each other, and the light went on and I seen this glittering thing, and then —bang! Then I ran.
Q.—The light lasted only a second? A.—Yes.
Q.—And you ran when you heard the shot? A.—Yes.
Q.—And how long did you wait sftsr that one shot before you ran? A.—I did not wait. I started to run up to the mule, to get away from there as quick as I could. I heard the screams of the woman—

Ran Awny From It, She Says.

Q.—You did not wait nt all; you ran at once and ran away from that place as fast as you could go; is that it? A.—Yes, I did.
Q.—Something was happening there that you did not want to be present at, was that it? A.—Well, I did not know what it was; I did not know what they were doing.
Q.—But you believed there was something doing, at which you did not wish to be present, is that it? A.—Something funny.
Q.—Something funny? A.—Yes.
Q.—Well, do you run away from funny things? A.—Yes, when you hear a shot you run; if you don't belong there, you are going to go.
Q.—When you ran, your reason for running was that you felt something was going on there at which you did not wish to be present, is that it? A.—No.
Q.—Yon did not feel that way? A.—If I had not known what was going on, I would have stayed there, and I certainly would have done different than what I did.
Q.—Why did you run? A.—Because somebody shot and the screaming woman, running, screaming.
Q.—And that is the reason you ran awny? A.—And I ran. Before I could get my foot in the stirrup, Bang! Bang! Bang! Three more snots. And scream and ecream and scream.
Q.—But you still kept on going as fast as you could? A.—Why wouldn't I? I got on that mule and I went home quick.
Q.—You got home and you fonnd you had lost a moccasin? A.—Yes.
Q.—How long had you had that moccasin? A.—Oh, two or three years.
Q.—Using it pretty regularly? A.—Always used it.
Q.—And yon had some particular attachment to the moccasin? A.—It was a Christmas present.
Q.—From some person you were fond of? A.—Yes.
Q.—But you had been giving the moccasin pretty hard use? A.—Yes, I wore them all the time.

She Went Back Again.

Q.—And you wanted to find it if you could, didn't you? A.—The moccasin did not bother me so much as the corn thief; but I thonght as long as it was on the way, I could go back and look there first, because the moon was ont nice and pretty; and I went back and felt aronnd and held the bridle of the mule.
Q.—Do you know what time the moon came up that night? A.—I don't. It was after eleven o'clock.
Q.—When you got back the second time, you say you had started from home about whnt time? A.—I guess I left about quarter or twenty minutes to twelve. I am not sure which.
Q.—That is, daylight time? A.—I don't remember.
Q.—You were traveling on daylight time, weren't you? A.—I don't remember now.
Q.—You never had heen to the spot before? A.—No.
Q.—Did you have any trouble in coming to the exact spot where you had been? A.—No.
Q.—Why not? A.—Because you could see the cedars—one big cedar there, another there, nnd another one way over there; and the moon was shining bright and I could go right just where I was.
Q.—You did not expect to find the thief there? A.—No. I thought as long as I went out I would see if my moccasin was there.
Q.—What time had you got back home from the first trip? A.—I did not notice the time.
Q.—About what time? A.—I can't say.
Q.—Do you remember nbout how long it took you to make the trip from your home along De Russey's Lane to Easton Avenue the night Mr. Totten and Mr. David want with you? A.—No.

Says Trip Took 41 Minutes.

Q.—It took exactly 41 minutes, didn't it? A.—Yes.
Q.—And you were then making the trip in the same way that you made it on the night when the murder happened, isn't that so?
Senator Simpson—I object to that—assuming something which is not in evidence. The night of the murder she was following a wagon. There is no proof here Totten and David were following a wagon, going as fast as the woman was going, on the night of the murder.
The Court—You might ask her at what speed she was going.
Q.—You were asked by Mr. Totten and Mr. David to make your trip exactly as you had made it on the night of the murder, were you not?
Senator Simpson—Objected to. It is what ehe did, not what David or Totten said, that is material, and what speed she went nt.
The Court—You will have to ask what she did in the way of speed.
(Defendants except.)
Q.—You made the trip that night at the same speed thnt you made it on the night of the murder, did you not? A.—I don't remember that. I just showed them where I wsnt and what I done.
Q.—When you got back you went over and tried to find your moccasin? A.—Yes.
Q.—Did you ever go back again to try to find your moccasin? A.—No, sir.
Q.—Was your moccasin ever found? A.—I don't remember.
Q.—Have you ever seen it again? A.—It seems that I did, some place, I don't know where.
Q.—Do you know if it was found, who found it? A.—No.
Q.—When you got back yon got back there some where around about 1 o'clock in the morning, did you? A.—From where?
Q.—The second trip?
Senator Simpson—Objected to unless he makes plain what he means—got back where.
Q.—At the scene of the murder, about 1 o'clock in the morning? A.—No, it was not that late.
Q.—Didn't you tell Mr. Totten and Mr. Dnvid on the occasion to which I have referred that about 1 o'clock you decided to go back to this place? A.—No, sir.
Q.—Giving them as one of the reasons why you decided to go back to look for the moccasin? A.—No, I don't remember that.
Q.—But what you did when you got back there was to look for your moccasin? A.—I searched. I held on to the mule, and was feeling around where the stump was, feeling around.
Q.—But you were doing your feeling around to find your moccasin, were you not? A.—Yes, right by the stump there.

Saw Colored Man at Scene.

Q.—When you were very close to these two people in De Russey's Lane, when the automobile turned in and backed out? A.—Yes.
Q.—And one of them was a colored man? A.—Yes.
Q.—The man was a colored man and the woman was a white woman? A.—Yes.
Q.—Had you ever seen her before? A.—Yes.
Q.—You knew who she was? A.—No. I just knew her face. I seen her some place and I knew her face.
Q.—Yon say she was the same woman you saw later when you came back in the moonlight. A.—Yes.
Q.—Do you know what phase the moon was in thet night?
Senator Simpson—I object to that. She has not testified on direct anything about astronomy that I knew of.
The Court—The question is proper; go on.
Q.—Do you know what phase the moon was in that night? A.—Very bright moonlight, that is all I can tell you.
Q.—Was it a full moon? A.—Yes.
Q.—You say as you got back there the second time that you heard this weeping? A.—No. It sounded like a screech owl.
Q.—Was the sound yon heard like a screech owl, was that a woman weeping? A.—I did not know what it was until I got to it.
Q.—You found it to be a woman weeping? A.—I tied my mule nnd I walked slowly back listening; every now and then I would hear it.
Q.—You tied your mnle and went looking for the sound you said was like a screech owl? A.—I was looking for something that made a funny noise. Then I heard the shots and thought something was the matter. I came bnck and went across the lane.
Q.—Just a minute. I will get to that in a minute. What you started out to find was a screech owl? A.—Something that made a funny noise.
Q.—You wanted to find out whnt it was? A.—That is what I did.

Did Not See the Bodies.

Q.—You found out that it was the woman that you now say is Mrs. Hall? A.—Yes.
Q.—How wns she plaeed there as you saw her? A.—She was kneeling, doing something on the ground.
Q.—Did you see the bodies there? A.—I snw somsthing that looked like two shadows, but I thought in the moonlight they were shadows of trees.
Q.—You thought they were shadows of trees? A.—Yes.
Q.—And what position was she in with respect to those shadows? A.—She was facing the moon.
Q.—Did I ask you what position she was in with relation to the moon? I asked you what position she was in with respect to those bodies?
Senator Simpson—I object. The witness said she did not see the bodies.
Q.—With respect to the shadows you saw there.
Senator Simpson—She never knew there were bodies there.
Q.—What position was she in with respect to the bodies?
Senator Simpson—I still object.
A.—She was right closs to them.
Q.—Which side was she on? A.—This side. (Pointing to the left.)
Q.—Was she on the side of the shadows that were toward the crabapple tree, or on the side of the shadows that were townrd De Russey's Lane? A.—She was on the side toward De Russey's Lane.
Q.—I see, kneeling down? A.—Yes.
Q.—Crying as though her heart would brenk? A.—No.
Q.—Not crying? A.—No.
Q.—Shrieking? A.—Making a funny noise.
Q.—Shrieking like an owl, but yet you did nothing? A.—I thought the man was a colored man and she was assaulted. I thought it was none of my business.

Didn't Want to Mix In It.

Q.—Now, did you think that a white woman who had been assaulted by a colored man was beyond the scope of your help and consolation?
Senator Simpson—I object.
A.—I didn't want to mix up in it. What did I know?
Q.—You saw a woman there who was apparently in deep distress, didn't you? A.—That she was in deep distrsss? She let ont a screech.
Q.—She was crying? A.—Seemed like she was doing something.
Q.—And you heard her emitting noises that was like a ecreech owl? A.—Something like that.
Q.—She was clearly in trouble? A.—Might have been; I could not say that. I figured if she went there——
Q.—But, when you found thnt she was in trouble why didn't you go and give her a womnn's consolntion and help? A.—When I see n white woman with a colored man—it serves them right.
Q.—But you did not see a colored man there? A.—Yes, I had, earlier in the evening.
Q.—That was several hours earlier in the evening, was it? A.—Yes.
Q.—That you saw Mrs. Hall? A.—Yes.
Q.—In De Russey's Lane with a colored man? A.—Yes.
Q.—Now, you went home with the full knowledge that something had happened there, didn't you? A.—Yes, I thought a white woman was assaulted, that is all.
Q.—That was all? You had seen several people there and had heard flashes of shots, hadn't you?
Senator Simpson—I object. How could she hear the flashes of shots?
Q.—You had seen flashes and had heard the sound of shots, hadn't you? A.—Yes.
Q.—You had gone home directly after you saw thle woman there with the white hair, kneeling in the shadow? A.—Yes.
Q.—You saw her as soon as you came there, didn't you? A.—Pretty near.
Q.—Now, Mrs Gibson, if you came to that spot the second trip for the purpose of finding who—waiting for the person to come back who had stolen your corn, why was it, having seen this woman under the trees there, as soon as you got there, thnt you immediately looked at her and got on yonr mule and went home? A.—I thought it was a white woman with a colored man.
Q.—You were there to find the man who had stolen your corn? A.—I know. What did them people have to do with me? A woman goes out there at night with a colored man. What has that got to do with me? It don't serve anybody right to do them things.
Q.—Why didn't you stay to wait for the man to come who had stolen your corn? A.—I went out De Russey's Lane and waited for a while.
Q.—You just told me a minute ago you went immedintely home. A.—I didn't go straight home. I just slowly, slowly went up the lane, listening, listening.

Did Not Catch the Thief.

Q.—You listened and listened, but you did not wait for the man who had stolen your corn? A.—I tried to see if I could hear something, but I did not.
Q.—You went on home? A.—I went on home.
Q.—Not having accomplished the purpose for which yon set out? A.—No.
Q.—And not having stayed around there to accomplish the purpose for which you in the middle of the night went there, is that it? A.—I guess that is it.
Q.—Now you did, however, within a relatively short time—a few days—know that this murder had taken place at the very spot where you had been that night, did you not? A.—I did not know it until about two weeks after—a little more than that, when Mrs. Voorhees came in—she used to come in once in a while—so she began to talk about that terrible murder over there. Then I said, "Over where?" "Why, right down threugh here," she said.
Q.—You lived at one end, practically, of De Russey's Lane? A.—Yes.
Q.—And this was at the other. And do you mean to say that having been there and observed what you esay you observed on the very night that the murders were committed, you did not hnve any information about these murders for two weeks after they were committed? A.—No; I did not think that was the place where I was. I did not know it until somebody told me just where it was.
Q.—As soon as you learned it was, what did you do? A.—I didn't do anything.
Q.—Why didn't you do something? A.—Why should I? I had trouble enough without getting mixed up with anybody else—and I wouldn't have got mixed up only for Hayes.
Q.—You did not want to get mixed up with it? A.—No, I did not.
Q.—Why didn't you want to get mixed up with it? A.—Nobody wants to get mixed up with anybody and necuse anybody of murder, even though they do see it.

Did Not Notify Officials.

Q.—You felt it was not your duty as a person who had observed the firing of the shots that presumably caused murder to report it to the authorities? A.—No. I thought the authorities were slick enough to find out who did do it.
Q.—How did they find out who did it if the persons who saw it did not report that back?
Senator Simpson—I object to that.
A.—I don't know.
The Court—It has been answered.
Q.—Now, Mrs. Easton——
(Interrupted by the doctor taking the witnese's pulse).
(The witness to the doctor)—It's nothing but chatter, chatter, chatter, chatter nnd talk, talk, talk.
Q.—When you were there at the scene of the crabapple tree when shots were fired, the persons that you saw were not colored persons, were they? A.—They were not.
Q.—You had not seen any colored persons at that pince at all, had you? A.—No.
Q.—But you had heard shots there? A.—Yes, I had.
Q.—And you hnd heard n fight there? A.—Yes.
Q.—And you had heard bitter words there? A.—Yes.
Q.—And it was nt thnt spot that you saw this woman that you observed crying in the moonlight? A.—Yes.

Thonght No More of It.

Q.—Now, you carried her conditfon back to the nagro you hnd seen in the lane? A.—I didn't think anything more nbout it. I thought it might have been something else. I have shot my gun off lots of times, and people hollered and screamed, but nobody was hurt.
Q.—You have shot the gun off lots of times? A.—Yes, I shot it right on my farm.
Q.—And you have heard people holler nnd scream? A.—Holler and scream in the field, yes.
Q.—In connection with the shooting of the gun? A.—Yes, sir.
Q.—What were those occasions when you have known shots to be fired and people scream and nobody hurt? A.—Well, they were raising something; they were doing something they had not ought to do.
Q.—Who? A.—Whoever they were, I don't know who.
Q.—And you fired the shots? A.—Yes, I fired the shots.
Q.—On this farm that you have spoken of you made a business of raising pigs and chickens, didn't you? A.—All farm products.
Q.—Your live stock consisted of pigs and chickens, didn't it? A.—Yes, sir.
Q.—That was how many miles from New Brunswick? A.—About three, I guess.
Q.—And you learned on Sunday, the 17th day of September, 1922, that a murder had occurred in De Russey's Lane, didn't you? A.—No.
Q.—Didn't you learn on Sunday, the 17th of September, that these people had been murdered? A.—I might have read something in the papers, but I did not think that that was where I was.
Q.—You read in the paper on Sunday that two people had been murdered the night before? A.—Yes, sir.
Q.—On the outskirts of New Brunswick, didn't you? A.—Yes.

Heard About Crime Later.

Q.—And you did not connect it up with what you had seen and heard the night before, did yon? A.—No, sir.
Q.—Or what you had seen or heard on Thursday night? A.—No. Not till Mrs. Voorhees came after and saw me and told me what a terrible thing happened over there.
Q.—You had gone home directly after you saw this woman there, with white hair, following after the shots? A.—Yes, sir.
Q.—You saw her as soon as you came there, didn't you? A.—Pretty near.
Senator Case—We are waiting at the suggestion of the doctor.
The Court—How much longer are you going to take?
Senator Case—Not a great while.
The Court—What does "not a great while" mean?
Senator Case—A few minutes I should think.
Q.—The woman whom you saw that night at the Phillips Farm you say had no hat? A.—Yes.
A.—She had white hair? A.—Yes.
Q.—When next after that night did you see Henry Stevens? A.—When I went down to see Prosecutor Beekman in New Brunswick. He was not in Somerville and I wanted to make a complaint about the corn. Then I went to the Prosecutor's office and I wanted to make a complaint about the corn, and I seen that same lady sitting there by the table. And then I did not say nothing. Then I got up and went out again. Then I went around the front way and I peeked through a crack in the door, and I saw nne of the other men there was Henry Stevens; he was standing inside.

Met Willie Stevens Later.

Q.—When next after the night of the murder did you see William Stevens? A.—I did not see him. Yes, one day I saw him when I came here.
Q.—You mean at the preliminary hearing? A.—Yes. I did not see him till then.
Q.—You did not see William at the same time and place that you saw Henry at the Prosecutor's office in New Brunswick? A.—No, no, I did not see him.
Q.—Is it not a fact that on that occasion you failed to identify either of the defendants?
Senator Simpson—Objected to as calling for a conclusion.
A.—Yes, I did identify them. I told Prosecutor Stricker, "That is the woman there," and I said, "That woman in there is the woman that was there."
Q.—And didn't tell Mr. David at that time thnt you could not identify any of them?
Senator Simpson—Objected to as having already been asked and answered.
A.—No, I did not tell David that. How could I tell David that?
Q.—You say you did not tell him that? A.—No, sir.
Q.—Now, Mrs. Gibson, you have made quite some money, have you not, from your connection with this affair? A.—Money?
Q.—Yes. A.—Who paid me?
Q.—Well, we will come to that. A.—I would like to know.
Q.—The question is, haven't you made quite some money? A.—I didn't get a cartare back and forth—that is how much I made. I wore my shoes out.

Denies She Got $700.

Q.—Didn't you get paid a large sum of money by the newspapers? A.—No. Nobody paid me large sums of money. I didn't get large sums of money from any newspapers. These snappers come along. Zippo! Do they pay you out here when they take you?
Q.—Didn't you get paid sums of money by the newspapers? A.—No.
Q.—In January or February, 1923, did you not tell Mr. Ellis Parker that you had received $700 from the newspapers? A.—Who?
Q.—Ellis Parker? A.—Did I tell him that? Well, I never did tell him no such a thing. I would like to tell you what Ellis Parker told me, though.
Q.—Did you not, in the month of March, 1923, exhibit yourself and your mnle Jenny at the Marine Million-Dollar Circus, at the armory, Broadway and Sixty-sixth Street, New York? A.—That was a charity affair.
Q.—Didn't you? A.—To help the marines. I did not get a penny out of it. All they paid was the transportation—and I paid my own ticket.
Q.—Didn't you also exhibit yourself at Perth Amboy for money? A.—No. I never was in Perth Amboy.

Insists on Her Identification.

Q.—Did yon not tell Mr. Mason of the Prosecutor's office of Essex County that the two men you had seen at the Prosecutor's office in New Brunswick were not the men you had seen at De Russey's Lane or the farm. A.—No, no, no.
Q.—In October, 1922, didn't you tell him that? A.—No.
Q.—Or the month of November, either? A.—No. I didn't talk to anybody nbout it. Every Tom, Dick and Harry was asking me questions—and should I answer everybody? I didn't say anything.
Senator Case—That is all.
Senator Simpson—No redirect examinntion.
The Court then took a recess for luncheon. It was 3:30 P. M. when court reconvened and under the agreement mada when the session started John P. Dengler of Jersey City, the official stenographer, read the cross-examination of Mrs. Gibson to the jury.
When this was over, Senator Simpson informed Justice Parker that he would close his case today, by noon, if he failed to get a witness whom he was seeking. If this witness was reached by his investigators, the Senator added, he would take all day. In reply to a question by the Prosecutor, Mr. McCarter said that the defense did not plan to put on any fingerprint experts this week to combat the State's evidence that Willie Stevens's fingerprints appear on a calling card of the rector, which was found lying in the grass near his feet. He indicated that the experts in rebuttal would take the stand some time next week.

MRS. JANE GIBSON TESTIFYING FROM A HOSPITAL BED AT THE HALL MILLS TRIAL.

Scene in the Somerville (N. J.) Court House Yesterday When the State's Star Witness Was Brought From a Hospital to Give Evidence.

33 MEN ARE INDICTED AS RUM IMPORT RING

Those Accused Include Four Named in Dwyer Bill and Thirteen Coast Guardsmen.

20 OVERT ACTS RECITED

Liquor Landed on Long Island, It Is Charged—Break-Up of Dwyer Ring Said to Have Opened Field.

An indictment charging two men alleged by the Federal authorities to be notorious bootleggers, four Coast Guardsmen and twenty-seven others with conspiracy to violate the Prohibition and Tariff acts was handed to Federal Judge William Bondy yesterday by the Grand Jury. The two most conspicuous persons named are Edward and Frank Costello, who maintain offices at 405 Lexington Avenue. Each was held in $20,000 bail, which was furnished.

The four Coast Guardsmen are Dorset Aldous, Fred Asamus, Eldon Bardh and Frank J. Bjorkgren, all of them serving on Coast Guard boat 129. These four were not arraigned and no bail for them was fixed, the inference being that the Government hopes to use them as witnesses for the prosecution. Ten others were similarly treated, all of them very little pawns in the alleged bootlegging game, whose testimony, if they consent to help the Government, may aid in convicting those charged as the principal offenders. These ten are F. C. Pitts, Frank Ponzi, alias Faber; William Pump, Robert Raisen and Robert H. Sims, attached to the Coast Guard boat 126A; Frank J. Stewart and Clarence Geisler of Coast Guard boat 129; W. L. Van Dyke and C. J. Whitney, alias Hannigan an alleged deserter from Coast Guard boat 126, and Harry C. Sausser.

The others under arrest and the bail in which they are held are:

William Bleet, 870 Riverside Drive	$5,000
Nicholas Brown, Coast Guard boat 126	10,000
C. Hunter Carpenter, Hempstead, L. I.	30,000
Philip J. Coffey, Montauk, L. I.	20,000
Frank C. Corson, St. Albans, L. I.	7,500
Mike Doherty, alias Dougherty, Hollis, L. I.	10,000
Richard Ellis, office man, 405 Lexington Av.	20,000
William H. Hughes, Coast Guard boat 126	5,000
Daniel J. Kelleher, former Dept. of Justice man, Freeport, L. I.	15,000
Edward Kelly, Elmhurst, L. I.	20,000
Frank Kelly, Forest Hills	20,000
Frederick Joseph Lewis, Coast Guard boat 126	10,000
John Lovins, Coast Guard boat 126	5,000
Tony Maiilio, Oyster Bay, L. I.	9,000
Frederick B. Miller, Elmhurst, L. I.	25,000
James F. O'Connell, 333 East 45d St.	5,000
Joe O'Connell, Jackson Heights, Long Island City	5,000

The indictment contains three counts charging conspiracy, and the first count, which relates solely to violations of the liquor law, recites twenty overt acts. The entire indictment, which is voluminous, reads very like the indictment found against William V. Dwyer, E. C. Cohron, Dwyer's chief assistant, and many others, charging them with conducting a rum ring, which was described as the greatest ever made for outwitting the prohibition law and the most successful. A superseding indictment left only Dwyer and Cohron as defendants. Both were convicted last July, each was sentenced to the Atlanta Penitentiary for two years and each was fined in addition. This conviction is now on appeal.

Attention was called to this bit of the history of prohibition violations because several of those named in the Dwyer indictment were named in yesterday's indictment. Among these were the two Costellos, who were not tried because United States Attorney Buckner was anxious to clear the way for the attack upon Dwyer and Cohron, whose conviction, it was thought, would smash all other big rum rings. Among the others named in the present indictment, who were also named in the first Dwyer indictment are Richard Ellis and F. J. Lewis.

The Costellos have also appeared prominently in connection with other prohibition proceedings and it became known that since the Dwyer-Cohron indictment Government officials have kept a close eye upon the Costellos. When the Dwyer ring went out of business, many good workmen, drilled by Dwyer, were out of jobs. With the disappearance of the Dwyer ring the business of rum-running, it was explained, had a much wider field, and old employes of Dwyer found speedy work with the Costellos, the Government charges.

William E. Stevenson, an assistant of United States Attorney Buckner, who prepared the case against the Costellos and their associates, said that the indictment covered a conspiracy which involved the carrying on of an extensive trade in liquor importation; that the principal defendants operated a line of fast boats between Rum Row and St. Pierre Miquelon, Canada. When the loaded boats arrived off this port, Mr. Stevenson said, the cargo was transshipped to contact boats which landed it at points on the Long Island shore, where it was brought to Manhattan by trucks. Occasionally, it was said, a load of the contraband would be landed direct in this borough. Several of these successful contacts with the vessels carrying the liquor here, it was reported, were made by coast guard boats, whose duty it was to prevent the landing of the liquor.

While the chief credit is given to the Costellos by Government officials for the successful importation of great quantities of liquor, much credit is also given to the two Kellys, described as the men closest to the Costellos and to Carpenter, Coffey and Van Dyke. It was alleged that while the Costellos directed operations from their Lexington Avenue offices, the others carried out the orders, and took the brunt of the rough work. Coffey was described as the paymaster and "briber of coast guardsmen" and Van Dyke is alleged to be part owner of one rum-running vessel.

Part of a statement issued concerning the indictment was to the effect that upon one occasion the Costello ring paid as much as $2,700 to Fred J. Lewis and William R. Hughes, defendants who were coast guardsmen, on the patrol boat 126. This payment, it is said, was made at Montauk, Oct. 25, 1925. The alleged ring, created by the Costellos, it is also charged, was first formed in 1923, and operated continuously "to and including part of 1926." The largest vessel used is known as "Vincent A. White" capable of carrying 20,000 cases of liquor.

Mr. Buckner expressed the hope that the defendants would be placed on trial before the end of the year.

W. C. T. U. SPENT $1,676.

ALBANY, Nov. 18 (AP).—The W. C. T. U. filed a campaign statement of receipts and expenditures with the Secretary of State today.

The statement, submitted by Helen G. H. Estelle, Treasurer, showed receipts of $1,939 and expenditures of $1,676, of which $1,000 went to support Franklin W. Cristman, Independent dry candidate, against Senator Wadsworth.

The Treasurer received $75 for her services; D. L. Colvin, Prohibition Party leader, received $54 for painting expenses and $10 as a speaker, and Earl Gadwin received $36 for traveling expenses.

From Liszt to Lhévinne, the Chickering has been the choice of the world's most sensitive musicians

ALL fine pianos of the world have something in common with the Chickering ··· that they employ fine materials ··· that they are modeled after the Chickering in the use of the full metal plate ··· the overstrung scale ··· and other original developments of our house. A chosen few have also their years of good workmanship ··· their list of loyal purchasers ··· their following of famous musicians. But the things which are common to many should not be sufficient for you ··· as they are not for us. We ask that you compare the Chickering with any other you may have thought of purchasing. You may rest assured we should not frankly court comparison were we not quite certain of your verdict. Make this a Chickering Christmas.

Chickering Hall offers Chickering pianos from $875 up ··· Ampicos from $695 up ··· re-made instruments for as little as $125, genuine Orthophonic Victrolas from $95 up. All are sold on easy terms. Your present piano taken in part payment for another piano. Open Evenings until Christmas.

KOENIG IS CENSURED ON DRY INTERVIEW

A. S. Gilbert Takes Him to Task for Reported Views on Defeat of Wadsworth.

BILL NOW BEING PREPARED

He Says It Will Express Voters' Views on Referendum—Leaders' Stand Unchanged.

A. S. Gilbert, who recently tendered his resignation as President of the New York County Republican Club, an organization formed by opponents of Samuel S. Koenig, last night made public a statement in which he took Mr. Koenig to task for his recent interview in which he pronounced the defeat of Senator Wadsworth a death blow to the wet cause.

Mr. Gilbert said that he was preparing a bill providing for modification of the Volstead law in accordance with the proposal embodied in the prohibition referendum, which was approved on election day by more than 1,000,000 majority, and expressed himself as hopeful that the measure would be introduced in Congress by Representative Nathan D. Perlman.

"If Mr. Koenig was correctly quoted, his interview as reported in the press on Wednesday morning was very unfortunate," Mr. Gilbert said. "It has created the impression that Mr. Koenig, as leader of the Republican Party in New York County, has abandoned all hope of modification of the national prohibition laws.

"This cannot be Mr. Koenig's views. If it is he was not alone entirely wrong in his judgment that the fight on these laws had become hopeless, but he was entirely wrong in failing to say that the Republican Party is in honor bound to go forward with the fight and to carry out the desire of the people as expressed by their vote on the referendum."

Mr. Gilbert said his bill would limit the scope of the Volstead law to whisky, rum and other distilled liquor, and reserve to the States the power to regulate traffic in all other beverages. He said legislation of that sort would be clearly within the terms of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Mr. Gilbert also said that he had prepared a program for the Republican Party in this State, in dealing with prohibition, in the event that the Volstead law should be thus modified, and that it embodied the following points:

Making manufacture, importation, sale and purchase or transportation of distilled liquor a felony.

Permitting the manufacture, importation and traffic generally in beer and wines not in fact intoxicating.

Prohibiting the saloon under whatever name it might appear.

Making sale of alcoholic liquor to a minor a felony.

Mr. Koenig said last night that he was at a loss to understand how his statement could have been misinterpreted, inasmuch as he merely had analyzed in a manner he believed correct the effect of Mr. Wadsworth's defeat on the wet cause. He said he had not changed his views on the wet and dry question, and had not voiced any intention of abandoning the fight for modification of the Volstead law along lines suggested by the referendum.

TAMMANY MEN CELEBRATE.

Judges and Aldermen Among 300 at Farley Association Dinner.

Judges, Aldermen, Assemblymen and successful Democratic candidates generally were guests last night of the Thomas M. Farley Association at a victory dinner in Maennerchor Hall, East Fifty-sixth Street near Third Avenue. The standard bearer of the organization, Deputy County Clerk Thomas M. Farley, is the Tammany leader in the Fourteenth Assembly District.

Peter Curran, President of the association, presided and introduced the speakers, including Congressmen John F. Carew and John J. O'Connor, State Senator Thomas I. Sheridan, Assemblyman Frederick L. Hackenburg, Alderman Jeremiah R. O'Leary, and Magistrates George W. Simpson and John V. Flood.

Three hundred persons, including the forty-four district captains, attended the dinner. Secretary James F. Egan of Tammany Hall also was a guest.

CHICAGO MAYOR IS REBUKED

Federal District Attorney Won't Name Officials He Accuses.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—A demand by Mayor Dever that District Attorney Olson give names in his assertion that a Federal Grand Jury investigation has revealed high public officials in league with criminals was answered today by Mr. Olson with the rebuke that the Mayor, as a lawyer, should know better than to make such a demand.

"The Mayor is a lawyer and an ex-Judge," Mr. Olson said. "He therefore should know that for me to divulge the evidence upon which the indictments are being sought at the hands of a Federal Grand Jury would not only be a betrayal of my oath of office, but a help to the very rascals the Government is trying to dislodge."

YALE MEN OFFER AID IN PACIFYING RIVALS

Student Councils Invite Princeton and Harvard Men to Meet in Their Rooms.

NEWS VOICES PEACE HOPE

University Would Consider It a Privilege to Help Restore Harmony, It Declares.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 18 (AP).—Efforts of Princeton and Harvard student councils to bring about a conference to discuss the recent breach in their athletic relations have been "watched with interest" by the Yale councils and invitations have been extended to the Princeton and Harvard councils to meet in the offices of the Yale council here Saturday.

The text of the invitations sent to Leo Daley and Joseph Prendergast, presidents, respectively, of the Harvard and Princeton students councils, follows:

"The Yale student councils have watched with interest the development of plans for a joint meeting of representatives of the Harvard and Princeton councils in New Haven Saturday to discuss the recent breach in athletic relations. On behalf of the Yale councils we cordially invite you to meet in the offices of the Yale College council at any hour you may appoint."

The telegrams are signed by James O. Plower, President of the student council of the Sheffield Scientific School, and Russell L. Post, President of the student council of Yale College.

The Yale Daily News, commenting on the proposed meeting of representatives of Princeton and Harvard, says today:

"The announcement that representatives of Harvard and Princeton will meet to discuss the possibility of resuming athletic relations arouses an acute hope. Yale University has greatly regretted the train of events which have led to the separation.

"There has been no time at which the sentiment of the university has not been in favor of doing or saying anything which might have prevented a break. Yet there has obviously been nothing which Yale could do. Even now our only possible contribution to the reunion is to say that, were it possible, we would consider it a privilege to help in the re-establishment of amicable relations. This we do say most emphatically."

MICHIGAN ALUMNI PLEASED.

Glad Harvard Game Is Off, Says Publication Here.

The following editorial, entitled "You Can't Play in Our Yard," appears in the November issue of The Gothamite, the publication of the University of Michigan Club of New York:

Michigan men in New York may well be proud that our university has kept absolutely out of the Harvard-Princeton fracas which has resulted in severance of athletic relations between these two universities.

During the Summer contracts were signed, sealed and delivered for a home and home football game between Michigan and Harvard in 1927 and 1928, replacing Princeton on Harvard's schedule. This was repudiated later when the "Big Three" got together and put Princeton back on the schedule. Since then there has been considerable "bad blood," and now Princeton is off once more. The Harvard Crimson took the stand that a game with Michigan would be "over-emphasis of football." Two or three weeks later, however, Harvard signed up Purdue and Indiana, which apparently were not "over-emphasis of football" even though they were just as far West as Michigan. Perhaps Michigan's defeat of Indiana—63—0 last year—has something to do with this.

Nobody at Michigan seems to be gloomy because the two games with Harvard were canceled. When you come right down to facts, Harvard in her present form would not be much of an attraction aside from the novelty of the game. It would be much better to wait until her new coaching staff, or another coaching staff, has a chance to restore her former prestige. Michigan last played Harvard at the very height of Harvard's glory and was nosed out, 7—0, by one of the greatest teams that ever wore the Crimson. If the chance ever comes to avenge that defeat, let it be against another eleven that is truly representative of Harvard.

Again, we repeat, we believe the sentiment of New York alumni is much more in favor of a game with Princeton. This game would prove to be a real attraction.

Policewoman Checks Midnight Yale Parties, Notifying the University and Girls' Parents

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 18.—Miss Mary Nevin, a student in sociology and a New Haven policewoman, has introduced a system of moral suasion in dealing with the delicate problem of the midnight parties given by Yale students to New Haven flappers.

She makes no arrests but breaks the news to the parents of the girls and turns the names of the students over to the university officials after chatting pleasantly with the young couple and taking profuse notes for her sociological studies.

She said tonight that she has been looking into a series of midnight parties in city apartments occupied by students. The girls' relatives have received her notes on these gatherings and the Yale Faculty has been provided with information regarding the entertainments given by the students, while New Haven people who live in the apartment houses and who feared the effect of the revelations have been pacified.

The situation arose because of the crowded dormitory condition at Yale. This compelled the university to turn several hundred students into city apartment houses. Entertainment of the flapper guests was soon noted by other residents in the apartments, who notified the police. Miss Nevin was detailed and worked up all the details of the parties, which usually were held after the motion pictures closed and lasted until after midnight.

Miss Nevin found that most of the university students were registered in the graduate school, and Dean Wilbur L. Cross of that department said tonight that he would make an investigation. He has just returned from a month in the West and is inclined to think that rumors have exaggerated the situation. Meanwhile it has been learned that several of the girls involved have police records. Most of them are known to Miss Nevin.

The elopment of two freshmen with New Haven girls a year ago resulted in the university officials and the police cooperating in dealing with the problem. Raids on some apartments have followed.

TAKE UP COLLEGE PROBLEMS

Representatives of New England Institutions Meet at Amherst.

Special to The New York Times.

AMHERST, Mass., Nov. 18.—The Association of Colleges in New England today opened a two-day convention here with a meeting in the Converse Memorial Library. The purpose of this convention is to discuss college problems. No votes or minutes are taken and no press representatives are allowed to be present.

President Olds of Amherst declined this morning to divulge any of the questions that would be discussed, but it is expected that compulsory chapel and church attendance would be one of the most prominent.

The delegates will be entertained at the new Lord Jeffery Inn.

The delegates are as follows:

Harvard—President A. Lawrence Lowell, Dean Clifford H. Moore, Dean Chester N. Greenough.
Yale—Dean Clarence W. Mendell, Dean Percy T. Walden.
Brown—Vice President Albert D. Mead, Dean Roland D. Richardson.
Dartmouth—Dean Craven Laycock, Professor Louis H. Dow.
Williams—President Harry A. Garfield, Acting Dean Harry L. Agard.
University of Vermont—Professor Frederick Tupper, Professor Samuel E. Bassett.
Bowdoin—President Kenneth C. M. Sills, Professor Henry E. Andrews.

HALT $75,807 DRAFT MAILED TO CANADA

Pacific Coast Dry Agents Get Order to Hold It—Charge Vancouver Firm Evades Texas.

Special to The New York Times.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 18.—Executing a coup in their war against Canadian liquor houses, which are alleged to have defrauded the United States out of income taxes in excess of $1,000,000, agents of the Internal Revenue intelligence unit yesterday halted the progress of the mails.

Through Assistant District Attorney C. T. McKinney they obtained an order from Federal Judge Jeremiah Neterer directing Postmaster Charles M. Perkins to turn in to the court a letter containing a bank draft for $75,807.50.

This draft, according to the petition upon which the court order was predicated, was being sent from Los Angeles to the Consolidated Exporters Corporation, Ltd., of Vancouver, B. C., in order to defraud the United States of income taxes owed by the corporation.

In the meantime $75,807.50 deposited for the draft in the Hilman Commercial Trading and Savings Bank of Los Angeles is being held under a warrant of distraint.

Time was given to Postmaster Perkins to communicate with the Third Assistant Postmaster General in Washington, D. C., who has charge of the registry division, before actually turning the letter into the custody of the court.

Income tax assessments, including penalties for non-payment in the sum of $91,389.16, are pending here against the Consolidated Exporters, and a $200,000 assessment is on the books in San Francisco.

Goucher Girls Also Quit Bob.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 18.—Goucher College girls are in line with Vassar in abandoning the bob, and their desire to forsake the shingle bob, the symbol of flapperdom, is just about ruining barber shops and beauty salons up Goucher way. The "pigtail" is coming into its own. The pigtail, whether natural or a switch, is wound about the head and coiled over the ears, giving that sophisticated look so much desired.

BACKS AUDIT WITH $2,000.

Accountant Insists Painters' Union Findings Are Correct.

J. A. Falk of Falk, Dworkin & Co., public accountants, offered yesterday to forfeit $2,000 if a certified public accountants' firm found its audit of the books of District Council 9 of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers incorrect. The offer was made after Philip Zausner, Secretary of the council, had questioned charges made by Thomas Wright, Secretary of Local 905, based on the audit, that there was a shortage of $30,000 in the council's accounts for the last nineteen months, with an indicated total shortage during the last few years of approximately $200,000.

Mr. Falk said his firm was willing to confer with a committee of the council's officers, representatives of Painter's Locals 905 and 1011 and a firm of certified public accountants for an examination of the Council's records. Should the examination fail to bear out his company's findings, he said, his company would donate $1,000 to the Council and $1,000 to any other organization suggested, and bear one-half the expense of the new audit. Should his firm's findings be found correct, he said, he would insist that the Council pay the expenses of the audit and such damages as a majority of the conference committee would fix.

VARGUENO IS SOLD FOR $575

Second Day of Spanish Antique Sale Brings Total to $25,900.

The second of four sessions of the sale of the Montillor collection of Spanish antiques held yesterday at the Plaza Art Auction Rooms brought $16,400, making a grand total of $25,900 to date. The third session will be held this afternoon.

A seventeenth century walnut vargueno brought $575, the day's highest price, going to W. Herbert. Mrs. Pierre Barbey bid in a large carved pino wood cabinet for $215 and a large oak table with carved drawers for $180. Both are seventeenth century pieces. A sixteenth century iron window grill went for $215 to Mrs. J. Deshrame.

BROADWAY LIMITED—leader of the Pennsylvania's great fleet of 3800 daily passenger trains

45 years ago today

America's First Limited Train opened a new era of travel . .

"This long train of steel cars, rolling in twenty hours from one to the other of the two greatest cities in America, is a credit to this country and its railroad men. . . "

ARTHUR BRISBANE recently penned these words as he sat aboard the Broadway Limited speeding in its rapid flight from Chicago to New York.

Around him as he wrote—tapestried furniture, deep rugs, shaded lights, flowers against a background of soft, cool green—everything was as restful and delightful as in his own club in New York, marking the high standards of travel luxury in 1926.

Forty-five years ago today the Pennsylvania Limited made its pioneer run from New York to Chicago to test the soundness of the idea of a Limited Train—limited in the number of its stops and in the size of the train so that it might move with the greatest speed and security—limited in the number of passengers so that at a small extra fare it might give to all the maximum of comfort in luxurious appointments.

And the reply of the public to that test is written large in the daily operations of the Pennsylvania Railroad:

The Broadway Limited, leading the Pennsylvania's eleven daily trains each way between New York and Chicago.

The American, flagship of six daily trains in either direction between St. Louis and New York.

The Congressional Limited, the Liberty Limited, the Manhattan Limited, the present-day Pennsylvania Limited, The Red Arrow, and over a score of other limited trains which embody the very perfection of luxury and comfort in travel.

3800 passenger trains each day set forth over the Pennsylvania, leading still in a tradition of fast de luxe service that was started forty-five years ago today.

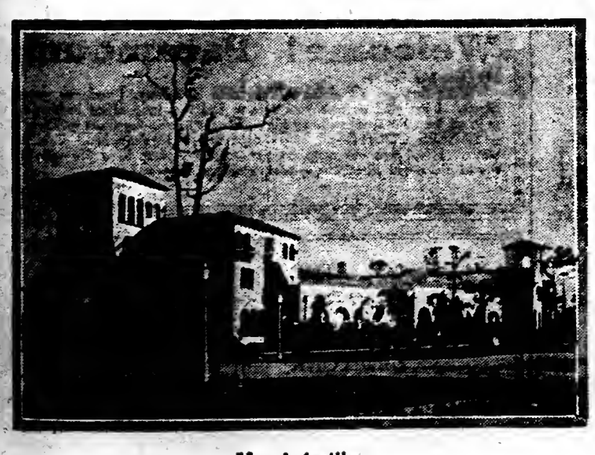
Spend your winter in the only AMERICAN TROPICS... at Coral Gables, Florida

Miami-Biltmore Hotel and Miami-Biltmore Country Club



Hotel Antilla

WINTER is already closing in with icy grip. But you can cheat winter. Spend it where the climate is that of June, where tropic warmth and comfort await you—Coral Gables, Florida.

Less than 40 hours' journey will bring 75 per cent of America's population from northern chill to southern sunshine in Coral Gables, where you can enjoy azure skies and the warmth of the southern seas all winter long, and where you can swim in the famous Venetian or Miami-Biltmore pools or in the surf of the South Atlantic.

Read what the last annual report of the United States Weather Bureau at Miami says about this delightful region of the only American Tropics:

"The average January temperature is the same as the average June temperature for Atlantic City, New Jersey.... In 1925 there was only one day entirely without sunshine. . . . The absence of extremes of temperatures, the almost unbroken procession of days with sunshine, and the prevailing ocean winds, all combine to give Miami an exceptionally favorable climate. . . .

"From December to April the weather is conducive to outdoor activities and pleasures, including surf bathing in water whose temperature is above 70 degrees."

Temperatures from December 1, 1924, to April 30, 1925, ranged from the lowest, 61 degrees, to the highest, 79, the average ranging from 68 in December to 72 in April—while the mercury outside of America's Only Tropics was engaged in seeing how far down in the bulb it could hide.

Why pursue the unequal contest against ice and snow and frost and blizzard, when summer can be reached in two days of luxurious travel, by ocean or by rail? Coral Gables, the dominant unit of the Miami area, the Miami Riviera, challenges your attention and your demand for the utmost in comfort, warmth and outdoor enjoyment.

Coral Gables' hotels are ready for their annual throng of winter visitors—ready for you with more complete accommodations than ever, at a range of prices to fit every purse. Comfortable homes and apartments are available, also. You will be able to swim, play tennis, hike, motor or ride the bridle paths of America's loveliest city, where every winter day is a day in June.

For further information inquire at our office at 140 West 42nd Street, New York City, or write direct to Coral Gables Corporation, Dept. NT-1, Coral Gables, Florida. Your nearest railroad or steamship agent will welcome your inquiry.

ZUKOR, IDEALIST, PERSISTED AND WON

Life Story of Man Who Dreamed of Better Films Made From Novels and Plays.

BEGAN WITH $40, MAYBE $25

Whichever It Was, the Hungarian Immigrant of 1889 Has Built From It a Giant Enterprise.

By MORDAUNT HALL.

Adolph Zukor, President of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, will satisfy this evening an ambition he has cherished for years, when the new Paramount Theatre in Times Square is opened. And this magnificent monument he has erected to the motion picture industry has sprung from a penny arcade in Fourteenth Street, which Mr. Zukor ran twenty-three years ago as his first venture in the amusement field.

What manner of man is this who has climbed so far and done so much in only twenty-three years? His name is a household word in filmdom, yet of his personality the general public knows little or nothing.

To begin with, he is small in stature. He speaks in softly modulated tones. He is innately modest. He is a business genius yet he often becomes sentimental when he refers to his gratitude to his adopted country. Those who do not know him would never suspect that he is the guiding spirit of a company the gross income of which exceeds $100,000,000 annually.

Mr. Zukor was born of humble parents in Ricse, Hungary, in 1873. He came to America when he was 16, and he landed at Castle Garden after the usual long voyage of those days, during which he suffered from seasickness most of the time. There were no immigration formalities and he himself says:

"I got on a boat in Enrope and got off it in New York."

He is not sure whether he had $25 or $40 when he arrived, but he is sure that it was not more than the larger amount. And he does remember that he was fascinated by the wonderful activity he saw all arornd him.

He aought employment and his first job was in a small upholsterer's sbop, where for bis first week's work be received $2. The work was hard; also he did not like it. Therefore, one day when he met a young man whom he had known in Ricse, Zukor asked this friend to get him into the fur business. At that time his salary had been increased to $4 a week. The friend had a brother who was a foreman in a fur shop, and it was soon arranged for Zukor to abandon his job of upbolsterer for the fur business.

In the Fur Business.

For nearly four years Adolph Zukor plowed along in New York in the fur business, specializing in the cutting of mink, sable and fox neckpieces. He was apparently content until one day, in the Autumn of 1892, he noticed in the window of a cut-rate railroad ticket place that a ticket to Chicago could be purchased for $10. It was the year before the World's Fair. Somebow that notice gave the thrifty young Zukor the wanderlust. He decided to take Horace Greeley's advice and go West.

He sat out the long, tedious and comforless railroad journey and was greatly relieved when he stepped off the train in Chicago. For two weeks he went from one place to another looking for work. Eventnally he encountered a New York acquaintance, who suggested that he and Zukor go into the fur business together.

Zukor was to stay in the shop and do the cutting while the other man went ont and solicited trade. The two were moderately successful in this ventnre, bnt presently Zukor again felt the urge to move. He returned to New York and again installed himself in the fur bnsiness in this city. He ran a fur shop here until the end of 1904.

Mr. Zukor's attention was first turned to the entertainment business in the Autumn of 1903. He then went into partnership with Mitchell Mark, a brother of Moe Mark, the present general manager of the Mark Strand circuit of theatres. Mitchell Mark had then a penny arcade in this city. After he joined with Zukor, similar arcades were opened in Boston and Buffalo. Snbsequently, with other affiliations, Mr. Zukor opened another arcade at Broadway and Fourteenth Street. He found this business extremely profitable.

Mr. Zukor did not give motion pictures mnch thonght until he had his first glimpse of a motion picture theatre. This was in Pittsburgh. The theatre was in Diamond Alley and was run by Harry Davis. It held only twenty-five persons, but it made a great impression upon the man who was only running a penny arcade.

The Stationary "Tour."

It was due to this visit to Pittsburgh that in 1906 Zukor disposed of his intereat in the penny arcades and joined forces with William A. Brady, the theatrical producer, who had a patent on what was called "Hale's Touring Cars."

Tbese "cars" were constructed like a railroad coach, but were stationary. The rear end was open like an observation car. Travelogues were projected on a screen, and with the simulated rumble of wheels, the hissing of steam, the ringing of bells and the blowing of whistles, the illusion was created among the spectators that they were traveling through tbe country tbey viewed upon the acreen. The scenes for these "cars" were taken from a flat car, which gave the idea of motion.

But the films, all short subjects, soon were exhausted, and owing to the lack of fresh subjects the Zukor-Brady business came virtually to a standatill. So the "cars" were converted into "store" motion picture shows, in which various types of films were exhibited.

Zukor kept to this for another two years, bnt in 1908, as they were only giving each picture a one-day show, not enough films were being produced to atimulate the business. The General Film Company was then formed.

ADOLPH ZUKOR

Who Started With $40, Maybe Only $25, and Today Opens a $17,000,000 Building Containing a $3,000,000 Theatre.

This concern took in ten producers of sbort subjects.

Zukor's atudy of the motion picture business and his audiences produced in him a strong faith in the future of films so long as the quality of the prodnct could be improved. He bad an idea that if plays and novels were translated to the screen there might even be a chance for a real Broadway motion picture theatre. He expatiated on this to William A. Brady, suggesting that some of Brady's stage plays be adapted to tbe screen.

Victory of an Ideal.

"Bigger and better pictures" was Zukor's idea of the future for film enterprises. He impressed it on everybody with whom he talked.

But he was not supported in his conception of film entertainment. Nobody else seemed to like tbe risk of investing money in the seemingly impossible hazard of filming novels and plays. Alone, Zukor stuck to his idea. In 1911 he decided to produce the type of film plays he had suggested. While he was studying the market he was brought into touch with Edward S. Porter, who was associated with Thomas A. Edison in the electric wizard's film activities. Zukor outlined his scheme to Porter and Porter was deeply impressed by the little man's ideas.

It was just about that time that Carl Laemmle formed the Universal Pictures Corporation. Porter decided to sell out his interest in the short subjects he was making and join Zukor.

Probably one of the most startling pieces of news Zukor, the altruistic film exhibitor, ever received was when he and Porter heard that Sarah Bernhardt could be engaged to make a picture of "Queen Elizabeth," in which she had appeared on the stage. The figure set on the production was $35,000. For this sum, Zukor and Porter were informed, they could have the American and Canadian rights to Mme. Bernhardt's film. Half of the money was to be paid on the signing of the agreement and the remaining $17,500 when work on the picture was started.

Zukor and Porter bougbt it. The prodction was in four reels and was made in Paris. It was the first Famous Players picture to be exhibited.

Ever on the alert for a chance to carry out his idea of producing plays and novels for the cinema, Znkor approached Daniel Frohman and arranged for James K. Hackett to appear in a film version of "The Prisoner of Zenda." This was made eventnally in five reels, and was really the first feature picture with a well-known stage star and cast to be produced in this country. Gradnally Mr. Zukor achieved his hope of turning novels and plays into shadow entertainment.

A Good Sport Wins a Partner.

His innate good sportsmanship resulted in his connection with Jesse L. Lasky. Mr. Lasky went to Hollywood to make tbe film version of "The Squaw Man"—which, incidentally, was produced in a barn. When Zukor saw the photoplay in New York he wired congratulations to Mr. Lasky. It was not long afterward that Zukor and Lasky joined forces. Now Mr. Zukor guides the destinies of the business and Mr. Lasky supervises the producing of all the films.

In 1919 Mr. Zukor met Robert Simon, now famous as a real estate operator. Simon told him that the Putnam Building and Westover Court in Times Square and Forty-third Street were for sale. The site was a block in front and 207 feet deep. Mr. Zukor was interested at once. Simon got the property, but Znkor took over the contract, with the hope that when his company was financially able he might erect a building which would be at the same time a home for the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation and a model theatre in which to show Paramount films under ideal conditions. "Paramount" is the title of the diatributing end of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation.

In tbe years that followed, Mr. Zukor did not consider the time ripe for conatruction of the building and theatre he wanted. Yet, in spite of urgent appeals on the part of some of the members of the Board of Directors of Famous Players, he insiated that they hold on to the property. In this he had the atrong support of Otto Kahn, financier of the corporation. Economic developments alded the two to prevail, for it was the post-war depression alone that caused others intereated in the film concern to want to dispose of the property, which had cost $4,400,000, before the mortgage became due.

"But," aald Mr. Zukor the other day, "I had ao much faith in Times Square that I did not care to part with the site. Otto Kahn always encouraged and agreed with me in the future of Times Square. Our first Famous Players offices, you know, were in the Times Building.

Although Mr. Zukor turned over supervision of the erection of the Paramount Building to a building committee headed by Haroid B. Franklin, he has frequently visited the structure and his keen eye occasionally has caught something he wanted done differently. When that happened it received immediata attention. An example of this occurred one day when Mr. Zukor found the wall and windows of the Forty-fourth Street side of the structure too plain. He wanted something different. Something different was dooe. That suggestion cost $400,000, but is said to have been wortb it.

And He Believes in Golf.

Mr. Zukor has a country home in New City, Rockland County, and on his estate he has an eighteen-hole golf course. He is a ardent enthusiast of the royal and ancient game, although it is one of the many things of which he had never beard when he left his native home in Hungary. He has four grandchildren and two of their pictures adorn his desk in the Paramount office at 485 Fifth Avenue.

Nowadays the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation is an eloquent testimonial Mr. Zukor's foresight. The corporation is producing this year seventy-five features, many of which were adapted from plays and novels. And several playwrights, including Frederick Lonsdale, are writing special screen stories for the man who stepped ashore at Castle Garden thirty-eigbt years ago with maybe $40 but probably only $25 as his sole capital.

COSTLIEST THEATRE WILL OPEN TONIGHT

$3,000,000 Home of Paramount Films Is the First Word in Comfort.

Luxury and comfort never dreamed of in the early days of the cinema are features of the new Paramount Theatre, in Times Square, which opens tbis evening, after a year of preparation, witb Herbert Brenon's picturization of Miss Dixie Willson's short story, "God Gave Me Twenty Cents." The title of the pbotoplay is symbolical of the start of the industry, tbe days when nickelodeons were the picture palaces of their time. This beautiful new home of the ahadow entertainment has cost $3,000,000, and a total of $17,000,000 has been expended on the wbole Paramount Building, including the land.

The theatre, as well as the great structure of which it forms part, was conceived by Adolph Zukor, President of Famous Players-Lasky Corporation. It was begun about a year ago, and recently men have been working on three eight-bour shifts to have everything ready for tonigbt at 7 o'clock. Mr. Zukor turned the construction work over to a building committee of which Harold B. Franklin, Vice President of the Publix Theatre Corporation, was chosen Chairman.

In the lobby of the tbeatre there is a semi-circular colonnade of strikingly veined marbles, supported on a black and gold base, itself approximately one-story high. The dome of this space is fifty feet above the floor. The end of this hall opposite the entrance forms a great glass window fronting on the street.

From the lobby one goes into wbat is known as the Hall of Nations, on one wall of which is a collection of stones from thirty-seven different countries. They were obtained by the foreign offices of Famous Players, each of the stones having a special significance and some of them having been officially presented by foreign Governments. The story of each stone is told on a set of bronze tablets. Another feature of this hall is a bronze bas-relief of Thomas A. Edison, who has accepted an invitation to be present this evening.

Then comes the grand hall, which is 150 feet long, 40 feet wide and 50 feet high. Massive marble columns support the dome, and at one end is a marble atairway, widening up to the mezzanine landings. Elevators to take patrona to all floors of the tbeatre are behind this stairway. In the dome of the grand hall is a panel symbolizing the Spirit of Light.

While going through the building Mr. Franklin explained that to get the quality of apecial marble required it was necessary to open up a quarry in Italy that had been closed for forty years.

In the basement is a lounge room for men and women. The walls are paneled in walnut and it is called the Elizabethan Room. Incidentally all the rooms in this theatre bear names so that persons wanting to meet in the theatre can designate the room in which they will be. There is, for instance, Peacock Promenade, the Club Room, the Hunting Room, the Jade Room, the Powder Box, the Venetian Room, the Chinoiserie (ladies' smoking room), the Marie Antoinette Room, the Music Room and the Colonial and Empire Rooms.

One of the excellent ideas of the new theatre is to make those waiting for seats comfortable, and with this in view there will be in the music room chamber concerts given by a special string orchestra, and when that is not holding forth the amplifiers will bring in the music from the orchestra, the organ and the vocalists in the theatre.

There is a signal system of lights whereby the ushers at the front doors will be able to signal to any floor of the theatre and ascertain the number of vacant seats. The ushers number 150, and the total staff of the theatre is close to 400.

Interesting decorations are to be seen in the various rooms. For instance there is in the Elizabethan Room a series of bronze brackets with figures in porcelain bearing the coiffure from the Elizabehtan period up to the bobbed hair of the present day.

The theatre itself seats 3,900 persons and there is everywhere plenty of space. The stage is high, and so is the space between the floor and what is known as the "Diamond Horseshoe," a baicony dressed artistically, with indirect lighting.

Behind the stage there are many new electrical appliances, and the rooms for the producer of stage contributions and dressing rooms for the performers are all reached by special elevators. On an upper floor there are three projecting rooms, each of them bigger than the first motion-picture theatre Mr. Zukor set eyea on.

The auditorinm has been designed under French renaissance influence, with a color scheme of ivory, rose-red and turquoise blue. On each side of the stage near the orchestra seats are two fountains wbicb will glow in various lights.

The organ is one of the largest in the world, the chambers being located on each side of the proscenium arch. The grills consist of cystal, on which is "Tree of Life" is worked out effectively. The organ is of the orchestral unit type, occupying four chambers and equipped with every concelvable stop. The CCCC pipe is thirty-four inches square at the large end, tapering down to six inches, and is thirty-two feet long. It is fashioned of the finest quality pine, two and one-quarter inches thick, and weighs about 1,250 pounds. In contrast to this the speaking length of the smallest pipe is about three-quarters of an inch, and the diameter of a straw weighing about half an ounce.

Around the stage proscenium indirect lighting in three colors is installed, and also around the organ grill frames, the main ceiling and the side walls. Huge brackets of bronze are slung between the side arches.

Thc drapes of red and gold are figured in a satin damask and are hung in the archwaya and organ archcs. A velvet and silk valance embroidered with gold, hangs from the proscenium arch with curtains to match. The seats have been designed witb special attention to comfort, and on each aisle is a small electric light.

Thc walls of the various rooms will be adorned with paintings by well-known artists. There will be fifty-six of these canvases. Tbere are also in the smaller rooms many beautiful objets d'art brought from different parts of the world.

In several of the lounges there are spacious telephone booths with chairs, and these booths are especially commodious in the rooms reserved for women. There is also a tea gallery, where lemonade, icea and tea will be served.

Special attention has been given to the ventilating and refrigerating system. The installation is known generally as the down-feed system, the air being brought in through openings in the ceiling and drawn off at the floor by blowers and fans. In the corridors and passage ways, the air is introduced through grills in the walls. By a complete system of ducts, fresb air is delivered to all parta of the auditorium and to each room and space. All the air brought into the building comes through a waaher, and in the Summer the temperature of the water will be reduced by refrigeration, so that a temperature reduction is obtained.

The Paramount Theatre will pursue the policy of changing pictures every week, and the musical program that was heard and seen in the Rivoli Theatre, John Murray Anderson has the distinction of devising the first atage production that serves as a prelude to the feature film. It deals in a way with the strides made in pictoral entertainment.

RECITAL BY RAOUL VIDAS.

Violinist Gives a Program of Masters—Has Many Recalls.

Raoul Vidas gave last night his second violin recital at Town Hall, with the assistance of Rndolph Gruen at the piano. The program consisted of straightforward violin pieces, none of which bad been transcribed. The violinist's technical facility and bis beautiful satiny tone were heard to advantage in the opening sonata by Veracini. In this, as well as in the Mozart concerto and the Beethoven Romance, Mr. Vidas proved that he has the style suited to the proper presentation of the classic composers. He possesses the polish and distinction necessary for Mozart, the breadth of phrasing appropriate to Beetboven. Mr. Vidas allowed himself a superfluity of sentiment in Saenger's "Souvenir Intime," but this was balanced by his dexterity in Lalo'a "Intermezzo."

The large audience showed its appreciation by prolonged applause and by many recalls.

"Faust" Sung Again With Spirit.

"Faust" was sung for the second time this season at the Metropolitan last evening. In the cast were Mmes. Aida, Dalossy and Howard, Messrs. Martinelli, Basiola, Rotbier and Wolfe. Mr. Hasselsmans conducted, making the personnel of the cast just half new, while the other half carried over from a fortnight ago. The artists, however, were strangers neither to their rôles nor to the audience, and the performance of the large atage ensemble moved with spirit and a certain Gallic gusto, though the atars were variously British, Italian, French, American, Hungarian and Russian.

Penman Lovinggood in Songs.

Penman Lovinggood, who last year appeared successfully in baritone songs, was a recital giver in Steinway Hall last night, assisted at the piano by Spencer McEvoy. The singer's program had a native individuality in three original lyrics after Bella Zliberman's verse and his own arrangement of a negro spiritual, "Sooner in the Mornin'," grouped with Burleigh's of "Didn't It Rain" and Gertrude Fayde's of "Didn't My Lord Deliver Daniel." The clasaic airs ranged single examples in as many languages from Handel's "Judas," Puccini's "Bohème" and songs of Schubert, Duprato and Rachmaninoff.

Queena Mario Recovered.

Queena Mario, lateat victim of the opera "jynx" that is held to pursue all Metropolitan casts in certain favorite performances, returned from Atlantic City last evening to her home in Seventh Avenue, a balf mile north of the opera house. Her throat was declared fully cured of the audden hoarseness that had overcome the singer midway in "La Juive" a week ago, when Miss Ryan had to finish the Princess's rôle in her place. Miss Mario told General Manager Gatti-Casazza she would appear as announced and sing Nedda in "Pagliacci" tomorrow night.

THE PLAY

By J. BROOKS ATKINSON.

From the Norwegian of Wiers-Jenssen, John Masefield has fashioned a stately and unsteady drama entitled "The Witch," put on last evening at the Greenwich Village with Alice Brady adorning the leading part. Starting on the horrific topic of witch-burning in Bergen in the year 1574, the play gradually drifts off into a medieval "Desire Under the Elms," chronicling the love of the young and passionate wife of an old man for his son by a former marriage; and in the final scene it suddeuly returns to the malevolent, satanic spirits for a stirring conclusion. While it is discussing the diabolism of witchcraft and the religious fanaticism of those stormy years the play serves as a good acting medium and evokes the sombre mood and the horror of that supernatural theme. For more than half its length, however, "The Witch" deserts its central theme for a verbose exposition of a guilty love. Partly from a break in the continuity, and partly from the slow pace of the acting, these scenes seem tedious and diffuse.

With Maria Ouspenskaya, once a Moscovian, playing the rôle of a witch hounded by town guards and an inflamed populace, the first act sputters with strange emotion. While the women of Absolon's household are at work in the dooryard the cries of the witch-hunters come from the town and the church bell tolls ominously. Breathless reports bring the news that the devils have been loosed in the body of Herlofs-Marte, once the companion of Anne Pedersdotter, the young wife of Absolon, chaplain of the palace. While the mob is crying, this witch crawls into the dooryard and demands shelter from Anne Pedersdotter. But eventually the town guards track her by spots of blood, pull her from her hiding place, twist her arms until she confesses, and carry her off to her doom. Miss Ouspenskaya summons all the terror and panic in that incident.

Mr. Masefield has treated witchcraft as an active force: instead of defending themselves and professing their innocence, both of the women accused of being the devil's instruments confess to that black allegiance. No doubt tbe love between the Absolon's son and his young wife is offered as evidence of Anne's supernatural powers. In the second act Absolon confesses that Anne's mother was a witch and that he protected her only because he desired her daughter as wife. Hoping that she may have inherited some of her mother's satanic sorcery, Anne tries to summon Absolon's son; the nature of ber strength is a secret between the audience and herself. Although the successive incidents are obviously intended as the manifestations of her witchcraft, little in play or performance keeps that spell constant. The devil worship does not appear actively until the final scene in the Cathedral choir, where Anne, put to the test, confesses her guilt with a nerve-torturing shriek. If the acting had been less deliberate during the intervening moments the point of "The Witch" might bave been more constantly apparent.

Bursting with rage and malevolence in the third act, Anne tells Absalon that she wishes him dead for robbing her of her youth, and being nothing if he is not obliging, Absalon succumbs at the table. In the first scene of the last act Anne pleads with the son for his continued affection; standing beside the bier of her dead husband she swears that she did not kill him. At the funeral in the last scene Absalon's mother accuses Anne of being a witch. She is told to touch the body and profess her innocence. But the test is too much. In a diabolical scream she reveals her evil genius.

The production has been handsomely decorated. Dressed in rich medieval robes, Miss Brady, as Anne Pedersdotter, looks more handsome than ever. And as in "Bride of the Lamb" she proves herself an actress of emotional force. Sometimes she is too deliberate in her gestures and her movements around the stage, to the point of breaking the illusion, and sometimes her voice is too rough. But obviously she is more resourceful than most of her parts have led playgoers to believe.

Miss Fitz Allan conveys hatred and distrust in the part of Absolon's mother. Mr. Landau's deep, well-modulated voice makes Absolon a positive character. Mr. Huntley does well as Absolon's son. One scene in the second act, between members of the Lutheran clergy, communicates the intense religious fanticism, the suspicion and the hatred of papism that might give "The Witch" deeper perspective as a portrait of such turbulent times. During the rest of the play the acting is soft in texture.

Uphold Korean Sentence On Missionary Brander

TOKIO, Nov. 18 (AP).—The Korean Supreme Court has approved the sentencing of Dr. C. A. Hayameir, Seventh Day Adventist medical missionary from Minnesota, for having branded the cheeks of a Korean boy with the word "Thief," burned with acid, according to a dispatch from Seoul. The lower court ordered Haysmeir imprisoned for three months, but suspended the sentence two years.

Haysmeir, who was connected with a mission at Pingyang, caught the boy stealing apples from an orchard and branded "Thief" on each cheek. The boy left school to avoid ridicule.

Much public indignation was aroused. Haysmeir offered a public apology, saying that he thought the acid would not leave a permanent mark. He paid the boy's mother $300.

WILL EXPLORE PALESTINE.

FLORENCE, Nov. 18 (AP).—A study of Palestine from the historical viewpoint as well as from the angle of exploration and research will be undertaken by a special commission formed with the approval of Premier Mussolini under the patronage of the National Geographic Organization.

General Vacchelli, director of the Royal Military Geographic Institute here, who is President of the National Geographic Organization, has entrusted Dr. De Filippi with the formation of the commission. Dr De Filippi, woh accompanied the Duke of Aosta, noted Italian explorer, on his geographical expeditions, already has organized a special mission to explore the basins of the eDad Sea and the River Jordan next year.

Launch Actors Fund Campaign.

The first of the official meetinga for the million-dollar campaign to aid the Actors' Fund of America was held last night in the studio of Daniel Frohman atop the Lyceum Theatre Building. As the campaign committee is a large one its members are meeting in groups to organize for the drive, which will open on Dec. 19 with a testimonial dinner to Mr. Frohman in honor of his forty-four years of service to the fund.

"Lucia di Lammermoor"

Little Librettos by LEONARD LIEBLING

OUR grandparents used to love "Lucia" when they were young, and that opera still holds the boards successfully, whenever and wherever there is a high-voiced and agile-throated soprano to warble and trill its lyrical and florid delights.

Donizetti, the composer of "Lucia," did something more, however, than to write merely a vehicle for the display of expertness in rapid and brilliant singing. The "Sextette," in this opera, is one of the immortally beautiful and beloved pieces of music of all time. In the famous "Mad Scene," all the celebrated coloratura sopranos since 1835, have won triumphs.

The libretto of "Lucia" is based on Sir Walter Scott's great romance, "The Bride of Lammermoor." Giacomo Lauri-Volpi, the tenor, makes a vocally persuasive, and histrionically impassioned, figure of the cavalierly hero, Edgardo.

On request we will mail you a brochure containing ninety-six portraits of Metropolitan Artists.

Official Piano of the Metropolitan Opera

Only three names in this discussion!

WHEN Kipling named twelve immortal authors he stirred the literati to a furore of debate. But ask the music critics of two continents for a list of great reproducing pianos and they will name three—three alone—and the same three.

Welte-Mignon is one of them, and in addition it enjoys an honor all its own. For in the Welte-Mignon reproducing device and piano are perfected for each other and built for each other. Critics have sensed this subtle difference. You, too, will appreciate it after the others have played for you.

Give them their hour first, let them reveal the beauty of their music. And then in its golden, mellow voice, let the Welte-Mignon answer your critical mood by the truth and brilliance of its renditions. Very probably it will dispel all doubt, and once again the hearing of this lovely instrument will be a prelude to its possession

Welcome! Paramount—

My Dear Mr. Zukor:

While they are all giving a thought to Broadway, I welcome you to 43d Street. I am glad to have your theatre and that little office building added to it, on the same street with my big apartment house—the finest in Times Square—YANDIS COURT—all newly decorated and refurnished. Cold and hot water. I feel sure our neighbors are equally glad to have you with us. We should make 43d Street the greatest block in the world.

DAMROSCH HONORS WAGNER

Gives First Act of "Walkuere" 50 Years After Father Introduced It.

Walter Damrosch and the New York Symphony Orchestra gave a Wagner program at Carnegie Hall yesterday afternoon. Mme. Elsa Alsen, as Sieglinde; Rudolf Laubenthal, as Siegmund, and Frederick Patton, as Hunding, were the assisting artists in a performance of the first act of Wagner's "Walkuere" in concert form. The orchestra played the "Ride of the Valkyries," and the "Fire Music" in the second part of the program.

Mr. Damrosch made a speech before the concert began, saying that when he arranged the program he had overlooked the fact that the concert would be held fifty years after the first performance in America of the first act of the "Walkure." His father, Dr. Leopold Damrosch, had directed it at the old Academy of Music Nov. 4, 1876. Walter and Frank Damrosch were then boys of 14 and 16 respectively. Dr. Leopold Damrosch had decided for a long time to revisit Europe and meet his friends, Wagner and Liszt, but he did not have the necessary $1,000. The New York Sun paid him $500 to review the Bayreuth Festival, and a friend lent him the other $500.

Mr. Damrosch said that he had long been convinced that the music was as great on the concert platform as on the opera stage. He added that the concert form which his father introduced in the 70s met with the entire approval of Wagner, who desired his work to be better known in America.

A large audience attentively followed the unfolding of the scene, and at the conclusion warmly applauded Mr. Damrosch, the artists, and the orchestra.

HELEN SCOVILLE IS HEARD.

Young American Pianist Gives a Program Largely Russian.

Helen Scoville, a young American pianist, gave a recital at Aeolian Hall last evening before an audience that was large and enthusiastic. After playing Bach and Scarlatti, Miss Scoville presented Scriabine's seldom played Fifth Sonata, Moussorgsky's "Pictures at an Exposition" and pieces by Rachmaninoff and Tcherepnine, thus making her program preponderantly Russian.

The pianist gave the impression of being a forceful executant and an objective, rather than a subjective, interpreter. She grappled with the bristling difficulties of the Scriabine sonata with firmness and displayed astonishing vitality in her climaxes.

The Moussorgsky pieces afforded a technical promenade for the young artist. The finale was tremendously resonant and descriptive.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Who Cares?" a satirical farce by St. Clair Scott and Caswell Garth is now in rehearsal under the management of George C. Tyler and Basil Dean. In the cast are Margaret Lawrence, Estelle Winwood, Leslie Howard, Dudley Hawthorne, Elsie Disney and George Fogle.

"The Lace Petticoat," a musical comedy, with book by Stuart St. Clair, lyrics by Howard Johnson and music by Amiel Gerstenberger, will be produced in Newark on Dec. 13 by Carle Carlton. The cast will be headed by Tom Burke, Mme. Sylvania, Alfred Frith, Stella Mayhew and Lulu Alberni. The production, the scenes of which are laid in the Creole Quarter of New Orleans in 1848, will come to New York the week of Dec. 20.

The Moscow Theatre Habima Company will arrive here on the Mauretania, due Thanksgiving Day, and is scheduled to open at the Mansfield Theatre a week from Monday, in "The Dubbuk."

Judith Anderson will leave New York today for Australia, where she will act in "Cobra," "The Green Hat" and "Easy Virtue." She will return to the management of David Belasco next August.

"Autumn Fire" will move from the Klaw to Wallack's next Monday.

Edouard Bourdet, author of "The Captive," called for America yesterday on the De Grassa.

Louis O. MacLoon has secured the coast rights to "Loose Ankles" and will present the play in Los Angeles on Jan. 10.

Dulcie Cooper, an Australian actress hitherto unknown here, will take over the title role in "The Little Spitfire," at the Cort Theatre, tonight.

Trini, the Spanish dancer, will remain a second week at the Palace Theatre.

Lowren Kildare, daughter of Owen Kildare, has joined the chorus of "Gay Paree" at the Winter Garden.

"A Proud Woman" will be withdrawn from the Maxine Elliott Theatre tomorrow night.

The Catholic Actors' Guild will hold its monthly meeting at the Klaw Theatre this afternoon, with Thomas A. Wise as guest of honor.

Jane Manner will give her first dramatic recital of the season next Tuesday afternoon at the Hotel Astor.

MANY MEN OF MANY TAXES.

Increased taxes are always opposed, except in the stress of war. No new tax can be levied without provoking new dissatisfaction with the Government. Long ago it was remarked that "to tax and to please is as hard as to love and be wise." But it has generally been supposed that plans to reduce taxes—especially plans to restore part of the tax already paid—would be welcomed with enthusiasm. Yet it is already apparent that the President's proposal, made by him with uncharacteristic impetuosity directly after the Congressional elections, has simply stirred up trouble all around and made any action at all at the next session of Congress more unlikely. If Mr. COOLIDGE seemed to be desirous of expressing gratitude for Republican defeats by making a little Christmas present to the taxpayers, the expectation of Congress appears to be that the gift might be made larger as a consequence of defeating still further the Administration.

Upon the previous evidence of lack of agreement even among Republican leaders in Congress, now comes the decision of Democratic financial leaders in the Senate and in the House to strike hard for a permanent cut in taxes to the amount of $325,000,000 a year. They point out that the indicated surplus for the fiscal year will be ample to permit of this reduction. But they have not yet shown what are their grounds for confidence that such a lowering of the public revenue could safely be made over the years to follow. It is needless to discuss this plan in detail, for it is obviously not intended for passage this Winter. It is a bill which the Democrats will put forward for purposes of debate and of embarrassing the Republican Administration, but not for enacting into law. In view of the known attitude of the Treasury and of the President, the latter is a plain impossibility.

This Democratic manoeuvre is only one sign more that Congressmen are thinking more of politics than they are of taxes. Every group has its pet theories about what should be done, but the more they are put forward and compared the more bewildering becomes the confusion of the entire legislative situation. It is always dangerous to endeavor to play a political game with public finance. What sober citizens desire, in the management of the nation's finances, is a cautious and farseeing policy, not subject to sudden and unexpected changes. People like to know what they have to reckon with in the way of taxes, year after year, even if they think the burden unnecessarily large. To lighten it improvidently, for party reasons, only to be obliged later to increase it again, is certainly not good finance and probably not even good politics. Suppose the Democrats were able to pass a bill for cutting off taxes to the tune of $325,000,000 annually. Suppose then that they carried the Presidential election in 1928, and placed in power a Democratic Administration which would have to face a huge deficit in the Treasury, and be compelled at once to borrow money or to lay new taxes in order to make it good. That would surely not be thought of as prudent finance. It could not fail to be denounced as political folly. Yet this is the sort of edged tool with which the Democrats at Washington seem to be willing to play lightheartedly.

THE PRE-PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN.

With only a hundred tongues Rumor could never do business in the United States. The politicians and the gossips sit in perpetual nominating convention. Before a President has mastered the geography of the White House, they are busy naming his successor. It is a harmless amusement enough, if a little tiresome; and experience has convinced most of us that these Merlins are as unerring as the Candlemas ground-hog. Only they have a wider variety of choice. Mr. COOLIDGE, we are told positively, doesn't want a renomination; as positively, we are told that he does. The latter statement is rendered more than doubtful, however, by the great news sent from St. Louis and interpreted in Washington.

The Twelve-State Group of volunteer thinkers from the Corn Belt and the Cotton Belt has approved former Governor LOWDEN's plan of farm relief. Therefore, the College of Nominators sees Mr. LOWDEN in the crystal and his boom outgourding JONAH's gourd. Presumably he is relied upon to carry the Cotton States; but the St. Louis volunteers are not sound on the tariff. They love bloc government. Colonel BROOKHART, who is on the spot making statistics to order, or any other insurgent Republican, would appear to be the predestined darling of these duodecimal statesmen and economists. Mr. LOWDEN will be as much amused as anybody else by the exegesis of the fly-gobblers; and Speaker LONGWORTH and other "mentioned" possibilities will be glad to have the light directed elsewhere. Precocity is never a good indication in booms; but since these are booming most of the time, what's the odds?

There is an even choicer flower of tattle, too sweet to lose. As Universal Director of Things, the Anti-Saloon League has undertaken, not, as might have been expected, to choose the Dry Democratic candidate, but to discriminate among Wet aspirants, to play the field against the favorite. The notion is beautiful. The recent triumphs of the League have but increased its popularity among Democrats; and no Democratic candidate could wish any more brilliant fortune to any of his rivals than to be coddled by a society that has so endeared itself to so many Democrats and Republicans and that deserves all the far-spread repute and affection it enjoys. To add to contemporary gayety, the Republicans are solemnly publishing lists of States that are sure to be lost by Governor SMITH should he be nominated.

This Republican solicitude is affecting. Governor SMITH is in a fair way to become as much of an obstacle and terror to the national Republicans as he has long been to the Republicans of this State. Meanwhile he is attending to the State business. Whatever the event in 1928, sensible men will not pretend to foresee it. Let the marplots and the soothsayers enjoy their lingering Fool's Day till the conventions are over and then go on sitting for four years more. It takes mighty little to make some folks happy.

THE WAR ON LYNCHING.

The sentencing of Major BROWN to life imprisonment, after a plea of guilty to the lynching of DAVE WRIGHT, a white man, last August, is proof that Georgia wishes to redeem herself from the ignominy of having been one of the two Southern States most notorious for hundreds of mob murders since 1882. The other was Mississippi. Last December the Mississippi Bar Association issued a pamphlet condemning lynching and calling upon the people of the State to stand united against that profanation of justice. It was pointed out that Mississippi and Georgia had been responsible for one-fifth of all the lynchings in the States during the last forty-three years. In Mississippi the mob had taken 530 lives, in Georgia 521. The number of whites thus killed was very small in Mississippi, twenty-five. "During the last forty years," said this indictment, "mobs murdered 4,144 men and women." Throughout the country more than three out of four of the victims were negroes. The only States in which lynchings had not occurred in that time were Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Vermont and Rhode Island. Eighty-five women had been lynched, seventeen of them white. Rarely was any one brought to justice for taking part in a lynching. The "real victim," declared the Mississippi Bar Association, is Law and Order. The cover design of the pamphlet showed a law code and the policeman's club tied together and swinging from the bough of a tree.

There was a quick response in Mississippi to the appeal to good citizenship. For yielding to a lynching mob the Sheriff of Coahoma County was deposed and a true bill was found against him for "misdemeanor and crime while acting as an officer." Three of his deputies were also indicted. About the same time a negro in Georgia, SILAS PARMORE, charged with murder and extradited from New Jersey upon an assurance to Governor SILZER that he would be protected from mob violence, was acquitted. In February of this year Governor FIELDS of Kentucky ordered 1,000 troops to guard the court house at Lexington in order to prevent the lynching of ED HARRIE, a negro. In other States vigorous measures were taken to prevent lynchings. Nevertheless, there was a slight increase in the number of these crimes, twenty-four occurring in the first ten months of 1926 as compared with eighteen in 1925. The Aiken (S. C.) atrocity was particularly infamous. South Carolina was keeping her slate clean, when the jail at Aiken was "stormed" and the LOWMANS were dragged from their cells, turned loose, and shot down.

In the Georgia case, so creditable to the police and courts, punishment by prison terms is to be visited on eight other defendants besides Major BROWN, the leader of the mob that overpowered Sheriff TANNER of Coffee County and lynched his prisoner, DAVE WRIGHT. The crime with which he was charged was the murder of a sister-in-law of Major BROWN. Justice would doubtless have been done. BROWN's standing in the community was not of the best. But that does not detract from the determination of the Georgia courts to visit severe punishment upon those who resort to lynching for any cause.

PROTECTING GRADE CROSSINGS.

Representatives of the Transit Commission and of the Long Island Railroad are to meet again next week to discuss plans for the elimination of grade crossings near the city. The principal difference of opinion, so far as the Brooklyn crossings are concerned, seems to be whether the railroad tracks should be elevated or depressed. Under a previous municipal ruling no more elevated structures may be erected. To build a subway would cost probably four times as much as to elevate the tracks.

At the session of the Transit Commission on Wednesday, Colonel LANCASTER, chief engineer of the commission, recommended installing signal lights at the specially dangerous crossings. This proposal, while not new, deserves the attention of the railroad company. Confessedly, there are motorists whose recklessness is suicidal. They will attempt to "beat a train to the crossing" or even to crash through the gates. To protect such persons from themselves is impossible. But there are many who could and would profit by a better system of warning signals, audible as well as visible. In the old days of horses the clanging bell at the country cross-roads was perhaps sufficient. It could be heard several hundred feet from the crossing. Possibly some kind of bell or whistle, louder than those occasionally used now, could help to warn motorists.

There is much to be said for Mr. LANCASTER's suggestion about lights. Experience with the traffic system here in New York has shown that a powerful electric lamp will make a clear red signal visible a half-mile away. It should be possible to put warning lights at distances of fifty, one hundred and one hundred and fifty feet from dangerous crossings, which would cast a brilliant red beam a half-minute or more before the passage of a train and until it had passed. The ideal system would be, as the engineer of the commission suggests, to have these signals operate automatically. This would be an additional safeguard which, although expensive at first, would probably save the railroad company money in the long run.

Such a system would to a certain extent protect the railroad company from the negligence of some of its gatekeepers. Unless the testimony before the Transit Commission is altogether unreliable, that body has records which show that 43 per cent. of the accidents brought under its notice occurred while the gates were up.

AMERICA'S MAIN STREET.

Invitations to the public to give a thought to the Broadway Association's favorite thoroughfare do not necessarily imply a charge of neglect. In life as a rule we give the least thought to what we most immediately accept. The American flag was not without honor before Flag Day and mothers were not entirely overlooked before Mother's Day. Alone among New York streets the Broadway habit has been almost coeval with the city itself, just as geographically Broadway is the only street coextensive with Manhattan Island. It started to make history at the Battery and is continuing to make history ten miles north in the vicinity of the Medical Centre and the great Broadway Temple. For newcomers like Fifth Avenue, which rejoiced recently in its centennial; for shocking parvenus like Park Avenue, it is all well enough to invite thoughts to themselves. Broadway grew without thinking. That is why it is our one big thoroughfare that does not run like a surveyor's line, but bends and curls like a real highway.

In the popular mind, especially in the out-of-town mind, Broadway is the street to which GEORGE M. COHAN addresses his regards. It is Theatre Row and Cabaret Lane. In the life of the city it is much more than that. It is, reading from south to north, shipping, finance, church and cemetery, municipal government, newspapers, trade, manufacturing, a great university around the corner in Washington Square, manufacturing, trade, newspapers, theatres, automobiles, homes, trade, a still greater university, homes, hospitals, churches, schools, until it melts into the embrace of Yonkers. Because its general course of north-northwest by west impels Broadway to cut across half a dozen other main thoroughfares, it snatches a glimpse of such things as it does not itself contain. It can look up Fifth Avenue and see the Library and catch further north a glint of the Fashion which was once Broadway's. It can look up Sixth Avenue to the new residential towers and down Seventh Avenue to the great garment towers. At Fifty-ninth Street it catches a whiff of the Park. At Seventy-second Street it can look down Tenth Avenue into factories and slums and up Amsterdam Avenue through two miles of lower middle-class homes virtually unchanged in the last thirty-five years.

Broadway's course lies from the oldest New York to the newest, and the trip is no doubt conducive to reverie and comparison. It almost remembers PETER MINUIT's original investment of $24 in Manhattan real estate, and it takes note of the new seventeen million dollar movie palace. On this festal occasion it would be invidious to suggest that Dutch PETER's venture was not the best conceivable. The assessed value of Manhattan real estate today is about seven billion dollars. Had MINUIT invested his $24 at the moderate rate of 7 per cent. compound interest, he would now be worth very close to thirty billion dollars. Still, Manhattan real estate is safe, and Broadway's tercentennial rejoicings are there to prove it.

THE Y. W. C. A.

If the Y. W. C. A. had not been organized, it would have been necessary to form some other society to undertake a service which is essential under modern city conditions. It is not too much to say that no great community could have in its midst such great numbers of young women, most of them without family association, contributing to its economic life and to its higher activities, without some such agency to give them social, recreational and educational opportunities as well as to help them in such matters as employment.

Once a year the people of this city are asked to make possible in advance the continuance of this beneficent and important work. The total budget is approximately $1,750,000, but the income is such that the public is asked to contribute only $265,000. If that amount is not raised, it will mean that the budget and so the service will be restricted. Almost half the amount needed has been already subscribed and the rest should be quickly assured.

The Y. W. C. A. maintains ten residences for the temporary accommodation of young women working for a living and in need of a home. But it also maintains placement bureaus and room registries through which it gives information. Moreover, it is concerned for the health of the thousands of business and industrial girls whom it aids. Last year 1,434,517 meals were served for them. Quite aside from the spiritual service of this non-sectarian organization, it gives help to business and industry. It would deserve support for this reason alone. But there is a higher reason, in that it helps to lift the whole level of life for young women who come even within indirect reach of its influence.

DEVELOPING THE FEDERAL CITY.

Word comes from Washington that the Public Buildings Commission has approved a general plan for new public buildings and has selected sites for eight of them in the triangle between Pennsylvania Avenue and the Mall. Congress has already authorized the expenditure of $10,000,000 a year for five years on the capital building program. Senator SMOOT does not anticipate any trouble in getting it under way. Actual construction will probably begin with the long-awaited Archives Building, completion of the Department of Agriculture and the erection of a monumental building for the Department of Commerce, whose ramified and expanded activities will thus be brought under one roof. The commission has also decided to acquire land north of the Congressional Library as a site for the proposed Supreme Court Building.

All this is good news, alike to crowded workers in Washington and to all interested in beautifying the capital and developing it along logical and dignified lines. It is difficult for a department head to maintain efficiency and morale when his bureaus are scattered all over the lot. Persons having business with the various departments have been driven almost to distraction scouring the city to find the right official. Workers have had to make the best of uncomfortable conditions and the Government has had to foot huge and unnecessary rent bills. These evils should gradually disappear as the building program develops. Especially significant is the move for a new Supreme Court Building. Says the Fine Arts Commission in a recent report:

> Until recently the members of the Supreme Court have been averse to leaving their quarters in the Capitol. The chamber in which the court holds its sessions is one of the most dignified and most beautifully proportioned rooms in this country. Its historical associations are great. Nothing but dire necessity could make a change tolerable.
> That necessity has arisen from two quarters. Changed conditions of living on the part of the Justices no longer permit them to maintain offices in their homes. The Capitol is already overcrowded and all the space is needed for legislative work. The quarters now occupied by the Solicitor General and the clerks of the court are insufferably insufficient. The construction of a building for the Supreme Court has become a need so pressing that action must take place in the immediate future.

The public building project is but one phase of the capital's growth. The Arlington Memorial Bridge across the Potomac from the Lincoln Memorial is already under construction. President COOLIDGE has appointed a National Capital Park and Planning Commission with wide powers and strong public support to develop the kind of comprehensive and coordinated plan which the district has long needed in fulfillment and expansion of the labors of L'ENFANT. All this thought for the future of the Federal city is timely in anticipation of the bicentennial celebration in 1932 of the birth of GEORGE WASHINGTON.

"WHILE MEMORY HOLDS ITS SEAT."

Whatever differences may arise among men and women of English speech and tradition, one thought holds them together—memory of the "myriad-minded" SHAKESPEARE. There has come an occasion to give expression to it through contributing toward replacing the Shakespeare Theatre at Stratford, destroyed by fire last March. The presence in America of Mr. ARCHIBALD FLOWER, the Chairman of the Board of Governors of the Shakespeare Memorial, calls especial attention to the plan for the new theatre, for which $500,000 is asked for building and $750,000 for an endowment fund. The uncle of Mr. FLOWER gave the land and the money for the original theatre and met the deficits during his life. Since his death the nephew has accepted the uncle's heritage and continued to support this shrine to which people from all parts of the world are drawn for the yearly festival, at the season in which falls the day of SHAKESPEARE'S birth, of which it might be said in his own phrase about another: "A day in April never came so sweet."

The architectural plans are to be determined by a group of English-speaking architects, Mr. CASS GILBERT, the American representative, having been named to select the designs and the architect. There has been a general hope that the original building will leave no memory of what it was. That becomes an expectation in the knowledge that a committee of such competency will make the decisions. The theatre will be in architectural keeping with the "lovely old town" by the Avon.

Already a valuable contribution of scenery, costumes, properties for ten of SHAKESPEARE'S plays has been made by Mr. and Mrs. SOTHERN; but Americans, who are by far the most numerous of all the foreign visitors, should be also the largest givers to the fund. "Give," said Mr. HORACE HOWARD FURNESS Jr. of Philadelphia to participants in the festival, "give out of gratitude for past enjoyment." But to multitudes of others it should be added: Give in grateful acknowledgment of what we all owe to SHAKESPEARE.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Ireland Still Self-Vexed.

Blindfold a man and tell him that a certain Government has proclaimed a state of national emergency, and is passing bills conferring extraordinary powers upon the rulers. Then inform him that these measures include the right to arrest and detain without trial persons suspected of attempts to overthrow the Government, or who possess arms or explosives, or assume military or police titles or uniforms without right, or commit robbery when armed, or make wrongful entry upon property. Then give him three guesses what country this is. He might guess Italy or Poland or Russia, but would hardly hit upon Ireland. Yet it is the Irish Free State which is today doing these things.

It has been moved thereto by the evidence of widespread lawlessness and rebellion. Soldiers and policemen have been shot down in various places by men in ambush. The whole appears to be an outbreak of the old smoldering Republicanism, which led to the unhappy spectacle of civil war in Ireland after she had at last won her long fight for Home Rule.

It is only fair to say that the former trouble-maker, DE VALERA, appears not to be concerned in these new efforts to overturn the Free State Government. On the contrary, he is reported to be not only troubled by them but politically embarrassed. His plan has been to secure the abolition of the oath of allegiance to the British King. It is not clear whether he would go further and try to take Ireland out of the British Commonwealth of Nations, but it is something to know that he would not encourage this new campaign of terrorism and assassination.

The Free State Government is bound to protect itself if it means to live. The severe measures which it is taking to repress midnight outrages and crimes can expose it to no other reproach than that of being the offensive creature which, when it is attacked, defends itself.

Two Suicides Hard to Explain.

Yesterday's news of the suicide of two successful writers is puzzling to the average person. He is accustomed to think that the man who takes his own life must have been suffering from a melancholy sensation of failure. ALLEN UPWARD had been living in retirement for some time, but had recently published two novels which had brought him renewed recognition. GEORGE STERLING's poetical works have been read with admiration for twenty-five years.

Both men had apparently relished the social side of life. The British novelist had enjoyed success in competition with his fellows at school, and later when he practiced at the bar. STERLING was a well-known member of the Bohemian Club of San Francisco. They had friends, money, a larger portion of fame than falls to the lot of most people.

One thinks of starving poets and unpublished novelists of the garrets committing suicide after they have grown desperate over failure. Even they usually hang on with the help of an occasional check from home. In the coincidence of these two suicides there is a fine opportunity for the psychoanalysts to clear up the mystery. It would be like them not to neglect it.

They Eat Well in the Country.

The Bureau of Home Economics of the Department of Agriculture, having weighed the old legend of the city mouse and the country mouse, has decided in favor of the country mouse. Not only does he get a better grade of cheese—and more of it—but he has larger amounts of meat, eggs, milk and cream.

This may hardly be considered an original discovery. Every one brought up on a farm thinks longingly of the meals that "mother used to make." The memory is particularly acute after a long season of New York cafeterias and restaurants. Our "back-to-the-farm" leaders have long sung odes to the gustatorial joys of life close to nature.

The department, comparing the relative nutritive value of the diet of city workingmen and of farmers, points out that the latter is usually slightly deficient in fruits and vegetables, whereas the former is deficient in all but proteins. This is a curious commentary on modern farm life. To be sure, the diet of today is undoubtedly better on the average farm than it was thirty years ago. One reason for this is that cooking has improved. But the farm garden seems still to present to the average farmer the straw that breaks the camel's back.

He is willing to work fourteen hours in the fields. But the extra ten minutes a day weeding the kitchen garden is too much for him. Except in families where the youngsters are not above such work, or where the women of the household do not hesitate to do manual labor outdoors, the "greens" are therefore neglected. The Department of Agriculture is doing much to educate farmers' families to make more of their gardens.

One French Handicap.

In the land of PASTEUR they do not do very well in the way of bettering the mortality statistics. Those who consider the basic factor in Franco-German relations the stationary population west of the Rhine, and the growing German population, may still cite figures. In 1924 the surplus of births over deaths in Germany was 509,000; in France, 60,000.

The gap is not due to birth rates, but to death rates. The notorious refusal of the French people to bear children is a myth. In 1924 the French birth rate was 19.2 per thousand of the population, as against 20.5 in Germany. The British birth rate is actually lower than the French. It is the mortality statistics which tell the tale. In 1924 the German death rate was 11.9 per thousand, the French nearly 18. If France had done as well as Germany in saving life, her surplus that year would have been 300,000 instead of 60,000.

Under the circumstances it is hard to understand why French efforts should be taking the form of encouraging large families instead of attacking the simpler problem of keeping babies alive. In the one case it is a fight against a world-wide tendency toward smaller families and against special French conditions. In the matter of live-saving it would be only to fall into line with all other civilized nations, among whom New Zealand has attained a record of only 8.3 deaths per thousand, and a teeming country like the Netherlands is not far behind.

A Thanksgiving Appeal.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Did you ever visit a tenement house with eighty-two families living therein? We have many of this kind all around the Five Points Mission.

Did you ever visit a two-room apartment sheltering six persons with only one little window to furnish light and air for both rooms? Such living conditions are quite common in this congested section.

The Five Points Mission during its eighty-two years of service has sought to minister to the poor and suffering at its doors and render practical assistance and kindly encouragement in every way possible throughout the year, but at the Thanksgiving season it makes an extra effort to be helpful.

Last year more than 500 Thanksgiving baskets were distributed to the deserving poor, each containing a chicken and all the "fixin's." This means a large expenditure of money.

We have no way of financing this worthy project unless the generous public comes to our assistance. We appeal to all who wish to bring sunshine and cheer into desolate homes and to remember the unfortunate by sending us a contribution to make this distribution of good things possible.

Be assured that our social workers, after years of experience and special training, are thoroughly competent to select the most deserving as the beneficiaries of your generosity.

Make checks payable to Florence A. Carmichel, Treasurer, Five Points Mission, 69 Madison Street, New York.

SEA-CHILDREN.

In the misty twilight of the past
There must have been a million years
When the haunting whisper of the sea,
Incessantly, was in our ears.

In the waking dream of the silver dawn
Of the centuries when the earth was young
We must have known the bitter-sweet
Of the salt sea's tang upon the tongue.

For never within the tangled mesh
Of the trails that are worn by the feet of men
Can you find a soul who has loved the sea
But he yearne for her sapphire lights again.

For always deep in his heart he hears
The wash where the rock-bitten water slips,
And in every rainy wind that blows
The sting of the salt is on his lips.

GOOD SPORTSMANSHIP.

Self-Control by Spectators Would Do Much to Enhance Value of Games.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Considering the number of important contests scheduled for next Saturday, this might be called national football week. As in modern warfare each contestant is the nation in arms, so in modern college football each contestant is the academic host in arms. Not only the football squad, coach, trainer and manager, but the whole college, undergraduate and graduate to the third and fourth generation, and ten degrees of collateral relatives march, whoop, groan, play the game, celebrate the result or alibi.

The official rules governing this major sport are reasonably perfected, and, depending upon the sincerity and courage of the officials, reasonably enforced. But where are the rules governing the spectators, and who shall enforce them?

Here and there student bodies have entered into agreements "to prevent any actions in the future which may be taken as intending to lower the other school in the eyes of the public or in the eyes of the student body, such actions to include the defacing either of the property or the institution or that property in its immediate vicinity." These are attempts to introduce the rules of civilized competition into student conduct on the campus and in the stadium. The alumni having reached years of discretion, presumably need no rules. Moreover, their business and social connections with graduates of the rival colleges induce a moderation of conduct, if not a dampening of holiday spirits.

In spite of these official rules, compacts between undergraduates, and social and economic restraints upon alumni, football contests are nevertheless a severe test of good sportsmanship. To warrant their national support these games must show a tendency to develop, even under pressure, a superior sense of sportsmanship on all sides.

It is the essence of that national spirit which makes constitutional government possible, that a people habitually tend to settle their disputes by orderly methods. The football players have learned to do this rather well—when encouraged by the officials. The spectators must learn to do this also—encouraged by public opinion. Can we not play the game with vigor and self-control? M. D. STEEVER.

CORRECTION FROM MR. BECK

He Gives Details of His Contention on American Claims.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your Washington correspondent in today's TIMES did not accurately state my contention before the Committee of Ways and Means.

After stating that under the recent decision of the Supreme Court in the Chemical Foundation case German claimants had no legal right to ask the return of alien property funds, nevertheless the ideals of our Government and the higher mortality of civilization required the return of such property. As such funds had been pledged by the German Government as collateral security for American claimants against Germany, I contended that such collateral should not be returned until Germany had redeemed its obligation under the treaty of Berlin to make satisfactory provision for the payment of American claims.

Therefore, I argued that if Congress desired to return at once these funds to German claimants, upon which question of policy I expressed no opinion, the expense of such magnanimous generosity should be borne by all taxpayers and not by the few who had been injured by German war activities. Board of Estimate Action.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In an editorial yesterday, under the caption, "Light on the Tombs," THE TIMES states that though Commissioner Wallis was "balked in his efforts to get from the Board of Estimate enough additional keepers to make this reform (an eight-hour shift) effective without dangerously reducing the number of keepers on duty, Mr. Wallis nevertheless went ahead. Here the Board of Estimate would seem to be partly to blame."

The adjustment to an eight-hour schedule for keepers went into effect on Feb. 8, 1924, when the Board of Estimate approved a plan of Commissioner Wallis, submitted on the preceding Jan. 4, under which sixteen additional keepers were provided for this adjustment.

In submitting his departmental estimate for the 1927 budget Commissioner Wallis made no request for additional keepers, but in a supplemental request he asked for fifty more keepers and twelve prison matrons. This Board of Estimate considered the request and finally allowed thirty keepers and six matrons, in addition to the present force.

There is no record in the Board of Estimate between February, 1924, and the supplemental request for 1927 of any requisition by Commissioner Wallis for additional keepers to man the city prisons. Certainly there is nothing to show that the present Board of Estimate in any way balked Commissioner Wallis in his schedule for prison management. He asked this Board of Estimate for additional keepers for 1927 and was granted him a large portion of his request.

A Peace Holiday.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Why not dedicate a monument to peace, and what is a better monument than a day of each year? A number of nations and not a few States have set aside Nov. 11 as a holiday and call it "Armistice Day." Let New York take the lead in setting aside the same day as one dedicated to peace. The significance of the day would be widened from the celebration of an event to the propagation of a principle and the maintenance of a preferred state or condition. All nations might be encouraged to follow this lead.

A motto for such a day is ready at hand. It represents the collective opinion of our people and the more especially as it was simply and unostentatiously spoken at the end of a great crisis by one of our foremost citizen soldiers and, to the praise of our public schools, is known to every child—"Let Us Have Peace." Welke to Historic Spots.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Rev. Edward Charles Russell of St. Ann's Episcopal Church complains of the lack of interest in regard to the historical places.

If he means New York City, I am pleased to inform him that David Rubin of 1,210 Woodycrest Avenue conducts historic walks every Saturday afternoon on Manhattan Island, and they are free to the public.

FAULTS IN CRIME

Criticism of Baumes Acts and Comments of Various Authorities.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Baumes law, widely hailed as the last word in criminal [illegible] merely a clumsy attempt to [illegible] crime by burying alive the comparatively small proportion of [illegible] especially second offenders, who happen to be caught and convicted.

Senator Baumes, to quote his own words, starts from the premise that "there is a new type of criminal, vicious, determined professional [illegible] who deliberately take up a career of crime, just as other citizens take up the useful and honest trades."

Apparently the Senator thinks he has discovered something new, and is quite unaware of the fact that criminals, be they of the old or new type, are bred out of the conditions of society which breed them; and neither Senator Baumes nor any of his friends is attempting to deal with this phase of the situation.

Governor Moore of New Jersey, I am not mistaken, has voiced the sentiment that all bandits should be [illegible]

E. L. Calder, formerly District Attorney of Montreal, has still another idea. He points out that any man who steals an automobile should be [illegible] with the proverbial horse thief, and promptly hanged by a self-appointed vigilance committee.

"For," says Mr. Calder, "they used to hang a horse thief, not because of the value of the horse, but because he used the horse to escape from the scene of his crime"; which leads up to the conclusion that if we hang one who steals an automobile, no criminal can steal a car in which to escape and therefore will abandon his career of crime.

Judge R. A. E. Greenshields of the Court of Appeals is credited with having said that individuals who do not believe in capital punishment should nevertheless be compelled to serve as jurors in capital cases, and that the "preposterous" to consider them [illegible] gible.

None of these eminent [illegible] seems to realize the historical fact that undue severity has never [illegible] crime, but, on the contrary, has increased it and emphasized the [illegible] tion and vindictiveness of the [illegible] nally inclined. None of them seems to realize that their theories and pronouncements go back to the [illegible] gent days of the cavemen, and are recognizable as applied to the [illegible] tian era in which we are supposed to live.

On the other hand, several of our eminent Judges have fortunately realized the fact that the Baumes law constitutes a far greater menace to the crime wave which it is supposed to allay.

Judge Franklin Taylor of [illegible] in commenting recently upon the [illegible] of discretion allowed to Judges under the new law, said: "There is much in the law that is foolish. What should be more so than the condemning of a man to life imprisonment for the meagre offense of misappropriating the paltry sum of his employer's money? The true test should be, has the defendant committed a serious crime, is he a continual menace to the community, or is he simply a wayfarer? Is the ghost of a prison record arising from the distant background to haunt him?"

District Attorney Banton has [illegible] ed us that we should not, like the [illegible] morist in "The Mikado," "make the punishment fit the crime."

"My experience as a District Attorney," said Mr. Banton, "has taught me that imprisonment should not fit the crime, but should fit the criminal," and has called attention to the fact that, with the exception of murder in the first degree, burglary in the first degree and robbery in the first degree, there is no discretion left to the Court that tends to bring about the complete segregation of the anti-social on his first offense; and he very properly characterizes the recent legislation on this subject as "the outgrowth of a certain amount of hysteria."

A determined and organized effort must be made to remedy these mistakes and to prevent the contemplated passing of similar and even more drastic laws in New Jersey, as contemplated by Governor Moore.

Our Banking System Best.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Allen Wood's ideas as to the requirements to be demanded by a bank general manager are good, though these might have to be modified in the case of small towns and villages, but that could be very easily taken care of.

Having been at one time a [illegible] banker, I used to think the branch system was both safer and better in every way than the single bank. Today I feel that the American system, or as it is with the branch system feature eliminated—and this does not mean that there should be no branches in the same city or metropolitan district—is the best in the world, though a long way from being perfect.

The argument in favor of the local bank is that it attracts talent which is not content merely to receive deposits and make loans, but builds up the industries of the section served. The branch manager, from the large centre, whose stay is apt to be brief, usually fails to get the local point and is often out of sympathy with it while, if he is in accord, probably the office is not.

The smaller branches are apt to be depositaries of the head office and the funds used in the large cities. It is certainly not desirable that the large should be built up at the expense of the smaller communities. However, as Mr. Wood points out, the greatest danger [illegible] lies in the centralization of financial control, which branch banking would prevent.

Taxes Up, Even if Rate Is Not.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

City officials tell us that real estate values are not being increased, because they are keeping the tax rate at the same level year after year. Surely this is only a blind that hides the facts from the public gaze. The tax rate, to be sure, is not being raised, but the assessed valuation in many [illegible] being raised beyond its true worth.

With an ever-increasing number of vacancies, the property owner is feeling the weakness of this. Already a good many owners are finding it difficult to pay the [illegible] taxes. It is coming to a point where Chief Justice Marshall's theory "that the power to tax involves the power to destroy" is [illegible] to stare us in the eye.

Let the city keep on in its mad career of increasing taxes and soon [illegible] and tax lien sales will be the vogue in New York.

EIGHT AUTO VICTIMS MEET DEATH IN DAY

Trucks Kill Woman, Man and a Boy—Three Succumb to Previous Injuries.

UMBRELLA BRINGS MISHAPS

Woman Hit as She Screens Herself From Rain—Grantwood Man Hit, Dies in Hospital.

Mrs. Sally Lewis, 51 years old, of 22 Columbus Avenue died in Knickerbocker Hospital yesterday afternoon, soon after she had been struck by a motor truck at Broadway and 136th Street. Homer F. Jones, 36 years old, the driver, of 130 West Eighty-third Street, applied his brake to avoid striking the woman, according to Traffic Patrolman Asklof, but the vehicle skidded. The patrolman reported that Jones had been operating the truck at the time in disobedience of the traffic signal. Jones was arrested.

Henry Mohr, 75 years old, who lived at the Rosewin Hotel, Third Avenue and Forty-second Street, was mortally injured in the afternoon when he was struck by a motor truck at Third Avenue and Eighty-second Street. He died in the Misericordia Hospital soon afterward. The truck driver, James Matthews of 10 Macon Street, Brooklyn, an employe of Putnam & Co., 32 Howard Street, was held.

Josephine Partoglia, 20, of 337 East 116th Street, when crossing Second Avenue near 111th Street on her way to her home last night was knocked down by a motor truck and received injuries from which she died soon after her arrival at Harlem Hospital. The police said the truck was being operated by Louis Shapiro of 65 Gouverneur Street, an employe of the Phoenix Laundry, at 1,912 Second Avenue.

Irving Cleveland, 30 years old, of 205 West 138th Street, died yesterday in the Metropolitan Hospital on Welfare Island of injuries he had received the day before when he was struck by an automobile in the West Drive of Central Park, opposite West Eightieth Street. Jack Price of 64 East 106th Street was released in $3,500 bail pending examination on Nov. 29. He was arraigned on suspicion of being the driver of the car which struck Cleveland. He pleaded not guilty.

Lillian Wallach, 65 years old, of 176 East Eighty-fifth Street, who was struck by an automobile in lower First Avenue last Tuesday afternoon, died yesterday in St. Mark's Hospital. Frank Smith, 814 Bushwick Avenue, Brooklyn, was arrested on suspicion of having driven the car which struck the woman, but pleaded not guilty and was held in $2,500 bail, pending examination on Nov. 29.

Nathan Gelber, 9 years old, of 21 White Street, died late Wednesday night in Gouverneur Hospital of injuries he had received on Monday when he was struck by a motor truck at Ridge and Broome Streets, near his home. Joseph Dorfman of 265 East Broadway, arrested on suspicion of being the driver of the truck, pleaded not guilty and was released in $3,500 bail for examination on Dec. 1.

Mrs. Elvira Latorga, 57 years old, of 112 143d Street, Jamaica, Queens, was crossing Hillside Avenue at 144th Street with an umbrella screening her from the rain, when she was struck and killed by an automobile. The automobile, which had a Florida license, according to the police, was being driven by the owner, Daniel Deisett of 12 West Fifty-eighth Street, Manhattan.

As the result of a fractured skull suffered when he was run down by an automobile, August Gruber, 74 years old, of 409 Nelson Avenue, Grantwood, died in Hamilton Sanitarium, Hackensack, yesterday. Anthony Joes of Palisades Park, the driver, is held in $1,500 bail. This is the third pedestrian to be killed in that section since Sunday.

THE SPINSTERS GIVE DANCE FOR CHARITY

Spence School Alumnae Also Appear in an Entertainment at Park Lane.

The Spinsters, an organization of the alumnae of Miss Spence's School, held a supper dance last night at the Park Lane to raise funds for the various charitable enterprises which it helps to support. A number of dinner and theatre parties preceded the dance, the parties arriving at the Park Lane shortly after 11 o'clock.

Miss May Leslie devised and staged an entertainment program which was presented shortly after midnight. Members of The Spinsters took part with the assistance of some of their friends. Dancing was the feature of the program and several repetitions of the dance steps demanded. The "Black Bottom" as presented by the Misses Noel Chatillion, Marien Gould, Mary Sheppard, Katherine Ward, Janice Jefferson and Frances Masury, found particular favor.

Junior Catholic Big Sisters Dance.

A dance will be given tonight at the Concourse Plaza under the auspices of the Junior Catholic Big Sisters, a branch of the Big Sisters organization, whose members live in the Bronx and Westchester County. Mrs. Alfred E. Smith and Mrs. James J. Walker are among the patronesses.

Mrs. Philip Kearns Jr. is Chairman of the Arrangements Committee, on which are the Misses Cecile Martin, Frances Williams, Adelaide Smith, Loretta Neilan, Nonie Kearns, Madeline Falk, Lenore Herman, Blanche and Florence Taylor, Margaret Saul and Margaret Lynch.

Dickens Fellowship Meets Tonight.

The monthly meeting of the Dickens Fellowship of New York will be held at the National Arts Club, 15 Gramercy Park, tonight at 8 o'clock.

There will be an exhibition of Pickwick items, and Dr. Howard Duffield, pastor emeritus of the First Presbyterian Church of New York and Moderator of the New York Presbytery, will speak on "Pickwick Papers: A Dickens Panorama of Merrie England." There will also be music and singing. All Dickens lovers are invited to attend.

Carroll Club to Give Musicale.

The first of the regular musicales of the Carroll Club will be given on Sunday afternoon in the clubhouse at 120 Madison Avenue. John Carroll will sing. After the recital, tea will be served to members and their guests. Miss Anna Hynes, director of the club, has announced that the Sunday afternoon entertainments will be continued through the Winter.

PROTEST PALESTINE LOAN.

Daily Express Says Guarantee by Parliament Is Inadvisable.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—The fact that the British Parliament is to be asked to guarantee a loan of £4,500,000 to Palestine raises a protest from The Daily Express, which points out that Palestine already is indebted to the British taxpayers to the extent of £4,000,000 and to the bondholders of the Ottoman public debt for approximately £1,000,000.

The paper says Palestine lays claim to a surplus in revenue over expenditures during the last six years, but this surplus has not been used to pay debts or even the interest on them. The article adds:

"Great Britain is charged with the tasks both of helping to build up a national home for the Jews and of seeing that the civil and personal rights of the Arab population are protected. Members of Parliament who vote for the loan will not only pledge British credit but at the same time approve the Zionist policy to make Palestine a Jewish State in spite of our promise to the Arabs."

SUNNING PASSENGERS SAFE.

HONGKONG, Nov. 18.—A naval escort has been dispatched to meet the Chinese steamer Hongpeng, which reports an outbreak aboard that resulted in twenty casualties. Presumably the trouble was caused by the deportees aboard.

The British destroyer Verity has arrived here with the Russian woman passenger of the steamer Sunning, who, with other passengers, drifted nine hours in an open boat until picked up by a Norwegian steamer.

She reports that once they came near a boatload of Chinese pirates, whom they scared off with pistol shots.

Dinner for Square Club.

The Men's Bible class of the Park Avenue Baptist Church last night held a dinner in the basement of the church at Sixty-fourth Street for members of the Square Club, a Masonic organization composed of members of the Police Department. The Bible class is often known as the "Rockefeller Bible class," as John D. Rockefeller Jr. is Honorary President. He was not at the dinner. Speakers included Inspector George Harley, President of the Square Club; Dr. Robert McLaughlin, President of the Bible class, and Dr. Arthur Bestor, leader of the class.

Hiram Abrams Estate to Widow.

All but $5,000 of the estate of Hiram Abrams, President of the United Artists Corporation, is given to his widow, Mrs. Florence Abrams, by his will filed for probate yesterday. The value of his estate was not made known. The $5,000 legacy is to Mrs. Etta Schalit of Boston, a sister. The will explains that no provision is made for the testator's adopted daughter, Grace, because he is certain that his wife will provide for her.

United States Judge Julian W. Mack was honored on the occasion of his sixtieth birthday, last night, as the guest of honor at the annual dinner of Young Judea. The speakers included Sophie Irene Loeb, Max D. Steuer and Rabbi Elias Margolies.

Dr. William S. Rainsford of Ridgefield, Conn., who for twenty-five years was rector of St. George's Episcopal Church, Stuyvesant Square, was the guest of honor at the nineteenth annual reunion dinner of more than 300 of his friends and former parishioners, last night, at the Hotel Astor.

The Albany Society of New York, an organization of business and professional men formerly residents in the State capital, held its semi-annual dinner, last night, at the Hotel Roosevelt.

W. E. SACKETT DIES; VETERAN EDITOR

Knew Every Important New Jersey Politician of Two Generations.

ON NEW YORK TIMES STAFF

Wrote Books on Political Battles—Once Secretary of the U. S. Industrial Commission.

William Edgar Sackett, journalist and author, for the last six years a member of the news staff of THE NEW YORK TIMES, died yesterday morning at his home, 554 Central Avenue, East Orange, N. J., after an illness of only a few hours. He was 78 years old.

Most of Mr. Sackett's long newspaper career was spent in New Jersey, and few political writers have had a wider acquaintance or more friends among the politicians of that State. He knew personally practically every important man in the life of New Jersey during the last two generations.

Wrote Books on Politics.

His exceptional knowledge of the history of New Jersey in this period is shown in his book, "Modern Battles of Trenton," of which the first volume appeared in 1895, and was followed in 1915 by a second that brought the narrative down to the latter date. "How Wilson Became President," published in 1918, was another work that could only have been written by one who had been close to and often a part of the political struggle. The volume, "New Jersey's First Citizen," 1917, was edited by Mr. Sackett.

Born in New York City May 23, 1848, the son of William E. and Josephine Findlay Sackett, Mr. Sackett was educated at the Anthon School and the New York Free Academy. His first intention was to become a lawyer and he studied for three years, from 1865 to 1868, in the law office of Chester A. Arthur, later President of the United States.

Takes Up Newspaper Work.

Newspaper work soon appealed more strongly to him, however, and by 1874 he had taken charge of the New Jersey bureau of THE NEW YORK TIMES. After eight years he left this post to establish in Jersey City The Sunday Morning News, which later became The Jersey City Daily News. His connection with this enterprise was brief and in 1885 he began an association with The New York Herald that lasted for eleven years as New Jersey editor.

There followed a period of some years in Washington, during which he widened his experience in political reporting as a free lance correspondent. He was on The Herald staff during the war with Spain and then acted for two years as Secretary of the United States Industrial Commission. He was epigram editor for the Democratic national convention of 1908, and thereafter, until he joined THE TIMES for the last time, after an absence of thirty-eight years, he devoted himself to his political history and to writing articles on public affairs for THE TIMES, Herald, Sun and Evening Post.

Sought the Governorship.

Mr. Sackett was a Democrat. In 1913 he announced his candidacy at the primaries for the Governorship of New Jersey. In appealing to the voters, he said, in part:

"No Boss wants me; gentlemen of that fraternity must have been convinced by their experiences in the past, that I am not disposed to let them, or any one else, however exalted, do my thinking for me. No committee of hungry and expectant cacklers is forming to make a big noise in the land for me, and I shall subsidize no band of idolatrous tooters to tell the world how much greater a man I am than I am.

"Thus, I have no machine at my back. Nor want any except that which the people, in the exercise of their sovereign prerogatives of citizenship, shall themselves constitute."

Mr. Sackett married in 1869 Edith Freeman of Easton, Pa., who died in 1895. Five years later he married Mrs. E. M. Gulick of Newark, who survives. There were ten children of the first marriage and two of the second marriage.

Funeral arrangements had not been made last night.

Rev. Ferdinand G. C. Schumm.

The Rev. Ferdinand G. C. Schumm for twenty-three years pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, 422 West Forty-fourth Street, died yesterday in the West Pennsylvania Hospital, in Pittsburgh, where he went last year to take charge of the Church of the Redeemer there. He was 62 years old. Services will be held at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the Church of the Redeemer in this city.

Frederick A. McClure.

WORCESTER, Mass., Nov. 18 (AP).—Frederick A. McClure, for many years City Engineer here, died today at the age of 74. He was a native of Nashua, N. H. He helped to lay out the Boston, Barre & Gardner Railroad and a part of the Union Pacific and was one of the party of engineers that made the survey of the forty-third parallel, the boundary between Nebraska and South Dakota.

Shelly G. Crump.

PITTSFORD, N. Y., Nov. 18 (AP).—Shelly G. Crump, 80, veteran merchant, lecturer and scientist, died here today after a long illness. He was an authority on archeology, geology, ecology, botany and conchology. For a long time he was a member of the American Academy of Science and of the National Geographic Society.

Anne Rhodes, Clubwoman, Dead.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 A. M. tomorrow for Miss Anne Rhodes, a Governor of the Women's National Republican Club, long active in the work of women's clubs in this city, at the residence of her sister, Mrs. H. F. Knowlton, 48 East Forty-ninth Street.

Dr. O. E. Jones.

ROCHESTER, Nov. 18 (AP).—Dr. O. E. Jones, former President of the New York State Medical Society, died in his home here today. He leaves a widow, two sisters and a brother, Dr. J. H. Jones of Dowagiac, Mich.

Benjamin Sire.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., Nov. 18 (AP).—Benjamin Sire, member of the New Jersey Road Horse Association and prominent in amateur racing circles of the State, died of a stroke of apoplexy at his home here last night.

CHARLES S. HERZIG, MINING EXPERT, DIES

New Yorker Who Developed Property on Every Continent Stricken in Idaho.

Special to The New York Times.

WALLACE, Idaho, Nov. 18.—Charles S. Herzig, internationally known mining engineer, died at the Wallace Hospital late last night of complications following an operation a week ago for removal of the appendix and gall bladder. His age was 53.

A transfusion operation was performed Tuesday, when his wife gave a quart of her blood.

Besides his widow, Florence, Mr. Herzig leaves a daughter, Shirley; two brothers, Leo S. and Jacob Herzig, both of New York, and a sister, Mrs. Harry Winsberg of New York, who is now traveling abroad. His family was prominent in the fur business in New York for years. He was a member of the New York Elks and Masonic lodges.

A graduate of Columbia University's School of Mines in 1895, Mr. Herzig for twelve years was on the staff of Herbert Hoover for the Bewick mining engineering firm in London. He interested English mining capital in many large enterprises on the Continent, and was identified with big mining developments in Australia, India, Asia Minor, Africa and South America, as well as in this country.

Burial will be in the family mausoleum, in New York.

MRS. MARION CARLISLE.

Widow of Once Mayor of Chattanooga Dies in Her 89th Year.

Special to The New York Times.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Nov. 18.—Mrs. Marion Carlisle, widow of Major Thomas J. Carlisle, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frank Nieland, 608 Carlisle Place, at noon today. She was in her eighty-ninth year. Since the Civil War she had been prominent in social and civic affairs in Chattanooga. Her husband was Mayor of this city at the time of the yellow fever scourge of 1878 and was the head of the devoted band who remained here during the pestilence and forfeited his life, falling victim to the disease after having rendered valiant service to others.

Mrs. Carlisle was born in Iowa City, Iowa, May 22, 1838, coming to Chattanooga in 1864 to join her husband, who at that time was in the Quartermaster Department of the Army of the Cumberland. Noteworthy among her interesting experiences during the Civil War was the fact that, owing to the difficulty of travel in those trying days, she was shipped by way of Nashville to Chattanooga as "medical supplies" for the army.

Mrs. Carlisle was formerly Miss Marion A. Bending, daughter of Guerdon and Charlotte Bending, who were of English descent. She was educated in a convent in New Orleans. She was one of the most widely known and beloved pioneer citizens.

During the yellow fever epidemic Mrs. Carlisle stood by her husband in his effort to alleviate suffering, taking an active part in caring for the sick and helping to bury the dead. Her activities continued after the death of her husband.

Mrs. Carlisle was the oldest communicant of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, and had during her entire lifetime taken an active part in the affairs of the church and in charitable organizations. Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Frank Nieland, Mrs. Cornelia Carlisle Reid of this city and Mrs. R. E. Ulbright of Havana, Cuba.

CHARLES W. MANY DEAD.

Treasurer of the Remington Arms Co. Stricken at 56 Years.

DUCHESS OF ST. ALBANS.

Woman Who Shared Driving Honor With King and Queen Dies.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—The Duchess of Saint Albans, who shared with the King and Queen the prerogative of driving in Rotten Row, famous Hyde Park road reserved for equestrians, died today after a short illness. She was the daughter of the late Ralph Osborne, who, under the name of Bernal Osborne, gained fame as a wit. The first Duke of Saint Albans was the son of Charles the Second and Nell Gwynne.

The late Ralph Bernal Osborne was a Member of Parliament. In 1874 his daughter Grace became the second wife of the tenth Duke of St. Albans, who died in 1898. They had two sons and three daughters. The present Duke is a son of the earlier marriage. His heir is his half-brother, a son of the Duchess who has just died, Lord Osborne de Vere Beauclerk.

From the Founder's Writings

First Be Sure That You Have Not Got

a beam or a mote in your own eye before you attempt a surgical operation on other people's eyes. "That's fine," the man said when he heard it; "where did it come from?" "Thy tongue," dear man, "betrayeth thee," as an old poet has written.

How little some of our fathers taught us, while the old fathers in Israel taught their children daily from "The Book of the Law," until they had it almost word for word. But the point in this conversation is to be careful that we are not in fault ourselves when we speak unkindly of and take exceptions to others.

Careless speech often parts people who should be friends and who might be very helpful to each other.

The whole idea of all this large business we are spending so much of our time, thought and strength upon is to be exceptionally and unequivocally helpful to its patrons.

We prepare ourselves thoroughly to do this one thing.

For whatever else comes to us will be satisfactory compensation.

SUBSIDY, IF NEEDED, URGED FOR OUR SHIPS

Board Hears Pleas for Large Merchant Marine, Privately Owned and Operated.

WANT GOVERNMENT TO QUIT

Companies Fear Competition, Says Representative of the Steamship Association.

PLUNKETT ASKS SPEED

Retired Navy Officer Also Joins in Appeal for Action— Yards Are Disappearing, He Warns.

An adequate and augmented American merchant marine, privately owned and operated, with Government subsidy in one form or another, as may be necessary, was unanimously favored by the speakers who appeared yesterday at the hearing before the Shipping Board, at the Merchants' Association rooms in the Woolworth Building. It was the first of two hearings, which will end a series, on the results of which the board will formulate its report to Congress under the Jones Senate resolution.

While there was no diversity of opinion on the main issue, there were wide differences as to some details. At one point of the hearing Ira Campbell, general counsel for the American Steamship Owners' Association, said that the shipping men wanted the Government to get out of the shipping business. He also intimated that the board had used parts of its laid-up fleet to cut rates. This was denied by Chairman T. V. O'Connor of the board.

"You have made a real criticism when you mention the breaking down of freight rates," he told Mr. Campbell. "I deny that the Shipping Board has ever done that. But I plead guilty to the charge that we have broken into our reserve ships to save the farmers and the cotton growers from bankruptcy. We put those ships out last summer when the British coal strike made ships unobtainable anywhere at any price, to save the farmers and the cotton growers, and we would do it again in the same circumstances. But we did not break down freight rates. We have never put out a ship at rates lower than the conference rates, and as long as I am Chairman of this board we will see that reasonable rates are maintained."

Mr. O'Connor's reference was to sixty-two ships that were taken out of the laid up fleet for the benefit of cotton, fruit, flour, lumber and tobacco men who could not get vessels at the time.

Objects to Penalty Bond.

Mr. Campbell, who it was said represented about 90 per cent. of the privately owned American tonnage, said that the American Steamship Owners' Association believed the board was wrong in insisting on the penalty, or bond, in selling services, holding that if a private interest took over the service and did its best with it, putting in its own capital, it should not ultimately be penalized if it failed in competition with foreign lines through conditions over which the private interest had no control.

"Fundamentally we want to see the Government get out of the shipping business," said Mr. Campbell. "So long as it remains in the business, with a large fleet that can be put into service at any time, there is a feeling of nervousness on the part of the men in the business."

Captain John K. Robinson, retired, who was a Rear Admiral during the war, declared that the board should see that more ships were built at once.

"The necessity for an American merchant marine," he said, "is not relative, it is absolute, as far as the navy is concerned. It may be desirable that the ships be privately owned, but the ships themselves are an absolute necessity. We now have 8,000,000 tons of merchant marine and we have got to have at least that tonnage. You, therefore, have to build ships at once or your merchant marine is running down. And if you don't build the ships pretty soon you won't be able to build them in America. We haven't many shipyards left as it is, and I heard today of two more that are going out of business. We have left only half the shipyards we had before the war."

Rear Admiral Charles P. Plunkett had spoken in a similar vein at the opening of the session. He declared that competent men were hard to get in the shipbuilding business and that the skilled labor had gone over to the building business. "If this country can't build ships and go on the seas, it's done," he said.

Urges More Ships.

Failure to establish an adequate merchant marine, he declared, interfered with this country's disarmament policy.

M. A. Kerwin, for the Merchants' Association, read a brief report setting forth that the association favored private ownership and operation with Government aid for trade routes essential to the foreign commerce of American business and the national defense.

Charles H. Porter, representing the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York, read a resolution adopted by the chamber favoring the building and maintenance of an adequate merchant marine with private capital and private operation, and holding that legislation should be passed to "remove the disability which the American merchant marine is now operating under."

Robert Huntington of the Seaman's Institute Merchant Marine School advocated the cadet system and the extension of the school ship system in the training of young men for the merchant marine.

William H. Douglas made a plea for the shippers, pointing out that the American merchant cannot ship wholly in American bottoms for the reason that he cannot hold his shipments waiting for American steamers to Australia or elsewhere, and said that foreign buyers frequently had to be considered, as they ask for shipments on vessels of another nation. He expressed hope that after every ship was sold the Shipping Board would remain in existence to protect the shippers.

Chairman O'Connor, in opening the session, said that if the merchant marine was to be transformed and adequately maintained in the hands of private American capital in the immediate future instead of ultimately, some form of Government aid was necessary to enable the American owner to overcome the advantages gained by the foreign owner through his long training and entrenchment during the many years that America was off the oceans. "In addition," he said, "there is a somewhat higher capital charge burdening the American owner, due to higher construction costs in this country. These are the principal handicaps."

The hearing will be resumed at 10:30 this morning.

Sabbath Sentence to Prison Brings Writ for His Release

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 18—James Clark, who was sentenced last Sunday by a Justice of the Peace in the Village of Pleasantville to four months in the Westchester County Penitentiary and fined $100, obtained a writ of certiorari from Supreme Court Justice Joseph Morschauser today directing his release from the penitentiary.

Justice Morschauser remanded Clark for trial before the Justice on "some week day when he has a legal right to try him." In the meantime, Clark was paroled in the custody of his attorney.

"No Justice of the Peace can try a person for a misdemeanor on Sunday," was the comment of Justice Morschauser, as he sustained the writ.

CATO SELLS WEEPS AT BARNETT TRIAL

Former Commissioner Tells of Trying to Get Money for an Indian Hospital.

CRIES DESCRIBING FAILURE

Plan Abandoned, He Says, When Contest Arose Over Gift to Baptists.

The suit to prevent Jackson Barnett, a seventy-nine-year-old Creek Indian, from establishing a fund of $550,000 for the benefit of the American Baptist Home Mission Society, being heard by Federal Judge Knox, brought to the witness stand yesterday Cato Sells, who testified at times in a voice choked with tears. Mr. Sells, answering questions, said that while he was Commissioner of Indian Affairs under President Wilson he was anxious to build for the Indians a hospital to cost $1,000,000.

Mr. Barnett was to furnish the money because he was rich enough, through money which came to him because of the oil found on his reservation of 160 acres in Oklahoma. The witness described the hospital he had in his mind, and broke down as he explained to Judge Knox that the plan was very close to his heart.

He said his first meeting with Barnett was while Barnett was walking on his reservation wearing a leather coat, not looking like a man with an income of $10,000 a month. Mr. Sells said he learned that Barnett wanted to give a large sum to the Baptist Church and he had gone to the Indian's home to see whether the gift had actually been made. Barnett, he said, lived in a four-room shack. The witness said that he spoke to Carl J. O'Hornett, then Barnett's guardian, about supplying the old Indian with a few luxuries, and that O'Hornett had replied that Barnett was so well satisfied with the few necessities he received that he would accept nothing more.

The witness asserted that Barnett wanted to build the hospital and live near it in a house of his own, but that the idea had to be abandoned because of the contest arising over the gift to the Baptist Society. In the period while it was under consideration, he said, Barnett gave $200,000 toward a $75,000,000 fund which the Southern branch of the Baptist Church was seeking to raise, and newe came to him that Barnett was about to marry Mrs. Lowe, who is now his wife. Mr. Sells shed tears again when he described his attempt to prevent the marriage.

The greater part of the afternoon was spent in introducing documentary evidence. Carroll G. Walter's, counsel for Elmer S. Bailey, Barnett's guardian, the plaintiff, said the only witness he still had to examine would not be able to be in court until Monday.

RAILROAD ON TRIAL FOR MANSLAUGHTER

Prosecution of Susquehanna & Western for Deaths of Betrothed Couple Starts.

Special to The New York Times.

HACKENSACK, N. J., Nov. 18.—The New York, Susquehanna & Western Railroad was placed on trial before Judge W. M. Zufert and a jury in the Bergen County courts at Hackensack today on a charge of manslaughter, in that on Aug. 17 a milk train crashed into an automobile at the Moore Street crossing, Hackensack, and killed Victoria Reed and William Lundkvist, both of Teaneck, who were engaged to be married. Three others were injured.

Mayor N. D. Campbell and former Mayor Spencer D. Baldwin were called as witnesses to produce written appeals to the company for gates and bells and the company's replies promising to do so.

The engineer, Frank Barton, said it looked to him as if the driver of the automobile, John J. Kirby, had stalled as he got on the tracks, almost in front of the train.

There are six women on the jury.

$25,834 MORE FOR Y. W. C. A.

Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial Gives $25,000.

The Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial gave yesterday $25,000 to the Young Women's Christian Association of the city as a contribution toward the 1927 budget campaign. The announcement was made by Mrs. William Henry Hays, Treasurer of the Y. W. C. A., at a campaign luncheon at Central Branch Y. W. C. A. The total contributions reported by Mrs. Hays for the special gifts committee amounted to $25,834.

The campaign total yesterday reached $215,765.89. The campaign goal is $265,000. Mrs. William T. Payne, Chairman of the board of management of the studio club of the Y. W. C. A., reported $7,330 toward the Studio Club building fund.

Newark Bay Bridge to Open Nov.27

The formal opening of the new $14,000,000 four-track bridge of the Central Railroad of New Jersey over Newark Bay will take place Saturday, Nov. 27, and not this Saturday, as was reported in THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday.

ENGINEER DENIES ASHOKAN LEAKAGE

In Report to Mayor, City Expert Says Supply Fell Because of Unusual Demands.

HE WARNS OF SHORTAGES

And Urges That Plans Be Pushed to Meet Emergencies—Dr. Berkey of Columbia Confirms Findings.

J. Waldo Smith delivered to Mayor Walker yesterday his report on the condition of the Ashokan reservoir and the New York City water supply. The report contains an unqualified denial of reports published last month to the effect that there was serious leakage through the bottom of the Ashokan reservoir.

Following denials of that printed report, Mayor Walker directed Mr. Smith, who is consulting engineer of the Board of Water Supply, to investigate the allegations. In his report Mr. Smith says:

"Since receiving your letter of Oct. 27, in which you requested me to advise you in detail regarding the conditions at Ashokan reservoir, particularly the leakage alleged to exist by The New York Herald Tribune, I have personally made a careful examination of the reservoir and dam and all points that seemed to have any bearing on the problem. I have also had the assistance of Dr. Charles F. Berkey, Professor of Geology at Columbia University, who is internationally known as an expert in industrial geology and is particularly familiar with the geology of Southern New York. He has made an examination and submitted a report, which is attached. In view of these investigations I am confident there is no leakage.

"The principal reasons why the Ashokan reservoir is so low at the present time are:

"1. Thirty per cent. more water has been drawn from the reservoir than it was designed to give or that anyone expected it could continuously supply.

"2. Two consecutive years, 1925 and 1926, have been drier than any other two consecutive years in the twenty-year record, but they can be considered only moderately dry.

"3. Because of continuous excessive draft during previous years the reservoir was at a low level at the beginning of the season and the situation was further aggravated by lack of accumulated snow during the Winter or of heavy rains during the Spring and Summer.

"Such conditions, or worse, may occur at any time in the future.

"I feel that I would be failing in my duty to you and to the city if I did not direct your attention at this time to the present condition of the water supply, as set forth in the two reports now in the hands of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, and the necessity for approving at the earliest possible date a project to increase the present supply. I am certain that, even with supply."

In his appended report Professor Charles F. Berkey of Columbia University says in part:

"In connection with the question recently raised concerning the behavior of Asbokan Reservoir, an examination has been made of the geological features that have possible bearing. The locality and its physical features have been studied many times before with great care and its problems have been familiar to the writer for the past twenty years. But the recent agitation over the question of leakage has led me again to give special attention to the matter of water-tightness at the reservoir and dam, as well as the behavior of streams and other waters, both above and below the dam.

"After making such an examination, one is obliged to conclude that the behavior at the present time at Ashokan is absolutely normal. There is no doubt whatever about the water tightness of the reservoir and the efficiency of the dam."

STOKES SAYS WHITNEY FAILS IN GRATITUDE

New Jersey Republican Chief Denies He Is Cause of Party Disorganization.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 18.—Republican State Chairman E. C. Stokes today accused former State Senator Arthur Whitney of Morris County of ingratitude and childishness. The utterance was prompted by the statement of Mr. Whitney yesterday that the former Governor's reported ambitions for a seat in the United States Senate were partly responsible for the present disorganization in the Republican Party.

Mr. Whitney also expressed his opposition to a repeal of the direct primary act, saying that if the Legislature next year embraced any such scheme, the retribution of the voters would be swift and certain.

Mr. Stokes declared that he remained Chairman of the Republican State Committee after the 1925 campaign, when Mr. Whitney lost the Governorship, only at Mr. Whitney's personal request. He said he had served the party for years, often at the expense of his aspirations, and had worked for harmony.

With regard to the Senatorship, Mr. Stokes said he had made no announcement of his candidacy and would not want the Republican nomination unless he was sure that the party wanted him.

"When Mr. Whitney warns the Legislature against repealing the Primary act," said Mr. Stokes, "the former Senator apparently does not understand the proposition which is being considered."

MUST PAY CHAUFFEUR $500.

Mrs. Evans Loses Appeal in Malicious Prosecution Suit.

Special to The New York Times.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 18 (AP).—Mrs. Lettis P. Evans of Hot Springs and New York today lost a case in the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals in which Ellis Michaelson, formerly her chauffeur, sued her for malicious prosecution in the Circuit Court of Bath County and won a verdict for $500, judgment of the lower court being affirmed today.

The suit grew out of Michaelson being discharged by William Giles, her caretaker, and failing to leave her premises at Hot Springs after being ordered to do so. Giles swore out a warrant charging the chauffeur with trespass. Michaelson spent three hours in jail and was then dismissed when Giles failed to appear against him in court. In the suit which he brought against Mrs. Evans, she was held responsible for the act of her agent.

Nation's Christmas Clubs Set a Record; Save $398,268,000; $76,090,430 in This Area

A record Christmas Club distribution of $398,268,000 will be made by 7,600 banks of the United States, beginning within the next few days, according to an announcement yesterday by the Christmas Club, 45 West Forty-fifth Street. In the distribution 7,800,000 members will participate. The sum is about 27 per cent. larger than last year's distribution of $314,154,800. The membership has increased 11½ per cent. The average distribution is $51.32 for each member, against $44.88 for 1925, an increase of about 11 per cent.

It is estimated by H. F. Rawll, founder and President of the Christmas Club, that $179,421,380 of Christmas Club savings will flow into the country's stores to pay for Christmas purchases, $110,146,400 will be deposited in permanent thrift and savings accounts, $47,186,382 will pay insurance premiums and mortgage interests, $42,761,190 will go for taxes and $18,752,648 will take care of fixed charges meturing in the holiday season.

The Christmas Club, organized sixteen years ago, will distribute $76,090,430 in the metropolitan district and $45,000,000 in the five boroughs of the city. The distribution in the metropolitan district will be as follows:

Manhattan Borough	17,287,400
Kings Borough	17,287,400
Bronx Borough	6,138,780
Queens Borough	7,294,370
Richmond Borough	642,100
Westchester County, N. Y.	8,864,000
Hudson County, N. J.	6,790,000
Bergen County, N. J.	1,104,380
Essex County, N. J.	4,960,240
Passaic County, N. J.	2,718,960
Union County, N. J.	2,346,400
Middlesex County, N. J.	1,110,600
Monmouth County, N. J.	960,400
Fairfield County, Conn.	1,720,800
Total	$76,090,430

Checks to members will vary in size from $12.50 to $1,000. They represent sevings in Christmas Club accounts in banks, trust compsnies and other financial institutions by members paying weekly amounts that vary from 25 cents to $20.

"Massachusetts leads the States in per capita savings in this movement, with New York and Pennsylvania not far behind," seys the announcement. "The largest Christmas Club in the United States is operated by the Benk of the Manhattan Company in its thirty-six branches in Queens and Brooklyn. The club numbers 65,000 members with an aggregate deposit of $3,500,000. In Manhettan one of the largest distributions will be made by the State Bank. Members of their Christmas Club will receive $800,000. The Mount Vernon Trust Company of Mount Vernon, N. Y., the first bank in New York State to install the plan, will pay out about $400,000,or $10 per capita, to the citizens of that community.

"The Union National Benk of Schenectady has the biggest club of any city of its size in the country with a distribution of $510,000. Lockport, N. Y., has the biggest per capita distribution of any city in the country. More than $325,000 will be distributed there by the Niagara County National Bank, or an average of $15.50 per capita. Th Peoples Bank and Trust Company of Westfield, N. J., the first bank in New Jersey to install the system, will pay out about $140,000."

CALLS SKYSCRAPERS CITY'S CHIEF ASSET

Harvey W. Corbett Says the Auto Is Greatest Bar to Solving Traffic Problem.

DEBATES WITH CURRAN

Declares Tall Buildings Have Proved Their Efficiency in Congested Areas.

A defense of the skyscraper as New York's greatest asset was made yesterday by Harvey Wiley Corbett, internationally known architect and former President of the Architectural League of New York. Speaking at a meeting of the New York Building Congress at the Hotel Biltmore, Mr. Corbett said recent attacks on the skyscraper by Thomas A. Edison and others were unjustified, as the automobile, and not the tall building, constitutes the greatest menace to a solution of the traffic problem.

Mr. Corbett's speech was in the nature of a debate with Henry H. Curran, counsel of the City Club, who had advocated the limitation of building heights. Disclaiming any attempt at a rebuttal of Mr. Corbett's remarks, Mr. Curran, who was introduced by R. H. Shreve, President of the Congress, reiterated his previous views.

Transportation is a separate problem to be worked out by engineers, said Mr. Corbett, who described the skyscraper in congested centres as the most efficient method of doing business, with much of the traffic taken off the streets by elevators in what he called "vertical traneportation." "The subject in this controversy," he said, "must be approached with an open mind. Our present growth with the increase in tall structures must be permitted to continue without a blanket indictment against the skyscraper. Reducing the height of buildings would not relieve traffic. That would only eliminate personal contact and cause a spread of interests over a greater area.

Skyscrapers Efficient, He Says.

"Decentralization has been suggested as a remedy, but this seems to me to be a fetish of the city planner, who alweye wants the other fellow to do the decentralizing. If the skyscraper is regarded as a thing of modern invention, I think it has proved its efficiency as a factor in modern business. You can't stop its growth, which is organic and means progress."

The plan for the limitation of building heights would kill the growth of the city, said Mr. Corbett, citing the great amount of business which is carried on within the skyscraper without recourse to the city's streets. He urged Mr. Curran to continue his work for the development of parks and open spaces in the city.

Turning to Mr. Curran, the speaker said: "I congratulate you on bringing this problem to the attention of New York and the United States as a whole. It is a national and not a purely local matter requiring solution in practically every large community throughout the country."

COMPANY UNIONS ASSAILED.

Pledge to Remedy Conditions of Subway Men Made at Labor Council.

Company unions, or unions entirely within one organization, were denounced at the meeting of the Central Trades and Labor Council at Beethoven Hall, Fifth Street, near Second Avenue, last night. The progress of unionizing in regular manner the employee of the Interborough Rapid Transit and the Brooklyn and Manhattan Transit Companies was described by P. J. Shea, a delegate from the American Street and Electric Railway Workers' Union.

Mr. Shea said that it would be only a short time before "the poor working conditions under which the I. R. T. and B. M. T. men labored" would be remedied.

TRY TO DEPOSE RUSH IN DEMOCRATIC CLUB

Insurgents Name George Atwell for Presidency of National Organization.

BLOOM PLEDGES SUPPORT

Selection of Other Candidates Delayed—Full List Will Be Filed by Next Monday.

Approximately two hundred members of the National Democratic Club who are opposed to the re-election of Thomas E. Rush as President met last night in the music room of the Hotel Biltmore and organized a campaign committee to support George J. Atwell, wealthy contractor, head of the insurgent ticket. It was decided to postpone the naming of the rest of the insurgent ticket to receive suggestions.

County Clerk William T. Collins presided. Peter J. Brady, President of the Federation Bank, asserted that the insurgents should accept no candidate who "pussyfooted" or assumed an attitude of compromise. Mr. Brady added that some of the present officers might be entitled to the insurgents' support, but that they should not be placed on the insurgent ticket if they took a position against it.

Telegrams pledging support to Mr. Atwell were received from Representative Sol Bloom, James J. Reardon and Otto B. Shulhof. Among those at the meeting was Nathan Hirsch, who is credited with having placed the club in a sound financial condition by selling its old cluh house for $1,060,000 and buying its new club house for $286,000, which supporters of Mr. Rush have claimed as the principal achievement of his administration.

An Executive Committee was authorized to name the rest of the insurgent ticket and file nomination petitions with not fewer than twenty-five signatures with the cluh's Secretary by next Monday.

The "regular" nominees in addition to Mr. Rush, as named by the Nominating Committee, are Herbert H. Lehman for First Vice President; Kenneth O'Brien for Second Vice President, Arthur Philbin for Treasurer, Frank McIntyre for Secretery and Caleb Redfern for Corresponding Secretary. The "regulars" have dropped Howard E. Lippincott, City Court Judge Edward B. La Fetra and Washington L. Jaques, present members of the Board of Governors, and nominated to succeed them Laurence McLaughlin, Municipal Court Justice John McTigue and John F. O'Brien.

ATTACKS MAYOR ON HOUSING

Harold Riegelman Accuses Him of Blocking State Plan.

Mayor Walker is charged with using the Hecksher housing proposal as a means of obstructing operation of the State Housing law in a statement made public yesterday by Harold Riegelman, Chairman of the Housing Committee of the Republican County Committee. The statement follows:

"Mayor Walker's part in using Mr. Hecksher's housing proposal as the occasion for obstructing the broad progressive program embodied in the State Housing law is utterly indefensible. That program can go forward only when the city exercises its right to exempt new housing undertaken under the Housing law from local taxation. This fact was called to the Mayor's attention in May. He did nothing. In June Mrs. John T. Pratt introduced in the Board of Aldermen the necessary ordinance. It was pigeonholed. The same fate befell a similar ordinance introduced by a Democratic Alderman.

"The State Housing law, drafted and introduced by Republicans and approved by the Governor, was a non-partisan effort motivated purely by concern for the public interest.

"If the Mayor is bent upon frustrating that law he is certainly going about it effectively. Housing relief in this city awaits the pleasure of James J. Walker."

'KING' PURNELL HELD ON NEW COMPLAINT

Cult Leader Is Taken to Court on Stretcher for Arraignment on Woman's Charge.

BAIL IS NOW $125,000

Benton Harbor Officials Threaten Arrest of the Whole Colony to Protect Witnesses.

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Nov. 18 (AP).—"King" Benjamin Purnell, leader of the House of David colony at Shiloh, neer here, was arrested again today on a warrant sworn to by a former woman member of his cult and was carried on a stretcher to court, where he gave $5,000 hail, immediately returning to Shiloh in an ambulance.

The new complainant against Purnell is Mrs. Bessie Woodworth, who alleges a statutory offence in 1921. Bonds for the aged House of David leader now total $125,000, he having been released yesterday on $120,000 bail to answer charges preferred by two young women.

Officials took precautions to guard State witnesses after Mrs. Woodworth, who led the State troopers in the raid in which Purnell was taken early yesterday morning, had appealed to Prosecuting Attorney Bookwalter for protection. Mrs. Woodworth had been summoned to the cult headquarters to see her mother, reported "dying." When cult leaders learned that Mrs. Woodworth was to be accompanied by an officer they refused her admittance.

"If the House of David doesn't stop trying to pull fake stuff I will arrest everybody in the colony for obstructing justice," said Mr. Bookwalter. The move to get Mrs. Woodworth to Shiloh, Mr. Bookwalter declared, "was an attempt to monkey with State witnesses."

Attorneys for the leader of the strange cult declare that their defense of Purnell against charges of individuals and the State of Michigan will be carried to the highest courts. Besides criminal charges Purnell faces action by the State which seeks to disband the colony. Followers of Purnell express douht whether he will live to see the end of the litigation into which the colony and Purnell are plunged.

Divorced Wife Denounces Purnell.

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio, Nov. 18 (AP).—"King Ben" Purnell's first wife and daughter said here today that they wanted to see him get "a severe penalty for all his misdeeds."

"During the years he lived in luxury and ease in his colony," the daughter, Sarah Purnell Evans, asserted, "he never did a thing to help mother and me. I've been expecting to see him exposed before the world."

More than thirty years ago Purnell's estranged wife, now Mrs. Angeline Brown Purnell Barnett Stephens, charges, Purnell abandoned her and their daughter, then 2 years old, in the hills of Greenup County, Kentucky. At that time he was a tunnel watchman for a railroad.

Domestic trouble and divorce followed and Purnell became interested in religion, joined the cult in which he later was to become a leader, and turned evangelist.

MRS. SOPER ON STAND AT HER SECOND TRIAL

Witnesses for Woman Accused of Slaying Husband Tell of Stranger's Presence.

ELIZABETHTOWN, N. Y., Nov. 18 (AP).—Mrs. Fannie Soper, took the stand today to relate at her second trial her story of the murder of her third husband, Henry Soper, a deputy sheriff, who was killed as he slept on a couch at the noon hour. Mrs. Soper was convicted at her first trial.

Soper came in about 11:30 o'clock, Mrs. Soper said, and then reated on the couch. They did not quarrel, she asserted. Court adjourned before she had completed her testimony.

The defense presented nearly a score of witnesses, who agreed that a stranger was on the lonely country road near the Soper home on the morning of the murder, last May. Mrs. Ellsbury, Mrs. Soper's daughter, testified that her mother told her of a stranger who came to the farmhouse and shot Soper while he slept.

Three Auburn lawyers declared that the testimony of Albert H. Hamilton, firearms expert, who said that the bullets in Soper's head were fired from a revolver taken from Mrs. Soper, was unreliable. The testimony of Charles E. Walt, another expert, whose testimony at the first trial tended to discredit Hamilton's evidence, was read into the record. Waite, who was connected with the investigation of the Hall-Mills murders in New Jersey, died suddenly Sunday.

NICHOLAS M. BUTLER HOST.

Gives Dinner at Home for Trustees of Carnegie Foundation.

Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, and Mrs. Butler gave a dinner last night at their home, 60 Morningside Drive, for trustees of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching.

The guests included Dr. Henry S. Pritchett, President of the Carnegie Foundation, and Mrs. Pritchett; John H. T. Main, President of Grinnell College, Iowa; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Lamont, Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip, Frederick C. Ferry, President of Hamilton College, and Mrs. Ferry; Chancellor James H. Kirkland of Vanderbilt University, Rush Rhees, President of the University of Rochester, and Mrs. Rhees; Robert E. Vinson, President of Western Reserve University, and Mrs. Vinson; Dr. and Mrs. A. Ross Hill of Kanas City, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Franks, Miss Florence Wardwell, Arthur Hungerford Pollen of England and George E. Norlin, President of the University of Colorado.

Three Policemen Accused of Larceny

Patrolmen Philip Kane, 30 years old, of 3 Dashly Avenue, Rockaway Beach; John Parascauly, 30, of 256 Ridgewood Avenue, Brooklyn, and George Bernstein, 35, of Rockaway Beach, were paroled for a hearing Monday when arraigned yesterday in Jamaica Police Court, charged with grand larceny. They pleaded not guilty. The complainant was Oscar Cramby of 1,227 Butler Avenue, Far Rockaway, who said $329 was taken from him when he was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct at Rockaway Beach.

Mr. Rogers Is for Fewer Cults And for More Cultivation

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Co.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

WICHITA, Kan., Nov. 18.—I see where they captured old King Ben, the perpetual sheik of Michigan. They heve been looking for him for four years, everywhere but in the harem where he has been for twenty years.

Ben is head of a cult. Their side line is to cult-tie-vate whiskers. Whet we need is less cults and more cultivation. Yours,

WILL ROGERS.

ADVENTIST WORKER WINS SLANDER SUIT

Miss Theresa Setzer Gets $1,000 Verdict Against the Rev. A. J. Clark of Trenton.

JURY IN STORMY SESSION

Woman Sought $100,000 for Alleged Statement That She Had Been Intimate With Evangelist.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 18.—Miss Theresa Fetzer, a Bible worker of the Reformed Seventh Day Adventist Church, won a verdict for $1,000 in Mercer Supreme Court here tonight in her suit against the Rev. A. James Clark of Trenton for slander. She had asked $100,000 damages. It was said to he unlikely that the case would be appealed.

So stormy was the jury's session before it had agreed that a court across the corridor was disturbed and a constable had to order the jurors to be quiet.

Miss Fetzer contended that her reputation was ruined by an alleged statement that she had been intimate with an evangelist of the Adventist Church, with whom she was associated in Chicago, Detroit and Pittsburgh. The Rev. Mr. Clark is New Jersey President of the Seventh Day Adventist Conference, the rival organization.

A. B. Fennel of Washington, one of the four lawyers for the plaintiff, declared in his closing address that no amount of money could repay a woman's loss of good reputation.

"If the Rev. Dr. Clark had been preaching the gospel instead of trying to brand this woman, Miss Fetzer would not be here today," Mr. Fennel declared. He attacked the testimony offered by the defense, asserting Miss Fetzer had never previously seen a negro minister of the Seventh Day Adventist Church who testified against her. He also said the janitress of the office building in Pittsburgh, where Miss Fetzer was accused of having been "too intimate" with Dr. J. H. Miller, had given unreliable testimony.

"Some things are more precious than life itself," Mr. Fennel continued. "I mean a good reputation. It is our duty as men to protect our women, instead of throwing them out as abandoned. A verdict of $100,000 for Miss Fetzer would not be a drop in the bucket compared to the real damages that have been done."

Cassel R. Ruhlman of this city and Mill Work Taft of Vermont summed up for the defense. The latter told the jury that a garbled version of the Rev. Mr. Clark's speech had been used as the basis for the present suit. Stress was also laid upon the contact between the plaintiff and Dr. J. H. Miller, the evangelist, when they occupied naturopathic offices in a Pittsburgh building.

"Miss Fetzer lived in Dr. Miller's home in Chicago after he had driven his own wife out," Mr. Taft charged. The divorce obtained by Mrs. Miller is alleged to heve been mantioned in the Akron church as resulting from the alleged intimacy between the evangelist and his Bible worker.

LAGUARDIA'S ELECTION FORMALLY CONTESTED

Hubbard, His Democratic Rival, Starts Court Action—Recount Application Up Today.

Former Sheriff H. Warren Hubbard, Democratic candidate for the House of Representatives in the Twentieth Congressional District, brought contest yesterday against Fiorello H. LaGuardia, his Republican rival, who, on the face of election night returns, appeared to have been re-elected by sixty-five votes. John Godfrey Saxe of 30 Broad Street, Chairman of the Tammany Hall Law Committee, will represent Mr. Hubbard in the proceedings.

Papers in the contest were filed in the Supreme Court and Justice Francis B. Delehanty issued an order restraining the Board of Elections from issuing a certificate of election to Representative LaGuardia. Justice Isidor Wasservogel will hear the application for a re-count in Special Term today.

Mr. LaGuardia, the Board of Elections, County Clerk William T. Collins, George Dobsevage, Socialist candidate, and William Weinstone, Workers' Party candidate for Congressman in the district, have been served in the proceedings, the Election Board being required to produce its record of the canvass and County Clerk Collins the ballots.

STUDENT DEAD IN YARD.

Police Say He Had Been Erratic, Due to Overstudy.

The body of Frederick Stoney, a student, was found in the courtyard at 390 Madison Avenue, where he had lived with his mother, yesterday morning.

Stoney was a graduate of the University of Nebraska and had studied at Williams College and Columbia. His home was in Lincoln, Neb. Recently he had been studying independently, and according to the police, their investigation revealed that he had at times appeared somewhat erratic, the result of overstudy. When found his body was attired in pajamas. His mother, Mrs. Margaret McAfee, knew nothing of his death until other tenants saw the body in the courtyard. The window of his bedroom, which is on the tenth floor, was open.

SUGAR PRICES MAKE RECORDS FOR YEAR

Word That Cuba Will Restrict Crop Again in 1927 Sends Market Skyward.

REFINERS GET 500,000 BAGS

Sales for Day on Exchange Set New Mark of 181,350 Tons —Sugar Shares Rise.

FOREIGN BUYERS BID HIGH

Experts at Odds on Question of Shortage or Oversupply With Beet Supply Next Year.

Advices that President Machado of Cuba would again restrict the Cuban cane crop sent sugar prices to the highest points of the year and swelled trading to record proportions on the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange yesterday. The sugar market opened strongly and in the most exciting session of the year climbed steadily to the close. Sales for the day were 181,350 tons, a total that eclipsed the record of 172,050 tons established on June 24. The news from Cuba also had its effect on the New York Stock Exchange, sugar shares ruling higher in that market.

The advances achieved by sugar futures ranged from eleven to twelve points. Sales of actual sugar to refineries totaled 500,000 bags of Cubas at the year's record prices of 2.875 cents to 3 cents, with plenty of buyers at the latter price. English and Far Eastern buyers offered more than these prices.

Rumors that President Machado would repeat next year the moves to which some traders ascribe the price levels reached by sugar this year have been current for several days, and this, it was thought, gave warning for short sellers to avoid the losses that they might have suffered in yesterday's rising market.

4,500,000 Tons of Cubas.

Yesterday's report on restriction, which came from unofficial but authoritative sources, stated that President Machado would restrict next year's crop to 4,500,000 tons. As a result, Willet & Gray, sugar statisticians, revised their estimate of this year's crop from 5,000,000 tons to the figure stated in the advices. Under an edict already promulgated, President Machado has ordered grinding of the present crop halted until Jan. 1.

The move to restrict the sugar crop found opinion in sugar circles yesterday of a varied nature. Some houses, such as Czarnikow-Rionda & Co., have maintained for some time that restriction was the only solution to Cuba's difficulties. Officials of that corporation argue that Cuba in effect holds the balance of power in the world's sugar markets. They contend that the amount of sugar which Cuba is willing to release in competitive markets regulates world prices for the commodity.

Sees Surplus Despite Cut.

The other side of the question was voiced by Frank C. Lowry, head of a leading sugar house, who said:

"It is true that, because of the extraordinary increase in production, supplies for the last two years have been ahead of the demand, resulting in low prices. As is always the case in such conditions, production, on the one hand, either falls or becomes stationary, and, on the other hand, consumption shows a steady increase. I believe that without any restrictive measures we had reached a position for 1927 where supply and demand were evenly balanced, and, in consequence, a fair price for sugar was assured.

"Sugar is a commodity produced in varying amounts and in many countries of the world. High prices next Spring will certainly increase beet sowings, so that before 1927 is out we again probably will have too much sugar, with a further prospect of a surplus for 1928."

LIMITS CUBA SUGAR CROP.

President Sets Maximum at 4,500,000 Tons—Calls World Conference.

HAVANA, Nov. 18 (AP).—Cuba's next sugar crop will not exceed 4,500,000 tons, a presidential decree issued tonight announces.

The advisory commission appointed by President Machado and headed by Don Rafael Sanchez Aball, the retiring Cuban Ambassador to the United States, now in Havana, recommended today that the crop be limited to 4,500,000 tons. The decree provides for commencement of actual cutting of cane on Jan. 1, thus delaying starting of the mills a few days.

A world sugar conference is provided for to meet in Havana at the end of the harvest, for a complete study of the world's sugar problem.

REFINED SUGAR PRICES UP 10 TO 20 POINTS

Strong Market Caused by Cut in Cuban Crop Estimate to 4,500,000 Tons Brings Rises.

Advances of from 10 to 20 points in the price of refined sugar were announced yesterday by six leading sugar refining companies. In connection with the increase the Lowry Company issued the following statement:

"Owing to the strong raw sugar market due to Willett-Gray having reduced their Cuban crop estimate to 4,500,000 tons, a reduction of 700,000 tons from their original estimate and 500,000 tons from their most recent estimate, we have advanced our price on refined sugar to 6.10 cents per pound and are firm at this list price."

The Lowry increase was one of 20 points, their previous quotation having been 5.90 cents. This was also true of the advances by the American Sugar Refining Company, the Franklin Sugar Refining Company and the Warner Sugar Corporation. Arbuckle Brothers announced an advance in refined of 15 points to 5.85 cents per pound, while the Federal Sugar Refining Company advanced its price 10 points to 5.75 cents per pound.

British refiners have advanced refined sugar 3 pence and hon—grown 4½ pence.

MISS CARDEN BRIDE OF R. M. INGERSOLL

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Carden Married by Bishop Moore of Texas.

IN GRACE CHURCH CHANTRY

Miss Patricia C. Herron Weds Joseph L. Brent in Washington —Other Marriages.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Carden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Alexander Carden of 969 Park Avenue, was married to Ralph McAllister Ingersoll, son of Colin McRae Ingersoll of Evergreen Farm, Salisbury, Conn., yesterday afternoon in the chantry of Grace Church. The ceremony was performed by the Right Rev. Harry T. Moore, Bishop of Texas.

The bride, whose father gave her in marriage, wore a gown of ivory-colored velvet, embroidered with seed pearls and embellished with old point lace. She wore a veil of tulle which fell to the end of the long court train of velvet. Instead of a bouquet the bride carried an ivory bound prayer book, with a marker of lilies of the valley.

Miss Elsie De Normandie of Brookline, Mass., was the maid of honor. She wore a frock of cloth of gold and a picture hat of burnt orange velvet. She carried a bouquet of yellow and orange colored roses. There were two bridesmaids, Miss Jane Hamilton Brady, daughter of James Cox Brady of this city, and Miss Ruth De Witt Pratt of Schenectady. They wore frocks of orange-colored velvet embellished with Venetian lace and picture hats to correspond. They carried bouquets of yellow roses.

The ceremony was followed by a reception at the Plaza.

Behrman—Solomons.

The marriage of Miss Janet Cahn Solomons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edouard J. Solomons of 11 West Eighty-eighth Street, to Morris H. Behrman took place last night at the Ambassador. The Rev. Dr. Stephen S. Wise performed the ceremony, which was followed by a reception. After a wedding trip to White Sulphur Springs Mr. and Mrs. Behrman will make their home at 90 Riverside Drive.

Brent—Herron.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The wedding of Miss Patricia Andrews Herron, daughter of the late William C. Herron of this city and Cincinnati, to Joseph Lancaster Brent, son of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan K. Brent of Baltimore, took place this afternoon in the Bethlehem Chapel of the Washington Cathedral and was followed by a reception at the home of Chief Justice and Mrs. Taft, the latter an aunt of the bride. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. P. J. Jensen, rector of St. Thomas's P. E. Church, Green Spring Valley, and the Rev. Dr. William O. Smith Jr., rector of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Good Shepherd, at Ruxton, Md. The bridal party also came almost in its entirety from Baltimore, where the bride and her mother have been making their home since the death of Mr. Herron.

The bride's attendants were Mrs. H. J. Hughes, her sister; Mrs. Alfred C. Bruce, Miss Peggy C. Ewing, Miss Katharine Street, Mrs. Isaac C. Clifford and Miss Wilmer Kohler, the latter of New York. Duncan K. Brent Jr. was his brother's best man. After a short honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Brent will reside in Baltimore.

Faulkner—Coonley.

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Ferry Coonley of this city to Waldron Faulkner of New York took place this afternoon at Rosedale, the suburban home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Avery Coonley. The Rev. Dr. Ezra Squire Tipple, President of Drew Theological Seminary, at Madison, N. J., officiated. The bride's attendants were Miss Natalie Shipman, of Hartford; Miss Nellie Crews and Miss Adelaide Hooker of New York.

Ashburn—Neale.

Miss Margaret Elise Neale of Orlando, Fla., who has been the guest of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Thomas Q. Ashburn for several weeks, was married today to Lieutenant Thomas Q. Ashburn Jr., U. S. A. Montreal Sextet Defeats New York Americans in the Garden

AMERICAN SEXTET BOWS TO MONTREAL

10,000 See Maroons Win Pro Hockey League Game in the Garden, 2-0.

VICTORS GAIN EARLY LEAD

Get Both Their Goals in First Period on Shots by Broadbent—Their Defense Perfect.

By SEABURY LAWRENCE.

The New York Americans played their first game of the season at Madison Square Garden last night before a crowd of 10,000 spectators, but the occasion was not as auspicious as it might have been, for ths star-spangled team was beaten hy the hard fighting Montreal Maroons hy the score of 2 to 0.

The Maroons played an almost unbeatable hrand of hockey and traveled at top speed throughont ths three periods, both on attack and defense. The clever plays of the Americans were broken up time and again on the iron hound back line made up of Munro, Noble and Benedict. Their individual and combination attacks also were carried out well and only gymnastic goal tending by Jakie Forbes prevented a higher score being rolled up hy the Canadians.

Broadbent, Stewart and Siebert gave sparkling exhibitions of skating and stick handling, and the hustling Broadbent accounted for both scores of the game in the opening period. Burch, Red Green, McKinnon and Roach stood out in the New York offensive, but the combination play of ths Americans was anything hut startling.

Not even the eleventh hour presence of Mayor Walker, who faced the disk for the closing period, could stir the local players up to tying the score, and they went down for their first defeat in the National Pro Hockey League.

Toronto Coach Starts Game.

Jimmy Smythe, coach of the University of Toronto, threw in ths disk and the battle was on. Getting the rubber from Stewart, Langlois made one of his lightning individual dashes, hut his hard shot bounced off Benedict's chest. Alex McKinnon, playing right wing for New York in place of Shorty Green, whose ankle is injured, stimulated the crowd by a good rush, hut his shot also was blocked.

The play was fast from the start, and the disk shot up and down the ice with lightning rapidity, both goalkeepers being showered with hard drives. Joe Simpson was full of running for the home boys, while Broadbent and Stewart were traveling fast for the Maroons. Broadbent finally crashed through the New York defense and on a rebound thrust beat Forbes with a short, hard shot, scoring in 9 minutes 7 seconds of play.

Roach came on at centre for New York, and Simpson, Siebert and Noble were put off in quick succession for roughing. Broadbent, the Maroon right wing, was running wild and scored the second goal of the game for the Canadians after a magnificent individual effort almost the whole length of the ice. The disk was pocketed in 15:47.

Himes and Scott, new players, also got a chance in the opening period on the forward line, hut did nothing spectacular, and the period closed with the count 2 to 0 in favor of the Maroons.

Forbes Is Kept Busy.

After the face-off in the second period Red Green took the disk from Stewart and tried a long shot which was wide. Reg Noble staged a fine individual effort, hut after he had driven almost to the net Forbes cleverly blocked his shot. The Maroons staged a savage attack and Forbes was kept busy making gymnastic stops of the flying rubber.

Scott, playing in place of Red Green, got away for a couple of short runs, but could not penetrate the defense. The game then went into a swift tempo, and the fast, rough play had the crowd in an uproar. Roach, Scott and Simpson staged a great combination attack, and Sleepy Benedict never did liveller work than in stopping their fusillade of shots.

Dunc Munro finally got the disk away, but after a hard drive down the ice was tripped hy Simpson and the latter was put out for two minntes. Carson of the Maroons and Red Green then got into an argument and were also banished. Simpson made a hlinding rush, but his pass-out to McKinnon went wide. Although Bouchard, Simpson and McKinnon closed this session with a rush they could not crash the Canadian defense, and the period ended scoreless for both sides.

Soon after the start of the third period Burch, McKinnon and Red Green opened a drive on the Maroon net, but their fierce onslanght was finally broken up. The Americans were rallying grandly and Red Green took the disc almost to the net hy clever stickwork, forcing Benedict to fall flat on the ice to hlock the shot. Then Dinsmore of the Maroons got away for a good run and shot the rubber past Forbes, hut the play was offside and not allowed.

McKinnon Rnled Off.

Siebert and Dinsmore furnished good runs, but Forbes stopped the shots. Roach went down fast twice, hut Nohle and Munro were too much for Mickey. After a rally, Phillips caged the disc, but this was also offside. McKinnon was put off for tripping and Roach and Red Green carried on the attack swiftly, but to no avail.

With two minutes to go there was a fierce mix-up at the New York net and three of the Americans lay flat on the ice to prevent the tally. The game ended with the Maroons still two goals in front.

10-FOOT PUTT WINS MATCH FOR BARNES

Paired With Farrell, He Also Gets Ace at Fourth to Lead Mid-South Pros.

CRUICKSHANK-DOYLE NEXT

Margin Is One Stroke, Victors Getting 66 on Pinehurst Links—Rain Halts Amateurs.

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 18.—A light rain this morning, which turned into a heavy downpour later, forced postponement of the final eighteen holes in the all-professional and all-amateur golf championships in ths snnual Mid-South events here todey. The pros were able to complete their morning rounds, hut the ameteurs were forced to call the entire play off as a number of teams failed to finish.

Jim Barnes and Johnny Farrell led the professional teams at the half-way mark with a smashing 33—33—66, which was all hnt duplicated hy Bobby Cruickshank and Pat Doyle with 33—34—67. Jim Barnee, flushed with success after his rare feat of a hole-in-one in competition, holed a ten-footer on the last green to lead ths Cruickshank-Doyls team.

McLeod and French Third.

Following the two metropolitan teams in first place were the two veterans, Freddie McLeod and Emmet French, who faced the British pros together in England last Summer, with 37—31—68. The last nine, with five consecutive hirdies, starting at the twelfth, was the high spot of the day's scoring.

The only other pair to get under 70 was Roland Hancock and Fred Hyatt, a North Carolina team, with 69. Joe Turnesa and Johnny Golden, nnother star metropolitan team, fared well with 36—34—70. Turnesa was off form going out, but improved coming in, getting two hirdies. He missed two pnts, which jumped ont of the cup.

Farrell and Barnes had five birdies and an eagle on the eighteen holes, Farrell's contribution being a nice two at the fifteenth. Barnes's ace was the first on the fourth hole since Mac Smith negotiated it during the North and Sonth tourney last Spring.

OTTAWA SEXTET WINS ITS OPENING GAME

Senators Triumph Over Canadiens, 2 to 1—Boston Conquers Detroit, 2 to 0.

MONTREAL, Nov. 18 (AP).—The Ottawa Senetors, runners-up in the National Hockey League last year, started their 1926-27 campaign hy defeating the Canadiens of Montreal here tonight, 2 to 1.

Hooley Smith scored in the first period for the visitors and George Boucher repeated in the final session on a pass from Clancy. Leduc made the Canadiens' only tally in the final five seconds of play. There were hrilliant individual plays, but in general the game was ragged. There were ten penalties, all minors.

Bruins Again Win.

WINDSOR, Ontario, Nov. 18 (AP).—The Boston Bruins, with one victory already to their credit in the National Hockey League, tonight rushed the Detroit Cougars off their feet in the first three minutes of play to win, 2 to 0.

The game was played at the Windsor Arena hefore a capacity crowd of 6,000 persons, ushering in the season for Detroit. Keats starred for the Boston team.

College of the Ozarks Wins.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Nov. 18 (AP).—The College of the Ozarks eleven defeated Arkansas College here today, 19 to 0.

NEW YACHT RULE TO BE FORMULATED

North American Union Votes Resolution Favoring System to Be Used World Over.

NO CHANGES MEANWHILE

Report to Be Made by June, 1927, After Conferences With the International Union.

The adoption of a measurement rule in yachting, which will control racing throughout the world, probably will result from the annual meeting of the North American Yacht Racing Union which was held at the Yale Cluh yesterdey afternoon and evening. The discussion occupied more than six hours. Many authorities on construction and racing either expressed their opinion in person or through letter.

At the conclusion a resolution was formally adopted to hring the question to a head. On a suggestion of Johnston de Forest, although he had no voting power et the meeting, Samuel Dauchy of the Great Lakes Yacht Racing Association offered the following resolution:

Resolved—That the report of the Measurement Rule Committee be eccepted in principle and that it be hereby instructed to confer with the Permenent Committee of the International Yecht Racing Union for the purpose of reaching an agreement, if possible, upon such modifications of the International Rule of Measurement as may be desirable, and report the result of such conference to the Union not leter than June 1, 1927, at a meeting to he called in Chicago or where the Executive Committee may determine to receive such report and to take such action thereon and

Be it further resolved—That the Measurement Rule Committee he and is hereby empowered to edd to its membership for the purpose of such conference.

Be it further resolved—That ths present classes under the Universal Rule ere to be continued as at present as to old and any new boats which may be huilt into them.

Stewart Expresses Views.

The formal drawing up of this resolution was more or less in accord with the views of Commodore W. A. W. Stewart of the Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yecht Club, Chairman of the Rules Committee of the N. A. Y. R. A. Commodore Stewart, who was unahle to be present hecause of business engagements, expressed his ideas in a letter addressed to Clifford D. Mallory, President of the Union. He said:

"The question presented to the Union for consideration by this report is undoubtedly the most important question in yachting today and should he determined only after the unprejudiced and impartial consideration. I know that Mr. Crane and the other members of the committee will be glad to consider in detail the various criticisms of the committee's report that have been made public.

"In regard to the report, it is intended thereby to present a measurement rule in the final form for adoption at this meeting. As the report itself indicates, your committee has not taken final action upon the modifications of the international rule which it helieves are desirahle, and no final form of that rule can properly be presented to the union for adoption unless and until an egreement in regard to such modifications has been reached with the representatives of the International Yacht Racing Union; thus bringing about a uniform measurement rule. I am confident that such an agreement can be promptly reached."

President Mallory, leading up to the final adoption of the resolution, remarked that adoption of the proposed rule, which would ultimately become world-wide, would mean a boon to yacht racing.

Will Not Mean Scrapping Boats.

"The proposed modification of the international rule will not at present mean the scrapping of the racing yachts which will be more or less directly affected by the rule," remarked the President. "The yachts now racing will still he permitted to race under the universal rule. The modification of the international rule as advocated will affect only the 8-meter boats, which were originally huilt under the European system. The adoption of any eight or ten meter classes will he planned under the new rule."

Clinton H. Crane, internetionally known authority on yachting, who had clarified the original discussion of the subject, went further into detail regarding the proposed rule.

"The adoption of a new rule is needed," he said. "However, it is clearly evident that the Universal rule is not applicable to the general progress of yachting. The only conclusion to be reached is to modify the present European rule, which in its present form is not applicable to yecht racing in American waters.

"The general opinion of all is that a 'wholesome boat' is wanted. The present International rule limits the size of the boat, although it has a great freedom of shape.

"The present Universal rule allows no premium on freehoard. On the other hand the International rule does not allow curved hollow lines forward. It is seen that a change in rule can he accomplished only with the cooperation of the yachting centres of Europe."

Wants 10-Year Proviso.

Rohert B. Meyer, Secretary of the Long Island Sound Yacht Racing Association, advocated that if a change in the present rule is to be made it should har further changes for a period of ten years. In the event that it hecomes necessary to make any change, he argued for a notice of three years.

Frank Brown Jones, a charter member of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club and at one time the yacht recorder of the Sound Yacht Racing Association, remarked that the only way to satisfy the advocates of the proposed change would he hy the adoption of three additional classes, 6, 8 and 10-meter yachts, to be built under the International rule.

In the amendments to the general rules of the North American Yacht Racing Union, it was decided that a thirty days' notice of meetings called hy the Executive Committee and sixty days' notice of other meetings shall he given hy mail to the secretaries of all member associations and district organizations.

Curved Masts Discnssed.

Under the clause of "Limits and Penalties" the question of prohibiting curved masts on yachts rating twenty feet and under to he huilt after Dec. 1, 1926, was referred back to the Executive Committee for further discussion. The Lake Yecht Racing Association, which includes the racing on the Great Lakes, were in favor of a permanent prohihition of the curved mast, hnt their opinions were objected to by the majority of the yachtsmen preeent.

The formula for the minimum moulded depth of the keel was also referred beck to the Executive Committee as was the plan for a permanent adoption of a measurement certificate.

Eight of the yacht racing associations composing the North American Union were personelly represented. They were the Barnegat Bay Yacht Racing Association, the Yacht Racing Association of Gravesend Bay, the Great South Bey Yecht Racing Association, the Laks Yacht Racing Association, Lake Michigan Yacht Racing Aseociation, ths Yacht Racing Association of Long Island Sound, the Southern California Yachting Association and the Narraganaett Bay Yacht Racing Fleet.

Among those present at the meeting besides the officials of the union were: Charles D. Mower, P. R. Mallory, Samuel Wetherill, W. Starling Burgess, W. C. Atweter Jr., Henry L. Maxwell, J. Linton Riggs, Frank Brown Jones, Johnson De Forest, C. Sherman Hoyt, Rohert B. Meyer, Commodore George Nichols, Alfred Loomis, Gordon Raymond, Herhert L. Stone, Clinton H. Crane, George W. Elder, Fred M. Hoyt, H. H. Raymond, T. D. Parkman, Herry Growtage, Judgs Charles Simms, Butler Whiting and George Milne of New York.

Also John C. Alden, Charles A. Welch and Josepb Santry of Boston; G. Ernest McCrea and W. J. T. Wright of Toronto; William Gidley and Philip De Wolfe of Providence; Samuel Dauchy, Wilder Gutterson, H. L. and F. Baxter of Chicago; E. M. Chance, T. M. Chance, and Thomas T. Horrocks of Barnegat Bay, and Dr. W. D. Cutler of Riverside, Conn.

All officers with the exception of Secretery were re-elected to hold office for the ensuing year. They are President, Clifford D. Mallory of the Long Island Sound Yacht Racing Association; Vice President, George H. Gooderham of the Lake Yacht Racing Association; Secretary, James W. Alker of the Long Island Sound Yacht Racing Association, and Treasurer, Frederick D. Porter of the Lake Michigan Yacht Racing Association.

The Executive Committee will be composed of the officers ex-officio and Commodore Joseph V. Santry of the Corinthian Yecht Club of Marblehead; Ernest L. Jahncke of the South Yacht Club and Roy Shauer of the Los Angeles Yacht Cluh.

Donald H. Cowl, retiring Secretary of the organization, was commended for his work during the term of office in the season 1925-26.

DEMPSEY CASE IS SET FOR JANUARY HEARING

Suit by Kearns to Come Before the Federal District Court in Trenton.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 18 (AP).—Transferred from the New Jersey Court of Chancery, the breach of contract suit instituted hy Jack Kearns against Jack Dempsey, former world's heavyweight champion, will be listed for trial during the January term of the United States District Court in session here. The papers were filed in Federal Court today.

Kearns demands 33 1-3 per cent. of Dempsey's end of the purse in the fight in which Dempsey lost his title to Gene Tunney et Philadelphia on Sept. 23 last. This would amount to approximately $333,000.

The transfer was made because neither of the principals reside in New Jersey and becaues the amount involved more than $3,000.

TAYLOR BEATS DILLON.

Veteran Gets Decision in Bout at 102d Medical Regiment.

Sandy Taylor, veteran middleweight, had little difficulty in defeating Willie Dillon in the main bout on the card of four eight-rounders at the 102d Medical Regiment Armnory last night. Teylor was too experienced for the youthful Dillon and led throughout the battle.

In the semi-final Jimmie Kelly won the decision over Frankie Cronan. Kelly weighed 128 pounds and Cronan 130. Charley Nelson scored the only knockout of the night when hs disposed of Benny Rodgers after fifty-seven seconds in the fifth round. The weights were Nelson 124, Rodgers 120. Eddie Enos won on a foul over Frankie McGloin after two minutes and twenty seconds of the first round. The men are flyweights.

In the opening bout of four ronnds Kid Roye got the decision over Chip Gilligan. Roye weighed 122 pounds and Gilligan 118.

BATTLING LEVINSKY WINS.

Knocks Out Jimmy Moran in First Round at Atlantic City.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 18.—Battling Levinsky, former American light-heavyweight champion, knocked out Jimmy Moran of New Orleans tonight in the first round of their scheduled eight-round feature bout. Levinsky landed a left hook which put Moran out for ten minutes. Levinsky weighed 180 pounds and Moran 181.

SHAW BOXES TONIGHT.

Will Meet Franklin in Feature Bout in Brooklyn Armory Show.

A card of six six-round bouts has been arranged for the boxing show to be held tonight in the Twenty-seventh Division Train Armory in Brooklyn, with Billy Franklin of the 102d Medical Regiment and Henry Shaw of the 369th Infantry meeting in the feature event.

Heller Wins in Furious Bout.

NORTH BERGEN, N. J., Nov. 18 (AP).—Herman Heller of Jersey City received the newspaper decision over Sailor Maxted of Newark in a furious twelve-round hout here tonight. They are heavyweights. Heller knocked Maxted down twice in the third round.

Rogers Lost to Penn in 1927; Helped Colgate 5 Min. in 1923

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 18 (AP).—Because he pleyed five minutes with the Colgate varsity team against Ohio State in 1923, Charley Rogers, one of Pennsylvania's backfield stars, will be barred from pleying with Penn next year. Rogers entered Colgate from the Camden, N. J., High School and then came to Pennsylvania. He has a hall-carrying record this year that is seid to epproach Red Grange's best year.

MORGAN TO DEFEND HIS TITLE TONIGHT

Junior Lightweight Leader to Engage Carl Duane in Garden 15-Round Bout.

18,000 TO ATTEND CLASH

Ryan and Anderson, in Third Meeting, Box in Semi-Final—Seeman to Oppose Murray.

Tod Morgen of California, junior lightweight champion, and one of the husiest titleholders before the puhlic will endeevor once more to prove that he is the best 130-pounder in the game when he engages Carl Duane of the Bronx in a fifteen-round bout in Madison Square Garden tonight.

This clash will mark the third bout in seven weeks and the second in the Garden since the opening of the regular indoor season in which Morgan has appeared in defense of his title. The Coast boxer apparently is not at all concerned in ths belief that this is a hed year for champions.

Morgan defended his title in ths Gerden on Sept. 30 when he met Joe Glick of Williamshurg, and retained his laurels by winning the decision. Thie bout was to heve seen Duane in action, but ths Bronx fighter was taken ill and was forced to cancel the engagement.

On Oct. 19 Morgan again defended his crown, this time against the veteran Johnny Dundee, former holder of the title, and once more the Coast boxer triumphed. This fight was held in San Francisco.

Morgan Is Popular.

A crowd of close to 18,000 is expected to be on hand in the Gerdsn tonight to see Morgan, who by his willingness to fight as often as he is asked and his pleasing style in the ring has made himself a popular drawing card in the East. The Westerner likely will enter the ring e favorite in the betting at odds of 8 to 5.

Duane, however, will not he without his host of followers. An experienced boxer who has been mixing it with the first flight of 130-pounders for a number of years, the Bronx boy is getting his first chance et the title and he promises to make the most of his opportunity. He has fully recovered from the illness which overtook him last September and looks fit to put up the best battle of his career. If hé succeeds in winning he will give to his manager, Billy Gibson, the distinction of having two world's champions in tow, Gene Tunney being the other.

Both Morgan and Glick will weigh in at the offices of the State Athletic Commission at 2 o'clock this afternoon and neither is expected to encounter eny trouhle in making the required 130-pound limit. The mark is the natural fighting weight of both and they have been inside that mark for more than a week. Each likely will scale about 129 pounds.

Ryan in Return Bout.

The ten-round semi-final also promises to provide a lively encounter with Arnold Ryan, the National Guard featherweight champion, opposing Eddie Anderson of Wyoming. Ryan is taking the place of Frankie Fink, who was forced off the card because of an operation on his nose. The bout will be the third meeting this year between Ryan and Anderson, and as each holds a victory over the other the fur should fly when they come to gripe for the odd match.

Solly Seeman, ranked as one of the leading contenders in the lightweight division, will engage Les Murray in another ten. Ths opening four will bring together Al Torno and Blas Rodriguez.

The following are the physical measurements of Morgan and Duane:

RICKARD COUNTERS TUNNEY AND FUGAZY

Proposes to Tie Up Challenger and Is Confident He Will Promote Next Big Bout.

CAUGHT ONCE, HE SAYS

Cites Deleney Incident and Will Avoid Similar Dilemma in Heavyweight Class.

If Humbert Fugazy or any other promoter succeeds in wresting the next world's heevyweight championship fight from Tex Rickard he will have to do more then get Gens Tunney's consent. He also will have to have the outstanding challenger, and getting the latter is going to be something else again. Rickard proposes to have this individual safely under lock and key no later than next April.

This was the challenge sounded by Rickard yesterday in reply to the report that Promoter Fugazy has been negotiating with Tunney and hed received assurances from the champion that the latter is not bound to any promoter for the present and will fight in 1927 for any one offering him the heat inducements.

Rickard, admitting he did not have Tunney under contract and that he had not even discussed 1927 plans with the new champion, added that this wasn't worrying him in the least.

Rickard Opposes Action.

"All talk of signing up Tunney at this time is silly," said Rickard. "I could have put Tunney under contract before the Dempsey fight, but I didn't consider that important then snd don't consider it necessary now. I am giving all my attention to developing the next challenger and you can bet your last dollar that when I hring him out I will haves him so tied up hs won't be able to move hand or foot. I was caught napping once with Delaney, but I assure you that will never heppen again.

"Right now there isn't a single man in the world, with ths exception of Dempsey, who would prove en attraction with Tunney. There are about five good heavyweights all standing on a par. If Tunney were to meet these one at a time, each succeeding fight would draw less. There can be no real hig attraction until one of them has proved himself the hest in the world to fight Tunney for the title.

"To develop that man is what I am working on now. I will keep on matching up these heavyweights until they have fought each other off and one survives. I think this ought to be completed by April. By then, also, I expect to know definitely what Dempsey intends to do. If Dempsey wants to fight again I think the best plan in the Spring would be to match him up with the best of the new crop.

Will Guard Challenger.

"The winner of that fight will be the ettraction for another great heevyweight championship fight, and I will have him so bound under contract that no promoter in the world will be able to get him away from me. It will be time enough then to talk business with Tunney. Gene naturally will go to the promoter offering him the heat inducements. But if I heve the man who will draw the higgest gate with him, I don't see what better inducements can be offered."

All this was said yesterday hy Rickard in the presence of Billy Gibson, Tunney's manager, and Gibson appeared to accept it all as a logical method of procedure. Gibson, incidentally, denied all knowledge of any conference Tunney has held with Promoter Fugazy, admitting, however, thet it was quite possible.

"But there really has been nothing done so far," said Gibson, "and nothing can he done until the time comes for a promoter to come out with the arena and the challenger."

MLLE. LENGLEN IN ROW WITH PHOTOGRAPHER

He Lingers After Other Cameramen Have Quit—Blows From Official Finally Rout Offender.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18 (AP).—The temperament which C. C. Pyle told Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen to leeve in Europe manifested itself tonight when she chased a newspeper cameraman off the courts where she was eppearing here.

The French tennis queen submitted to three flashlight photographs and told the photographers "that would be plenty." Another lingered, however, to get an action pose, and her eyes flashed as she told him to get out, claiming the glere was blinding her.

A Coliseum official approached to remove the offender and traded several blowe with him before the cameraman was routed. Mlle. Lenglen was so unnerved that she dropped four straight games to Mary K. Browne, hut she rallied to win the set, 7—5, and the second set, 6—1.

Miss Browne won a $100 bonus promised hy Pyle if she won four straight games from the world's champion.

Laura Dianti Beaten a Length by Light View at Bowie

LIGHT VIEW SCORES IN HUSTLING FINISH

Closes With a Rush to Capture the Old Dominion by a Length From Laura Dianti.

ARBITRATION ALSO VICTOR

Wins Galloping on Slow Bowie Track—Heavily Played Ursa Major Beats Thistlewood by a Head.

By HENRY R. ILSLEY.

Special to The New York Times.

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 18.—Coming from in back with a fine closing rush, Robert Odom's three-year-old colt Light View carried off first money in the Old Dominion Handicap, a gallop of a mile and a furlong, which headed the card at Prince Georges Park this afternoon. Johnny Maiben was up on the chestnut son of Rock View and Tread Lightly 2d, and rode a hustling finish and brought his mount home a length in front of the Belair Stud's filly Laura Dianti.

The slow Bowie track was deep, although not muddy. Light View was in nicely under 110 pounds and Maiben waited with him, making his drive in the stretch. He came on stoutly when called upon, running the distance in 1:58 2-5. The winner was heavily played and paid $6.50 in the mutuels.

There was a threat of rain during the early afternoon, and just as the horses paraded for the featured number there was a light shower, not enough, however, to make any change in the condition of the racing strip. There was another excellent attendance and the spectators were favored with some thrilling finishes.

Scratches cut the overnight field in the Old Dominion to half a dozen, and there was a lot of money for the winner, as well as A. C. Bostwick's King Solomon's Seal, Laura Dianti and H. G. Bedwell's Cudgeller. There was a long delay at the post, G. W. Foreman's Gatewood being the chief offender and finally tossing off Howard. The boy was uninjured.

Maiben Not Far Away.

Laura Dianti and Golden Billows furnished the early contention, Maiben holding Light View within striking distance of the leaders. On the turn into the homestretch he came around them with Light View and had no difficulty in taking the measure of the filly. Golden Billows was a length back to take third money by the same margin from King Solomon's Seal.

E. P. Summerfield's four-year-old gelding Arbitration was the best of the nine that went to the post for the mile and seventy yards of the Bennings Purse for all ages. Away none too speedily and outrun to the first turn, Church saved ground with the son of Utimatum. On the far turn he saw an opening on the inner rail and sent the gelding through with a rush and in the stretch he came on to win galloping by a good margin.

W. C. Trover's War Man was the pacemaker through the greater part of the journey and held on to take the place by a length from Samuel Ross's All Gone. The winner paid $7.90 for each $2 ticket. Arbitration carried 103 pounds and ran his race in 1:48 2-5.

Salmon Silks First.

Walter J. Salmon's pink silks were carried to victory in the Sherwood Forest Purse when his three-year-old Ursa Major galloped under the wire with a margin of a head over the Nevada Stock Farm's Thistlewood. Philpot had the leg up on Ursa Major, which has been knocking at the door but had failed to win brackets this season.

Ursa Major was heavily played and heartened his backers by showing the way throughout the sprint of six and a half furlongs. He was the featherweight in the party of nine, taking up only 98 pounds.

Thistlewood might have gained the decision but for turning wide for home, as he was charging down on the winner and going fastest of all when they passed the winning post. The B. B. Stable's Banco Suivi, a long shot, took third money. Ursa Major paid $4.70 in the mutuels.

The claiming race for two-year-old maidens, first on the afternoon card, furnished some problems for investors and there was a liberal play on several in the field of fourteen. The bulk of the money, however, went down on Hobcaw, which was backed to odds-on before post time. Max Hirsch had Hobcaw ready and Steve O'Donnell booted him home in front, although he had only the margin of his head over Dexter at the wire.

Sandhills Rears at Barrier, Barred From Bowie Meeting

Special to The New York Times.

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 18.—The colt Sandhills will not be seen under silks again here this Fall. When the barrier snapped for the start of the Everglades Purse here today Sandhills was caught rearing. Chalmers, who rode Sandhills, couldn't make the horse start with any show of speed and just jogged over the course. After the race the stewards decided to refuse Sandhills's entry for the remainder of the meeting.

PEEKABOO ANNEXES LEXINGTON FEATURE

Holds Sway Throughout in Big Sandy Purse—Mary Jane Wins—Snow Covers Ground.

Special to The New York Times.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 18.—A. B. Hancock's three-year-old filly Peekaboo was off in front in the Big Sandy Purse at a mile, the carded feature here today, and was never headed. She held a two-length advantage over Bolton at the finish. Rosebec was third. The track was muddy and the ground was covered with snow which fell during the night.

Mary Jane, after being rated behind the pace in the early stages of the fourth race over the Futurity Course, took the lead from Attica at the last turn and proved the stronger in a long, hard stretch drive, winning by a head. The victor was an odds-on choice.

Scratched—Arbitration, Priceman, Soo Ami and Alopex.

Light View, showing a liking for the soft going, was rated along off the early pace, but came around the field in the stretch and won easily. Laura Dianti raced Golden Billows into defeat and held on well. Golden Billows showed plenty of speed and ran a good race. King Solomon's Seal closed a big gap. Cudgeller quit badly after showing early speed. Gatewood ran a good race.

IRISH BOOKMAKERS ACCEPT BETTING TAX

Comply With Act on Free State Tracks Though Keenly Resenting Its Passage.

DUBLIN, Nov. 18 (AP).—There is no bookmakers' boycott on the Irish racecourses as was the case in England when the betting tax was inaugurated.

Though the new betting tax is keenly resented it has been decided to make the best of the inevitable. Some diminution of betting is noticeable, but there has been a large demand for licenses to bet and more than 400 of these have been granted.

The Government, when imposing the tax in the last budget, took care to include in the Act of Parliament provisions enabling the starting of totalisators, under Government leases, and this has made a general revolt by the bookmakers impracticable.

The extent of betting in the Free State is not known, but it has extended to the most remote villages, and all the newspapers devote large space to racing, both in Ireland and in England. The Finance Minister calculates that the tax will yield him in excess of $1,250,000, indicating that he believes at least $25,000,000 is wagered annually.

GRAY HORSE BATTERY HERE.

Famous Military Organization Has Arrived for the Horse Show.

The famous Gray Horse Battery of the 16th Field Artillery of Fort Myer, Va., arrived in New York yesterday for the National Horse Show, which will be held in Madison Square Garden beginning Monday. The horses of this battery, with their red saddle blankets, their riders in special uniforms and with their gleaming accoutrements, evoked continual applause in its march to the 102d Medical Regiment Armory, where it will be quartered while in this city.

The battery consists of a total of sixty-three horses and sixty men, and in the exhibition drill the entire firing battery of four guns and four caissons is used, calling for fifty horses and approximately the same number of men. In the horse show the battery will present many of the manoeuvres which have helped to make it famous.

OUR TENNIS SYSTEM CENSURED BY GILLOU

French Davis Cup Captain Finds Faults in Organization of Tournaments Here.

COMPLAINS OF FACILITIES

Also Criticizes Behaviour of Galleries—However, He Praises Kindnesses to Players.

In spite of the criticism that was leveled at the French association for the conditions under which American players competed in the Riviera tournaments and the French championships, France has little to learn from the United States according to Pierre Gillou, captain of the French Davis Cup team, who, in his report to the French governing body, finds much to censure in American organization and conduct of tournaments, in the facilities provided by the clubs and in the behaviour of the gallery.

The report of Mr. Gillou, which appeared in the French publication, Tennis and Golf, has been translated and reprinted in part in American Lawn Tennis. As to organization, Mr. Gillou states, "The Americans have still much to learn from the English, who are the last who ought to serve us as models. Perhaps there are some small matters which do not go very well with us in the running of a large tournament, but one ought to admit that the task of making one competition run on thirty-five courts is easy. On the other hand, our system of assembling players is much better than that of the Americans, as indeed it is better than that of the English."

Expressing his appreciation of the cordial reception accorded here to the French players, who, he says, were the recipients of a thousand kindnesses, Mr. Gillou states that on this point "we can indeed suffer by comparison." At the same time, he declares, "it is worth noticing that the four French champions were the only foreigners who took part in the American competitions, whereas we were overwhelmed last June by the success of our championships."

Criticizes Shifting Tourneys.

The custom of holding the various championships in different cities instead of in one place, according to Mr. Gillou, was very harmful to the finances of the United States Lawn Tennis Association and the French team suffered a loss of $4,000, he states, because the Davis Cup challenge round was held at Germantown instead of at Forest Hills.

"It appears," he says, "that the U. S. L. T. A. does not wish to group all the championships in one single tournament in order not to favor one special city. I think this could be overcome by alternating the national tournament each year between New York and Boston and giving the same year the interzone matches to Philadelphia and the challenge round of the Davis Cup to New York, and vice versa the next year."

Of the American tennis gallery, he says: "The American public, restrained in so far as the limits and boundaries of the grounds are concerned, do not conduct themselves very well in the stands. The women utter piercing cries while the ball is in play, and it is customary to applaud excitedly the winning of a game by a player if he receives a double fault, should he happen to be a favorite of the crowd."

The clubhouse of the West Side Tennis Club, states Mr. Gillou, is "like all similar Anglo-Saxon places, agreeable enough, but luxury is wanting there. A very ordinary dining room upon the ground floor gives out onto a terrace. The men's locker room on the second floor is dark and of reduced dimensions; the lockers are open work, which perhaps is hygienic but certainly looks bad. The shower baths are clean but nothing more. The only interesting detail that I observed is a bar installed in the locker room where non-alcoholic drinks are served."

Makes Other Criticisms.

The French official criticizes the absence of ball boys during the training of the French team. "In the course of tournaments," he says, "there are two ball boys on each court. The signs indicating the names of the players are placed behind the umpire's chair; they are not very apparent. There is no number upon the courts and no provision for spectators. I note in passing that as there is not a single tree existing upon the grounds—only little hedges—the light is excellent. But when it is warm the public is in a veritable furnace, even in the stadium, which has the aspect of a Roman arena."

The umpires are let off more easily. "They function very well, at Forest Hills anyway," says Mr. Gillou, "for at Boston I saw some matches played before unoccupied chairs. I should add that the linesmen give their decisions promptly and that these decisions are almost always correct and are never disputed, except at times by the only Tilden."

The clubhouse of the Longwood Cricket Club, Mr. Gillou found charming, in so far as the lobby is concerned, "but there also the lockers are insufficient and half of them are in the cellar." With the stands filled by players, tennis writers, linesmen and their friends, he says, the referee at Longwood must work in a perpetual din."

No One to Receive Them.

Of the Germantown Cricket Club he says: "As usual, a charming clubhouse, ordinary locker room, impossible food. Arrived there three days before the matches, we thought we were entering into the place of the Sleeping Beauty in the Wood. It is true that it was a holiday. But there was no one to receive us; not a soul living upon the courts. After some searching we discovered a bewildered official, who put up the nets upon the centre court for us. One ought to acknowledge that the three main courts are absolutely perfect as regards their surface and that the grass is of a rare quality. This is not surprising, for it is an Englishman who looks after them."

The Germantown stands, states Mr. Gillou, can accommodate about 9,000 people at the most. "Observe the considerable charge that these mean for us. If the challenge round had been held at Forest Hills instead of Philadelphia, with the same receipts (and they would surely have been greater than those of Philadelphia) we would have recived $4,000 more, although the West Side Tennis Club would receive 35 per cent. of the profits (as contrasted to the 15 per cent. of the Germantown C. C.), its accommodations being permanent.

"Perhaps we can make the necessary suggestion to the U. S. L. T. A., for the sum of $4,000 represents almost half the total expenses of a team of six players from New York to Paris and return, with a stay of more than a month in the United States."

HUGHES IS WINNER IN SQUASH TENNIS

Beats O'Connor in Three Sets at N. Y. A. C.—Guernsey Eliminates Maxwell.

R. E. Hughes and B. H. O'Connor, both formerly of the Montclair Athletic Club, met in the feature match of the Fall scratch squash tennis tournament at the New York Athletic Club yesterday, the former wearing the colors of the home club and the latter representing the Crescent Athletic Club. Hughes was the winner in three games at 15—9, 11—15, 15—7.

Three other matches were played, in each of which the favorite came through as expected. Otis L. Guernsey of the Yale Club eliminated E. L. Maxwell of Princeton at 15—13, 15—5, and Rowland B. Haines, No. 1 man on the Columbia Class A team, overwhelmed C. N. Edge of the Apawamis Club, a newcomer to American squash from England, at 15—5, 15—3. E. R. Larigan of the Crescents, who triumphed over Guernsey in the league play Wednesday night, was again in impressive form in defeating R. M. Kirkland of the New York Athletic Club at 15—10, 15—3. Fillmore Hyde of the Harvard Club, national champion, defaulted to W. Murray Lee of Columbia, while Armin Riley of Princeton also advanced by the default of G. M. Rushmore of Harvard.

Evander Yields to Morris Eleven by 8 to 0 in Spite of Goal Line Stands

MORRIS OVERCOMES EVANDER CHILDS, 8-0

Captures Bronx Title Before 20,000, Doliner Crossing Line in First Period.

LOSERS MAKE BRAVE FIGHT

Held for Downs Twice on One-Yard Mark, but Safety Follows Second Stand at Polo Grounds.

Twenty thousand cheering students and alumni saw Morris High School win the borough football championship of the Bronx yesterday by defeating the Evander Childs eleven, 8 to 0, at the Polo Grounds. The game was played during a hard rain, which let up for only a few minutes in the second quarter. By its victory Morris reversed the 20 to 0 triumph of Evander last year.

Although the Evander eleven clearly was outplayed, it offered stouter resistance to the red-clad Morris team than had been expected. The Orange team presented a stubborn defense, which twice held Morris for downs on the Evander 1-yard line.

Morris started scoring early in the game. Evander was forced to punt from its 5-yard line after a try at the Morris line netted it nothing, and Koerner caught the kick on the Orange 35-yard mark.

Doliner, the Morris captain, then carried the ball around his left end for a 25-yard gain. Fishel carried it through the line for ten yards more, and on the next play Doliner again ran around left end for the touchdown. Koerner failed on the drop-kick for the extra point.

Morris Threatens Again.

Morris threatened again soon after. On the play after the kick-off, Evander attempted a long forward pass, which Fishel intercepted and carried twenty yards. A line plunge was good for five yards more, and Fishel carried the ball for six yards on the next play. The ball was on the Evander 1-yard line with three first downs and the goal to go, but at this point Evander made its best stand. Captain Doliner and Fishel assaulted the line, but each was turned back. Blank tried, but also failed. On the last down Koerner again called upon Doliner to take the ball, but Evander yielded not an inch. Evander received the ball and Reynolds immediately kicked out of danger. Doliner ran the punt back ten yards to the Evander 35-yard strip. O'Connell caught a pass from Fishel and went twenty yards before he was downed. After two short gains, Koerner attempted a drop kick from the 15-yard line, but was unsuccessful. Reynolds again kicked out of danger.

Play during the second period was hard, but neither team made any appreciable advances. Coach Dolan of the Morris team sent in almost his entire second team, which prevented Evander from scoring.

Third Period Scoreless.

No scoring resulted in the third period, although Morris had little difficulty in advancing the ball far into Evander territory. After kicking out of danger as a result of a 15-yard penalty, Morris withstood three efforts on the part of Evander to penetrate its line for a first down. Koerner punted thirty-five yards. An Evander back fumbled the punt and Doliner recovered on Evander's 40-yard line.

Morris continued from the 40-yard line in the last quarter, and by means of short plunges and forward passes brought the ball down to the Evander 1-yard line again. Once more Evander repulsed all efforts on the part of Morris to score through the line and gained the ball on downs.

Evander's valiant effort was dimmed somewhat on the next play. Reynolds attempted to punt out of danger on first down, but his kick was blocked behind his own goal. Danny McGrath fell upon the oval, and a safety resulted in favor of the Morris eleven.

Morris tried straight football for the rest of the game, and at one time attempted a drop kick of forty yards. The kick failed and was recovered by Evander. Play ended soon after with Evander in possession of the ball in midfield.

Steve Johnson was elected captain of the Evander team for next season in the dressing room immediately after the game.

The line-up:

LANDS AND COBURN ENTER.

Veteran Cyclists Sign to Ride In Garden Six-Day Grind.

Dave Lands of Irvington and Willie Coburn of Newark signed contracts yesterday to ride in the six-day bicycle race which will get under way in Madison Square Garden on Dec. 5. Both Lands and Coburn have captured laurels in six-day races.

Lands won the recent Chicago race with Otto Petri, while Coburn was a winner in a Garden grind several years ago with Maurice Brocco.

YALE CURTAILS ROWING.

Freshman 150-Pound and Heavy Crews Only Boats to Continue.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 18 (AP).—Fall rowing at Yale, for all crews except the freshman 150-pound and heavy crews, ended this afternoon. All of the crews will be called on Jan. 6 for Winter practice. The two freshman crews will continue work at the Harbor until Thanksgiving recess.

3 Bouts Signed for Brooklyn Club.

Matchmaker Andy Niederreiter yesterday signed up three important bouts for the New Broadway Arena, Brooklyn. On Nov. 29, Eddie Anderson will oppose Mike Ballerino, Dec. 6, Ruby Goldstein meets Georgie Balduc, and on Dec. 13 Jack Bernstein faces Ray Miller of Chicago.

N. Y. U. Takes Water Supply With It for Nebraska Fray

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—The influence of the Big Muddy or Missouri River on Nebraska's water supply will have no terrors for the New York University football team, which engages the Cornhuskers Saturday. A corps of assistant managers loaded thirty-five gallons of filtered water on the Wolverine in New York to be used when the Violet special got west of this place. Having been West before, both as player and coach, Chick Meehan, coach of the New York team, is taking no chances on his men getting out of condition. Another precaution was the adding of a special diner, supplied with training table food, to the train.

COLUMBIA DRILLED IN OFFENSIVE PLAY

Crowley Pays Particular Attention to Interference During 30-Minute Scrimmage.

LINE STILL IS UNSETTLED

Three More Shifts Are Made as Blue and White Prepares for Syracuse Battle.

Head Coach Charley Crowley of the Columbia football squad had his players in a two-hour practice session at Baker Field yesterday in preparation for the Syracuse game at the Polo Grounds Thanksgiving Day. Intermittent showers and a muddy field failed to slow up the practice to any great extent and the Lion mentors took advantage of the conditions by having the men handle the wet ball and practice keeping their balance on the slippery turf. No touchdowns were scored in a 30-minute scrimmage between Team A and the junior varsity.

Mike Sesit was again kept out of the scrimmags in accordance with Crowley's plan to take no risk on having the veteran halfback's shoulder injured again. Although there were three changes in the line they are not to be taken seriously as Coach Crowley is still experimenting with his forwards. Art Hyde replaced Ralph Furey at left end and Cornell took Kerrigan's place at tackle. The third change was Alkoff's replacing Cuneo at guard.

Hyde has started a few games at end this year and has been regarded as a very capable wingman, having pressed Furey and Brady, first string ends, for first call all season. Alkoff has been a member of Team B since early in the season when Cuneo and Adler developed so rapidly that, along with Paul Shaw, he was shifted to the second eleven. Cornell has been receiving considerable attention from the line coaches and the former end candidate has shown up well at his new position, tackle.

The rest of the first string line-up was Adler at the other guard post; Reynolds, tackle; Brady, end; French, centre; Kaplan, quarterback; Madden and Norris, halfbacks, and Rieger, fullback. A second string backfield, composed of Kumpf at quarterback; Green and Thorsland, halfbacks, and Matthews, fullback, received a trial with the first team.

Team A was in possession of the ball for 25 minutes of the half-hour scrimmage, the jayvees being on the offense the other five minutes. Coach Crowley is still concentrating on improving the offensive drive and the interference of the team. The first eleven has displayed improvement in these departments during the practice sessions this week and it is the intention of Crowley to bring about more improvement by the time of the Syracuse encounter. The junior varsity, during its short time in possession of the ball, used Syracuse plays against the regulars. Crowley supervised a dummy scrimmage, in which the offense was emphasized.

Although there is no game Saturday yesterday's scrimmags was the final of the week, but it is likely that the squad will scrimmage Monday or Tuesday.

SNOW GREETS N. Y. U. FOR CHICAGO DRILL

Squad, However, Gets Fast Workout on Way to Nebraska Battle Tomorrow.

SYRACUSE HONORS MEEHAN

Brass Band and Students There Hail Their Ex-Coach—Team In Lincoln Today.

By BRYAN FIELD.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 18.—The New York University football team, en route for Lincoln, Neb., breezed into the Windy City this afternoon and got its first taste of Western weather. A cold, crisp day, with snow in the air and on the ground, made the practice on Stagg Field as snappy a workout as the Violet has turned in this season. It was the first snow of the season for the New Yorkers, but it did not bother them in the least.

The squad, twenty-seven strong, all in good condition and spirits, detrained at the Sixty-third Street Station. Coach Chick Meehan and Assistant Coaches Mort Starobin and Bill McCarthy piled the men into auto buses and rushed them to the gridiron. Assistant Coach Joe Schwarzer, who scouted the Nebraska-Kansas Aggie game last Saturday, met the team at the station and played an important part in the practice.

Meehan took the varsity and Schwarzer took the second team. Schwarzer labeled the second stringers with Nebraska names, coached them with Nebraska plays and turned them loose on the varsity. The varsity took a few minutes to find itself against the strange formations, but was not long in breaking up the opposition attack and getting an offensive of its own under way.

Meehan Makes Squad Work.

Aside from the drill against the mock Nebraska team, the New York University players did a lot of plain and fancy running under Meehan's direction in order to get rid of their train legs and to keep warm. Meehan also wanted his men to get good and tired so that there would be no doubt of their sleeping tonight.

A brief signal practice was held and Connor and Strong put in some time kicking. Neither was at all affected by the strange surroundings and got the ball away as far and well as on the New York gridirons.

The practice lasted about an hour and ten minutes. Following this the men were again loaded into automobiles and driven around Chicago before going back to the train, which left for Lincoln late in the afternoon.

That the sleep of many of the squad was interrupted last night was Meehan's fault. When the Wolverines reached Syracuse, where Meehan coached before coming to New York University, it lacked but a few minutes of midnight. A brass band and five hundred wildly cheering students and townspeople were at the platform and made sleep impossible for any one aboard the train.

Meehan Gets a Gift.

Meehan was called out and forced aloft on a baggage truck to make a speech. He thanked the crowd for their cheers of "Beat Nebraska!" and said that he did not know of another instance where the students of a rival college turned out so enthusiastically in support of another team's football aims. At the end Meehan was presented with a set of golf clubs. Meehan was also made custodian of a Swiss watch for Joe Schwarzer, and Morty Starobin was presented with a traveling bag. Both Schwarzer and Starobin were at Syracuse with Meehan.

The team will arrive at Lincoln early tomorrow morning and will work out on the Nebraska field in the afternoon. Meehan said today that the men would have only a light workout owing to the peculiar Nebraska field, which has a light, sandy upper soil and a rock-hard under-surface.

Meehan likened the field to a concrete floor sprinkled with sawdust. He said that while it gave the appearance of being soft, it was in reality very hard and had badly bruised members of several visiting teams in former years which had gone through a strenuous advance workout.

MANHATTAN DRILLS ON STRAIGHT ATTACK

Will Not Rely on Aerial Game in Contest With St. Thomas College Eleven.

Manhattan College's football squad yesterday went through a long drill in the offense to be employed against St. Thomas College at Scranton on Thanksgiving Day. Coach Jim McCarthy indicated he would rely on a straight attack, rather than the aerial game which his team has used a great deal this season.

The Jasper forward wall now looks better than it did in the Upsala contest, its best performance to date. With Captain George Smith and John Cohalan, ends; Morgan Burks and Hawk Skidd, tackles; Con Cronin and Ed Flanagan, guards, and Ted O'Gorman, centre, the Jaspers now have every regular in fine fettle.

CARR OUT AT SYRACUSE.

Leg Injury Forces Him to Quit Drill After Five Minutes.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 18.—Coach Pete Reynolds will run no risk of injuries to his Syracuse regulars in the Niagara game Saturday with the Columbia clash looming on Thanksgiving Day. Coach Reynolds said tonight that he would keep Lee, Friedman, Archoska and Barbuti out of the Niagara game. Goldman and Clark are the only first-string backs who will start.

Charlie Cook, injured quarterback, is rounding into form and Reynolds hopes to have him in condition for Columbia. Whippet Carr, instead of improving, has given Coach Reynolds further cause for worry. Carr was limping more than ever today, and after about five minutes of work, was sent back to the dressing room, where Trainer Frank Hugo and Dr. Lowry, team physician, made an examination of the star back's leg. No statement was given out.

Scrimmage was held today for the seconds against the combination team of freshmen and scrubs. The seconds pushed over three touchdowns in an hour of battling. Bizik, Jones and Whitney each accounted for a score.

SWIMMERS GO 36 MILES.

67 Compete In First Day of Central Y. M. C. A. Novelty Race.

Thirty-six miles was covered by sixty-seven swimmers yesterday in the Brooklyn Central Y. M. C. A. pool in the first day of competition in the "English Channel swim," which has been inaugurated for developing distance swimmers. Each swimmer has eleven hours of actual swimming time in which to cover twenty-one miles, and he may swim as far each day as he pleases so long as he covers at least 500 yards. His total distance at the end of each week is added and determines his position in the race. The competitors have a month to complete the total distance.

To Select Cue Referee Today.

The referee for the Willie Hopps-Alfredo de Oro three-cushion match, which will be played at the Strand starting on Monday, will be selected today. The match will be a handicap, with Hopps playing for sixty points in each block against forty-five for De Oro over a stretch of twelve blocks. Hoppe is due here from Boston this morning.

Vargas Leads Hammer, 250-216.

Juan Jacinto Vargas defeated Herbert Hammer in the first block a 500-point 18.2 balkline match at Lawler's Brooklyn Academy last night by 250 to 216 in nineteen innings. The high runs were Vargas 97, Hammer 71.

FORDHAM ELEVEN ENDS HARD GRIND

Maroon Will Taper Off Today at the Polo Grounds for Tomorrow's Clash.

RIVALS TO DO LIKEWISE

Georgetown on Ground for Battle—Gargan Expects to Call on Fordham Reserve Linemen Frequently.

The final intensive drill before the Georgetown game at the Polo Grounds tomorrow was held for the Fordham eleven at Fordham Field yesterday. With all of the essential preparation completed, Gargan will hold merely a light exercise this afternoon.

Both Georgetown and Fordham will have their final workout for the game, and incidentally their last of the season, at the Polo Grounds today. The Blue and Gray troupe arrived in New York last night and established its headquarters at the Hotel McAlpin. It will take this field today at 1 o'clock and give way to the Maroon two hours later.

Since the Maroon is facing one of the heaviest and fastest charging lines in the East, Frank Gargan expects that he will have to make frequent replacements for his light forwards. In this regard the Fordham mentor is far better fortified than he was earlier in the season.

Pollet Strong Reserve Man.

In the last two games three sterling players have been uncovered. Against Holy Cross Jack Pollet, substitute tackle, was used in place of Bill Feaster, the recurrence of whose injury forced his removal. Pollet smashed through the Purple line frequently to toss the Worcester backs for losses.

Another star uncovered here was Johnny Grip, who will break into the line-up in case Ralph Buckley's injury fails to stand the strain of battle. In the fracas with the City College eleven John Smith, former regular, showed up to advantage and he is certain to get into the Georgetown encounter at some time or other.

For the first time this season Gargan will be able to start his complete regular team. All the injured men have responded to treatment, and casualties will not handicap the Maroon in its final appearances of the year. Buckley, the regular halfback, who has participated in only two periods this campaign, will start.

Leary and Politis Ready.

The varsity will line up for the game tomorrow in the same positions as were taken in the practice work-out. Captain Tom Leary and Al Politis will be at the ends, with Bill Feaster and Val Simonetti at the tackle posts. Burt Bruce and Tubby Beloin at guards were on either side of Roger Scully at centre. In the back field Zev Graham was at quarter, Jimmy De Lacy and Ralph Buckley at the halves and Jim Zakszewski at full.

For the second day in succession the varsity faced the freshman eleven and the regulars showed a vast improvement in their stopping of ths Blue and Gray plays as portrayed by the yearlings. After the first team had halted the Washington formations to his satisfaction Gergan switched them to the offensive. A signal drill concluded the afternoon's work.

The officials for the game as announced yesterday will be T. J. McCabe, Holy Cross, referee; J. J. Hallahan, Boston Globe, umpire; W. D. Maginnes, Lehigh, linesman; E. M. Bennis, Pennsylvania, field judge. It was also announced that the game would start at 2:30 o'clock.

Matsuyama to Defend Title Against Bos in Philadelphia

Kinrey Matsuyama, holder of the national junior 18.2 balkline championship, will defend his title against Ary Bos, former champion, at the Union League in Philadelphia on Nov. 29, 30 and Dec. 1, it was announced here yesterday. This will be Matsuyama's first title match since he won the crown from Bos here last Spring. The match will be at 1,200 points played in three blocks of 400 points each.

ST. JOHN'S TEAM DEPARTS.

Goes to Niagara Falls to Stay Until Game Tomorrow With Canisius.

Coach Ray Lynch and his St. John's football warriors, twenty-five strong, left Brooklyn last evening and will reach Niagara Falls this morning, where they will stay until they play Canisius in Buffalo tomorrow. Lynch expects to run his men through a light practice session this afternoon on the Niagara University gridiron. Last season ths Canisius eleven beat St. John's, 9—6.

Coach Lynch has available every man he could possibly use in this battle and it will practically be ths first time this season that he has been able to muster full strength for any game.

Foot Strain

Many times the discomfort one experiences in ordinary shoes is due as much to strain on some one part of the foot as it is to friction. This is because the feet are distorted.

The way to avoid either of these is to wear Dr. Read Cushion Shoes.

In this footwear the feet have got to set right. The shoes are so fashioned as to make this certain.

The cushion sole not only prevents the feet from shifting out of position, but it springs the foot muscles into play when you walk.

'WIN OR DIE' SPIRIT INSPIRES HARVARD

New Song Typifies Attitude as Students Rally to Final Home Drill for Yale.

LINE-UP STILL A MYSTERY

Horween May Withhold It Till Game Time, but Intimates Several Shifts—Team Leaves Today.

By ROBERT F. KELLEY.
Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 18.—Marching behind their band, blaring forth the new Harvard song, "Harvard Triumphant, We Win or Die," the Crimson undergraduates stormed into Soldiers Field this afternoon for the first and last open practice of the Harvard football season.

The new song, introduced last night at the mass meeting in the Union, has struck a responsive chord here. That is pretty much the state of mind among coaches, players and those behind the team. It is a return to the ancient legend of the youth who wanted to "die for dear old Rutgers."

There will be nothing lacking in fight and spirit on the Harvard side in this last game, which is to make or break a season which has been, so far, just as gloomy as Yale's. The men selected as being of starting timbre have been selected with an eye to their fighting spirit and throughout the entire Harvard Yard and the Stadium today there was a vibrant, tense atmosphere.

Tomorrow morning two special cars, bearing the sixty or so who make up the Harvard party, leave South Station for New Haven and a workout in the Bowl tomorrow afternoon. Tomorrow evening the team retires to Derby to remain at the Clarke Hotel overnight.

Line-Up a Mystery.

In keeping with Harvard traditions of the past, there is still an air of mystery about things. No one knows yet—or if they do they are not admitting it—who will be the starting players against the ancient foe the day after tomorrow.

Arnold Horween last night at the meeting announced that he was coming back for another year and the announcement met with roars of applause. But he didn't announce who would play and there went another tradition. Harvard, in the past, has had eleven men on the platform at these meetings before the Yale game. Last night there were eighteen men on the platform.

Horween said this morning that he probably would not announce his line-up until the team went on the field for the game. It is possible that he himself is not certain as yet who the men will be. He is making no predictions. All he says is that "Harvard will not be at all ashamed of any of the men who do get in, win or lose. We are going against a good, fighting Yale team. We will give everything we have. You can ask for nothing more.

Princeton Break Had Effect.

The Harvard-Princeton break has had its effect on Harvard, just as it had on Princeton before the Yale game. It has been difficult to get players' minds away from this game, finished and done with, and onto the game remaining to be played. In some instances, the feeling is that this has not been accomplished as yet.

Horween did say that Harvard may look for some changes in its team when it goes into action Saturday. One of these changes, according to those close to things, will be the return of the veteran Jake Stafford to quarterback.

Stafford, a small, alert player of the Charlie Buell type, started last year's Yale game, and was regarded, until Putnam beat him out this season, as the best bet of the Crimson in the quarterback line.

Putnam, perhaps a bit better all-around player, has been nervous. He is a sophomore, and it is probable that Stafford will handle the game, at least until it settles down a bit. With Stafford, according to present indications, will be Madison Bayles, the most consistent of the Crimson backs this year; Eben Clark, and Dave Guarnaccia.

Guarnaccia Passing Threat.

With Guarnaccia in, Harvard will have a forward-passing threat from the outset. In addition to these men, fourteen others were on the platform last night. They were Saltonstall, Strong, Rudman and Meadows, ends; Coady, Lindner and Pratt, tackles; Simonds, Kilgour and Stewart, guards; Gamache, centre, and Putnam, Miller and French, backs.

Leo Daley has been back in uniform, but his appendicitis operation has left him unfit for play, unless it be for a minute or two, to give him his letter again. Captain Coady is still nursing a slight injury and may not be able to start.

The practice today was more of a formality than anything else. Everything was packed before hand, save personal belongings, and the squad merely ran through some signals and covered kicks while the stands cheered and sang.

The coaches, as near as it is possible to judge, are looking on this game as the closest sort of a thing. That is why they are stressing the mental spirit side of it so much this week.

Sees Teams Well Matched.

As one of them expressed it this morning, "When you have two individuals or two organizations almost equal physically and trained about as well as each other, what happens when they come together? The will comes into play and the will carries on beyond the physical."

One camp of more or less disinterested observers holds small hope for Harvard. They point out that Harvard's offensive has done nothing outside the tackles. Where, they ask, is Harvard going through that Yale line?

But the other camp says that there is a Harvard offensive that will go beyond tackles. It claims that the easy game with Tufts hurt because it gave the players too much confidence in their offense and that, when Princeton stopped it they went into a bad slump.

"They are only just coming out now from the doldrums they dropped into after the Tiger game," said one Harvard official this morning.

For the attitude of mind, the thing returns to that new song of Harvard's. It has a swing to it and when it was introduced at last night's meeting, the students called for it again and almost raised the roof.

"The Crimson defiant," it ends, "our cheers reach the sky. Harvard triumphant, we win or die."

And so the defiant Crimson leaves here in the morning, very much in the mood of a fighting man knowing that he is going into a fight but not disliking the prospect at all.

20 State Police Detailed To Harvard-Yale Game Traffic

BOSTON, Nov. 18 (AP).—Twenty State patrolmen were assigned to automobile traffic duty today in connection with the Harvard-Yale football game in New Haven Saturday. The officers will assume their duties tomorrow afternoon and will continue until Sunday night. The Boston Post Road, the Providence Pike and other highways leading to New Haven will be watched.

PENN IS BUILDING DEFENSE FOR PASS

Squad Also Drills to Perfect Plan to Stop Cornell's Off-Tackle Attack.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 18.—Going on the defense against Cornell's off-tackle plays and forward passes, the Pennsylvania varsity scrimmaged against the scrubs for more than a half hour today. It was one of the most strenuous workouts of the week.

Every varsity man was in his customary place, including Paul Scull, the star dropkicker, who has been nursing torn cartilages ever since the Penn State game, almost two weeks ago. Back Field Coach Bert Bell would not let Scull in the scrimmage very long as he figured his right foot may have an important bearing in the Turkey Day game with Dobie's eleven.

The scrubs, using Cornell plays that worked against Dartmouth in the last period rally, went well against the Red and Blue varsity for a few minutes, but it did not take Captain George Thayer and his men long to size them up. It was dark when the tired and hungry Penn squad was chased to the showers.

LIVELY SIGNAL DRILL IS HELD AT COLGATE

Varsity Resumes Work After 3-Day Layoff—Shaughnessy in Uniform, but Does Not Play.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Nov. 18.—The Colgate gridiron machine was back on the field again this afternoon after a three-day rest which Coach Hauser granted after the Syracuse game to keep his men from going stale before the clash with Brown. The vacation seems to have done the Maroon squad good, for they dashed around Whitnall Field with more life than was noticed during the early season sessions.

Hauser spent the greater part of the period driving the eleven up and down the field in signal drill with either Mehler or Newell calling the plays. Duke Shaughnessy was in uniform but took no part in the activities. Flagg was in Schmidt's place at right guard while Mason replaced Bray at left tackle during the signal session.

A versatile passing game will undoubtedly be Colgate's chief offensive threat against Brown and the efforts of the Maroon mentors are all headed in that direction at present.

Coach Hauser with but four more days in which to bring his combination to top form has planned lengthy workouts for the closing grind, but with scrimmages entirely taboo. Earl Abel the yearling coach who brought his eleven through an undefeated season, has a picked team in readiness to send against the Maroon varsity if Hauser calls for a dummy scrimmage. Although the freshmen have completed their schedule, they volunteered their services to aid the Maroon machine.

RUTGERS GETS WORKOUT.

Squad in Good Shape for Contest With Swarthmore Eleven.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 18.—Coach Wallace this afternoon gave the Rutgers varsity its last stiff workout before the Swarthmore game here Saturday. All of the varsity players are in good condition and will be ready for the opening whistle. The session today consisted of knocking over dummies, signal drill and a scrimmage with a scrub eleven. The running attack which has been the feature of the drill throughout the week continued to remain in the limelight today. Hibbs and Hanf, the backs who are expected to furnish lots of trouble for the Garnet backs, were given a rest today but are in shape for Saturday's contest.

SWARTHMORE STAR HURT.

Barns Injures Knee and May Not Face Rutgers Tomorrow.

Special to The New York Times.

SWARTHMORE, Pa., Nov. 18.—The Garnet back field star, Curtis Barns, who was a consistent ground gainer for Swarthmore in the game last Saturday with Franklin and Marshall, was forced to the bench this afternoon with a twisted knee and probably will be unable to play Saturday against Rutgers.

This afternoon Coach Mercer ran his team through a severe skirmish, using a number of the Rutgers plays in preparation for what is believed to be the stiffest fray since the little Quakers met Princeton.

3 Players Hurt in Football Drill.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 18 (AP).—The undefeated Collinsville eleven had three players hurt in practice today. They were Joseph W. Butler, 17, left leg believed broken. James Kirkland, fractured leg. Roy Hester, internal injuries.

Wedo to Clash With Flahive.

Lee Wedo of the 102d Medical Regiment will meet Mickey Flahive, navy lightweight, in the feature at the Fourteenth Regiment Armory in Brooklyn tomorrow night, while Patsy Barbera and Joe Zink will top the card at the Ninth Regiment Armory.

Amateur Boxers to Compete.

An amateur boxing tournament is being arranged by the Goethe Lodge 22 of the Knights of Pythias to be held in the New Star Casino, 107th Street and Park Avenue, on the night of Nov. 30. The proceeds will be used for the charity relief fund of the lodge. Leading boxers are expected to enter.

NOBLE WILL START IN YALE BACK-FIELD

Other Halfback Position Only Uncertain Berth for Game With Harvard in Bowl.

LOOK RETAINED AT CENTRE

Rivals End Hard Practice and Will Work Out in Bowl Today, While Scrub Elevens Clash.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 18.—Yale held its last intensive signal drill before the Harvard game this afternoon with the right halfback position still undecided. Johnny Hoben, who has never started a game for Yale, had the assignment today, replacing Al Foote, who was tried out yesterday.

Foote succeeded Jack Falling, who was in the line-up the previous day and who started at Princeton last Saturday. Foote is slightly preferred because of his defensive ability and his weight, Hoben for his line plunging and Falling because of his distance end place kicking skill, combined with a line hitting punch.

Hoben played with the freshmen last year, but was crippled by early season injuries until two weeks ago. He starred when used with the second eleven against Maryland. Foote played most of the games last Fall and was started regularly until after the Army game.

In case of wet weather Foote is almost certain to start. Falling was promoted from the third eleven after the Army game and had been regarded as first-string halfback until this week. No other line-up change was made today and none is planned.

Look Retained at Centre.

Al Look, the varsity oarsman, who had never played a Yale football game until he was used at centre at Princeton, will be retained because his defensive game has made the Yale rush line a unit for the first time this season.

The coaches finally have decided to start Noble instead of reserving him for a scoring emergency.

This afternoon the coaches sent the first and second elevens through signal rehearsal on the field next to the artillery armory. They had planned to order practice in the Bowl, but it was covered with straw because of threatened rain, which started to fall early this evening and is also predicted for tomorrow.

The closest approach to scrimmaging was a line-up of the second varsity team against the scrubs to demonstrate the working out of specialty performances by the Yale reserves, as well as the features of the Harvard attack. Both varsity teams were given an extensive practice in running back kick-offs.

Rivals in Bowl Today.

Both Yale and Harvard elevens plan to practice in the Bowl tomorrow. The Harvard squad is scheduled to reach here at 1 o'clock for dinner at the Hotel Taft, then proceeding to the Bowl for two hours of practice.

The Harvard squad will go by automobile to the Hotel Clark in Derby from the Bowl, returning to the Bowl on Saturday noon.

Yale and Harvard also will stage a novelty in a football game today between their substitute elevens. The Yale line-up is announced as follows: Butler, left end; Bingham, left tackle; Stiel, left guard; Graham, centre; Miner, right guard; Hitchcock right tackle; Tremaine, right end; Starr, quarterback; Loud, left half; Miller, right half; Hubbard, fullback.

YALE POST STILL OPEN.

No Successor to Blossom as Athletic Director Chosen Yet.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 18 (AP).—The position of athletic director at Yale University still remains unfilled with alumni supporting a number of candidates. The Athletic Association, it is understood, has not considered the matter of appointing a director to fill the vacancy created by resignation of John T. Blossom. If an appointment is made it is not expected, if at all, until late in the college year.

COPULOS AGAIN WINS TWO.

Defeats St. Jean, 50-39, and 50-19, in Three-Cushion Match.

Gus Copulos won both blocks from Andrew St. Jean last night in their 600-point three-cushion match at the Strand Billiard Academy. Copulos won, 50 to 39, in the afternoon, the match going sixty-eight innings. The high runs were Copulos 7, St. Jean 3. In the night match, Copulos scored 50 to St. Jean's 19, in forty-one innings. Copulos ran 7 and St. Jean 3. The Detroit star has won all eight blocks in the match.

The score at the end of the eighth block is Copulos 400, St. Jean 251, with 392 innings having been played thus far.

PARSON IS BEATEN TWICE.

Loses to Zimmerman, 25-22, and to Reynolds, 25-17, at Doyle's.

John Parson lost two games last night in the annual three-cushion championship tournament at Doyle's Billiard Academy. In the first encounter, he was defeated by A. Zimmerman, 25 to 22, in forty-two innings. Both men had high runs of four. In the second engagement, Fred Reynolds was the victor, 25 to 17, in forty innings. Reynolds had a high run of three to Parson's two.

RED SOX SALE OFF.

Club Will Not Change Hands for the Present, Says Quinn.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18 (AP).—Recent offers of Albert N. Powell, Vice President of the Boston Braves, to purchase the Boston Red Sox, have not been accepted and there will be no change of ownership at present, President Rob Quinn announced here today just before leaving for the South to select a training camp.

A manager to replace Lee Fohl, recently released, has not been selected, Quinn stated.

De Witt Clinton Plays Curtis Today.

De Witt Clinton and Curtis High Schools will meet in a P. S. A. L. football game on Thompson Field, Staten Island, this afternoon.

CORNELL BACK FIELD SHIFTED BY DOBIE

Hoelkelman, Balderson, Beck and Molinet New Quartet Used in Practice.

LIKELY TO FACE PENN

Belief Is That This Combination Will Start Game—Squad Gets Lively Drill.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 18.—The Cornell football team swung into full stride this evening and in the liveliest practice of the week made fine progress in its preparation for the Penn game. The squad now is thoroughly rested and Coach Dobie is bringing every man along into the best of condition.

There are few injuries to worry him, even Schumacher, an end who has been troubled a good bit this year, is coming back to form. When the varsity went into mock scrimmage to test out the defense, Hoekelman, Balderston, Molinet and Beck made up the first back field combination. This is radically different from the starting line-up against Dartmouth, which included Butterfield, Isaly, Balderston and Beck. Although Coach Dobie declared today that eight backs are in the prospective Penn game squad, close observers of the situation believe that the quartet that started today will be in the line-up next week.

It is certain anyway that Balderston will start because of his punting. Beck is developing rapidly as an offensive back, and Hoekeman's fins work in the Dartmouth game gives him the edge over Butterfield as a signal caller. Hoekeman's defensive play against the pass is also rated above Butterfield.

DARTMOUTH SELECTS MACPHAIL AS CAPTAIN

Green Football Men Pick Back to Lead Eleven Into Action Next Season.

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 18 (AP).—Robert MacPhail of Arlington, Mass., today was elected captain of the 1927 Dartmouth football team. MacPhail, a member of the junior class, has alternated as regular halfback and quarterback for two years.

Through much of this season MacPhail acted as captain because of injuries which kept Captain Newman Horton from several games. MacPhail also is a varsity hockey player.

Wesleyan Eleven Elects Fortin.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Nov. 18.—At a meeting of the varsity soccer team at Wesleyan today Philip F. Fortin of New Bedford, Mass., was elected captain. Fortin is a junior.

Middies Warned Against Ticket Scalping

TO EXPEL MIDDIES WHO SELL TICKETS

Commandant Lines Up Navy Students and Issues Warning—Two Scalpers Trapped.

DRIVEN FROM ANNAPOLIS

Fish's Charges Challenged by Congressman's Secretary Who Demands Names of Alleged Gougers.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 18.—Rear Admiral Louis Nulton, Commandant of the Navy Academy, today lined up the midshipmen and warned them that any caught selling Army-Navy game tickets would be immediately dismissed.

The Commandant's action followed the hustling out of town of two ticket scalpers who were trying to buy tickets at $40 each. According to the prevailing scale, it is thought that the tickets could be resold for as much as $100 apiece.

The two scalpers arrived here yesterday. Naval officers say that they arranged with a storekeeper near the academy grounds to tip off the midshipmen to the fact that there was a market in Annapolis for the service game tickets.

News of this got to Commander Jesse H. Ingram, Athletic Director. He called in two midshipmen, gave them two tickets for the game and told them to go out and see what they could get for them.

Receive $80 Apiece for Two.

The two middies learned from the storekeeper about the men and paid them a call. They handed over the tickets for $80 each.

Today Commander Ingram, Lieut. Commander W. A. Richardson of the Athletic Department and Lieut. Commander James M. Lewis, instructor in seamanship, visited the scalpers.

They protested they were not violating any law and were only buying tickets from civilians. After they had been made to understand that the naval officers knew they had bought tickets from midshipmen, they admitted the transaction.

They handed back the tickets and received what they had paid for them. They were informed that they were violating a law through unauthorized contact with midshipmen and agreed to leave Annapolis.

Secretary Answers Fish.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (AP).—Congressmen's secretaries may have to take the blame for a lot of Congressional missteps, but one of them bluntly told Representative Hamilton Fish of New York today that it would not be so easy to saddle the secretarial fraternity with an Army-Navy football ticket scandal.

The New York Representative dropped some remarks about ticket-scalping by unnamed secretaries, and today R. J. Bourke, secretary to Representative Bacharach of New Jersey, replied that he had heard of some big-scale ticket operations on the part of Congressmen themselves. Bourke not only invited the investigation Fish hinted at, but asked the New York member to name the secretaries to whom he had referred, so that his utterances would not lead the country to believe that all secretaries are crooks.

"I presume that Mr. Fish could also call before the Investigating Committee the members of Congress who have bought up these tickets right and left at whatever price they could get them for," said Bourke. "It is common knowledge that through an arrangement with the South Side Athletic Association of Chicago the members of Congress were permitted to buy as many tickets as they wanted, while the supply lasted, at prices ranging from $10 to $15 a ticket, and I understand that a number of members bought as many as a hundred tickets each under this privilege."

Replies to Bourke.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18 (AP).—Edward J. Kelly of the South Park Commission, in charge of ticket distribution for the Army-Navy game here next week, said tonight that approximately 12,000 tickets were sold to Senators and Representatives.

His statement was in reply to charges of R. J. Bourke, secretary to Representative Bacharach of New York, who told of "big scale ticket operations" by Congressmen.

"They were allotted their ratio share, as long as the tickets lasted, at prices ranging from $10 to $15," he said.

ARMY ELEVENS TO PLAY.

Fort Hamilton and 18th Infantry Teams in Title Game Sunday.

The third game of the football championship of the 2d Corps Area will be played at Fort Hamilton on Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, between the Fort Hamilton eleven and the 18th Infantry team from Fort Slocum. The visitors will enter the fray slight favorites, due to the injuries to Doc Steel and Patsy Clate, two of the Black and Gold stars.

Sunday's game is the critical one of the series as the winner will play in the final encounter on the following Sunday at Fort Hamilton. The champions of this district will meet the West Point regulars, champion eleven, in two weeks.

TIGER ELEVEN TO DINE.

Will Be Guests of Princeton Club of This City Here Tonight.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 18.—Members of Princeton's Big Three championship football team will be the guests of the Princeton Club of New York tomorrow evening at dinner and a theatre party. On Saturday the team will leave for New Haven to attend the Yale-Harvard game, which to all intents and purposes will be the last Big Three football contest. The team will be the guest of the Princeton Athletic Association for the game.

The twenty-five men who will leave here tomorrow for the week-end are Baldwin, Baruch, Bartell, Bridges, Casey, Caulkins, Chandler, Darby, Davi-Ewing, French, Howe, Keith Lawler, Meislahn, Miles, Moeser, Prendergast, Requardt, Rosengarten, Slagle, Stinson, Weekes, Willauer and Williams.

Maryville Beats Carson-Newman.

MARYVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 18 (AP).—The Maryville eleven was successful in its football game with Carson-Newman here today, winning by 10 to 6.

Titles Practically Decided in Three Football Sectors

Alabama Has Won Southern Honors, While Notre Dame and Stanford Top Fields in Middle West and on Coast—N. Y. U. Should Beat Nebraska if It Utilizes Resources to Full Extent.

By ALLISON DANZIG.

The championship eleven in three sections of the country has practically been decided already. Alabama has won the Southern Conference title; Notre Dame, by virtue of its victories over Northwestern and Minnesota and the fact that it is the only unbeaten team in its section playing a major schedule, must be regarded as the outstanding eleven in the Middle West, and on the Pacific Coast Stanford is the only team that has neither been beaten nor tied. St. Mary's has not lost a game but was held to a scoreless tie by Gonzaga.

Stanford must win from California tomorrow, but in view of the fact that Nibs Price's team has lost 5 out of 8 games there is slight prospects that it will defeat the Cardinals. Southern California is probably as strong as Stanford, but because it lost to Glenn Warner's team by the margin of a point Stanford has first claim on the title.

In the East, four teams that have won all their games are still in the running for sectional honors. They are Navy, Brown, New York University and Lafayette. Lafayette has the best chance of finishing the season unbeaten. Herb McCracken's team faces Lehigh tomorrow in its concluding game and has shown so much the greater strength of the two that Percy Wendell's eleven is hardly given more than an outside chance. Lafayette has lost Cothran, and Lehigh showed considerable improvement in winning its first game of the season from Rutgers, and these two teams always point for each other, but nevertheless, Lafayette is an almost prohibitive favorite.

Navy, with Army in its path, New York University invading Nebraska, and Brown, with Colgate ahead, face pretty nearly their hardest tests of the season. Army's feat in holding Notre Dame to 7 points makes the Cadets look as big as a mountain to the Midshipmen, who had tronbles of their own getting by Georgetown. The Army line is probably every bit as good as Navy's, and in Wilson and Murrell the cadets have two backs who are more to be feared than are the light Navy carriers, as fast as they may be.

Goudge and Caldwell of Navy are clever runners, and Shapley, in the Georgetown game, showed a return to his 1925 form that was welcomed by Coach Ingram, but there is more power in the Army backfield. Navy, with Hamilton to do the passing, looks to be more dangerous through the air than the cadets, who used the pass with poor results against Notre Dame. Army is a bit the better fortified at the ends, with Born and Harbold, though Lloyd, Williamson, Hardwick and Bagdanovitch of Navy are all wings of better than average ability.

In taking a young and rather inexperienced team to Nebraska Chick Meehan's biggest job is to make his boys forget about the giants in goblin land who are waiting to get them if they don't watch out. Eastern teams invading the wide open spaces always have this giant complex to overcome, and Meehan and Joe Schwarzer have been West enough to know that the bigger they come the harder they can fall.

Nebraska is a strong team, but it is no world beater. The only team it has beaten of any real strength is the Kansas Aggies, and the margin was 3-0. The Aggies are no set-up, but they lost to Marquette at 14-0. Missouri defeated Nebraska early in the season, and while the latter has improved since then it has done nothing to show that it is stronger than N. Y. U. In defeating Carnegie Tech, Davis and Elkins, West Virginia Wesleyan, Tulane and Fordham, the Violet has given unquestionable evidence of great power. Fumbling and a tendency to let down in the continuity of its attack near the enemy's goal line have marred the work of the team, but if it makes the most of its power in the backfield and strength in the line it should defeat Nebraska.

Brown faces New Hampshire this week and Colgate on Thanksgiving Day. New Hampshire defeated the hitherto unbeaten Maine team last Saturday, but should make little headway against McLaughry's outfit. Colgate will be another story on Thanksgiving Day. Let it not be forgotten that Colgate would have to be ranked on a par with Navy had it not been for a fumble by the Maroon on Navy's 1-yard line in the last minute. Colgate is stronger probably than any team Brown has met thus far, and if it had not lost Helwig, whom Coach Hauser declared is a shiftier back than Tryon, we would rate it the equal of Brown.

Almost anything may happen tomorrow when Yale meets Harvard. Yale looked the better of the two on Saturday, but that was partly because Harvard faced the stiffer opposition. It is worth noting that Coach McLaughry and his line coach assistant, Ed McMillan, captain and centre of Princeton last year, declared after the game Saturday that Harvard had the best line Brown has met this season. McMillan stated that Harvard played "more aggressive, harder football than any Harvard team which I have ever seen, which dates back to the days of George Owen and Charley Buell."

Yale will probably have more strength on the left side of the line, with Guy Richards at tackle and Sturhahn at guard, but Harvard has a strong pair of tackles in Pratt and Captain Coady and the better centre in Gamache, who is strong in backing up the line. The Harvard ends probably have a shade over the Eli wings, but it looks as if Yale's gains must be made around the ends rather than through the centre of the Crimson line which was a stone wall to the plunges of Cornsweet of Brown.

The Elis are better fortified in the back field, with Kline at full, Bunnell at quarter and Noble, Holabird, Failing, Hoben, Godwine and McGunigle for the halves, but the return of Guarnaccia will add strength to the Crimson attack, and Eben Clark may add still more. Just who will start in the Harvard back field Coach Horween is keeping a secret. Yale's passing game has looked the better, though the Brown coaches said that they found Harvard's the harder to break up, while both teams are fortified with field goal kickers—Yale with Bunnell, Failing, McGunigle, Goodwine and Wadsworth, and Harvard with Chauncey.

Kevorkian, guard on Brown, has a lot of respect for the Harvard line. He is quoted as saying, "That Harvard line charge was terrific. They certainly whipped their hands into us when they were on the defense—legally, of course. There is not a man in our line who has not at least one mark to remember the game by."

Pennsylvania is probably glad that it has enlarged Franklin Field, now that relations have been resumed with Harvard for the first time since 1905. The stadium, which has a capacity of 83,500, hasn't been filled this season, but every seat will probably be at a premium when Harvard invades Philadelphia next year. However, the capacity mark is likely to be reached when Cornell plays Penn on Thanksgiving Day.

GOUDGE WORKS OUT WITH NAVY SQUAD

Midshipmen Welcome Return of Quarter, Who Was Injured in Georgetown Game.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 18.—There was much satisfaction at the Naval Academy this afternoon over the presence on the field of Maurice Goudge, quarterback in the Michigan and Georgetown games.

Goudge was in uniform and took part in the less severe parts of the practice. He injured his leg in the Georgetown game and it was feared that he would not be able to play against the Army.

In the varsity back field this afternoon were Hannegan, Caldwell and Hamilton, with Schuber taking Goudge's place during the more strenuous part of the work. One or the other will start at quarterback in the final game. They are both light, weighing about 155 pounds, but active and alert players and particularly good in the defense against passes.

Osborn was at centre today, again indicating that he is first choice for the place and will probably start against the Army. He is being chosen over Warren and Horner largely because of his greater experience. He played the position regularly for two seasons, but lost out for a time on account of illness at the beginning of this season.

The varsity took part in a modified scrimmage this afternoon, Ingram and his assistants drilling it in the new offensive playe and also in defensive work.

A second line-up, with Shapley, O'Neill, Milliken and Parish in the back field, had a more active scrimmage against a part of Squad B, Shapley carrying the ball brilliantly. Some attention is also being given each day to punting and getting down under kicks. These have been weaknesses of the Navy team this year.

PENN STATE DRILLS IN RAIN

Watery Field and Heavy Downpour Fail to Keep Squad Indoors.

Special to The New York Times.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Nov. 18.—Beaver Field resembled a lake today and the rain came down in torrents, but it failed to halt practice for Penn State. With the Pitt game only a week away, the coaches did not feel that they could afford to miss another day of drill, so the first and second elevens were sent through a short scrimmage.

There are probably few college teams that would have undertaken outdoor practice on a day like this, but the Lions went into their work with a will.

Handling of the ball was difficult, but the varsity backs showed an ability to handle the pigskin under the most adverse conditions. The only absentee from practice was Hasting, veteran guard, who is still on the hospital list.

SCRUBS SCRIMMAGE IN CADET WORKOUT

Varsity Practice Is Confined to Signals and Defensive Drill on Navy Plays.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 18.—While Army's second eleven was engaging the B squad in scrimmage today the varsity men did group work, then received intensive individual instruction from the position coaches and later were sent through a sharp signal practice, finishing the afternoon's work with a brief defensive drill against Navy formations.

Several changes were made in the varsity line-up as the practice proceeded. Daly remained at centre throughout, but at the guards, Seeman relieved Hammack after a short period of play end Sprague gave way to Perry. Toward the end of the workout Brentnall was sent in for Born at right end.

Harding directed the team in its offensive, but a host of ball-carriers were tried out. Harry Wilson, Baby Dahl, Murrell, Cagle, Hewitt, Trapnell, Gilbreth and O'Donnell were among the backs in action.

The Cadets have won the last two Navy games by virtue of points made on drop kicks. Ed Garbisch kicked the Army to victory two years ago and last year Red Reeder's field goal was a factor in the Army's victory. Today Red Cunningham had an hour of drop-kicking and his work was fair.

BIG TEN LEADERS AWAIT FINAL TEST

Michigan and Northwestern Will Share Season's Honors if Each Wins Its Game Tomorrow.

WOLVERINES EXPECT FIGHT

Look for Minnesota to Give Them Hardest Battle of Year, While Purple Faces Iowa.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18 (AP).—Conquerors last year of Michigan by one point, Northwestern conceded the Western Conference title to the Wolverines despite their victory, for Michigan had won fivee games and lost one while Northwestern had won only three and lost to Chicago.

This year Northwestern and Michigan stand together unbeaten as the teams come through Saturday there will be no such gracious gesture by the Purple as it made last ysar in the season nears its end, and if both Wolverines' direction.

Both teams have won four games and lost none this season, and if Northwestern beats Iowa and Michigan downe Minnesota Saturday the teams will share the Big Ten championship. For Michigan a title will be more or less a matter of course, but for Northwestern it will be the first in history.

The Purple is preparing for the Hawkeyes this week with an eye to the adage that pride precedes a fall. Ten years ago Northwestern won four straight Conference games, only to be routed by Ohio State and nosed out of a title in the final game.

At Minnesota the four Norsemen of the Gopher backfield have high hopes of puncturing the Michigan balloon. Followers call the Gopher team the strongest since midseason which has represented Minnesota since Bert Baston's day, and Michigan, aware of the improvement of the foe since early season, is preparing for its hardest contest of 1926.

LAFAYETTE DRILLS FOR LEHIGH GAME

Varsity Opposes Team Using Plays of Old Rivals for Battle Tomorrow.

Special to The New York Times.

EASTON, Pa., Nov. 18.—With Warner and Thompson making good as guards in the line, the Lafayette football team went through a snappy signal drill on March Field this afternoon, in preparation for the big game with Lehigh on Saturday. The signal drill was followed by a shadow scrimmage with Assistant Coach Gouriey's "Lehigh" team, composed of the Maroon scrubs. In this drill Gouriey uncorked the plays used by Lehigh on Saturday when it defeated Rutgers.

The team will leave for Saylors Lake tomorrow afternoon, where they will spend the night before the game. The entire squad will be taken to the mountains and will not return until the morning of the game.

LEHIGH TRAINING ENDED.

Last Workout of Season Is Drill for Lafayette Contest.

Special to The New York Times.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Nov. 18.—Football practice at Lehigh University was virtually completed for the 1926 season today, when Coach Percy Wendell sent his charges through their last hard workout in preparing for the Lafayette game on Saturday afternoon.

This afternoon Coach Wendell declined to announce even a tentative line-up for his team to start against Lafayette.

YOST DISCREDITS SHIFT.

Few Teams Use It and It Causes Ill Feeling, Says Michigan Coach.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 18 (AP).—The shift play, which for years was a strong part of the Minnesota football attack, is done away with if present rules are enforced, according to Coach Fielding H. Yost of the University of Michigan.

Violation of the "full stop" rule in the case of the shift play, Yost said today as the team entrained for Minneapolis, is the cause of more ill feeling between players and more dissension among officials than all violations combined.

"I know of no more than three or four major teams in America using the shift play today. What possible advantage is there in shifting when the players have to come to a full stop and maintain immobility before resuming play?" Yost said.

National Guard Orders.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 18.—These National Guard orders were bulletined today:

Mortenson, Capt. L. W., 101st Cav., commissioned for assignment to Hdqrs. as plan and training officer.

French, Capt. H. Q. S.R.L., honorably discharged.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 18.—The disturbance that was central over Illinois Wednesday night has made little progress and is now centred near Milwaukee with considerably decreased intensity. A secondary disturbance that developed over the southern Appalachian region during Wednesday night has moved northeastward to the Middle Atlantic States with slowly increasing intensity.

Pressure is relatively lower and falling west of the Rocky Mountains and a disturbance is apparently central off the Oregon coast. High pressure prevails from the Canadian Northwest south-southeastward to the Gulf of Mexico and from Quebec southward to Bermuda with centres over Northern Saskatchewan Louisiana and the Gulf of St. Lawrence. The temperature has fallen from the southern lake region southward to the East Gulf coast and in the Far Northwest and it is now much below normal almost generally between the Rocky and the Appalachian Mountains.

The indications are for rain in New England Friday and local snows Friday and probably Saturday in the lower lake region, the extreme upper Ohio Valley and the interior of New York. Otherwise generally fair weather will prevail Friday and Saturday east of the Mississippi River. The temperature will be lower Friday in the Middle Atlantic and the North Atlantic States and the lower lake region, but it will rise slowly in the East Gulf States Friday and Saturday and in the South Atlantic States on Saturday.

Storm warnings are displayed on the Atlantic Coast north of New York City to Boston, Mass.

COUNTRY-WIDE WEATHER CONDITIONS.

In the following record of observations at United States Weather Bureau stations yesterday, the temperatures given are the highest during the twelve hours from 8 A. M. to 8 P. M. and the lowest during the preceding twelve hours from 8 P. M. to 8 A. M.; the barometer reading and condition of weather are those recorded at 8 P. M., and the rainfall is for the twenty-four hours ended at 8 P. M.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Dick Leonard is now special Pacific Coast representative for Marcus Klepper & Co., coat manufacturers, 230 West Thirty-eighth Street. He was formerly with Sperber, Frank & Engel and Mannie Kagle.

Nathan Feldan and Stanley Y. Starrett have been added to the sales staff of Albert H. Stamper, hosiery, 93 Worth Street. The former will cover New York City, Baltimore, Philadelphia and the Eastern States. The latter will have charge of the Chicago office at 180 West Adams Street and, in addition, will travel Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa and Missouri. Mr. Stamper has been appointed selling agent for the Riverside Hosiery Mills, Haw River, N. C.

Irving E. Schloss is now Southern representative of Country Club Dress, Inc., W. Avedon Company and the Lawrence Silver Company, whose offerings he will sell in conjunction with his coat lines. He has associated himself with Allan Klein, formerly representing Ullman & Jessel in the same territory. Irving Levine has withdrawn

Learn to Play a Harmonica via Radio

AS a result of popular response to the musical and instruction programs broadcast during the past two years by the manufacturers of Hohner Harmonicas, a third series of unique entertainments and instruction will be broadcast

TONIGHT at 8:30 O'Clock
Eastern Standard Time and every other Friday night from

WEAF - New York
WEEI - Boston
WLIT - Philadelphia
WGR - Buffalo
WRC - Washington
WCAE - Pittsburgh
WTAM - Cleveland
WWJ - Detroit
WLIB - Chicago

Mr. Douglas Wakefield Coutlee will be at the microphone and announce the musical numbers, ranging from the "old time" jazz selections to operatic compositions.

Mr. Wm. J. Haussler, well-known harmonica expert, will demonstrate how easy it is to play a harmonica with the aid of the Free Instruction Book, procurable at dealers, through the stations, or direct from M. Hohner, Inc., 114 East 16th Street, New York City.

If you want to enjoy one of the most popular features "on the air" and learn to play a harmonica for pleasure or profit, secure a copy of the Free Instruction Book and "tune in" tonight for the Music

as you never before heard it reproduced!

RCA Loudspeaker 104, complete, $275

Operates on 50-60 cycle, 110 volt A.C. lighting circuit. Eliminates the "B" batteries of most sets. With RCA Radiola 25 or 28, it is particularly fine, and, with an adapter, it eliminates all batteries.

RCA has added a radio speaker to the list of fine musical instruments! The Loudspeaker 104 has made radio music in the home truer and more perfect than reproduced music ever was before.

With the cooperation of RCA, the principles of this power speaker have been adopted into phonographs, too. It was the pioneer—far ahead of its time—and now still ahead in tried and perfected performance.

It is clear at a whisper—clear at the volume of an orchestra . . . real, always!

Commercial Paper.

[illegible] per cent. for the best names, [illegible] per cent. for the best [illegible]. These rates are for six months' paper.

Gray Goods Did Well.

[illegible] goods sold well in this [illegible]day, as well as print-[illegible] the heavy sheetings business [illegible] in 40-inch 2.85s at 9¾ cents [illegible] delivery. December-January [illegible] 3.75-yard sheetings [illegible] cents, and for late Decem-[illegible] buyers paid 7 cents for [illegible]. In the lighter sheetings [illegible] was done in 37-inch 48-square, [illegible] goods at 6½ cents for deliv-[illegible] January through March. For [illegible] buyers paid 5¾ cents, the [illegible] in this case extending from [illegible] through April. Drill sales were [illegible] active than on Wednes-[illegible] a nice volume was done [illegible] constructions. Sales of [illegible] included spot 64-40 pajama [illegible] cents, with 7¾ cents the [illegible] be done on 72-80s. A [illegible] was done in rayon warp [illegible] the day, and shirtings [illegible] also. Trading in 100-60 [illegible] the embraced spot sales [illegible] and January deliveries at [illegible]. The latter price is the best [illegible] be done now for February.

Orders for Novelty Jewelry.

[illegible] jewelry which is meeting [illegible] excellent demand, the long [illegible] is an outstanding item. [illegible] popular length, according to [illegible] here, is the one of sixty [illegible] smaller graduated choker [illegible] also much called for. Vari-[illegible] with imitation precious [illegible] likewise moving well, par-[illegible] with rhinestones and [illegible]. Importers here are [illegible] merchandise in great pro-[illegible] are said to be receiv-[illegible] attention in the popular-[illegible].

Late Demand for Toys.

[illegible] retail toy demand as yet [illegible] a chance to expand, there [illegible] last-minute activity in [illegible] trade. Because of [illegible] warm weather, consumer [illegible] of the merchandise is develop-[illegible] later than last year, but [illegible] to be every indication [illegible] season. In the wholesale [illegible] are receiving the bulk of [illegible] with "mama" and in-[illegible] most attention. The [illegible] placed in dolls was a [illegible] to most manufacturers. [illegible] mechanical and instructive [illegible] had the advantage of a [illegible] business and the retail [illegible] these are expected to com-[illegible] consumer interest. [illegible] are being actively pre-[illegible] manufacturers and will [illegible] in the new year.

[illegible] Had a Good Day.

[illegible] the busiest days in some time [illegible] in the printcloth end [illegible] gray goods market yester-[illegible] took 38½-inch 64-60s in a [illegible] of this construction. [illegible] deliveries at 6¾ [illegible] shipments at 6¾ cents. [illegible] and March deliveries at [illegible]. The best that can be done [illegible] February-March lots is 6¾ [illegible] business was put through [illegible] at 7⅛ cents, and there [illegible] for January in 39-inch [illegible] cents. An eighth more [illegible] for the latter construc-[illegible] same delivery. December-[illegible] of 38½-inch 44-40s [illegible] cents, while for deliv-[illegible] month and next buyers paid [illegible] 38½-inch 60-48s. This was [illegible] sixteenth of a cent over the [illegible] price on these goods.

[illegible] for Model Imports.

[illegible] model gowns should re-[illegible] customs treatment on [illegible] according to the results [illegible] sent out by the Na-[illegible] of American Importers [illegible] Inc. A report on the mat-[illegible] at a meeting yesterday [illegible] of Directors of the coun-[illegible] Hotel Astor. It had been [illegible] when models were im-[illegible] trunks as passengers' bag-[illegible] them as such, thus in-[illegible] deliveries to retailers [illegible] interested. Recently, how-[illegible] privilege was withdrawn, and [illegible] have been made by [illegible] throughout the country. The [illegible] results of the poll will be [illegible] Assistant Collector of the [illegible] Stuart, who has consented [illegible] the matter every consideration.

[illegible] More Activity in Coats.

[illegible] in the wholesale de-[illegible] women's Fall cloth coats, [illegible] are manufacturers who fore-[illegible] considerable activity still to come [illegible] merchandise. They claim that [illegible] few retailers have insufficient [illegible] to take care of a sudden rush [illegible] buying in case of a cold-[illegible]. It is pointed out that stocks of [illegible] coats in the market here are [illegible] low and that anything like a [illegible] demand would result in a scram-[illegible] for merchandise. Meanwhile, prices [illegible] than they were, and better [illegible] as to fabrics, trimmings and [illegible] are being produced.

Men's Robes Selling Well.

Men's house and lounging robes are [illegible] active demand for the holiday sea-[illegible] the buying being described as of [illegible] larger proportions than [illegible] year. Novelty silk robes are [illegible] particularly well, the designs in-[illegible] jacquard and brocade effects. [illegible] collars are featured in the mer-[illegible] with satin employed for [illegible]. Blanket robes in various [illegible] are also well ordered, the [illegible] running to "Indian," ombre [illegible] small figured effects. Flannel [illegible] are meeting with a good call. In [illegible] blazer stripe designs are out-[illegible].

Wondering About Spring Prices.

In the absence of important business [illegible] underwear end of the local knit [illegible] trade, there is considerable spec-[illegible] as to when the first lines of [illegible] heavyweights will be priced for 1927 [illegible] what these prices will be. Last [illegible], it was pointed out yesterday [illegible] Southern lines were priced [illegible] a dozen for 14-pound ribbed [illegible], at $9.62½ a dozen for 16-pound [illegible] and [illegible] a dozen for 10-pound [illegible] and drawers for the first quar-[illegible]. Although nothing yet has been [illegible] definitely, there is a growing be-[illegible] that initial prices on 1927 Southern [illegible] will be based on $8 for the 14-[illegible] pound unions. There is a chance that [illegible] price may be bettered when the [illegible] openings actually take place, but [illegible] whether it will or not is anybody's [illegible] guess. In the heavyweight business [illegible] pressing for "at once" delivery, [illegible] the call is all for small lots, with the [illegible] numerous requests for express ship-[illegible] ments still a feature.

Gun Metal Hose Still Lead.

The continued heavy demand for gun-[illegible] metal hose with black heels is still the [illegible] feature of the business being done here [illegible] in the finer grades of full-fashioned [illegible] silk hosiery. One of the leading pro-[illegible] ducers of this merchandise is sold up [illegible] for the rest of the year on one line of [illegible] gunmetals, and on the other line it [illegible] cannot make deliveries [illegible] on new orders under three weeks. [illegible] Other makers of the goods are in a [illegible] strong position on this color. [illegible] shades continue to sell in a large [illegible] way for street wear, despite predic-[illegible] tions earlier in the season that the [illegible] vogue for them would slowly wane. [illegible] Contrary to this, nude hose are close [illegible] to the top of the best-selling colors in [illegible] the quantity of goods in question. For [illegible] evening wear a nice business is re-[illegible] ported here in mauve hues, with the [illegible] call for light or flesh pink [illegible] still a feature.

Special to The New York Times.

MOBILE, Ala., Nov. 18.—The Jefferson Dairies Company at Birmingham, Ala., which went into the hands of a receiver about a year ago, was sold to the highest bidder for $109,000 today before Judge E. H. Dryer, referee in bankruptcy. The purchaser was P. W. Ferris of New York, who it is understood intends to enlarge the plant. Mr. Ferris heads a company doing an extensive dairy business in New York. The purchase price, according to Judge Dryer, includes all the property of the company except assets of $14,000 reserved by the trustee. All the liens on the company will be taken care of and a substantial dividend paid to unsecured creditors from the amount realized, Judge Dryer said.

It Was Not Wholly Choice.

A ready-to-wear merchandising executive for one of the largest department stores in the country is authority for the statement that the "trading up" movement instituted by leading apparel retailers several months ago was not started wholly as the result of a desire on their part to handle better merchandise. According to this authority, there was that angle to the situation, but there was also another and more important one. This was that increasing dissatisfaction on the part of customers regarding the fit and quality of the garments handled by the average store was driving business to the specialty shops and to the dressmakers. The latter, in particular, were said by her to be benefiting from the constant plugging of the stores to "beat last year" at almost any cost, and reports from the dressmaker supply houses indicate that their increased business bears out this statement. Realizing the situation that constant "trading down" was creating, many of the stores saw the need of facing in the other direction.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Irregular Decline in Stocks—Money Unchanged, Franc Rises Further.

The advance in the franc stood out beyond all the rest of yesterday's financial movements. Under exceptionally large purchases, the price reached 3½ cents; the highest since April 5, barely 10 per cent. below the year's top figure and 80 per cent. above its lowest. Simultaneously, the pound sterling fell at Paris to 140⅞ in francs, and it declined nearly ½ cent on Wall Street. But sterling's movement almost certainly reflected sales to transfer French capital from London to Paris, or, put in another way, to shift the principal from sterling to francs. The action of sterling is natural when the "repatriation movement" of French money has now acquired fairly spectacular momentum. Granted complete return of confidence by French people in their Government's currency-reform plans, the homeward movement of French capital would naturally be accentuated in proportion to the franc's advance; for each successive rise in the franc necessarily makes the transfer more expensive.

No change occurred in the New York money market yesterday, but the Reserve system's weekly statement pointed toward easier money. Total rediscounts of the twelve Reserve banks fell to the lowest figure since the middle of August, and their gold holdings rose to the highest of the year. The Stock Exchange, however, made no response to signs of an improving credit position. Notwithstanding occasional efforts to bid up prices, the general trend was downward.

At the end net changes for the day were mostly fractional; but industrial shares which figured in the recent violent upward and downward movements were manifestly under pressure. Several of them declined 2 to 4 points, though regaining part of the lost ground before the close. Like the markets of preceding days this week, the declines apparently meant nothing but the conclusion of speculators that there is visible at present no underlying force making for noteworthy changes in an upward direction. Professional Wall Street can make good use of a speculative "outside public" if that public is disposed to buy; but it cannot force the outsider to enter the market, and it cannot put up stocks very far without him.

Yesterday's statement by the Bank of France largely explained the return flow of capital and the movement of the franc; it gave vivid reflection, both to the rapidly growing strength of the Treasury's position and to the progress toward currency reform. Reduction of 862,700,000 francs in the outstanding paper currency during the week would of itself have attracted notice, but the striking consideration is that, whereas note issues were increased 1,072,000,000 francs at the month-end settlement, they have been reduced 1,586,000,000 in the subsequent fortnight. The total currency outstanding is 1,367,000,000 less than a month ago and 3,194,000,000 below the maximum figure, reached in August. There has been no such sweeping reduction in any three months' period of the bank's history.

It has been made possible primarily by the French Treasury's equally remarkable handling of that mischief-making agency in all the depreciated wartime currencies—the State's borrowings from the bank. This machinery for indirect output of fiat money had by last July created a debt of 38,350,000,000 francs. The sum has now been cut to 35,850,000,000 and, of this 2,500,000,000 reduction, one billion has been effected in the past month and 300,000,000 in the last week. Both the note issue and the Government's borrowings are still abnormally inflated and far above this date in 1925, but the evidence is convincing that the finance ministry has the situation thoroughly in hand. With restored public credit and a budget surplus, it might have already accomplished more, but bank and Government are wisely moving slowly. As yet, the contraction of the currency and rise in the franc have had much less disturbing effect on French trade than might have been expected. In October the franc rose 11½ per cent., yet an export surplus of a billion francs is reported for the month, the largest in more than a year.

Of the Bank of England, it need only be said that the gain of £939,000 gold for the week is not only the first increase reported since the middle of September but that it compares with a loss of £378,000 in this week in 1925. It brings the bank's gold holdings £5,319,000 above the total of a year ago.

ORGANIZE BANK OF WORLD SCOPE

World-Wide Institution to Be Called American, British & Continental Formed.

CAPITALIZED AT $14,000,000

Major Concerns in Great Britain, France, Germany and Other Countries Are Included.

Formation of a world-wide banking institution, to be known as the American, British and Continental Corporation, was announced yesterday by the J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation and Blyth, Witter & Co. The institution, which will engage in international finance, will be made up of major banking interests in Great Britain, France, Germany, Belgium, Switzerland, the Netherlands, Austria, Sweden, Hungary and Czechoslovakia. The certificate of incorporation was filed yesterday morning in Wilmington, Del., and reveals that the corporation will operate along the lines of an investment trust.

In connection with the organization of the new institution, the Schroder Corporation and Blyth, Witter & Co. issued the following statement:

"It is expected that the capitalization of the American, British and Continental Corporation will be approximately $14,000,000, comprising 100,000 shares of 6 per cent. first preferred stock, 40,000 shares of 6 per cent. second preferred stock and 400,000 shares of common stock, all without par value. Additional capital as required by the expansion of the corporation's business can be obtained up to an amount of $14,000,000 through the issuance of debentures as provided in the corporation's charter and without increasing the capital stock.

"So far as can be learned, the American, British and Continental Corporation is the first corporation organized in this country in direct association with leading banking interests of England and the Continent to engage in domestic and foreign investment operations. The purpose underlying the formation of the corporation is to take advantage of the world-wide investment opportunities of a broadly diversified nature, many of which cannot be handled through existing channels."

The J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation of New York, affiliated with J. Henry Schroder & Co. of London, will share equally with Blyth, Witter & Co. in the control of the new corporation. In addition to J. Henry Schroder & Co. the other European banking institutions which will be members of the corporation are: Banque de L'Union Parisienne, Paris; Dresdner Bank, Berlin; Société de Generale de Belgique, Brussels; Credit Suisse, Switzerland; Allgemeine Osterreichische Boden-Credit-Anstalt, Vienna, Stockholms Enskilda Bank, Stockholm; Hungarian Commercial Bank of Pesth, Budapest; Lipmann, Rosenthal & Co., Amsterdam, and Boehmische Union Bank, Prague.

RAIL EQUIPMENT MEN HOLD ANNUAL MEETING

Adopt Resolutions Approving I. C. C. and Opposing Special Legislation on Rates.

The Railway Business Association, a national body of manufacturers of railway equipment, material and supplies, held its annual meeting yesterday in the Hotel Commodore.

Resolutions were adopted urging that in the establishing of transportation rate levels the strengthening of the market for railway stock be kept in view; opposing all measures which would tend to impair the independence of the Interstate Commerce Commission; opposing regional appointment of Interstate Commerce Commissioners; opposing legislative rate-making, including bills for repeal of the Pullman surcharge; favoring retention by the commission of its discretion to grant relief from the long-and-short-haul section, and favoring exclusion of coercive features from any legislation in furtherance of railway unifications.

Reasonable governmental regulation of motor vehicles in the interest of the public was recommended with a view to restricting automobile common carriers and other motor vehicles in so far as it should be necessary to preserve use of the highways for other traffic for which they were built, with fair liability for expenses of road repairs.

It was declared that the railroad problem that most concerned farmers was maintenance by the carriers of proper transportation facilities, and that rates on farm freight were secondary to service and markets.

Inequality between the normal income tax rate of 5 per cent. affecting individuals and partnerships and that of 13½ per cent. affecting corporations was charged, and it was recommended that the tax rate for corporations be reduced.

"The Supply Industry and Future Railway Progress" was the subject of a discussion in which addresses were made by Roy V. Wright, managing editor of The Railway Age and editor of The Railway Mechanical Engineer; A. H. Mulliken, A. C. Moore and S. O. Dunn.

Four new Vice President were elected: W. L. Conwell, New York; George A. Martin, Cleveland; M. G. Truman, Chicago, and Harry Scullin, St. Louis. Officers re-elected were Vice Presidents Samuel B. Hastings of Chicago, B. L. Winchell of New York and Herbert I. Lord of Detroit; the President, A. B. Johnson of Philadelphia, and the Treasurer, P. Harvey Middleton of Philadelphia. The Secretary is Frank W. Noxon.

Liquid Carbonic Net $1,134,933.

In its initial annual report, covering the twelve months ended Sept. 30, the Liquid Carbonic Corporation reports net income of $1,134,933, after all charges, taxes, and reserves, which is equivalent to $11.34 a share on the common stock. Net sales were $10,641,457. The balance sheet as of Sept. 30 shows current assets of $7,247,832, against current liabilities of $2,540,000. The corporation was formed last July to purchase the assets and business of the Liquid Carbonic Company.

Guardian Coal Buys 321 Acres.

The Guardian Coal and Oil Company announced yesterday that it had purchased 321 acres of land adjoining its properties in Webster County, W. Va. The land owned now covers 7,700 acres and is three miles long and five miles wide at its widest point. The company's first mining unit has gone into production with an initial output of 200 tons of Eagle coal daily.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and in the Financial Markets.

In the irregular price movements which characterized trading on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday there were periods of downright weakness, and at no time was there pronounced strength except in a few individual issues. Operations for the advance were carried on in a more or less half-hearted manner at various times, but the weakness of such "pivotal issues" as United States Steel common and General Motors discouraged efforts to bring about a sustained rise. Steel, still reactionary under the influence of official repudiation of rumors of an extra dividend, led a considerable part of the list in a slow, orderly decline. At the close an impressive group of representative stocks was ranged on the minus side. This included Allied Chemical, Atchison, Coca-Cola, du Pont, New York Canners, Pullman Company and Woolworth. Among the few issues which showed substantial net gains at the close were sugar stocks.

Factors in the Balance.

At a recent conference of economists in Boston an attempt was made to sum up both sides of the picture in the business situation. Five favorable and four unfavorable factors were found and these are regarded as coming so near to summing up in a few words the general situation that they have been reprinted liberally as advice by a broker-house in Wall Street. The chief elements of strength are thus enumerated: Lack of swollen inventories, lack of inflated prices, hand-to-month buying and the close alignment of production to consumption, the extraordinarily strong financial position of industrial companies, the ease and abundance of credit. On the adverse side of the picture, the following factors were developed: The tendency during the last month or two for business profits to decline, strong indication of lessened activity in building, the more rapid decline of farm prices and industrial ones, creating a maladjustment; the increase in business failures and the generally less exuberant situation as evidenced by the small drop in demand for steel and for automobiles.

The Rediscount Rate.

Wall Street has guessed so often of late that an advance in the rediscount rate would be put into effect by the Federal Reserve Bank that it was rather interesting yesterday to hear vague reports of a possible reduction in the rate. The forecast did not prove to be true and well-posted bankers generally do not expect any change in the rate until after the New Year. They were inclined to believe, however, that, given a continuation of easy money, the rate, when changed, is more likely to move downward than upward.

Standard Rights in Demand.

Remarkably heavy trading in rights to subscribe to additional common stock of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey under the new financing program of that company reflected the growing interest in stock-market circles in this operation. More than 350,000 of the rights changed hands at prices ranging from 2 1-16 to 2¼. Common stock of Standard of New Jersey sold at the previous low of the year, 40¾, the downturn reflecting readjustment of the market value of the stock to meet the increase in the number of shares that will be outstanding after the rights are exercised.

Southern Pacific and Hill Lines.

Arthur Curtiss James, who has reached San Francisco on his westward tour, expressed confidence yesterday that the Southern Pacific and the Hill lines would reach a satisfactory agreement in their negotiations over joint railroad construction in Oregon. In assuming the position of spokesman for the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific Mr. James is radically changing the policy which he followed for many years of keeping out of the public view. Although one of the richest men in the country and a factor in more railroad mileage than any other, he has been so quiet about it that he was scarcely known out of financial and yachting circles.

Growth in Utilities.

Comparison of the balance sheets of several large utility holding companies, after giving effect to increase resulting from mergers, would provide an interesting sidelight on the growth of the industry in the year, it was said in utility circles yesterday. Early in the year there were five electrical or gas company holding organizations that ranked in book asset value among the country's twenty largest corporations. Since that time two of the largest of these holding companies have completed transactions that would place them well up among these twenty companies. One utility man yesterday pointed out as an interesting sidelight that these two mergers had been brought about by exchanges of stock not involving large security issues.

Opposition to "Cotton Aid."

A sharp division of opinion appeared yesterday to be developing in financial circles over the scope of Government help being extended to the Southern cotton producers. The main argument against the plan was that it would place the United States Government in an illogical position when it protested to foreign Governments against monopolies in commodities. British control of rubber, Brazilian coffee restriction and similar conditions were cited as cases in which the American Government's opposition to price control had made itself felt. The cotton case is different, it was admitted, but in the opinion of many bankers Government aid represents a subsidy, which has raised many objections.

One St. Paul Bidder Drops Out.

The long fight waged by E. C. Jameson, head of the Globe and Rutgers Fire Insurance Company, against the proposal of the bankers of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad to buy the property when it is sold at auction on next Monday came to an end yesterday when Mr. Jameson announced that he would not bid. The opposition will be continued in the courts when confirmation of the purchase is sought and before the Interstate Commerce Commission when authority for the issuance of new securities is asked. All indications pointed yesterday to the sale of the road to Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and the National City Bank, and railroad men were convinced that eventually their reorganization plan would make a profitable property out of the now bankrupt system.

Chesapeake & Ohio's Dividend.

Ultra-conservative estimates place the Chesapeake & Ohio's extra dividend, expected when the directors meet next week, at $2 a share, and liberal estimates at $4 a share. What actually will be done, in the opinion of one man close to the company, will be to declare an extra payment of $3, which will indicate the intention of the directors to place the stock on an $11 basis. The road will spend large sums in cooperation with other carriers in building up union terminal facilities in Cincinnati, which will prepare it to assume true trunk line responsibilities.

MONEY.

THURSDAY, NOV. 18, 1926.

Stock Exchange call money remained soft at 4½ per cent., while 4¾ was paid in the Street trading. Plenty of funds appeared on offer, but the demand was negligible, as much went on in the way of paying off of loans. Time money market was dull, little new money being taken, replacements occupying the chief attention of borrowers. Quotations held at 4¾ per cent. for all maturities. No change in disconnts on either commercial paper or acceptances was reported.

"By Advice of Counsel"

No conservative person goes to court without the advice of counsel. Intelligent people always consult a lawyer with regard to matters of law.

Investors who are conservative should likewise have a financial counsellor whose judgment is based upon many years of successful investing.

If you are planning to purchase stocks or bonds, or wish to secure disinterested opinion as to the security of the investments you now own, we invite your inquiry.

BOND OFFERS TODAY TOTAL $8,700,000

$5,300,000 Issue to Pay for the Terminal Tower Building at Cleveland Terminal.

TWO UTILITIES FLOAT LOANS

Houston Lighting Seeks Financing for Construction Work—McGraw Electric Puts Notes on Sale.

Construction of a new building in Cleveland and expansion of two public utility companies will be financed with the proceeds of new bond issues announced for today. The offerings total $8,700,000.

An issue of $5,300,000 of 6 per cent. notes to finance the erection of the Terminal Tower Building, a 708-foot structure over the concourse of the Cleveland Union Terminal, was announced by a banking group consisting of Redmond & Co., the Tillotson & Wolcott Company and Pearsons-Taft Company. The bonds are offered at par. The building will consist of fourteen stories, above which will rise a thirty-eight-story tower. The Cleveland Terminal Building Company, which issues these fifteen-year first mortgage leasehold sinking fund 6 per cent. gold bonds, has been organized to develop certain of the property above the Cleveland terminal, and is owned by the Van Sweringen interests.

An extensive construction program of the Houston Lighting and Power Company will be financed in part with the proceeds of an issue of $2,000,000 first lien and refunding mortgage 5 per cent. bonds of the company, being offered by Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., and W. C. Langley & Co. The bonds mature March 1, 1953, and are priced at 99½ and interest. The company serves Houston and twenty-six adjacent Texas communities with electric light and power.

A syndicate headed by A. B. Leach & Co., Inc., and Porter, Fox & Co. are offering a new issue of $1,400,000 McGraw Electric Company three-year secured gold notes, offered at par and interest to yield 6.50 per cent. This issue is part of the financing of the newly consolidated utility properties formerly owned by the Platte Valley Power and Light Company and the Central West Public Service Company and their subsidiaries and also the electrical supply and engineering construction business of the McGraw Company.

Eldredge & Co. are distributing $465,000 City of Winter Park, Fla., 6 per cent. bonds, due up to Jan. 1, 1937, and priced to yield from 5 to 5.75 per cent. The bonds are issued for park and street improvement purposes.

P. W. Chapman & Co., Inc., will offer early next week a new issue of $1,250,000 Michigan Home Telephone Company first mortgage 6 per cent. gold bonds, series A. The company serves without competition a group of cities in Michigan.

W. C. Langley & Co. and Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., announced the oversubscription of $11,250,000 of Potomac Edison Company 5 per cent. first mortgage bonds. Speyer & Co. were advised by cable that the $3,000,000 Berlin Electric Elevated and Underground 6½ per cent. bonds offered in Holland by Hope & Co., Teixeira de Mattos Brothers and the Dentsche Bank, Amsterdam, were many times oversubscribed.

GOTHAM HOSIERY PLANS ISSUE

To Sell Debentures and Preferred to Acquire Onyx Assets.

Bankers for the Gotham Silk Hosiery Company, Inc., confirmed reports yesterday that issues of debentures and preferred stock were contemplated for the near future in connection with the acquisition of the assets of Onyx Hosiery, Inc.

The Gotham company will pay $7,868,500 for the assets of the Onyx company in the proposed combination of the properties, it was learned yesterday. This would amount to $35.75 a share on the Onyx common after the retirement of the preferred stock.

A letter is being addressed to Onyx stockholders by Paul Guenther, President, giving details of the proposed deal and calling a meeting for Nov. 29 to approve the proposal.

The financing will take the form of an issue of $6,000,000 of 6 per cent. debentures and $7,000,000 new 7 per cent. preferred stock to retire the Gotham preferred and to pay for the Onyx assets.

PLANS REFRIGERATION ISSUE

Electric Corporation to Put on Sale $2,000,000 Bonds Soon.

An issue of $2,000,000 of 6 per cent. bonds of the Electric Refrigeration Corporation will soon be offered for public sale in connection with expansion of the corporation's plants at Detroit and Grand Rapids. Details are not yet available, but it is understood the bonds have been underwritten and that public notice will soon be made by the banking syndicate.

For the first nine months of this year the corporation earned $4.57 a share, against $3.52 a share last year.

BRONX BOND CO. TO OPEN.

Amalgamated Concern Holds Formal Housewarming Saturday.

City officials headed by William J. Flynn, Commissioner of Public Works of the Bronx, who will represent Borough President Henry Bruckner, will be guests of honor at the housewarming and formal opening to the public of the offices of the Amalgamated Bond and Mortgage Company, 3,118 Third Avenue, at 8 o'clock Saturday evening.

Speeches will be made by Mr. Flynn and Albert Goldman, Commissioner of Plant and Structures.

The recently organized Amalgamated Bond and Mortgage Company is the first financial institution of its kind in the Bronx, formed to finance Bronx building and development projects. Herman Knepper, a Bronx realtor for more than twenty years is President, and Edward Polak, Register in the Bronx for twelve years, is Vice President.

The company has $1,000,000 capital stock and since opening for business early this Summer has paid the first quarterly dividend on its preferred stock. Announcement that the second quarterly dividend is ready will be made Saturday.

Banking Institute Elects Officers.

At a meeting in the Hotel Shelton last night of the New York Chapter, Inc., of the American Institute of Banking the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Charles A. Brophy, President; William A. Ahern and Louis F. Ohlrogge, Vice Presidents; William L. B. Nye, Secretary; and Miss Marion Turner, Treasurer.

BACKS TAX REFORM PLAN.

National Founders Body Formally Enters New Movement.

The National Founders Association in the closing session of its thirtieth annual convention at the Hotel Astor voted formal yesterday to enter the movement for the "Better Understanding Between Industry and Agriculture," approved a resolution for tax reduction and reform, and elected officers.

William H. Barr of Buffalo was re-elected President. The other officers are W. A. Griswold, Nashville, Tenn., Vice President; J. M. Taylor, Chicago, Secretary. A. E. McClintock of Chicago was re-appointed Commissioner.

The Association, after listening to the reading of a telegram from L. J. Taber, President of the National Grange, now in convention in Portland, Me., adopted this resolution: "Whereas, reduction in the rate and further reform in our systems of Federal and local taxation is a matter of the first importance, be it resolved that the National Founders' Association cooperate and participate with other organizations for further improvement in our Federal tax system, to secure corporate tax relief, and curb extravagant expenditure, and improve our method of State and local tax administration."

New Interest in Mount Isa Mines.

A syndicate which includes the Anglo-American Corporation, previously controlled by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, has purchased an interest in the Mount Isa mines with an option on more shares, it was reported by cable from London yesterday. The Anglo-American will send engineers to Australia to determine the possibilities of the property.

CHICAGO BANK REACHES OUT

National Bank of the Republic to Have Offices in Wall Street.

The National Bank of the Republic, one of the larger financial institutions of Chicago, will open offices within a few days at 1 Wall Street. As a national bank, it is not permitted to have a branch here, but it will have representatives and will endeavor to attract local business as well as to promote financial relations between the East and the Middle West.

The latest available figures credit the National Bank of the Republic with capital of $4,000,000 and deposits of $87,000,000. It has figured frequently as a member of syndicates distributing large bond issues that originated in various parts of the country. H. E. Otte is President of the bank. In opening offices here, it is following the lead of other large institutions in Chicago and other parts of the country. Until the new offices are ready, a representative of the bank has been occupying quarters in the offices of the Central Union Trust Company.

ST. PAUL R. R. TO BE CALLED MILWAUKEE

Prospective Buyers Incorporate in Delaware With New Title to Operate Property.

$1,000,000 TO CHANGE NAME

Huge Advertising Campaign in View—Jameson Decides Not to Bid at Auction.

The St. Paul Railroad, with all of the unpleasant associations of bankruptcy, foreclosure and financial animosities attached to it under that name, is to pass out of the national railway picture and in its place is to appear the Milwaukee Railroad.

This is the essence of an announcement yesterday by the reorganization managers of the road, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, who have formed the incorporation of a new company under the laws of the State of Delaware to be known as the Chicago, Milwaukee & Pacific.

Through a coincidence without parallel among railroads, the bankrupt St. Paul has led a Dr.-Jekyll-and-Mr.-Hyde existence. In the West it has maintained a reputation of successful physical operation, and has been known as the Milwaukee; in Wall Street it has failed to meet its obligations to its creditors and has brought distress to investors, and here it has been known as the St. Paul.

The new name, Milwaukee, will be employed by the reorganized company in the conduct of a $1,000,000 advertising campaign to restore the road to popular and financial favor. This is believed to be the largest advertising program ever adopted by a railroad, exceeding the recent $800,000 contract entered into by the Pennsylvania Railroad.

No Bid From Jameson.

Announcement yesterday by Edwin C. Jameson, who has conducted a bitter fight in opposition to the reorganization plan proposed by the road's bankers, Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and the National City Bank, that he would not bid for the road was taken to mean that the bankers will buy the $750,000,000 property when it is sold at auction in Butte, Mont., on next Monday. They will pay $122,500,000, the upset price, and assume $181,370,400 of mortgage obligations undisturbed by the reorganization.

Jerome J. Hanauer, of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., author of the reorganization plan, and Pierpont V. Davis, Vice President of the National City Bank, left last night to attend the sale. They were accompanied by Robert T. Swaine and Donald C. Swatland of the law firm of Cravath, Henderson & De Gersdorff, and Guy Cary of the firm of Shearman & Sterling. Frederick H. Ecker, Chairman of the Bondholders' Committee, will join the party at St. Paul.

The bankers, in anticipation of the sale incorporated the new company in Delaware, thereby saving $375,000 in taxes, the difference between the amount asked by Delaware and the amount which would have been required under the State laws of Wisconsin, where the present St. Paul company is incorporated.

Statement by Jameson.

After keeping the reorganization managers in suspense several weeks, in which time many conjectures were made regarding the possibility of his offering a competitive bid, Mr. Jameson announced definitely yesterday that his committee would not participate in the sale. He offered as reasons: (1), that his committee had not been able to obtain a modification of the terms of sale to make bidding on separate parcels possible; (2), that sufficient time had not elapsed to permit the making of an adequate examination of the worth of the road; (3), that in such circumstances the committee had been advised to stand on its legal rights.

"No court has yet passed on the question," added Mr. Jameson, "of whether bondholders can be deprived of the lien of their mortgage without their consent for the benefit of stockholders, and the committee will continue its fight until it has obtained the decision of the United States Supreme Court on that and other questions equally important to the security and stability of investments.

"Counsel for both the trustees and the reorganization managers have given assurances in open court that non-depositing bondholders will be allowed at least three months after the entry of an order confirming the sale to deposit their bonds, so that they need not be disturbed by notices designed to create the impression that bonds will have to be deposited at an earlier date to avoid penalties."

Mr. Jameson's announcement that he would not bid followed a protracted search on his part for financial support. As his proposition required more than $100,000,000 in cash, however, and only meager possibilities of profit, he was unable to obtain the aid of Wall Street bankers. In a petition filed with the court he complained that the larger banking houses had refused to act in opposition to Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

Among those leaving New York last night to attend the sale were Edwin S. S. Sunderland, counsel for the Guaranty Trust Company, trustee of the general and refunding mortgage of the railway company, and W. A. W. Stewart, representing the trustee of the Puget Sound mortgage.

TRUNK LOAD OF BONDS TAKEN.

Committee to Be Ready to Meet Any Bid for Railroad.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—When the Olympian of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad leaves this city at 11 o'clock tomorrow night it will bear a group of bankers, railroad officials and lawyers representing probably a quarter of a billion dollars in purchasing power, bent upon acquiring the great Milwaukee system at the auction sale in Butte, Mont., next Monday. It seems practically certain that the Reorganization Committee backed by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and the National City Bank of New York will buy in the property.

In anticipation of opposition the committee's bidders are taking a trunk-load of bonds with them to raise the price to any point necessary to obtain the property.

Five per cent. of the upset price, as earnest money in the bidding, will be deposited by the reorganization managers with Herbert A. Lundahl, special master appointed by Judge James H. Wilkerson to sell the road. At the same time the Kuhn-Loeb plan will be filed, as the Court ordered all bidders to show just who was behind the bid and what they proposed to do with the road. The court will confirm or reject the sale in three weeks.

There have been rumors that Henry Ford would make a bid for the road, but there has been nothing to indicate this. There can be no blind bids, and all must be in Mr. Lundahl's hands by Sunday night. He will leave representatives in his office here on Sunday.

Among those who will go to Butte are the three receivers, H. E. Byrum, Mark W. Potter and Edward J. Brundage; H. H. Field, general counsel of the road; Edward S. S. Sunderland, representing the bondholders' committee; Jerome J. Hananer, operating head of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.; Ralph M. Shaw, special counsel for the receivers; Frederick H. Ecker of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company and several Eastern lawyers.

Interstate Commerce Commissioner Frederick I. Cox completed hearings in the St. Paul receivership investigation today.

HEARINGS ON ST. PAUL END.

James J. Hill's Approval of Railroad Extension Presented.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18 (AP).—The Puget Sound extension of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway was endorsed by the late James J. Hill, sage of Northwestern railroad men, it was shown here today at the Interstate Commerce Commission's hearing on causes for the receivership of the St. Paul. The hearing was ended today.

The last witness was Walter B. Wilson, controller for the road. He presented figures to refute testimony given in New York by W. H. Carleton, chief examiner of accounts for the Commerce Commission, that the St. Paul had been extravagant in the operation of branch lines, the Chicago, Milwaukee & Gary and the Chicago, Terre Haute & Southeastern.

SWEEPING CUT IN NOTE ISSUE OF FRENCH BANK

Down 862,715,000 Francs in Week—Treasury Repays 200,000,000 to Bank.

The statement of the Bank of France shows the following changes for the week ended Nov. 17 in francs:

Gold at home	Increased	3,000
Silver in hand	Increased	10,000
Notes in circulation	Decreased	862,715,000
Treasury deposits	Decreased	17,049,000
General deposits	Increased	519,613,000
Bills discounted	Increased	66,533,000
Advances	Decreased	75,514,000

The State repaid the bank 200,000,000 francs during the week. Advances to the State now stand at 35,850,000,000 francs, against 31,100,000,000 francs a year ago, and 22,900,000,000 francs two years ago. On Dec. 4, 1925, the French Parliament fixed a maximum of 39,500,000,000 francs for such borrowings. Previously the legal limit had been placed at 33,500,000,000 francs on Nov. 23, 1925; at 32,000,000,000 francs on June 27, and at 26,000,000,000 on April 15. The advances of 38,350,000,000 francs reached on July 21 of this year were the highest on record.

The principal items in the statement compare as follows with the same date one and two years ago, in thousands of francs:

	Gold.	Circulation.	Disc.,&c.
1926	5,548,790	54,064,190	8,469,571
1925	5,547,626	47,943,224	6,031,842
1924	5,544,600	40,530,277	7,315,405

Of the total gold holdings above stated 1,864,321,000 francs are reported as "held abroad."

Under the vote of Dec. 4, 1925, the legal limit on note circulation is 58,500,000,000 francs. The law of July 22 this year transferring to the bank the foreign exchange held by the Treasury raised the limit to the amount of the bills transferred, making it 59,431,000,000. The law of Aug. 10 provides that notes issued to purchase gold or foreign exchange shall not be counted in determining the legal limit. The circulation of 57,258,627,000 francs, reached on Aug. 5 this year, was the highest ever recorded at the Bank of France.

The French bank's official discount rate remains at 7½ per cent., to which it was raised from 6 per cent. on July 31, 1926.

BANK OF ENGLAND ADDS £939,000 TO ITS GOLD

Reserve Ratio Rises Sharply—Gold Reserve Now £5,319,000 Above Year Ago.

The statement of the Bank of England shows the following changes for the week ended Nov. 17, in pounds sterling:

Gold coin and bullion	increased	£939,000
Reserve in banking dept., gold and notes	increased	1,665,000
Notes in circulation	decreased	725,000
Loans on Govt. securities	decreased	1,803,000
Loans on other securities	increased	56,000
Public deposits	increased	1,845,000
Other deposits	decreased	1,946,000

Proportion of the Bank's reserve to deposit liabilities this week is 28.70 per cent.; last week it was 27.30 per cent.; two weeks ago, 27.32 per cent. This week's percentage is the highest since Sept. 22, when it stood at 30.28 per cent., the high point for the year to date. The lowest reached thus far in 1926 was 15.36 per cent. on Jan. 6. The highest percentage since the war was 31.67, on July 29, 1925; the lowest, 7.20, on Dec. 20, 1920.

The statement compares with the corresponding weeks one and two years ago, as follows:

	1926.	1925.	1924
Total gold holdings—	£162,999,000	£147,680,016	£128,497,363
Res. in banking dept., gold and notes—	34,640,000	26,227,465	26,012,338
Notes in circulation—	138,108,000	141,202,550	122,285,025
Public deposits—	17,679,000	15,147,961	18,977,557
Other deposits—	100,217,000	106,631,663	107,063,146
Government securities—	34,407,000	40,247,794	41,768,443
Other securities—	69,422,000	73,061,558	75,994,814
Ratio of reserve—	28.70	21.50	20.63

The £164,500,152 gold holdings of the Bank of England on Aug. 5, 1925, were the largest in the history of the institution. On April 29, 1925, the week in which gold payment was resumed, they stood at £155,742,064. The lowest holdings since then were £143,711,895, on Jan. 20 last; the highest of 1926 to date were £155,930,451, on Sept. 22. Before the war the largest amount ever held was £43,634,723, on Jan. 28, 1914.

The Bank's official discount rate remains at 5 per cent., to which it was raised from 4 per cent. on Dec. 2, 1925.

Utah-Apex Mining Net Drops.

The Utah-Apex Mining Company reports for the twelve months ended Aug. 31 income of $781,986 after depreciation, but before depletion and Federal taxes, compared with $1,054,762 in the previous year. Current assets as of Aug. 31 were $1,285,134, against current liabilities of $239,892.

The Fair, Chicago, Shows Net Gain.

The Fair, Chicago, reports a net profit of $988,406 for the nine months ended Oct. 31, which equals, after preferred dividends, $2.07 per share earned on 375,000 shares of no par common stock. This compares with $920,014, or $1.89 a share in the like period of 1925.

Refrigerator Lines Order 201 Cars.

The Pullman Car and Manufacturing Company has booked 201 refrigerator cars for the Northern Refrigerator Lines. The Pacific Fruit Express has awarded a contract for 600 underframes to the Pacific Car and Foundry Company.

FINDS GERMANY GAINS BY AMERICAN METHODS

Dr. Friday Says Nation Using Our Industrial Practices Is Rapidly Adding to Capital.

An industrial revolution, based upon the widespread adoption of American industrial and technical methods, largely financed by American capital, has taken place within Germany in the last eighteen months, Dr. David Friday told members of the American Association of Security Analysts at the Advertising Club last night. This move has proved so effective and profitable that Germany is now paying reparations with ease, he said, is rapidly accumulating capital, and in recent months has begun to report an excess of exports over imports.

"I look for increasingly close business relations between France and Germany," Dr. Friday declared, "and I believe that ultimately France and Germany will together produce the greater part of the foodstuffs they consume. I do not expect France to develop industrially to any extent, but there will occur increasing purchases of German-manufactured products by the French people. The industrial recovery of Germany holds a great lesson for Great Britain. If England is to keep pace with Germany and the United States in the world market, she must follow the German lead and adopt American methods."

Pennsylvania Limited Misses No Trip in Forty-five Years

The Pennsylvania Limited was forty-five years old yesterday, having been placed in service on Nov. 19, 1881, when Chester A. Arthur was President. The train has never missed a trip and has been operated without interruption seven days a week, both east and west bound, ever since its inauguration.

In honor of the anniversary, the dining car of the Pennsylvania Limited yesterday carried a huge birthday cake with forty-five candles. A special dinner was served and souvenir menus containing a history and steel engraving of the train were distributed.

Manganese Ore Ordered.

Large contracts for manganese ore for delivery in 1927 have been placed by the United States Steel Corporation, the Bethlehem Steel Corporation and other producers. It is understood that the orders represent mainly Caucasian washed and India ores, with a price of 40 cents a unit ruling in the case of the former ore.

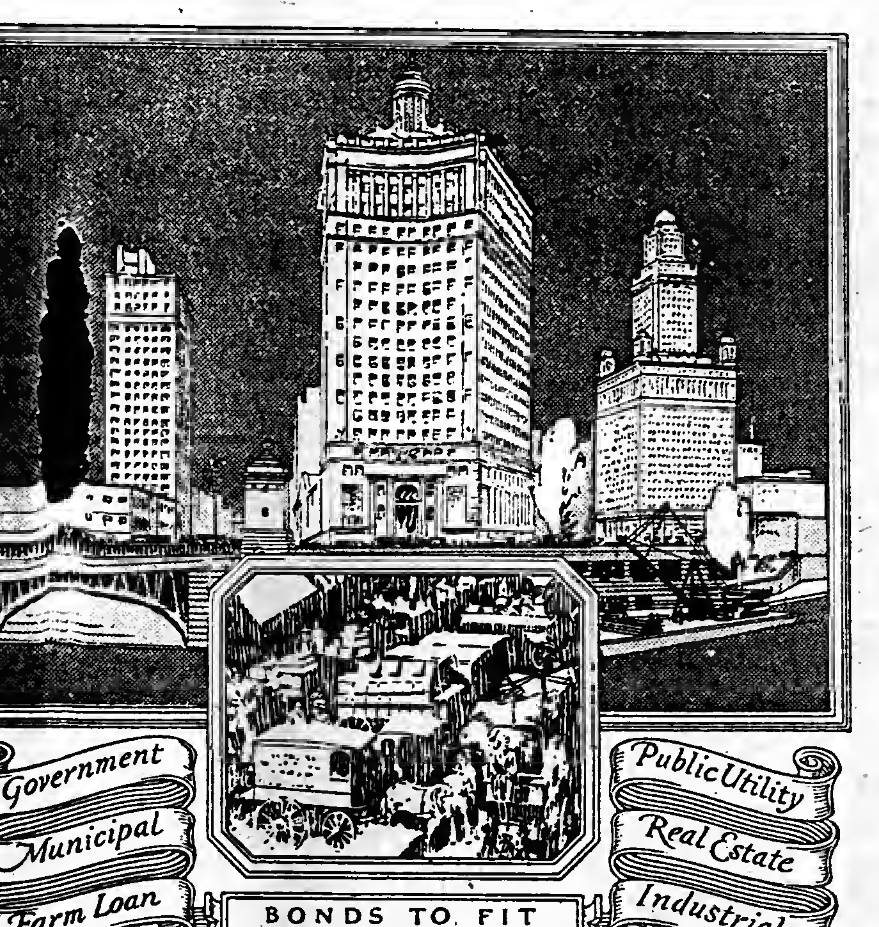
ONE OF A SERIES OF INFORMATIVE ADVERTISEMENTS ON VARIOUS FIELDS OF BOND INVESTMENT



Diversifying Municipal Bonds as to Type and Location

For better yield or broader security

NEW WACKER DRIVE in Chicago, transforming a dilapidated section of the "Loop District" into a magnificent business thoroughfare, is typical of public improvements being accomplished throughout the country—financed by tax-secured obligations. Such bonds, issued by cities, counties, states, etc., are termed "Municipals." They are known for safety and are exempt from federal income taxes.

Among the great variety of such offerings the investor can choose and diversify to advantage, the same as in other fields of investment. Different types of municipal bonds vary in price and yield, sometimes without marked difference in security. Thus, the investor gains by studied selection.

Certain municipal issues favored for investment of trust funds, or by insurance companies and banks, because they meet legal requirements, yield a minimum return. The individual investor seldom needs to concentrate on such issues; to do so may be a luxury.

In building up a well balanced list as to kind and location it is an advantage to deal with a house whose underwritings in this field are extensive. Halsey, Stuart & Co. can provide the variety to fit individual needs. We shall be glad to make an analysis of your municipal bond holdings and show graphically what changes, if any, could be made to improve yield or broaden security.

May we send you our pamphlet, "HOW TO JUDGE MUNICIPAL BONDS"? Write for pamphlet N. T.-YA

100% STOCK DIVIDEND BY FIDELITY PHENIX

Fire Insurance Company to Make Distribution When State Authority Is Given.

$1 BY TEXAS GULF SULPHUR

Corporation Places New Stock on $4 Annual Basis—Other Declarations Made.

Several announcements of unusual dividends were made yesterday at the closing of meetings of directors of various companies. One concern announced a 100 per cent. stock dividend, two increased their dividend rate and four declared extra payments in addition to the regular ones.

The Fidelity Phenix Fire Insurance Company of New York declared a stock disbursement of 100 per cent., subject to approval by its stockholders, and the State Superintendent of Insurance of an increase in capital from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000. At a special meeting on Dec. 8 the stockholders will be asked to transfer $5,000,000 from the surplus account to the capital account to provide the increase. The new stock will probably be placed on a $4 annual basis, it was said. The present annual rate is $6 a share, but with a new rate of $4 annually stockholders will actually be receiving $5 a year.

With the declaration of a quarterly dividend of $1 on the new stock of the Texas Gulf Sulphur Company this stock, issued recently to holders of the old $10 par stock on a four-for-one basis, was placed on a $4 annual basis. This is equal to $16 annually on the old stock, and compares with the last payment of $3 quarterly, or $12 annually.

The Equitable Office Building Corporation announced a quarterly dividend of $2.50 on its common stock, thus placing that issue on a $6 annual basis. The regular quarterly distribution of 1¾ per cent. on the preferred stock also was ordered.

Directors of the Chesebrough Manufacturing Company announced a special dividend of 50 cents and an extra 25 cents on the common stock, together with the regular quarterly disbursement of 75 cents. This makes $4.50 paid for this year. This compares with a total of $3.12½ paid in 1925.

An extra dividend of $1.50, together with the regular semi-annual dividend of $3.50 on its common stock was announced by the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad. A similar distribution was made in April, making total payments of $10 for 1926. Payments aggregated $9 last year, $8 in 1924 and $7 annually for several years previously.

Directors of Household Products, Inc., announced an extra dividend of 50 cents on the capital stock.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

Tremendous Wave of Buying Lifts Franc to 3½ Cents—Continentals Weak.

Business in the foreign exchange market yesterday was concentrated in the French franc, which was rushed up to the highest price since April 5, at 3.50 cents, on a wave of buying that for size of individual trades and volume eclipsed anything done since the hectic days of July, when the record low of 1.93¾ cents was established. Sales of one and two million francs, while frequent, were overshadowed by trades involving as much as five and ten million in a single trade.

The Continent was both buyer and seller, and, peculiarly, the hand of the French Government was noticed on both sides. Bankers attributed the offerings to an official attempt to check a runaway market as gossip in trading quarters revolved around a 4-cent franc by Christmas. The present wave of bullishness is due to the return of corporate capital, and wealth, previously exported when the French Chamber was discussing capital levy. A favorable influence yesterday was the splendid weekly statemet of the French Bank which revealed a cut in circulation of $62,000,000, and State advances of 200,000,000.

In sterling, lire, the kroner and others the trend was lower. The reaction in the pound carried it to $4.84½, for a loss of 5-16 cent, while lire yielded a point to 4.22¾ cents. Realizing in the Scandinavians canceled a good part of previous gains, while Spanish, Swiss, Holland and German were weak. The silver currencies continued higher, while a fresh low was made in the Brazilian milreis on rumors of a revolution.

FIGURES SHOW GAIN IN RAIL EFFICIENCY

Improvement Made in Face of Record Freight Volume, Executives Are Told.

TRAFFIC ROSE 18.5 PER CENT.

Statistics for First Nine Months Also Show 5. Per Cent. Advance in Operating Revenue Over 1925.

Figures showing how American railroads increased their efficiency in the first nine months of 1926, while handling the largest volume of freight business on record, were submitted yesterday to the Association of Railway Executives, holding its annual conference at the Hotel Biltmore. The statistics form part of a study made by the Bureau of Railway Economics of the American Railway Association.

"The principal economic factors underlying this consistent and continued improvement from 1921 to 1926," the report declares, "appear to be the capital expenditure of more than five billions of dollars since 1920; greater cooperation on the part of shippers, not only through Regional Advisory Boards which have been organized throughout the country, but also in their individual capacities; and the more effective utilization of a greatly improved railway plant.

"Comparing the first nine months of 1926 with the average for the corresponding period of the previous five years," the report continues, "the total freight traffic, measured in net tonmiles, increased 18.5 per cent. This freight traffic in 1926 was not only greater than the average for the preceding five years, but was also substantially greater than that for each of those five years, breaking all records for the first nine months of the year.

"In the freight service, the total number of train miles increased more than 8 per cent. over the corresponding averages of the previous five years. The total number of freight-car miles increased nearly 21 per cent., indicating that more cars were handled per train and per locomotive. The average number of freight cars per train was 45.1 in the first nine months of 1925, which was greater than for any previous year.

"The average speed of freight trains for the first nine months this year was twelve miles per hour, an increase of 5 per cent. above that of the previous five years. The average number of miles which each freight car traveled per day was 29.9 miles during the first nine months this year, an increase of 15.2 per cent. above the five-year average. Both of these averages—train speed and miles per car per dey—were higher in 1926 than in any one of the previous five years.

Even in fuel consumption the railroads achieved their greatest efficiency on record, according to the report. An average of 135 pounds of coal was all that was used to haul a thousand tons of freight and equipment one mile.

The combination of increased business and high efficiency netted the carriers a 5 per cent. increase in total operating revenues, and brought them a return on their property investment of 5.22 per cent., the report says in conclusion.

Yesterday's conference of railway executives marked the end of the series of meetings which have been held this week.

Alfred P. Thom, general counsel of the Association of Railway Executives, reviewed the general legislative situation as it affects the railroads.

R. H. Aishton was elected Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Association of Railway Executives. Alfred P. Thom was reappointed as General Counsel, Alfred P. Thom Jr. as General Solicitor and Stanley J. Strong Secretary and Treasurer.

SEPTEMBER FREIGHT RECORD.

44,328,177,000 Net Ton Miles Total Exceeds Any Previous Month.

The volume of freight handled by the railroads in September was the greatest for any month on record, according to reports filed yesterday by the carriers with the Bureau of Railway Economics.

This freight traffic amounted to 44,328,177,000 net ton miles, which exceeded by 268,189,000 net ton miles, or six-tenths of 1 per cent., the best previous record, establish in October, 1925. The heavy freight movement was handled without transportation difficulty.

In the Eastern district there was an increase of 18.7 per cent. in the freight handled in September compared with one year ago, but the Southern district showed a decrease of 1 per cent. The Western district, however, reported an increase of 2.6 per cent.

The railroads also handled record traffic in the first nine months of this year. The increase was 5.5 per cent. over the previous high record for the first nine months of 1923. The volume was also an increase of 7 per cent. over the corresponding period of 1925 and 13.9 per cent. over that of 1924.

For the nine months the railroads in the Eastern district showed an increase of 8.3 per cent. over the same period last year, while the railroads in the Southern district showed an increase of 7.7 per cent. The Western roads reported an increase of 5 per cent.

AUTO SALES UP SLIGHTLY.

Good Weather Causes Gain—Drop in Production Is Checked.

Moderate gains in sales have been made in the automobile market during the last week, due in part to the good weather which has ruled in some sections of the country. The manufacturing decline has been checked and in a few instances production has been stepped up at the factories.

"As a whole the industry continues well below capacity," says Automotive Industries. "Current output rates are considered satisfactory, however, for the season, and no complaint will be heard if approximately the same level is maintained for the remainder of the year. Then a gradual upturn is looked for, stimulated by the opening of the automobile show season. Competition is tightening in some of the price classes, and with additions to lines and models soon to be made the struggle for business next year will be keener than ever. An increase in the lines of middle and low priced eights is likely to be one of the outstanding developments of the new season, as several makers are convinced that the market for this type of car is destined for broad expansion."

Buys Mid-West Public Service.

Purchase of the Mid-West Public Service Company by H. M. Byllesby & Co. has been announced. The company supplies electricity to twelve communities in Wyoming, Southeastern Montana and Southwestern South Dakota. Its properties will be operated by the Mountain States Power Company.

STATE BANK OF CHICAGO, Trustee

Mr. Max McGraw, President of the Company, summarizes his letter to us as follows:

ORGANIZATION AND BUSINESS: The McGraw Electric Company, incorporated under the laws of the State of Delaware, was organized to consolidate under one ownership and management the public utilities formerly operated by the Platte Valley Power & Light Co. and the Central West Public Service Company and their subsidiaries, as well as other independent utilities recently acquired. These utility properties are now all owned by the Central West Public Service Company through Stock ownership and serve 129 cities and towns located in Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota, South Dakota and North Dakota with one or more classes of utility service. In addition, the Company will own the electrical supply and engineering construction business formerly owned by The McGraw Co. at Sioux City, Iowa, and Omaha, Nebraska.

SECURITY: The Three Year 6½% Secured Gold Notes will be, in the opinion of counsel, a direct obligation of the Company and will be further secured by deposit with the Trustee of the entire outstanding Common Stock (except directors' qualifying shares) of the Central West Public Service Company, and all except $40,000 par value of the outstanding 7% Preferred Stock.

The properties of the Central West Public Service Company have been examined recently by Messrs. Hagenah and Erickson, Engineers, whose preliminary report states that the fair depreciated value of these properties as of August 1, 1926, was not less than $8,883,993. After deducting the face amount of the $5,840,000 of prior securities to be presently outstanding with the public, the equity in these public utility properties applicable to the stocks owned by the McGraw Electric Company is $3,043,993. This equity is about $2,175 for each $1,000 of Notes.

EARNINGS: The consolidated earnings of the McGraw Electric Company available for interest on this issue for the year ended July 31, 1926, as reported by independent auditors, were $293,030.31. These earnings are 3.2 times the maximum annual interest charges of $91,000 on these Notes.

MANAGEMENT: The public utility business, now operated through the Central West Public Service Company, will continue under the management of those who have heretofore directed the operation of the companies now being consolidated. The electrical supply and engineering construction business will likewise continue under the same management that has directed the business of its predecessor, The McGraw Co., and which has amply demonstrated over a period of 25 years, its ability to conduct this business on an efficient and profitable basis.

All legal matters in connection with this issue are under the direction of Messrs. Newman, Poppenhusen, Stern & Johnson, Chicago for the Bankers, and Mr. H. B. Carter, Sioux City, for the Company. Audits by Messrs. Smart, Gore & Co. and Wm. Bryden & Co., Certified Public Accountants. These Notes are offered when, as and if issued, subject to approval of counsel. It is expected that delivery of temporary or permanent Notes will be made on or about December 10, 1926.

$2,000,000

Houston Lighting & Power Company

(HOUSTON, TEXAS)

First Lien and Refunding Mortgage Gold Bonds, Series A 5%

Due March 1, 1953

Price 99½ and Interest

Dated March 1, 1923. Interest payable March 1 and September 1 in New York without deduction for Federal Income Taxes now or hereafter deductible at the source, not in excess of 2%. Coupon bonds, in denominations of $1,000, $500 and $100.

For detailed information regarding these bonds, attention is directed to a letter of Mr. Edwin B. Parker, President of the Company, from which the following is summarized:

The Company: Houston Lighting & Power Company supplies Houston, Texas, and 26 adjacent communities with electric power and light. The population of the territory served, which is estimated to exceed 230,000, has increased more than 350% since 1900. Houston is the center of a territory rich in natural resources. It is one of the largest cotton markets in the world and one of the largest ports in the South.

Security: Series A Bonds, in the opinion of counsel, are secured equally with Series B and Series C Bonds by a direct mortgage on all the present physical property and franchises of the Company, subject to $4,503,000 underlying first mortgage (closed) bonds, of which $2,100,000 are deposited with the Trustee, thus causing these Bonds to share in their security.

Earnings: Gross earnings for the twelve months ended September 30, 1926, were $4,498,563. During the same period, net earnings amounted to $2,005,741 as compared with interest on bonds and other interest and deductions for the above period of $594,196, and with annual interest charges on bonds which will be outstanding in the hands of the public upon completion of this financing of $650,150. Since 1920, gross earnings increased 183% and net earnings 251%. During the period 1920 to 1925 average annual net earnings amounted to $977,443, as compared with average bond interest paid or accrued of $246,443.

Management: The operations of the Houston Lighting & Power Company are supervised (under the direction and control of its board of directors) by the Electric Bond and Share Company.

A circular fully descriptive of this issue will be sent upon request.

SECURITY HOLDINGS REMAIN UNCHANGED

Decline of $14,400,000 in Holdings of Discounted Bills Noted in Federal Reserve Report.

TOTAL DEPOSITS INCREASE

Open Market Acceptances Advance in New York and Decline in Atlanta.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The consolidated statement of condition of the Federal Reserve banks on Nov. 17, made public by the Federal Reserve Board, shows a decline for the week of $14,400,000 in holdings of discounted bills and increases of $8,000,000 and $9,300,000, respectively, in holdings of acceptances and Government securities purchased in open market with the result that total bill and security holdings remained practically unchanged. Cash reserves increased $14,800,000 and total deposits $36,300,000, while Federal Reserve note circulation shows no material change for the week.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York reports a decrease of $25,800,000 in its discount holdings, Cleveland a decrease of $6,100,000, San Francisco $5,400,000 and Chicago $3,800,000, these reductions being partly offset by increases of $17,000,000 and $4,800,000, respectively, at the Boston and Kansas City Reserve banks. Open market acceptance holdings increased $10,300,000 at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York and declined $3,100,000 at the Atlanta bank. The system's holdings of Treasury certificates were $6,100,000 and of United States bonds and notes $1,700,000 above the preceding week's totals.

The principal changes in Federal Reserve note circulation during the week comprise an increase of $13,100,000 reported by the New York Bank and declines of $6,900,000 reported by Philadelphia, $4,000,000 by Cleveland and $2,700,000 by Atlanta.

NEW RULINGS ON EXCHANGE

Dates Announced for Changes in Deliveries—Securities Listed.

The Committee on Securities of the New York Curb Exchange has ruled that deliveries against transactions in Ohio Power Company first and refunding 6% of 1956 may be in the form of interim receipts or definite bonds up to and including Nov. 26, but that after date definite bonds only shall constitute delivery. Contracts in Columbus Electric and Power Company new common stock, when issued, must be settled on Nov. 26 by delivery of temporary certificates.

Admission to the unlisted trading privileges of the Curb has been granted to $11,250,000 of Potomac Edison Company first 5s, Series E, due 1956, and $3,421,500 of three-year 6 per cent. convertible gold notes of the Simms Petroleum Company.

The New York Stock Exchange has admitted to its list Columbia Gas and Electric Corporation new 6 per cent. cumulative preferred stock, Series A, and has stricken from the list, effective on Nov. 27, certificates of deposit for no-par common and the old 7 per-cent. cumulative preferred stock of the company.

CURB MARKET ACTIVE, BUT LITTLE GAIN MADE

Sugar Stocks Strong, but Pivotal Issues Tend Downward—Rails Lead in Bond Section.

Stock prices went through a churning process in the Curb Market yesterday and at the end of the session they were about where they were at the close of the previous day. If anything, pivotal issues leaned toward lower levels, but as an offset several individual stocks registered good gains.

Sugar shares were active and strong, good gains being made by Central Aguirre and Fajardo Sugar. Johns Mansville rose several points, as did Rand Kardex. There was less activity in the public utility section and quotation were mixed, with the general tendency downward. No wide movements occurred.

Reduction in Pennsylvania crude oil served to unsettle the oil group and the majority of stocks closed lower. A few strong exceptions were British-American Oil which sold up a point to 70 for a gain of about 10 points on the week, and Cumberland Pipe, which ran up 4 points to 115.

Railroad bonds became more active in the domestic bond section under the leadership of Illinois Central 4½s, Wabash "B" 5s and Inter-Great Northern 5s. Corporate obligations ruled irregular within a narrow price range.

STANDARD RIGHTS ACTIVE.

Sales on Stock Exchange Amount to $54,000 in Day.

Trading in the "rights" which holders of common stock of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey will receive in connection with the issuance of 3,449,317 shares of additional stock amounted to about 54,000 rights on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday. The prices ranged from 2 1-6 to 2¼. The value of a right, calculated on the market price of the stock on last Monday, was about $2.50. Since that time the stock has declined gradually, and yesterday it touched the year's previous low quotation of 40¾. The decline is a natural price readjustment to meet the coming increase in the number of outstanding shares.

It was indicated yesterday that the $120,000,000 issue of 5 per cent. debentures, which is to be a part of the company's financing, would not be offered by J. P. Morgan & Co. before the middle of next week.

Guaranty Trust Deposit Statement.

The condensed statement of the condition of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York as of Nov. 15, 1926, issued yesterday, discloses deposits of $511,107,403 and total resources of $638,897,032. The company's surplus and undivided profits total $25,202,569, which shows a gain in undivided profits of $595,783 since Sept. 30, 1926, the date of the last published statement.

Coke 50c a Ton Cheaper.

Coke prices in the Pittsburgh district have declined 50 cents a ton, it was announced yesterday, in line with the drop in coal prices. Standard furnace coke is now $4.25 to $4.75 a ton,

RESERVE BANK POSITION.

Comparison of the Week's Items With Those of Preceding Periods.

Yesterday's statement for the twelve Reserve Banks showed total gold holdings to be at the highest figure of the year to date. No other important item in the system reached a new high or low point for the year. The following table shows the highest and lowest points reached thus far in 1926, and in a series of years past, by the important items in the Reserve Bank statements. Figures are in thousands of dollars:

Hungarian Savings Bank Deposits.

Deposits of the Hungarian General Savings Bank as of Oct. 31, were well in excess of $7,000,000, according to announcement yesterday by G. V. Grace & Co. This is 60 per cent. of pre-war deposits and is the highest ratio reported by any Hungarian bank.

Coca-Cola to Call Preferred Stock.

At a special meeting in Atlanta, Ga., yesterday stockholders of the Coca-Cola Company voted to retire all the outstanding preferred stock. They also approved certain changes in the by-laws of the company.

25,000 TONS OF STEEL ARE ORDERED IN WEEK

Dodge Brothers Place Largest Contract for 3,000 Tons—Most Are for Small Amounts.

Orders for fabricated steel placed during the last week totaled approximately 25,000 tons, and about 32,000 tons are still in the market, according to reports from the leading centres. The majority of the week's orders were for comparatively small tonnages.

The largest order was that of Dodge Brothers, Inc., for 3,000 tons for a machine shop, placed with the Fort Pitt Bridge Works. The American Bridge Company has received orders for 1,500 tons from the New York City Board of Transportation for coal bunkers and outbuildings, and 1,000 tons for a theatre at Madison, Wis. About 1,300 tons for the Bronx Hospital went to the Hedden Iron Construction Company, while the Paterson Bridge Company took 1,200 tons for a New York City apartment. McClintic-Marshall Company obtained 1,000 tons for a high school at Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

Railroad and bridge buying is holding up well for this time of the year. The New York Central has placed a large order for a freight house at Twelfth Avenue and 125th Street with Lovering & Garrigues. The Oklahoma State Highway Commission booked 1,000 tons for bridges from the Virginia Bridge and Iron Works, and Forth Worth, Fla., ordered 650 tons for pier shede from the same concern. the Erie Railroad closed on 600 tons for approach work for a Jersey City warehouse with an unnamed concern. New York State placed 300 tons for bridges and the Phoenix Utilities Company ordered 200 tons for transmission lines in South Carolina, both with unnamed makers. The Hedden Iron Construction Company obtained 300 tons for a new biology building at Fordham University.

Inquiries in the market include 3,000 tons for a new tank plant at Eddystone, Pa., of the Baldwin Locomotive Works; 3,000 to 4,000 tons for a new Edison building in Philadelphia; several hundred tons for a new chemical laboratory and engineering school at Princeton University; 700 tons for electrification work of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Chester, Pa.; 2,500 to 3,000 tons for a hospital at 168th Street and Riverside Drive; 1,000 tons for bridges of the Western Pacific in Nevada, and 5,000 tons for additions to the Union Central Station at Cincinnati.

Federal Water Adds to Holdings.

The Federal Water Service Corporation has further extended its holdings by purchase of the Norwich Water Works of Norwich, N. Y., which serves a population of approximately 12,000. The company has an adequate supply of water, with a drainage area of about four square miles and two reservoirs containing about 90,000,000 gallons of water in storage.

Central Leather Stock Deposits.

A majority of the preferred and common stocks of the Central Leather Company has been deposited under the readjustment plan of the company, it was announced yesterday by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and the Bankers Trust Company, managers. Stock will be received for deposit until further notice.

SUGAR ISSUES ADVANCE

Rumors of a Stock Dividend Accompany Rise in Chelsea Bank Stock.

A steady tone marked yesterday's session of the over-the-counter market. A broad inquiry was reported for several senior issues in the utilities section. Bank stocks continued to display the firm tone which has characterized them for some time.

In the industrial group Cellulose Products units established a new high with a gain of 1 point, and Syracuse Washing Machine continued its recovery, rallying several points. Somewhat better prices prevailed for Welch Grape Juice, American Meter, Zieley Processes, United Milk Products, Van Camp preferred and Truscon Steel.

The demand for utility shares included Staten Island Edison $6 preferred, Ohio River Edison, Associated Gas and Electric 7 per cent. preferred. Mohawk and Hudson Power first and second preferred and Arizona Power preferred.

Among the bank stocks improvement was noted in Fidelity Trust, United States Trust and Mechanics Bank. Chelsea Exchange also gained a few points, reflecting rumors that a stock dividend is forthcoming following the recent increase in its dividend.

In response to announced increases in the price of refined sugars, these shares firmed up considerably during the day and became more active than they had been for some days.

Stromberg Carburetor's Income.

Net income of the Stromberg Carburetor Company for the third quarter of this year was $164,788, equal to $2.05 a share earned on 80,000 shares of stock. This compared with $201,709, or $2.52 a share, in the preceding quarter, and with $240,027, or $3 a share in the third quarter of last year. In the first nine months of 1926 Stromberg's profit was $500,974, as against $625,396 last year.

ASKS ORDER TO AID WARD.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 18.—The suit of Nicholas Weber, George R. Weber and other minority stockholders of the General Baking Company to compel William B. Ward to restore $7,500,000 of baking company stock which they allege he illegally transferred to the General Baking Corporation, now pending in the Supreme Court, was in court today on a motion of the defense.

Last week the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, in a similar action brought by William Deininger and others against Mr. Ward, directed the plaintiffs to make more definite their charge that Mr. Ward had violated the laws of Maryland in merging the companies. Today Isaac N. Mills, in behalf of Mr. Ward, asked the Court to compel Mr. Deininger and his associates to follow the rule of the Appellate Division and also to strike from their complaint the allegation that "Ward had followed a certain scheme in transaction with other corporations in the merger." Decision was reserved.

Tidal Osage Quadruples Output.

The Tidal Osage Oil Company, a subsidiary of the Tidewater Oil Company, now has a production of approximately 16,000 barrels daily, or about four times the amount of its output last Spring before the Seminole properties were developed. These contribute 12,000 barrels daily to the output.

WARNS ON SECURITIES.

Exchange Says Firms Receiving Them Are Responsible for Safety.

Members of the New York Stock Exchange were reminded in a special letter sent out yesterday by the Secretary, E. V. D. Cox, on behalf of the Arbitration Committee, that a firm "receiving securities which are not due it is responsible for their safekeeping."

Attention is directed to a previous letter in which it was said that "a number of claims had come before the Arbitration Committee in connection with lost securities" and that "in many instances securities have been received by firms which should not have been delivered to them, other names having been given up, or comparison refused or no transaction having been had. These securities have been given out again to messengers who did not come from the firms to which the securities belonged and have been made away with. In some cases receipts had been given when the securities were originally received and the return of such receipts was not demanded."

The Arbitration Committee has taken the position, members are told in the latest circular, that a firm receiving securities which are not due it is responsible for their safekeeping.

URGES NEW ENGLAND TO POOL ITS POWER

Owen D. Young Advocates Unifying of Resources of the States for Industry.

WOULD REMOVE BARRIERS

He Tells State Authorities They Need Democracy of Effort for Their Progress.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 18.—Charging that the "progressive progress of New England has been handicapped by the lack of democratic organization," Owen D. Young, Chairman of the board of the General Electric Company, urged tonight before the New England conference, the removal of physical and legal barriers and the turning of all New England water powers into a common pool, and that power needed for the New England market be drawn from a common reservoir. This, he said, would enable the States to get the maximum benefit of the diversity of flow in New England rivers and the rainfall on its watersheds.

Owing to a cold, Mr. Young did not attend the dinner given to delegates to the conference by Governor John H. Trumbull of Connecticut tonight. His prepared address was read by E. C. Buckland, Vice President of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, at the Broad Street High School, following the dinner.

Other speakers were Governor Trumbull and Governor Ralph O. Brewster of Maine, who flew here in an airplane from Boston.

"I am speaking of the removal of barriers in New England because wherever they exist they prevent the maximum development of New England," Mr. Young said. "In the case of the development and the transmission of power, there may be the physical barriers of disturbance, there may be the unseen barriers of laws or habits, but whatever they are they may be removed to insure a unified power supply and a unified distribution.

"In other fields of activity barriers exist, too. Some of them result from the fact you have six independent States or political divisions in one economic unit of activity. I would not be so silly as to advocate the breaking down of these political divisions for one political State of New England. Each of her historic States has its traditions, its political background, and I like to see the inhabitants of this great district. I do advocate, however, such cooperation between these States as will break down the barriers to economic cooperation between these States—as will break down the barriers to economic cooperation in all fields and thereby insure the maximum use of the resources of New England for her own economic development.

Couples Agriculture and Industry.

"Your farms cannot prosper unless your manufacturing industry succeeds. Your transportation, your banking and your trade cannot be healthful unless all are well. So, without thinking of the advantages or disadvantages in a small way, may I suggest that you take the collars and neckties off your States in order that they may cooperate economically?

"It has been said in recent years that such troubles as New England has arise from the immigration of foreigners into her borders. I suppose those people feel New England would be better off if the French Canadians had never come from Canada, if the Irish had never settled in Boston, if the Italians had never come to the centre of her industrial production. I take no such view. New England is better off, in my judgment, because of the immigration she has had. They, in fact, are one of her greatest assets.

"Intellectually, in my judgment, you are the most highly developed democracy in the world. In your laws you have set the example for all America and for democratic States everywhere. I am not so sure that you apply it in your business.

"As to finance, I am wondering whether you have not been so long in the habit of investing outside of New England as to make it bad form to keep your money at home. There is indication that capital outside of New England is flowing into your own community to take advantage of a favorable investment situation you overlook yourselves.

"In the language of your President, there is nothing the matter with New England except that which she can cure herself. Nowhere else are there such resources of brains and capital, of men and money, of public spirit, of stability of character, of fine traditions, of indomitable will, as exist within these six States."

Brewster Urges Home Loyalty.

Governor Brewster urged loyalty to home products by the 7,000,000 New Englanders, who represented, he said, a purchasing power of $2,000,000,000.

Governor Trumbull said his first recommendation was that every effort should be made to "sell New England to the school children of New England." Arrangements should be made, he said, to have school children of each State visit State fairs and then write essays of what they saw. He suggested that public-spirited citizens offer prizes for the best essays.

A plan whereby the Public Utility Commissions of adjoining New England States may have joint jurisdiction over rates on power transmitted across State lines was reported at the afternoon session by E. O. Gross of Waterbury, Conn., Chairman of the Power Committee.

President Lawrence said the conference was indebted to the New England Governors for their cooperation. He presented figures showing the number of New England manufacturing establishments had decreased from 22,576 in 1899, to 19,061 in 1923. The figures also showed that the value of manufactured products had dropped from $7,123,070,702 in 1919, to $6,419,975,465 in 1923.

On the other hand, he said, the amount of wages paid had gone up from $1,436,436,587 in 1919, to $1,472,515,452 in 1923, and the developed horsepower had increased from 3,796,846 to 4,151,136.

The forestry problem is the most important which New England has to face from the standpoint of land utilization, it was said by Austin F. Hawes, Connecticut State forester. Contrasting Europe with New England, he said experience in Europe has shown that a nation which has eight-tenths of an acre per capita in well-managed woods may be self-supporting as to timber products, and with 1.2 acres per capita may export them. New England at present has 3.2 acres of wood per capita, he said, and even Connecticut has 1.1 acres, yet Southern New England is importing 80 per cent. of its lumber from distant regions.

Government to Study New England Industry.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (AP).—Possibilities for extension of New England industry will be studied by a group of Commerce Department representatives who have been ordered to tour the district early in December.

The itinerary will take them to Providence, Dec. 3; Boston, Dec. 4; Lowell, Lawrence, Haverhill and Attleboro, Dec. 6; Portland, Auburn and Lewiston, Me., Dec. 7; Lynn, Mass., Dec. 8; Worcester and Brockton, Dec. 9, and Springfield, Mass., Dec. 10.

Heads of New England business enterprises will be called upon to discuss export trade.

PENNSYLVANIA CRUDE PRICES ARE REDUCED

25 to 30 Cent Slash Announced to Meet Mid-Continent Cut—Other Decreases Also.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 18 (AP).—Cuts of 25 cents and 30 cents a barrel in the leading grades of crude oil quoted on the market here were announced today by the principal purchasing agencies. The new prices are:

Pennsylvania grade and Bradford District oil in New York Transit lines, $3.15; Pennsylvania grade in National Transit lines, $3.05; Kaister grade in National Transit lines, $1.80; Pennsylvania grade in Southwest Pennsylvania lines, $3.05; Pennsylvania grade in Eureka lines, $3; Pennsylvania grade in Buckeye lines, $2.80; a cut of 25 cents each.

Corning grade in Buckeye lines, $2.25; Cabell grade in Eureka lines, $2.10; Somerset medium in Cumberland lines, $2.20; Somerset light in Cumberland lines, $2.35; Ragland in Cumberland lines, 95 cents; a cut of 30 cents each.

It was announced that no further quotations would be made in Caines grade oil, which has been discontinued on the market.

It was announced that the Midwest Refining Company had reduced prices 20 cents to 40 cents a barrel on Wyoming and Montana oils. Grass Creek light oil, Elk Basin and Osage crudes, all in Wyoming, and Car Creek in Montana were reduced 40 cents a barrel. A sliding scale revision applicable to Salt Creek crude was also announced. The prices are based on gravity.

The Ohio Oil Company has met the cut in Mid-continent crude prices, lowering the posted prices in the Wyoming field 20 cents to 40 cents a barrel.

HUGHES TO ARGUE ON ROAD.

Will Take Part in Los Angeles & Salt Lake Valuation Case Jan. 3.

Charles Evans Hughes, former Secretary of State, will argue the final valuation case of the Los Angeles & Salt Lake Railroad, a subsidiary of the Union Pacific, it was announced yesterday, when that case comes up for oral argument on Jan. 3.

This case involves features of valuation applicable to all railroads and is considered important by carrier officials. A California district court has decided that the Interstate Commerce Commission cannot value railroad properties "for rate making purposes only," but must place upon them a value applicable to every purpose. The difference between the two ways of arriving at a valuation means the difference of several million dollars in the value of the railroads upon which rates are fixed.

TRAFFIC CONFERENCE SCORES EXPRESS RATES

Votes to Complain to I. C. C. if the Charges Are Not Corrected —League Elects Officers.

By the vote of more than 300 delegates attending the National Industrial Traffic League's Annual Convention at the Hotel Commodore yesterday afternoon, formal complaint to the Interstate Commerce Commission on alleged excessive express rates imposed by the American Railway Express Company and the Southeastern Express Company was authorized if the rates are not corrected. The Interstate Commerce Commission is now investigating the claim that the rates are improprely constructed.

W. H. Chandler, manager of the Traffic Bureau of the Merchants Association of thie city, and former President of the league, was instructed by the delegates to seek an order of the commission to compel the express companies to cease these alleged excesses and make adjustments to shippers if the charges are true. The rates, Mr. Chandler declared, are imposed by the express companies in block territories or zones in excess of the rates prescribed for these zones some time ago by the Interstate Commerce Commission. It is thought possible that the express companies have misinterpreted the commission's ruling.

The members of the league were urged to cooperate with colleges and universities that give traffic instruction, by assisting them when called upon for advice as to proper courses. It was also urged that the league furnish problem material for class discussion.

The following officers were elected: C. E. Child of Omaha, President; W. H. Dey, Boston, Vice President; E. C. Wilmore, Chicago, Treasurer; L. G. Macomber, Detroit, Chairman of the Board of Directors; J. M. Belleville, Pittsburgh, Chairman of the Executive Committee; J. H. Beek, Chicago, Executive Secretary, and E. F. Lacy, Chicago, Assistant Treasurer.

COPPER AND ZINC FIRMER.

But Sell in Half the Tonnage of Previous Week—Silver Advances.

Although copper and zinc have sold in about half the tonnage of the week before, prices have developed a firmer undertone, reflecting better business sentiment brought about by favorable predictions for the early months of 1927, according to the Engineering and Mining Journal's review of the nonferrous metals market.

"The copper market seams to be well etabilized at the current level of 13¾ cents a pound, delivered in Connecticut, and 14 cents at Middle Western points, for all shipments to February," the publication states. "Producers of zinc are well sold out of current production and the market is firmer. The volume of business, however, has been much less than last week. Cable and paint makers predominated in the buying of lead. The price has not changed, but a decidedly better tone has developed. Spot Straits tin continues scarce, with prices about half a cent above those for prompt delivery. The pressure on silver has abated and the price has advanced, being above 55 cents an ounce. Among the lower nonferrous metals, antimony is lower, and the others are unchanged."

A. C. JAMES NOW CHAIRMAN.

New Western Pacific Head Predicts Western Railroad Truce.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 18 (AP).—Arthur Curtiss James of New York, heaviest stockholder of the Northern Pacific and Western Pacific railways, was elected Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Western Pacific Railroad Company here today. He succeeds A. W. Krech of New York.

Charles Elsey of San Francisco, Vice President and Treasurer of the company, was elected a director to succeed R. R. Pardoe of San Francisco, resigned. A. R. Baldwin of San Francisco and F. W. Gutchen of New York resigned as Vice Presidents.

An amicable settlement of the dispute between the Southern Pacific and the Northern Pacific and Great Northern Railroads over the construction of new trackage in Oregon is in prospect, according to a statement made yesterday by Arthur Curtiss James and wired to Wall Street from San Francisco.

"Everything looks favorable," said Mr. James, "for an amicable arrangement between the Southern Pacific and the Oregon Trunk Line, the Hill connection at Bend, Ore., for joint construction to connect Bend and the Klamath Falls district."

Conferences with this settlement in view have been held in New York recently. No official announcement of a settlement has followed the meetings, but it has been understood that progress was satisfactory.

Textile Company to Liquidate.

BOSTON, Nov. 18 (AP).—Liquidation, in whole or in part, of the Tremont & Suffolk Mills, a cotton manufacturing corporation capitalized for $2,000,000, was authorized by the stockholders today, and E. B. Wentworth, Treasurer, was authorized to offer the plant and stock to the Nashua Manufacturing Company for $500,000 and inventory value. The mills are in Lowell. The company, incorporated in 1831, had 3,000 employes.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

At the annual meeting of stockholders of the Consolidated Laundries in Baltimore yesterday directors were re-elected.

Alba B. Johnson has been elected to the boards of the Independence Indemnity Company and the Independence Fire Insurance Company.

Charles H. Schweppe of Lee, Higginson & Co. has been made a director of Fairbanks, Morse & Co., succeeding the late J. J. Storrow.

L. Jerome Riker has been made a member of the advisory board of the Bedford Avenue (Brooklyn) branch of the Chelsea Exchange Bank. William F. Fuelling has been made manager of the Bronx branch.

Arthur T. Hadley, President Emeritus of Yale University; Beekman Winthrop and Andrew Fletcher, Jr. have been elected to the board of the Engineers' Public Service Company.

Mitsch, Monell & Co. have issued the 1926 edition of "Water Power Bonds."

The County Trust Company of New York has been appointed depositary by the Prudence Bonds Corporation for an issue of $1,775,000 5½ per cent. guaranteed Prudence certificates.

The Chemical National Bank has been appointed co-registrar for 30,000 shares of 7 per cent. cumulative first preferred and 100,000 shares of common stock of Broadway Department Stores, Inc.

The Seaboard National Bank of the City of New York has been appointed trustee of first mortgage Series A 6 per cent. bonds of the Washington Gas and Electric Company and transfer agent of the $6 cumulative preferred and the common stocks of the New Jersey Power and Light Company.

The Executive Committee and Advisory Board of the American Iron, Steel and Heavy Hardware Association opened a two days' conference in the Hotel Roosevelt yesterday. E. McK. Fremont of Fremont & Co. is Chairman of the association, and G. K. Conant of the Ellis Iron Company, St. Louis, is President.

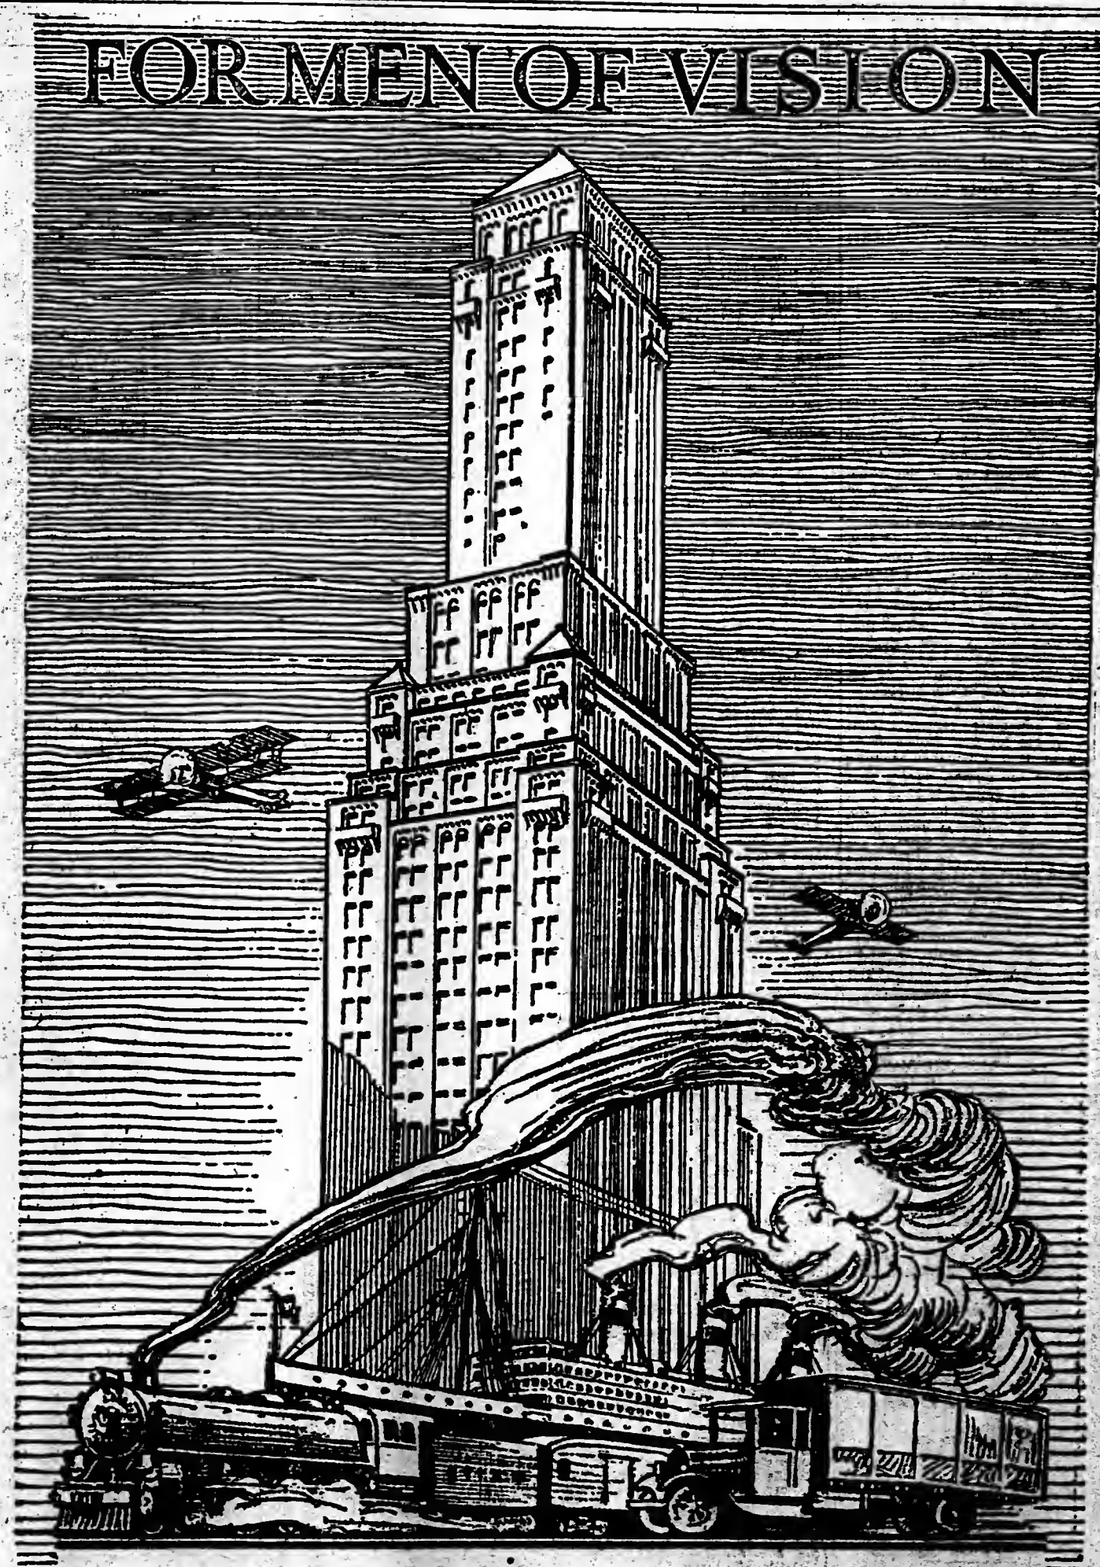
FOR MEN OF VISION



"Now it can be told"

FROM the time the foundations were sunk 100 feet below this Broadway-Barclay corner, men of vision have been working on a plan whereby offices of transportation companies and allied firms could be housed under one roof. As steel work and stone work stretch up toward a pinnacle 542 feet high, this plan has passed the proposal stage—its success is assured.

Modern railroad and steamship executives, with the progressiveness that characterised their pioneer predecessors, have been quick to see the advantages of this superb building. They were attracted not only by the convenience of being grouped together, but also by the intrinsic convenience of this location—at City Hall—in the downtown business district, but not too far downtown. Within a block are the express stations of three subways. Elevated lines, tubes, tunnels and bridges are nearby. Forty-four floors of this building have daylight from windows all around. Fourteen fast elevators are signal-controlled so that they cannot pass a waiting person. These same features make it just as desirable for any firm. Space, from small offices to whole floors, is now being leased from plans for occupancy April 1st, 1927.

BREAK WIPES OUT GAINS IN COTTON

Setback of 10 to 15 Points Leaves Final Quotations 3 to 5 Points Lower.

LIQUIDATION IN DECEMBER

Many Holders Are Transferring to Later Months—Covering Is Stimulated.

A further slight advance occurred in cotton at the opening yesterday which carried December contracts to 12.73, or about three-quarters of a cent above low records of the season. This improvement brought out more cotton and highest quotations were made on the call. A setback of 10 to 15 points during the rest of the session left final prices 3 to 5 points lower on the day. While the basis continued firm, reports from Southern quarters reflected freer offerings on the advance and the market met contracts throughout the day. Cable advices to the effect that miners' organizations were rejecting peace proposals and the approaching semi-monthly Washington report influenced the course of the market.

Active liquidation of an extensive interest in December contracts continued. A bid for 5,000 December on the call at 12.67 stimulated covering and later in the session reports that cotton would be brought to New York for delivery next month increased long liquidation. With first notice day on the 24th instant, many holders are transferring to later months while mills fixed prices on cotton wanted for consumption the coming few months.

The Department of Agriculture estimates the probable carry-over of American cotton at the close of the current season as approximately 9,000,000 bales. This is evidently based on an estimated production of 19,000,000 to 19,500,000, inclusive of linters, and a consumption of 16,000,000 to 16,500,000, which would leave some 3,000,000 bales to be added to the 5,750,000 to 6,000,000 bales on Aug. 1, 1926. In 1921 the carry-over aggregated 9,500,000 and prices touched 10½ cents in the Spring of the year. The following crop was cut to 8,000,000 bales. The low figure so far this season has been 12 cents for December contracts reached on the Government report of Oct. 25.

A Census report on the production of linters showed 256,000 up to Nov. 1, compared with 264,000 last year. The total amount of linters from the 1925 crop aggregated 1,112,000.

Rock Island Asks Relief.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (AP).—The Rock Island Railroad appealed to the Interstate Commerce Commission today to abrogate a contract under which it is paying $350,000 annually to the Denver & Rio Grande Western and is bound to continue the payment in perpetuity. In 1888, it explained, it obtained trackage rights over 119 miles of line between Denver and Pueblo. In recent years it has used only a small portion, and it says a reasonable rental would be $30,000 or $40,000 a year.

SEEKS DISSOLUTION OF MILLER CONCERN

Insurance Official Gets Court Order for Bond and Mortgage Guarantee Corporation.

James A. Beha, Superintendent of Insurance, filed papers in the Supreme Court yesterday seeking to take possession of the property and assets of the G. L. Miller Bond and Mortgage Guarantee Corporation, said to be a "creature" of G. L. Miller & Co., which is now in the hands of a Federal receiver.

An order calling upon the officers of the corporation to show cause why the application should not be granted was signed by Justice Francis B. Delahanty and is returnable this morning before Justice Isidor Wasservogel.

The order shows that the bond and mortgage guarantee company, organized Dec. 16, 1925, had been authorized to transact insurance business in this State. With offices at 30 Exchange Place it has since been operating as an insurance company. The order says that the proper authorities had examined its affairs and found it apparently insolvent, its reserve impaired, and the continuation of its business hazardous.

Mr. Beha seeks to dissolve the corporation. Pending the hearing all disposition of the assets has been restrained.

A report of James J. McGrath Jr., an examiner, indicates that on Oct. 19 there were assets of $513,825. The liabilities, he reported, amounted to $582,977. These are distributed in unearned premiums estimated at $3,100; accounts payable to G. L. Miller & Co., 477, and reserves for losses, $579,400.

Capital stock of the concern is $400,000, divided into 4,000 shares of $100 each. The outstanding mortgage guarantees are said to amount to $1,754,000 and the impending loss, it is said, already exceeds the funds of the corporation. Augustus B. Weller is President of the company and James M. Sinclair, Vice President and General Manager.

WANTED

A Sales Executive and A Publicity Executive

—who sense the needs and opportunities in industrial sales promotion.

THIS advertisement may lead two men to eastern positions of immediate responsibility as key men in an organization which is expanding its service to help manufacturers develop stronger sales promotion plans for industrial selling.

The SALES EXECUTIVE must be competent to assume an important part with Department Managers in building a larger volume of business in terms of specific accounts. Requirements—(1) a proven record in developing a sales organization of high priced men who are all independent thinkers (2) Proven ability to conduct sales and service negotiations with presidents, boards of directors and men of similar responsibility at the same time winning the support of department heads who are directly involved.

The PUBLICITY EXECUTIVE must be able to develop a plan to promote the broad phases of our institutional activity and at the same time build up the independent promotion of each of our several departments and coordinate this with our company aims as a whole. Requirements—(1) A proven record as a publicity executive with or for an organization with a similar problem. The record must show internal as well as external acceptance, or (2) Experience as a partner or top account executive of an advertising agency, that would insure the success of the applicant in handling a more complicated problem than he has actually so far tackled. (3) A definite understanding of the difference in principle between industrial consumption and private consumption.

It is felt that the men cut to the measure of this cloth are now actively engaged in important work and will be interested only because of the opportunity to assume greater responsibilities and to earn the rewards which these can bring.

A resume of experience and point of view on these jobs may be submitted incognito through banker or attorney if preferred. Quick action is desired.

Appointments which will be made in New York will be with an organization of highest business standing.

Address P 431 Times.

BIG EXPORT SALES SEND WHEAT UP

Rains in Argentina and Failure to Settle British Coal Strike Are Price Factors.

CANADIAN MARKET STRONG

Weather Affects Corn Prices, but Grain Reacts to Profit-Taking at the Last.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—Wheat values were on the up-grade today as the result of heavy rains in Argentina, large export sales at the seaboard and the failure to settle the British coal strike, but considering the news from the Southern Hemisphere and the export talk, the market made a relatively poor response. The finish was ⅛ to 1⅛ cents higher with the December showing a tendency to gain on the May. Winnipeg was strong and 1⅛ to 1⅞ cents higher while Buenos Aires was 1½ cents higher and Liverpool up 1¼ to 1⅜ pence.

Export sales of 2,500,000 to 3,000,000 bushels were reported in all positions, with the Continent credited with being the largest buyer, business being assisted by some easing in ocean freights and a higher rate of exchange.

A more friendly feeling toward the buying side of wheat existed in commission house circles tonight and the local element were less disposed to press the bear side, awaiting further weather developments in Argentina. In some quarters fears of a wet harvest in that country were expressed, although it was felt that it was still early to talk of such a condition being general, as harvesting is just getting well under way and the apprehension would vanish with a few days of dry weather. The political situation in Europe is also being watched. With small stocks abroad and relatively small quantities on ocean passage, it is felt that it would not take much change in the situation to cause continued large purchases in order to build up reserves against eventualities.

Primary arrivals today were 830,000 bushels; week ago, holiday; last year, 1,169,000. Shipments were 931,000; last year, 1,282,000.

Primary arrivals today were 362,000 bushels; last year 796,000. Shipments were 963,000; last year, 279,000.

RALLY IN WHEAT FUTURES.

Local Market Makes Net Gains and Displays Better Tone.

A decidedly better tone prevailed on the wheat futures market of the New York Produce Exchange yesterday. A fair degree of activity came into the market, and in the early trading prices gained 1c a bushel on strong foreign markets, improvement in export demand and unfavorable weather in the Argentine.

Buying against export business on covering helped the upturn, but the locals fought the advance and brought about a good reaction at one juncture, and the market closed on a rally from the low points with net gains of ⅝c to ⅞c a bushel.

COTTONSEED OUTPUT UP.

Increase of 65,568 Tons During the Past Three Months.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (AP).—Cottonseed crushed in the three-month period, Aug. 1 to Oct. 31, totaled 1,476,841 tons, compared with 1,411,375 tons in the same period last year, and cottonseed on hand at mills Oct. 31 totaled 1,146,792 tons, compared with 1,272,-961 a year ago, the Census Bureau announced today.

Cottonseed products manufactured in the period and on hand Oct. 31 included: Crude oil produced 440,339,-887 pounds, compared with 410,311,007, and on hand 104,777,918 pounds, compared with 92,314,768; refined oil produced 306,443,336 pounds, compared with 290,598,672, and on hand 132,578,-305 pounds, compared with 78,165,847; cake and meal produced 663,883 tons, compared with 653,848 tons and on hand 172,566 tons, compared with 168,101.

Linters produced were 256,395 bales, compared with 264,163, and on hand 141,441 bales, compared with 88,055.

Exports of cottonseed products for the three months totaled: Crude oil 1,562,-082 pounds, compared with 5,605,844; refined oil 1,750,766, compared with 8,393,455; cake and meal 122,160 tons, compared with 83,333; linters 22,322 bales, compared with 11,966.

MORE LOSSES IN RUBBER.

Crude rubber futures continued heavy on the Rubber Exchange of New York and moved into new low ground yesterday, the list showing net losses of from 40 to 80 points. Business was comparatively brisk, the day's turnover involving 411 contracts. Thirty new transferable notices were issued, the total to date amounting to 233.

Weakness was noted at the outset as lower cables from London revealed a reaction in that market. This brought additional selling on this side, and in the absence of any outside interest the list sagged steadily to the day's lowest points, but just before the close of the market short covering imparted a moderately steady tone.

November suffered the heaviest loss, while February and March finished 70 points down. January and Mach sold off 60 points. In the other active months there were minor fluctuations.

In London prices closed ⅛d to ⅜d under Wednesday's finals.

Railroad Club's Annual Meeting.

A motion picture, "Beyond the Microscope," that will disclose objects once invisible even with the aid of a microscope, will be shown tonight at the annual meeting of the New York Railroad Club in the United Engineering Society's building, 29 West Thirty-ninth Street. F. Darlington, representing the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company; J. P. Jackson for the New York Edison Company and J. C. Parker for the Brooklyn Edison Company, will speak. W. G. Gove, J. S. Doyle, J. L. McWhirter and Professor H. H. Norris will be in charge of arrangements.

LIVE STOCK AT CHICAGO.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—Hog prices were weak to 10 cents lower with a break to a new low for the season early, but an active demand developed on the decline and the finish was strong. Top for the day was $11.65 and the day's average $11.35, the latter being 10 cents under Wednesday. Bulk of desirables sold at $11.25 to $11.60, with packing sows at $10 to $10.65. Receipts of 40,000 were the largest for a Thursday since last February, with 19,000 estimated for tomorrow. Packers bought 24,300 and shippers 10,000 with 7,000 left over.

Fat lambs in better demand and prices 25 cents higher with a top of $13.40 on best, while bulk of sales were at $12.75 to $13. Sheep steady at $5.25 to $6.75. Receipts 11,000.

Cattle market was semi-demoralized on heavy steers, some showing a decline of $1.50 or more within a week. General market today weak, although yearlings were scarce and steady, while heavy steers sold at the lowest figures of the year. Best yearlings $12.40 with few heavies above $9. Bulk of beef steers sold at $7.50 to $10. Receipts, 13,000.

NEW RAILROAD PROBLEM.

More Trackage Needed to Handle Freight, Says J. J. Cornwell.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 18.—Former Governor John J. Cornwell of West Virginia, general counsel for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, speaking tonight at the thirteenth annual dinner of the Traffic and Transportation Association of Pittsburgh in the Schenley Hotel, said the limit in weight and length of freight trains had been reached and that the problem before the railroads now, with virtually their total facilities in use to handle traffic, was how to meet expansion in business with a corresponding increase in transportation service. This could be done, he said, only by additional main line trackage and yard facilities to handle the additional equipment that would be called for. Railroad management, he said, had reached the zenith of operating efficiency.

More than 500 persons attended the dinner. James J. Reilly, President of the association, delivered the welcoming address. Dr. Edward James Cattell of Philadelphia talked on "Bigger Men, Broader Views and Better Business."

LATEST DEALINGS IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

LEXINGTON AV. SITE SOLD FOR TAXPAYER

Schulte Company Buys Fifty-ninth Street Corner From Frederick Brown.

21-YEAR LEASE IS PENDING

Joseph F. A. O'Donnell, Operator, Acquires Lofts With an "L" on Broadway.

The southeast corner of Lexington Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street was sold yesterday by Frederick Brown, the operator, to the Schulte Real Estate Company for a price said to be close to $1,250,000. The property is known as 136 to 1:9 Lexington Avenue, and 735 to 741 East Fifty-ninth Street. It was sold through Leonard S. Gans Company, as brokers, and a twenty-one year lease is pending for improvement of the site with a taxpayer.

The property is directly opposite Bloomingdale's Department Store, and is part of the original Schaefer holdings, which included almost the entire square block, bounded by Lexington and Third Avenues, Fifty-eighth to Fifty-ninth Street, a total of approximately 78,000 square feet, which Mr. Brown purchased over a year ago. He still owns about 50,000 square feet, having sold the southwest corner of Third Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street, 150 by 100 feet, to the United Cigar Stores Company.

In this immediate vicinity Mr. Brown has recently purchased and resold the Hotel Savoy, the Hotel Netherland and the northwest corner of Fifty-ninth Street and Park Avenue, all of which are at present being improved. He still owns a plot of over 25,000 square feet at the northwest corner of Park Avenue and Fifty-eighth Street, and a plot of 40,000 square feet, part of the old Spanish flats on Central Park South.

It is understood that a deal is now pending with theatrical interests to take over a large part of the remaining portion of the Schaefer block, to be improved with a moving picture theatre.

Charles F. Noyes Company, Inc., sold for Cornelius Mitchell, trustee, to Joseph F. A. O'Donnell 442 Broadway and 36 Howard Street, two loft buildings forming an "L" from Broadway to Howard Street, with frontages of thirty feet on Broadway and 25 feet on Howard Street. There is approximately 6,000 feet of ground in the property, which was valued at $150,000. The sale to Mr. O'Donnell carries possession, and the architects are now studying whether the present buildings should be thrown into one and extensive improvements made, or an individual building erected for a leading firm of restaurateurs. Mr. O'Donnell paid all cash for the property, which has been in the ownership of the estate selling for over fifty years.

Operators Sell East Side Flats.

Chasmore Construction Company sold to G. Roulan, 347 East Sixty-first Street, a five and a half story tenement, on a lot 23 by 100 feet, situated between First and second Avenues. J. Lemle & Sons were the brokers in the transaction.

The same operators also resold to the Chasolon Realty Corporation 409 to 413 East 108th Street, three five-story tenements, on a lot 75 by 100 feet.

William L. Greenfogel, Treasurer of the Tedray Realty Corporation, operators, have purchased from a client of Sidney Harris two buildings, located at 1,472 Fifth Avenue, near 118th Street. These buildings were held at $100,000.

Benjamin Shapiro bought for a client the two six-story tenements on plots 40 by 100 each, at 216 and 218 East Sixty-seventh Street, from the Neppo Realty Corporation and G. Hyman Realty Corporation. The property has been in the same ownership for over fifteen years, and was sold for all cash over the first mortgages.

The buyer has already resold the property to an adjoining owner. The brokers in both the sale and resale were Myer L. Agin and Richard J. Fisher.

Deal Near Park Avenue.

George S. Runk sold for the Muel Holding Corporation, James B. Murray, President, 107 East Ninety-sixth Street, a five-story walk-up, 25 by 100 feet. The property is located fifty feet east of the northeast corner of Park Avenue, and was held at $75,000.

A. V. Amy & Co. have sold for Jeannette Guth and Max Kufeld 224 West Sixty-fourth Street, a five-story apartment house, size 25 by 100 feet, held at $40,000, to an investing client.

FOR NEW BROOKLYN FERRY.

Business Men Advocate a Route to Jersey City.

Establishment of a ferry between Brooklyn and Jersey City was urged yesterday by representatives of Brooklyn business interests at a hearing before the Port of New York Authority at its offices, 75 West Street. George S. Silzer, Chairman of the Port Authority, promised prompt consideration of the proposal.

Lawson H. Brown, Secretary of the City Planning Committee of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, estimated the cost of three ferryboats, considered the minimum essential, at $1,000,000 and the operating expenses at between $300,000 and $400,000 a year. He declared that an income of approximately $500,000 a year would insure profitable operation. Atlantic Avenue, Hamilton Avenue and Fulton Street were suggested as possible locations for slips in Brooklyn.

George Dressler, President of the Wallabout Market Merchants' Association, declared that establishment of the ferry would reduce traffic congestion on Brooklyn-Manbattan briges and in lower Manhattan streets.

R. L. Gerhardt, Vice President of the Bush Terminal Company, said a large part of the shipments from Brooklyn to New Jersey, now sent by way of Manhattan, would be diverted to the ferry.

NEW COMMUNITY CENTRE.

Congregation Chab Zedek to Build on Plot Adjoining Synegogue.

A new Jewish community centre and Talmud Torab, to be known as Beth Hillel, will be erected on a plot 36 by 100 feet at 122 and 124 West Ninety-fifth Street, which has been purchased for that purpose by the First Hungarian Congregation Chab Zedek.

The building will be dedicated to the memory of Dr. Philip Klein, the congregation's late rabbi. The plot immediately adjoins the synagogue recently completed for the congregation at a cost of $300,000, at 118 to 120 West Ninety-fifth Street.

As a part consideration the congregation conveyed its present community building, at 128 West Ninety-fifth Street, Justice Wasservogel signing the order granting it permission to sell. William Weiss represented the congregation in the negotiations leading to the conveyance of both parcels.

P. F. GRIFFEN ESTATE SELLS OLD HOLDING

Developers Buy 25-Acre Tract in the Clason Point Section of the Bronx.

MELROSE AVENUE PROJECT

Builders Acquire Corner Parcel as Site for 12-Story Office Building.

An old estate holding in the Clason Point section of the Bronx yesterday passed into the hands of developers for subdivision and improvement. The property, which is known as the estate of Patrick F. Griffen, was sold by the Niffrig Company, a holding company for the owners, through the office of the Oliver Lakin Company.

The land involved in the deal comprises a tract of about twenty-five acres which has been held by the sellers for more than forty years to clients of William Higgs.

It is bounded on the west side by Sound View Avenue, on the east side by Pugsley Creek, on the south by Seward Avenue, and on the north by St. Lawrence and Lafayette Avenues, covering the following blocks: Bolin Avenue, Underbill Avenue, Lelland Avenue, Theriot Avenne, Taylor Avenue, Beach Avenue, Sound View Avenne, Lafayette Avenue and St. Lawrence Avenue.

Samuel Williams and Joseph H. Schwartz purchased from the J. G. Realty Corporation, Malino, President, the northeast corner of 151st Street and Melrose Avenue, a plot 100 by 75 feet, consisting of three four-story apartment houses.

The buyer plans to raze the present improvements and erect in their stead a twelve-story modern office building which will meet the needed requirements and demands for office space in the bub of the Bronx.

The sams buyers have also purchased the southwest corner of Stratford and Westchester Avenues, a vacant plot, 100 by 100 feet. This property adjoins the fifty-six lots which hey recently bought and sold to builders for the erection of a five-story apartment house.

The purchasers contemplate the erection of a one-story business building containing fourteen stores, four of which are rented. Albert D. Phelps was the broker in both transactions.

The Rosenberg-Colt Company sold a plot on the east side of Sherman Avenne, 90 by 100 feet, for Berger & Oser to I. Silverman and N. Levine, on which the buyers will erect a six-story elevator apartment house. The same brokers also sold for Silverman & Levine thirteen lots on the corner of Burnside and Sedgwick Avenues.

Louis M. Weiss & Co., as brokers, sold for C. Kraft the plot, 75 by 100 feet, on the north side of Newbold Avenue, 300 feet north of Havemeyer Avenue, to a builder.

Ennis & Sinnott, operators, have resold the southwest corner of Fordham Road and Cedar Avenue, a vacant plot, 122.87 by 162.5 by irregular, to a building client of Mrs. J. L. Wintner.

ONYX BUILDING LEASE.

Schulte Company Subleases Broadway Corner.

The Schulte Company subleased, through Henry Shapiro & Co., to Silverman-Meltzer-Perlman Corporation the sixteen-story Onyx Building, at 1,101 and 1,113 Broadway, northwest corner of West Twenty-fourth Street, having a frontage of 159 feet on Broadway and 192 feet on Twenty-fourth Street. The ground floor, which was recently vacated by Marshall Field & Co., was subdivided and leased to Weber & Heilbroner, Truly Warner, Rival Shoe Company and Horn & Hardart. The upper portion is now occupied in part by the Onyx Hosiery Company, Haviland China Company, Chalmers Knitting Company, Holeproof Hosiery Company, McCrory and others.

The lease is for a long term of years and involves an aggregate rental of approximately $10,000,000.

NEGRO LODGE BUYS FLAT.

Acquires Property Adjoining its West 135th Street Holding.

SALESMEN
FOR REAL WATERFRONT PROPERTY.
Long Island, North Shore.
An exceptional opportunity for you to make money.

A most beautiful development, unique of its kind, located on the North Shore of Long Island, with waterfrontage of 6,000 feet and 4,000 feet of a wonderful sandy beach. Lots are nearly all within two or three blocks of actual beach or are on the beach.

The property is contiguous to Long Island Railroad Terminal, 38 minutes from Penn Station, New York, with 72 trains daily, part of a town of 14,000 people and between large estates of prominent men, many of them the finest in America.

Improvements and landscaping are actually costing $5,000 per acre and are now two-thirds finished and being hurried to completion.

Prices include all improvements, without any assessments.

Prices are not high but the property is priced to assure a profit. Lots are as low as $1,200 with easy terms. Owners will build 40 houses, of which a number are almost completed. Property is just ready to show, although sales of several hundred thousand dollars are already consummated.

The completed property of only 70 acres with landscaping and improvements and without houses represents an outlay of $1,000,000. We believe this is the most salable residential property from a home or investment standpoint in the entire East. The owners have unlimited financial resources and are completing all improvements on schedule. They own approximately $30,000,000 worth of property in the same vicinity.

Cooperation includes plentiful leads. In fact, all the leads qualified salesmen can handle, assistance in closing and free transportation daily for prospects and salesmen.

Commissions are generous and paid promptly and in full out of first payment of 25 per cent.

We want clean-cut salesmen, ambitious, of good appearance and willing to work and determined to make big money. Real estate experience is desirable but not essential. We are spending approximately $2,500 a week now for leads and are just in the process of organizing a sales force. If you mean business, are willing to put in a real day's work six days a week to make real money on a commission basis, call at once, Room 508, 12 East 41st St.

ALL OF THE ASSETS OF THE PUSEY AND JONES COMPANY, A CORPORATION OF THE STATE OF DELAWARE, AND ALL OF THE ASSETS ACQUIRED AND/OR HELD BY SAID RECEIVERS AND BY SAID SPECIAL MASTERS IN THE ABOVE CAUSES, IN ITS ENTIRETY, AS A GOING CONCERN, INCLUDING BUT NOT INTENDED TO BE LIMITED BY THE FOLLOWING:

(a) All of the lot, piece or parcel of land, situate, lying and being in the City of Wilmington, County of New Castle, and State of Delaware, bounded by Front Street, Water Street, Spruce Street, the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Christiana River, CONTAINING fifteen acres of land, more or less, together with

(b) All of the buildings, shipways, structures, erections and constructions placed thereon, with their fixtures.

(c) All engines, furnaces, machinery, shafting, belting, pulleys, dynamos, dies, patterns, drawings, tools, furniture, fixtures, appliances, implements and appurtenances of every kind or character, situate, lying or being in or about said plant, premises and property, and used or provided for use in or about the operation of said plant and property, and carrying on the business heretofore conducted in the same.

(d) All right, title and interest, claim and demand of every kind or nature, legal or equitable, of The Pusey and Jones Company, in and to all Letters Patent of any kind, and any interest therein, and any licenses or contracts in respect thereto (except such as are not assignable), which are now held by the said Company, covering devices or inventions contained in any article or thing which it may manufacture, sell or use in the conduct of its business.

(e) All raw materials, steel, iron, lumber, coal, oil, supplies, goods, wares and merchandise, and the products of the Company's business, whether manufactured or in process of manufacture, which the said Company may have in its possession, or which may have been acquired by it.

(f) All of the good will of the business conducted and carried on by said Company, or by the Receivers, as well as any and all trade-marks or trade-names now owned or used by the Company. All rights, privileges, franchises, immunities of the said Company, including its right to be a corporation, in so far as they can be legally transferred and conveyed.

(g) All books of accounts and other books of any and every kind, name and nature, now owned or which may be acquired or kept by the said Company, in the conduct of its business.

(h) All bills and accounts receivable outstanding, purchase or sale contracts or other contracts, promissory notes, checks, drafts, moneys, claims, demands and choses in action, and all property or things of value of any kind, name or nature, tangible or intangible, legal or equitable, of which the said Company may be possessed, or to which it may become entitled by reason of any sale, transfer or conveyance.

(i) All accretions of every character to the lands and premises authorized to be sold, and all riparian rights appurtenant thereto. All ways, waters, water courses, rights, privileges, hereditaments and appurtenances to the real estate belonging, or in any wise appertaining, the reversions and remainders, rents, issues and profits thereof, and all of the estate, right, title and interest, property claim and demand whatsoever of the said The Pusey and Jones Company, or the Receivers and Special Masters, in and to every part and parcel of the property, real and personal.

(j) The Receivers and Special Masters will not receive any bid for the property, Real and Personal, described and offered for sale, from any person or corporation who shall not have before, 12 o'clock, noon, Eastern Standard Time, January 5, 1927, deposited with them as a pledge that he or it will make good his or its bid,—in case of its acceptance, the sum of One Hundred Thousand Dollars in United States money, or by certified check upon any National Bank or Trust Company, to the order of the Receivers and Special Masters.

(k) The Receivers and Special Masters will not receive any bid for the property, Real and Personal, described and offered for sale, unless the sum bid shall be equal at least to the sum of Two Million Dollars.

(l) The Receivers and Special Masters reserve the right to reject any and all bids, and all bids are subject to approval or rejection by the United States District Court for the District of Delaware. The date of application for the confirmation will be announced at the sale.

Copies of the Decrees of the United States District Court for the District of Delaware, under the provisions of which this property is offered for sale, and a catalogue setting forth in full the property to be sold, and all other the terms and conditions of sale, can be obtained upon application to Henry C. Mahaffy, Clerk of the District Court of the United States for the District of Delaware, Federal Building, Wilmington, Delaware, or to Willard Saulsbury and Charles B. BANKRUPTCY NOTICES.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, Southern District of New York; in the matter of MacDONALD CONSOLIDATED UNIFORM CORPORATION, Bankrupt—In Bankruptcy No. 30,687.

TO THE CREDITORS OF THE ABOVE NAMED BANKRUPT:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a meeting of the creditors of the above bankrupt will be held at the office of Hon. Oscar W. Ehrhorn, Referee in Bankruptcy, at Room 515, at No. 280 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 29th day of November, 1926, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, to consider an offer of Three Thousand ($3,000) Dollars, for the right, title and interest of the bankrupt estate, and of the trustee in bankruptcy thereof, in and to certain premises, including the building erected thereon, located at No. 118-12 Newport Avenue, Rockaway Park, hereinbelow more particularly described.

Said offer will be considered at this meeting and any other or better offers may be submitted thereat.

The property to be sold is described as follows:

ALL those certain lots, pieces or parcels of land, situated, lying and being in the Fifth Ward of the Borough and County of Queens, City and State of New York, known and designated on a certain map entitled "Map No. 3 of Rockaway Park, 1903, Fifth Ward, Borough of Queens, City of New York, N. Y., belonging to the Rockaway Park Improvement Co. (Limited), Surveyed by E. W. & F. W. Conklin, City Surveyors, Far Rockaway, N. Y.," and filed in the Queens County Clerk's office Aug. 13, 1903, as Map Number 47, as and by Lots Numbered Twelve hundred sixty-one (1261) to Twelve hundred sixty-five (1265), both inclusive, in Block Number Twenty-two (22), which said lots, taken together, are bounded and described according to said map as follows:

BEGINNING at the corner formed by the intersection of the northerly side of Newport Avenue (also known as Ocean Avenue) with the easterly side of Eighth Avenue (now known as 119th Street); running thence northerly, along the easterly side of Eighth Avenue, one hundred (100) feet; thence easterly, parallel with Newport Avenue, one hundred (100) feet; thence southerly, parallel with Eighth Avenue, one hundred (100) feet to the northerly side of Newport Avenue; and thence westerly, along the northerly side of Newport Avenue, one hundred (100) feet to the corner aforesaid, the point or place of beginning.

The said premises will be sold subject to a first mortgage of $21,000 and accrued interest now past due, taxes assessed by the City of New York and unpaid water charges, if any.

For any information concerning the above premises you may apply at the office of the undersigned attorneys.

Dated, New York, November 5, 1926.

GODFREY E. UPDIKE, Trustee.

M., Pacific Time. The planes carry mail for intermediate points as well. Connections are made at Cleveland for Detroit, arriving Detroit 5:15 P. M., and at Salt Lake City for Los Angeles, arriving Los Angeles 5:25 P. M. At Elko, Nev., connections are made for Pasco, Wash., and by rail from that point to cities in Washington and Oregon, arriving the morning of the second day after leaving New York City; and at Cheyenne, Wyo., for Denver, Colorado Springs and Pueblo, arriving the morning of the next day after leaving New York. Mail for points not on the air route is forwarded by mail trains from the nearest air mail station.

The New York daily closing time for the mail is 8 A. M., Eastern Standard Time, from the General Postoffice and 6 A. M. to 7:55 A. M. at the air mail letter boxes, painted red, white and blue, which are located in various parts of the city, depending on location.

Wednesday's air mail from San Francisco arrived at Cleveland last night and was expected to reach Hadley Field at 8 A. M. today to be forwarded by rail to New York.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 18.—Wednesday's transcontinental air mail running from New York is being held over night at Salt Lake City, Utah, and is due here 11:30 A. M. Friday.

Thursday's transcontinental air mail, running from San Francisco to New York, reported running on time into Salt Lake City, Utah.

Chicago and Southwest Air Mail

The New York-Chicago air mail is operated in both directions nightly, leaving Hadley Field (New Brunswick, N. J.) at 9:35 P. M., Eastern Standard Time, and Chicago at 8 P. M., Central Time. The planes carry mail for intermediate points. Direct connections are made at Chicago for Detroit, arriving Detroit 11:40 A. M.; for St. Louis, arriving St. Louis 9:15 A. M.; for St. Paul-Minneapolis, arriving Minneapolis 10:40 A. M., to connect by rail with points in North and South Dakota and Montana, and for Dallas, Texas, via Moline, Rock Island, Davenport, St. Joseph, Kansas City, Wichita, Oklahoma City and Fort Worth, arriving Dallas 5:35 P. M. Direct rail connections are made at Dallas and Fort Worth for points further south and west.

The New York daily closing time is 6:45 P. M., Eastern Standard Time, at the General Postoffice, and 5:10 P. M., or a little later, at the air mail letter boxes, painted red, white and blue, which are located in various parts of the city.

Wednesday's air mail from Chicago arrived at Hadley Field at 7:50 A. M. yesterday and was forwarded by rail to New York.

M'ADOO 1928 LEADER ON A DRY PLATFORM, MEREDITH PREDICTS

"Progressive" Democrats of West and South Will Rule Convention, He Asserts.

SAYS ELECTION AIDED SMITH

But Foes of Wet Plank Will Halt Candidacy, He Declares in an Interview Here.

NEW DEADLOCK LOOMING

Former Secretary Himself Is Talked Of as Compromise Nominee, but Insists He Is Not in Field.

Edwin T. Meredith, Secretary of Agriculture in the Wilson Administration and widely spoken of as a possible compromise candidate for President on the Democratic ticket in 1928, today declared in an interview yesterday that "Progressive Democrats from the West and South" would control the next Democratic National Convention, that they would rally behind William G. McAdoo as their candidate for the Presidential nomination and would dictate a dry platform on which Governor Alfred E. Smith could not consistently run.

If the prediction of Mr. Meredith, who has been closely in touch with what has been going on in the McAdoo camp for the last few months, should come true, a virtual repetition of the bitter contest which kept the Democratic National Convention in 1924 in session for so long may usher in the 1928 Presidential campaign. Such a recurrence of a prolonged deadlock in 1928 is made more likely by the probability that the Democrats will continue to vote under which a two-thirds rule is required for nominations. Mr. Smith's organization in Iowa, his own State, has already taken the initiative seeking its abrogation, but the general opinion among Democrats is that the two-thirds rule, and the unit rule as well, will stand.

Rule Control by West and South.

"In my judgment," Mr. Meredith said at the Hotel Biltmore, "the next Democratic National Convention will be controlled by the progressive Democrats from the West and the South. It will not write a wet platform and undoubtedly will include in its declaration of party policy and program a prohibition law enforcement plank. The country is dry today. I do not believe that Governor Smith consistently could run on the sort of a platform the 1928 convention is most likely to adopt.

"William G. McAdoo, as he was in 1924, will be the rallying point for the 'progressives' in the 1928 convention. He is the only man within our party around whom any considerable group of the 'progressives,' a majority of whom also happen to be dry, would gather to make their stand against the vets and what they regard as the 'reactionary East.'"

"Are the McAdoo supporters active at the present time?" Mr. Meredith was asked.

"They have not up to the present time been particularly active, although I and some others have been making a sort of survey of sentiment throughout the country," he replied. "I have also been telling McAdoo men of prominence in several States that they had better begin at once to prepare the way for their election as delegates to the 1928 National Convention. But then there was no greater activity at the corresponding stage of the preliminaries to the 1924 convention and yet Mr. McAdoo entered that convention with the largest following of any candidate for the nomination, while at one time he had almost a clear majority of the delegates. I expect a drive for delegates will be getting under way some time next Spring."

McAdoo As Strong As in 1924.

"Will Mr. McAdoo, in your opinion, be as strong in 1928 as he was in 1924?" Mr. Meredith was asked.

"His relative strength, as I see it, will be about the same," Mr. Meredith replied.

"Doesn't that point to a virtual repetition in 1928 of the deadlock that it required 103 ballots to break in 1924?" was the next question.

"I sincerely hope there will be no recurrence of that," was Mr. Meredith's reply. "However, I expect it will be a very interesting convention, with somebody nominated in the end. Even in 1924 the convention did not adjourn without naming a standard bearer."

"Where do you think the next Democratic National Convention will be held?" Mr. Meredith was asked.

"Somewhere in the West—Cleveland, St. Louis, possibly Kansas City—I do not know."

"You do not think there is any likelihood it will go further west—Denver, for example?"

"I think not," was the reply. "However, your guess may be as good as mine. One thing is absolutely certain, however. It will not be held in New York."

Speaking about the situation in his own State, Mr. Meredith said that only 35 per cent. of the Iowa Democrats, at the most liberal estimate, favored the nomination of Mr. Smith.

"He may have the delegates from three of our eleven Congressional districts," Mr. Meredith said. "We will control the remaining eight and will elect the delegates at large. And we may get the entire delegation under the unit rule, which undoubtedly will be ordered by the State convention, to be held after our Spring primaries."

"But don't you think the election of Governor Smith for a fourth term has

Rains Ease Water Crisis, But Economy Still Is Urged

The heavy rainfall of this week in the Catskill watershed has relieved the immediate emergency that threatened the city's water supply. It was declared at the office of the Board of Water Supply yesterday, however, that economy and elimination of all waste were still important.

The rainfall of Monday and Tuesday, 2.62 inches, and the precipitation of Thursday night have added 17,369,000,000 gallons to the water in the Ashokan reservoir. Its content is now up to about 35,122,000,000 gallons. In addition, the Schoharie reservoir has 13,000,000,000 gallons and will be overflowing before long at the present rate of run-off. The Kensico reservoir has 29,115,000,000 gallons and the Croton reservoir about 80,000,000,000 gallons. Last Monday the consumption amounted to 790,000,000 gallons, leaving a good margin of increase.

GOODYEAR OFFICERS SUED FOR $15,000,000

Rubber Company's Stockholders Attack Reorganization Work of Dillon and Sherwin.

CHARGE CONSPIRACY, FRAUD

Sherwin Denies Allegations and Says He Acted Only to Protect Creditors.

Special to The New York Times.

AKRON, Ohio, Nov. 19.—Suit to recover more than $15,000,000 alleged to have been "wrongfully removed" from assets of the corporation and to oust from the management of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company Clarence Dillon of New York and John Sherwin of Cleveland, bankers, was filed here late today in Common Pleas Court by nine stockholders of the Goodyear Company.

It was learned tonight that Frank A. Seiberling, who was forced to resign from Goodyear at the time of its reorganization in 1921 when banking interests took charge of the company, is definitely in the fight which is being waged by stockholders to regain control of the company. He said he was not appointed leader but "is deeply interested."

The following statement concerning the petition was issued tonight by representatives of the stockholders' group:

"The plaintiffs to the suit are F. C. Tomlinson, Frank C. Howland, Phil H. Schneider of Akron, Paul V. Robinson of Akron, William T. Betz, Robert H. Bishop Jr., George B. Durell, H. A. Leisy and Frederick W. Freeman. The defendants are Clarence Dillon, personally and as President of Dillon, Read & Co.; John Sherwin, another of the Goodyear management stock trustees, and the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company.

"The petition charges that Dillon and Sherwin conspired in 1921 to maintain control of the Goodyear Tire and Ruhber Company. It charges that they sought to evade the laws of Ohio relating to usury by having debentures and mortgages executed in New York, and that they asserted that the Goodyear refinancing plan as passed in 1921 was the only means of saving the company.

$20,000,000 Expense Alleged.

"It charges that the refunding scheme brought to Goodyear $51,000,000, but that the company assumed in addition to that sum premiums of $11,000,000 and gave bonuses of $9,000,000. It cites anew the terms of the Leonard Kennedy Company contract with Goodyear and declares that the total cost of it to Goodyear was $916,000, according to 'information and belief' of plaintiffs. It charges that the conduct of Dillon and Sherwin in the performance of their duty to Goodyear in that connection was 'fraudulent.'

"The petition asks for the removal of Dillon and Sherwin from positions of trust, and asks that Dillon, Read & Co. be excluded from any rights or interest in the management stock of Goodyear. It demands an accounting for Goodyear of their trusteeship in connection with the sale of Goodyear securities and the management of the company, and demands that they be required to account for all profits resulting from any breaches of duty.

"It asks restoration to stockholders of all shares of Goodyear stock

Transfer of Supervision From War Department to Civil Bureau to Be Proposed.

MORE AUTONOMY FAVORED

American Exploitation of Land for Rubber Condemned—Wants Natives to Benefit.

By RUSSELL B. PORTER.

Special to The New York Times.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 19.—Five months and four days after sailing from this port to investigate political and economic conditions in the Philippine Islands for President Coolidge, Colonel Carmi A. Thompson of Cleveland returned this afternoon on the steamship President Jefferson from Manila via China and Japan. The President's personal representative had declined to discuss his report before handing it to Mr. Coolidge, but after traveling through the Philippines and returning to the United States with him I feel confident that it will contain the following recommendations and suggestions:

One—Emphatic advice to President Coolidge to take immediate action to re-establish cooperation between the executive and legislative branches of the Insular Government, breaking the deadlock between Governor General Leonard Wood and the Philippine Legislature.

Two—Transferal of supervision over the Philippines, as well as all our other overseas possessions, from the War Department to a special bureau in one of the civil departments at Washington.

Military Advisers Opposed.

Three—Abolition of General Wood's "Cavalry Cabinet" of military advisers, replacing them with a group of American civilian advisers trained in law, finance, commerce, agriculture and other technical branches of civil department.

Four—No independence for the Filipinos now or for some years to come, but no action by the United States to shut the door against ultimate complete independence.

Five—Complete internal autonomy, with an elective Filipino Governor General, but with foreign relations controlled by the United States within not more than ten or fifteen years, providing cooperation between the Executive and Legislature shall have been restored.

Six—No "backward step" meanwhile with respect to local autonomy—specifically no increase in the Governor General's powers—unless future actions of the Filipinos themselves make it necessary; on the contrary, a gradual extension of further autonomy until the time comes for complete internal autonomy.

Wants Schools Improved.

Seven—Improvement of the Philippine educational system, with special emphasis on technical training in agriculture, commerce and finance and on more rapid and widespread dissemination of the English language among the masses.

Eight—No amendment to Philippine land laws by Congress such as that desired by American rubber interests to open up large tracts of public domain for private exploitation, but special efforts to induce Filipinos themselves to amend laws or otherwise develop large-scale production of rubber and other tropical products for which the United States is now dependent upon foreign monopolies.

Nine—Stronger American control for the present in the Moro Country, including withdrawal of Philippine constabulary from that region, but no permanent separation of Moroland from the rest of the Philippines, as provided for in the Bacon hill introduced at the last session of Congress.

Ten—Withdrawal of the Philippine Government from its private business ventures as rapidly as possible.

Colonel Thompson can be expected to

Wooden Traffic Policeman Serves Germans Efficiently

BERLIN, Nov. 19 (AP).—The world's record for faithful attendance at his post probably is held by a traffic policeman in Brandenburg Province, who stands on duty, rain or shine, for twenty-four hours a day and never complains—the simple reason being that he is only a wooden figure. The villagers set him up to guard a dangerous curve on a much-traveled highway, and he gets almost as much obedience as a real live limb of the law.

The authorities of the hamlet realized that there ought to be a guard at a tricky point in the road, but felt that they could not afford to pay the salary of a sure-enough traffic officer. So they devised a make-believe one and furnished him with a full uniform and helmet.

Thus he stands, with one arm continuously upraised in warning. Observers say that his directions are well obeyed.

CATHOLICS DEFEND VANDERBILT DECREE

Church Journals, Here and In London, Resent Criticism by Bishop Manning and Others.

DENY MARRIAGE EXISTED

Says Manning's Church Should Have Inquired Into 'Vulgar' Barter of Coronet for Dollars.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—Bishop Manning's attack on the action of the Southwark Diocesan Court in annulling the marriage of Consuelo Vanderbilt and the Duke of Marlborough is causing considerable resentment in Roman Catholic circles in England.

The Tablet, the leading Catholic organ, prints a reply to Bishop Manning whose tenor is indicated by this paragraph:

"The Vanderbilt nullity has been pronounced on grounds which every man, and especially every woman, should respect, namely, that the Catholic Church rejects the heathen practices of marriage by capture and of marriage by purchase, however plausible their renaissance may be disseminated by professing Christians of vast wealth and high position."

Other Catholic newspapers also have observations to make.

Meanwhile the Right Rev. Dr. Amigo, Bishop of Southwark, has left for Rome. It is announced that his purpose was to participate in the consecration of a new English Bishop, but in view of the fact that it was in his diocese that the annulment was pronounced it is generally assumed that he will discuss the case with the Vatican authorities.

Now that it has become known that the marriage was annulled on the application not of the Duke of Marlborough but of his former Duchess, the public is curious to know whether the Duke will become a Catholic, as was hinted earlier he might do. No statement has yet been made by the Duke, but it has long been known at Oxford that his desires were in that direction. He has been a frequent attendant at St. Aloysius Catholic Church there, driving in from his country seat at Blenheim for the purpose, and it is said he has shown many signs of interest in Catholic causes in the parish.

During the Summer of last year he attended the various meetings of the conference of the Catholic Council for International Relations at Oxford and entertained the distinguished foreign visitors who assembled for it at a luncheon at Blenheim Castle.

Diocesan Officials Silent.

Requests that the evidence on which the former Duchess of Marlborough grouped her application for annulment be published have been made to the Diocesan Court of Southwark, but all such requests are met with the reply that evidence in such cases is never issued to the public.

The Universe, another London Catholic newspaper, states, however, that "the court sat at the Bishop's House at Southwark and consisted of the Bishop's official with two other priests experienced in such matters. The petitioner herself, her mother and other witnesses contemporary with the facts gave evidence and also the Duke of Marlborough."

The decision was that the ceremony of 1895 was entirely null and void and it was based on the principle laid down in Canon 1087 of Canon law: "A marriage is invalid when it is entered into because of violence or grave fear caused by an external agent unjustly, to free one's self from which one is compelled to choose marriage."

The Universe is informed that the evidence proved beyond doubt that such pressure was brought to bear upon the petitioner in the now famous marriage. It was also proved, says the Universe, that such fear was caused from the outside and that it was unjustly so caused.

Such cases are by no means infrequent. One such case is being heard this week at the Bishop's house at Southwark, adds the newspaper.

"Attempts have been made," continues the Universe, "to raise prejudices against the Church on the ground of the position in which the decree of nullity places the sons of the Duke. On this point we repeat that there is no suggestion that any rights of succession or other legal rights are in the least degree challenged. But the Church fully recognizes the hardship that falls accidentally upon some persons in consequence of such events as have here happened.

"Apart from the ordinary rules of legitimation, which cannot apply in such a case as this, there is the ancient method of legitimation by special

POLICEMAN IS SLAIN, ANOTHER WOUNDED, BY BROOKLYN GUNMEN

Volleys of Bullets Pour From Auto Containing Four Men as It Is Halted for Inspection.

THREE OCCUPANTS ESCAPE

But Patrolman, in Spite of His Hurts, Captures One, Said to Have a Prison Record.

WIDE SEARCH FOR SLAYERS

Police Aid Fight for Life of Comrade—Wanton Shooting Leaves Two Children Orphens.

A patrolman was shot and killed and another wounded, perhaps fatally, in Brooklyn yesterday afternoon, when four men in a new gray sedan who had been stopped as suspicious characters by the policemen opened fire without warning.

The shooting occurred in Hicks Street near Pierrepont, almost directly opposite the entrance to Love Lane and in the heart of the Brooklyn Heights residential section. The patrolmen were Edward P. Byrns and Frank A. Daszkiewicz, both of the Poplar Street Station.

Byrns died on the way to the Long Island College Hospital of a bullet wound just below the heart. Daszkiewicz was shot twice through the abdomen, and doctors at the hospital said last night that he had only a fighting chance for life.

Three of the four men in the sedan fled after the shooting. But the fourth was captured by Daszkiewicz, who, wounded as he was, clung to the gunman until a witness to the tragedy came to his aid. The witness was Vincent Carney of 176 Hicks Street. As Carney reached his side, Daszkiewicz whispered, "For God's sake, hold that man." Then he lost consciousness.

Suspicions of Four Men.

Both Byrns and Daszkiewicz were working on the 8 to 4 tour yesterday and they were shot just five minutes before they were to have gone off duty. At 3:45 Byrns, who was driving the police automobile, left the Poplar Street station for a final run around the precinct. He turned out of Poplar Street into Hicks Street and was driving slowly south when he observed a new sedan ahead of him. Two men were in the front seat and two more in the rear, and their actions caused Byrns to become suspicious.

He followed the sedan through Hicks Street, watching the men inside. Once he thought he saw the glint of a pistol barrel as the sunlight streamed through the rear window of the sedan and fell upon some object in the hands of a man in the back seat.

At Middagh Street in front of Public School 8, Byrns saw Patrolman Daszkiewicz, who had been detailed to assist school children over the crossing on their way home. At a signal from Byrns Daszkiewicz ran over and climbed into the police car. Byrns related what he had seen. "Better have them pull over," advised Daszkiewicz, and Byrns stepped on the accelerator and pulled up abreast of the sedan.

"Pull over to the curb," he shouted to the driver, and at the same time shot his machine in ahead of the other car so that the driver was compelled to stop.

Volley of Shots From Auto.

Byrns and Daszkiewicz climbed out and walked back toward the sedan, which had stopped a few feet behind at the west curb. Neither patrolman drew his pistol. Byrns was somewhat slight of stature compared with most policemen, but he was wiry and known for his fearlessness. He was walking a pace or two ahead of Daszkiewicz on the right side of the sedan facing forward, when suddenly the two doors flew open. At the same instant there came a volley from the sedan and Byrns pitched forward on his face on the sidewalk.

The four men leaped from the sedan. The rear door had been broken previously and they hurled it out of their way. Instinctively Daszkiewicz reached for his service pistol, but before he could draw it from the holster the gunmen fired another volley.

Two shots struck Daszkiewicz in the abdomen. He could feel his legs sagging but he fought to retain consciousness and as he fell forward he seized the driver of the sedan, the last man to alight, and dragged him to the ground.

The man struck out blindly with his

HALL DEFENSE OPENS, ALIBIS CLAIMED; JEALOUSY THEORY OF CRIME ATTACKED; FINGERPRINT CLUE CALLED 'HOCUS POCUS'

State Rests Its Case in Hall-Mills Trial; Henry Stevens to Testify in Own Defense Today

The following were the outstanding developments in the Hall-Mills trial yesterday:

1. The State rested its case after testimony of several witnesses to clear up points in stories previously given.
2. Defense counsel in an opening address told the jury each defendant would prove an alibi. Mrs. Hall knew nothing of the rector's intrigue with Mrs. Mills, the defense contends.
3. A State's witness who produced a razor as the crime weapon was forced on cross-examination to admit he had a police record.
4. The defense announced it would put Henry Stevens on the stand today. Mrs. Hall and Willie Stevens also will be called in their own defense.

ALL WILL TAKE THE STAND

Henry Stevens Had Never Heard of Mrs. Mills, Jury Is Told.

MRS. HALL A 'LOYAL WIFE'

She Was Unaware of Intrigue and Clung to Her Faith in Rector, Defense Says.

RAZOR EVIDENCE UNDER FIRE

Man Who Produced It Admits Police Record—Two Tell of Scratch on Widow's Face.

The State rested and the defense opened yesterday in the Hall-Mills trial at Somerville, N. J.

State Senator Clarence E. Case, outlining the defense, said that an alibi would be offered for Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and her brothers, Henry Stevens and Willie Stevens. He added that each would take the stand and that Mrs. Hall would "tell all she knows." Henry Stevens will testify today.

The lawyer for the defendants addressed the jury in impressive fashion. Point by point he attacked the case which Assistant Attorney General Alexander Simpson rested on the thirteenth day of the trial. He ridiculed the State's evidence of a calling card alleged to bear the fingerprint of Willie Stevens. Senator Case called the card "a hocus pocus" and said the defense would prove the print was not made by Stevens.

He went carefully over the topography of the Phillips farm, where, on the night of Sept. 14, 1922, the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills were shot to death. He said that the defense would be a negative one—namely, an effort to show that the defendants did not commit the crime.

Mrs. Hall's Faith in Rector.

"None of the defendants was there," he said, earnestly. "None of them had anything to do with it. None of the defendants knew anything about it, either before or after the sad, sad tragedy."

He indicated Mrs. Hall with a motion of his hand. He pictured her as a trusting wife, all unsuspecting that her husband might have strayed, and said:

"She helped him in his church work. She lived his life. She believed he lived her life and she was wrapped up in him and he was her ideal. To the day of his death and for years after he was to her the perfect husband, the man in whom she placed every confidence, the man to whom she was united by the solemn bonds of matrimony, to whom she was true, and who, as she believed, was true to her."

In addition to taking the offensive in the trial, the defense gained what was considered a distinct score when Senator Simpson chose to end his case with the testimony of Frank Caprio, private detective from Red Bank, N. J. Caprio, who spoke with a marked Italian accent, testified that he had turned over to the State a razor which he asserted the late Azariah Beekman, Somerset Prosecutor of the Pleas, had told him was the weapon used to cut the throat of Mrs. Mills.

The special prosecutor had marked the razor for identification last week when he examined Barbara Tough, a former maid in the Hall home, although the maid had insisted that the only razor she had ever seen in the home was one much smaller than the State's razor. He sought yesterday to get the razor in as evidence, Caprio was called for that end.

Caprio Admits Police Record.

The private detective proved to be a real "surprise" witness. He glided smoothly enough through his direct examination, but began to get into rough water when Robert H. McCarter, senior defense attorney, cross-examined him. The lawyer asked Caprio if he had not pleaded guilty in the Court of General Sessions in this city to a charge of attempted extortion. Caprio evaded answers even after Mr. McCarter produced what purported to be a certified copy of Caprio's case.

He was asked if he had not served a year in the penitentiary, following conviction in Monmouth County on five charges of obtaining money under false pretenses. Caprio admitted the impeachment. The witness denied, with grimaces, Mr. McCarter's charge that he had approached the defense with his razor and story before going with them to Senator Simpson.

"I won't offer this razor," said Senator Simpson finally. "I am not satisfied with the statements of this witness."

Several other witnesses were offered, besides Caprio, by Senator Simpson, as epilogue to the dramatic testimony of Mrs. Jane Gibson, the "pig woman," who accused Mrs. Hall and her brothers from a bed in the court on Thursday. Mrs. Gibson was reported as improving yesterday in the Jersey City Hospital, and in a formal statement she reiterated her declaration that she had "told the truth."

The first of the State's witnesses was Barbara Tough, who was recalled on the razor phase of the case. She ad-

BLAST RENDS TANKER; 20 TO 40 MEET DEATH

Maimed Men Perish on Sundered Deck Amid Rain of Blazing Oil.

MANY TRAPPED IN FLAMES

Heroic Rescuers Brave Missiles and Red-Hot Debris in Baltimore Dry Dock.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 19.—An oil explosion tore apart the Norwegian oil tanker Mantilla in dry dock here today, and at least twenty men are known to be dead. Some of the estimates of the dead run as high as forty, and from forty to fifty injured. There were eighty-five men aboard the ship and only a few of them escaped unscathed.

The explosion was terrific. It literally ripped the ship in two, hurling pieces of steel girders and the steel deck for hundreds of feet. The air was filled with shattered pieces of the vessel for a few moments after the explosion, and here and there could be seen the arms or legs of men, torn from their bodies and thrown into the air. Two dead men were found floating 200 yards away.

The ship lay in the dry dock at the Sparrows Point plant of the Bethlehem Steel Company, undergoing repairs. About fifty workmen were aboard in addition to the thirty-five members of the crew. It is believed that the explosion came from gases accumulated in the empty oil tanks, and the blast was followed by fire.

There was absolutely no warning, and after the first roar of the blast, flames and smoke burst from the shattered deck and sides of the ship, shooting upward hundreds of yards under the force of the uprush of air.

Injured Caught in Flames.

The scene on the deck of the ship was one of horror. Men ran about with their clothing on fire, screaming with the pain of burns and injuries. Some could not run and lay on the deck with arms or legs blown off, while a rain of blazing oil and red-hot missiles of steel and wood descended on them. The steel plates were spotted with a grim red where they lay or crawled about, trying to extinguish their burning clothing.

The flames made their position more pitiful, for it heated the decks to a point where they could hardly be reached. Many of the workmen were trapped in the interior of the vessel and their screams could be heard as they died in agony, unable from injuries to flee from the flames and the flood of deadly burning oil. How many thus perished as the fire ate its way through the tanks will not be known until the interior of the craft is cool enough to allow a thorough search.

Volunteer Rescuers Brave Death.

With the mighty boom of the explosion, followed by the pillar of fire and the piercing screams of the injured, all the workers along the waterfront hastened to the spot, and while calls

COOLIDGE UNMOVED BY TAX CUT PLEAS

He Has No Sympathy With the Democratic Plan for a Permanent Reduction.

DISAGREES ON MOTOR LEVY

President Holds It Should Not Be Repealed While Government Is Paying for Good Roads.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—Evidence accumulates that the plans of the Coolidge Administration for tax relief are at odds with the views of important Senators and Representatives, including several leading Republicans, as to how taxpayers would receive the benefit of the gradually rising surplus in the Treasury.

This opposition indicates that there will be a keen contest over tax relief at the session of Congress which will begin Dec. 6 and end March 4 next. All signs point to the probability that President Coolidge will not be able to realize his expressed wish that the proposed tax legislation shall be of a non-partisan character, such as marked the enactment of the present revenue act.

It was made clear at the White House today that the President was out of accord with the plan of Senator Simmons of North Carolina and Representative Garner, the leading Democratic members of the two committees of Congress which handle revenue matters, for making permanent tax reductions at the coming short Congressional session. The President and Secretary Mellon think nothing more should be tried than a rebate or credit to taxpayers to the extent that the present surplus justifies. Senator Simmons and Representative Garner, and to a measurable extent Representative Green of Iowa, the Republican Chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, advocate the repeal of certain existing taxes.

Would Cut Corperation Tax.

The Simmons-Garner or Democratic program, announced yesterday, would make a reduction of the corporation tax from 13½ to 11 per cent. and leave the tax at the lower figure. Their theory is that relief to corporations would benefit all the people through the indirect method of inducing corporations to reduce the prices of their products to the extent of the relief they obtain from reduction of taxes. In this suggestion they find sympathy from Chairman Green.

President Coolidge, however, is opposed to any such permanent tax reduction. What was said at the White House today showed that the President had not changed his mind since he let it be known on Nov. 5 that he favored utilizing the surplus by giving back to taxpayers from 10 to 12 per cent. of the amount they had paid to the Government in some one year under the present revenue act. Since then it has been indicated that the tax return might safely be 12½ per cent. or even 15 per cent.

Only the accumulated surplus in the Treasury justifies the tax relief proposed by them, the President and the Secretary of the Treasury hold. Having dissipated most of that surplus by crediting taxpayers with the amount of the percentage reduction that might be sanctioned by Congress, they would let the present tax law stand, with any further paying back to the taxpayers left until the condition of the surplus determines whether it is feasible, or until the condition of the public finances appears to justify a permanent reduction of taxes.

Against Auto Tax Repeal.

President Coolidge took special note today of the proposal in the Simmons-Garner plan that the automobile tax should be rescinded. It was said in his behalf that he felt that, as the United States Government gave from $85,000,000 to $90,000,000 a year for making good roads it was entitled to some return from those who produced and used motor cars. As for relief desirable for the automobile interests, it was mentioned at the White House that last year the tax on motor vehicles was reduced substantially.

The President, it was indicated today, could not understand why opinion should persist that he and Secretary Mellon had been at odds over the manner in which the proposed return of part taxes paid should be made to the taxpayers. Under the method understood to be favored by the President the tax return would be a rebate

Defense Budget for 1928 Totals $676,406,000; Air Fund $89,000,000, Says Service Journal

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (AP).—Appropriations for the army and navy for the fiscal year 1928 have been estimated by the Budget Bureau at $354,345,000 for the War Department and $322,061,000 for the navy, while provision has been made for approximately $89,000,000 for aviation in all services, the Army and Navy Journal will say tomorrow.

For strictly military purposes, it will set forth, the War Department receives $269,345,000, an increase over the current appropriation of about $3,000,000, and for non-military use, including Panama Canal activities, $85,000,000 is provided.

For the navy the figure provided is estimated at $7,000,000 above the budget's "direct appropriations" and may include indirect appropriations and contract authorization which annually raise the total, but is almost $5,000,000 less than this year's total.

The increase for the military establishment is necessary, the journal will say, to bear largely the expense of the five-year aviation program authorized, but not yet appropriated for by Congress. This plan led to the statement that for the first time "it is definitely known that the Administration is committed to a policy of absorbing this additional cost in the appropriations for the regular establishment."

The article further points out:

That the navy, in the event a higher figure is not eventually provided for, is prepared to place out of commission five of the six older battleships of the scouting fleet, leaving one to serve as flagship for the naval forces in the Atlantic.

That naval aeronautics will receive about $1,500,000 less, but it is estimated that about three-fourths of the planes scheduled for construction the second year under the five-year program can be built because of standardization of types and quantity buying now in effect.

That while funds available for the army air corps will permit in a large measure new plane construction provided for the second year, the increase in funds does not carry out to a great extent the material development and other phases of the program.

New Yorker Swims the Catalina Channel, 27 Miles, in 13 Hours 27 Minutes, on Fifth Try

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 19.—Walter Grange Taber, 28 years of age, of New York, swam the Catalina Channel from Avalon to Huntington Beach, landing this morning at 4:03 o'clock after thirteen hours twenty-seven minutes in the water.

Taber is 5 feet 9 inches tall and weighed 224 pounds when he started. he weighed only 210 at the finish.

It was his fifth attempt.

Taber, unannounced and unheralded, left Avalon at 2:36 o'clock yesterday afternoon with his two backers, Miss Helen Fee of Hollywood and Albert Higgins of San Diego, accompanying him in a motor craft. He set a fast pace from the start and finished in what is considered remarkable time for the distance, twenty-seven miles. He dressed for the attempt mainly in two pints of vaseline, and his only nourishment on the long swim was houlihon cubes.

The swim, Taber said, was a tryout for the $25,000 Wrigley swim to take place in January or February, in which he intends to enter.

"I have been swimming ever since I can remember," Taber said. "I learned in the 'old swimmin' hole' back East. In New York I have swum both the Hudson and the East Rivers, but I never went in especially for distance."

Taber is an employe of the Wilshire Oil Company at Huntington Beach, shifting there from San Bernardino about a month ago. In San Bernardino he worked for the Santa Fé Railroad. He made the change, he said, as a result of an argument with a friend at the time Gertrude Ederle swam the English Channel, insisting that he could swim the Catalina Channel.

"I went into no special training for this swim, as I am always in good physical condition and never drink nor smoke," said Taber. "I have been swimming every day at Huntington Beach. I will do some training for the Wrigley race, of course."

QUEEN EXPLAINS HASTE TO SEE KING

Says She Has Not Been Called Home, but Fears Ferdinand May Be Seriously Ill.

GETS TO JERSEY CITY TODAY

Queen Visits Orphans' Home, Where Her Host, Col. Carroll, Spent His Boyhood as a Waif.

The New York Times Associated Newspapers. From a Staff Correspondent.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.

ON BOARD THE QUEEN OF RUMANIA'S TRAIN, CUMBERLAND, Md., Nov. 19.—A weary and depressed Queen, speeding homeward, presided tonight at a farewell dinner aboard the train on which she and her party have traversed the American continent, and on which they will arrive in the environs of New York City tomorrow.

Her son, Prince Nicholas, was absent tonight, for he left the train in a suburb of Cincinnati this morning to fulfill part of the original program in Cincinnati, Cleveland and Detroit. Princess Ileana, still suffering from the exhaustion and shock of her automobile ride from Chicago to Indianapolis, also could not attend, but remained in bed in the royal family's private car.

The evening brought the Queen the first direct news she has had for many days of the condition of King Ferdinand, in a cablegram from Queen Marie of Yugoslavia, her daughter, who is with her father in Bucharest. The cablegram read:

"Papa better. Don't be anxious."

The cablegram was signed "Mignon," the pet name Queen Marie has for her daughter.

Although this message relieved the Queen's suspense in large measure, it did not completely cheer her.

Earlier in the evening the Queen had issued the following statement, referring to a dispatch from Bucharest that the Government knew of no request for her to hasten home:

"It is true that her Majesty has received no official call to return to Rumania, but since there have been so many conflicting reports regarding the King's health she feels she must return at once in case there is any possibility of there being any truth in these reports. She is, therefore, leaving of her own initiative on the Berengaria on Nov. 24."

Thanks Those On Train.

The hosts of tonight's dinner were Colonel John H. Carroll and Mrs. Carroll. A special guest was Judge Robert W. Bingham, publisher of The Louisville Courier Journal, who was invited last night to accompany the royal party to New York.

There were no speeches, but when the Queen responded to a toast to the King and herself, she turned to Colonel Carroll, who had entertained her on behalf of the railroads and said:

"I want to thank you, Colonel Carroll, for this very happy trip which we have had, even though our hearts are sad tonight. This train has become a home to us. And only think, this is the last time this group will be together."

The Queen had words of appreciation and gifts for several who have been close to her on the journey. She presented a watch to Colonel Carroll. She had a special word for Colonel Walter V. Shipley, who recently has been promoted from assistant general passenger agent of the Baltimore & Ohio to general passenger agent, with offices in New York, and who has managed the entire journey under Colonel Carroll's direction. The Queen presented to him a cigarette case bearing her royal monogram and crown. Other gifts were for Major Stanley Washburn, her aide, and Mrs. Washburn, Miss Adeline Young, her nurse, and others. At the Queen's direction also, a telegram was sent tonight to Daniel Willard, President of the Baltimore & Ohio, asking him to come to the train at Baltimore tomorrow and have lunch with her in her car.

The schedule of the Queen's train, as revised today, provides for arrival at Jersey City at 4:20 P. M. tomorrow. There she will motor to the home of Charles E. Mitchell at Tuxedo Park. Colonel Carroll was anxious for the Queen to view some of the Civil War battlefields along the route, and the Queen consented today to make part of the trip by motor. She will leave the train at Martinsburg, W. Va., at 7 A. M. tomorrow, motor through Winchester, Va.; Charlestown, W. Va., and rejoin the train at Harper's Ferry.

The train made only one stop other than operating stops today. That was at the Queen's special request and brought out a strange and little known drama in the life of her present host, Colonel Carroll. The stop was at Storrs, a suburb of Cincinnati, and was for the purpose of allowing the Queen to greet a group of orphans of the Children's Home there. It was in this home that Colonel Carroll, now a wealthy man and general counsel for several of the most important railroads in the United States, spent part of his early life.

John H. Carroll, who passed through Cincinnati today as the host of a queen, once slept in a packing box in a Cincinnati alley, and managed to live by blacking shoes and selling newspapers. His father had been wounded in the Civil War, and was in a hospital near Cincinnati. His mother went to Cincinnati with her son, hardly more than a baby, to visit her husband. She left the boy in the waiting room of the railway station, with the word that she would be back in a few moments; went out to buy food and never returned.

Young Carroll lived as best he could, finally was taken into the home for orphans, later was adopted by a family of Quakers, and educated himself for law.

Learned His Identity at 37.

Until he was 37 years old he did not know who he was or what had become of his parents. Then his story was published in a magazine, without mentioning his name. It came to the attention of his mother's sister, who set up an investigation and got into touch with Carroll. His father, he then learned, had died in the hospital. His mother had been stricken with some illness on the street after she had left him and had been unable to return for her boy. She, too, had died soon. Thus he had been thrown on the world.

When the Queen learned of this tragedy in the life of her host she was eager to visit the children's home and also Colonel Carroll's present fine home in Cincinnati. Her cancellation of the remainder of her tour made this impossible. She received the children this morning, however, in the presence of the elderly attorney who once was like one of them, and gave them a huge box of candy and framed photographs of herself and her children.

Crowds were waiting at the railway stations of many towns along the route today, but the Queen made only brief appearances.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 19 (AP).—Prince Nicolas of Rumania, occupying the elaborate hotel suite prepared for his mother, Queen Marie, awaited tonight with enthusiasm his round of inspection of automobile plants tomorrow.

His arrival in Detroit late today in a special railroad car from Cincinnati was greeted by a Reception Committee named by Mayor John W. Smith, which accorded the Prince most of the honors which were to have been given to his mother. An informal reception retinue included many representatives of Detroit's Rumanian colony, who will be hosts to the Prince at a luncheon tomorrow.

The Prince has announced his desire to visit a half dozen automobile manufacturing plants and other factories. His party will leave at 11 o'clock tomorrow night.

LOIE FULLER SAILS.

Jeritza's Husband Also Leaves for Vienna—Annie Besant Fails to Go.

Loie Fuller, inventor of the serpentine dance and friend of Queen Marie of Rumania, sailed for Paris early this morning on the White Star liner Majestic, accompanied by her secretary, Mlle. Gabrielle Bloch, and her manager, Maurice Dembitser. The nineteen dancing girls who came with her from Paris to take part in the performance at the Metropolitan Opera House at which Queen Marie was present also sailed in the liner in the second class.

Mme. Fuller said she had signed two big contracts for the whole of 1927, and would bring back her own two companies in January. The films of the fairy tales written by Queen Marie will be shown here for the first time.

Baron Leopold von Popper, husband of Mme. Jeritza, also sailed on his way to Vienna to attend to his banking business, and will return in January, he said. After placing his baggage on the ship the Baron went to the Metropolitan Opera House to hear his wife sing the leading rôle in "Lohengrin," and returned to the Majestic at midnight.

Mrs. Anne Besant, the Theosophist, and her pupil, Krisnamurtra, were booked on the Majestic but did not sail. There were 910 passengers on board.

RUMANIA IS AGITATED OVER KING'S CONDITION

Vienna Hears Nation Fears Trouble if He Dies Before Queen Marie Returns.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Nov. 19.—The fact that Queen Marie is returning to Rumania earlier than planned is expected to increase alarm in Rumania over the King's condition. This anxiety already is great, owing to the vital issue over the succession to the throne.

It is understood that court and Government circles for some time have desired the Queen's return, partly because of American and British criticisms of the trip, but mostly because of the King's health. They are baffled, however, by the dilemma of how to explain her premature return without either seeming to admit the existence of the criticism—which has been suppressed in Rumania—or, above all, causing undue anxiety for the King among his subjects, who are very prone to make far-reaching deductions.

But whatever the reason given to the Rumanians for the Queen's return, they are sure to interpret it as meaning that the King is failing.

A foreign merchant returning from a business tour in provincial Rumanian towns informs THE NEW YORK TIMES that the censorship is complete, especially concerning the dynasty, but that the King's health causes widespread uneasiness to the public, and particularly to business men, who are fearful of internal trouble if he dies, and they are praying for him to live. He says the present anxious state of Rumania is the greatest since several years ago, when Bolshevist invasions were threatened.

He left Rumania before the Queen's return was announced from America, but even then he found business circles strongly desirous that she should come back, fearing that the King might die in her absence. They consider the Queen much the stronger political personality, and think it would be a calamity if the kingdom were deprived of her personal influence at such a critical time.

The merchant also states that the movement for the restoration of Carol is growing in the army stationed in the provinces, especially among the younger officers. He says military circles are greatly interested in reports that the Minister of War is planning to retire forty old Generals and replace them with younger men. All these older officers are strong supporters of the dynasty, but some favor the Queen mother, others Carol, and it is unknown which will be retired or what are the sympathies of their successors.

BUCHAREST, Nov. 19.—Queen Marie's decision to leave for home by Nov. 24 is explained here as due to the Florida disaster having curtailed her projected Miami visit.

King Ferdinand's condition is officially declared not to be grave.

It is officially announced that the departure from Bucharest of the Queen of Yugoslavia, scheduled for today, has been postponed to next week. It is denied that the postponement is due to the King's health.

A French surgeon, Dr. Saume, and an X-ray expert, M. Rogot, are due here. The reason for their visit is not explained.

The Queen of Yugoslavia is a daughter of King Ferdinand and Queen Marie.

'SHIPS AT ANY COST,' DECISION AT HEARING

Private Ownership Preferred, but Active Operation at Once, Says Resolution.

BOARD ENDS DISCUSSIONS

Plea for Government Activity in Shipping Heard—Chairman Rebukes a Questioner.

Arguments in favor of Government ownership and operation of an American merchant marine were presented yesterday at the final session of the Shipping Board hearing by Harry W. Laidler and Norman Thomas on behalf of the League for Industrial Democracy. The pleas were the only ones in opposition to private ownership in the course of the two-day hearing, held in the rooms of the Merchants' Association, before Chairman T. V. O'Connor and other members of the board.

While the opinion was expressed that the committee of the league had presented a strong argument, the hearing adjourned after the adoption of a resolution providing for the establishment of an American merchant marine "under private operation if possible, under Government operation if necessary, but in active operation at any cost."

The representatives of the league said that the fact that the deficit for all operations of the Shipping Board and Emergency Fleet Corporation in the last two years had been cut from more than $30,000,000 to about $14,000,000, made the present an inopportune time for a clearance in the sale of vessels which could not possibly be disposed of without great loss.

Face Keen Competition.

It was contended that a privately owned and operated American merchant marine was practically impossible under present economic conditions without great aid and support from the Government, and that American ships were at a disadvantage in competition for return cargoes. The board was told that the league believed Government ownership and operation was possible now at far less cost to the people, and might eventually eliminate any deficit, because capital charges for Government enterprises were notoriously lower than for private concerns.

It also was held by the league that Government operation made possible the coordination of various services in transportation and communication, that the condition of employes was usually more satisfactory and that private capital never could have done what the Government did in building up the merchant marine during the war.

A question from Ira Campbell, general counsel for the American Steamship Owners' Association, to Mr. Laidler precipitated a sharp altercation between Mr. Campbell and Chairman O'Connor. Mr. Campbell had asked the League's representative whether his organization had considered the advisability of an American merchant marine, half private and half public.

"I don't want Ira Campbell to befuddle this issue," the Chairman interrupted. Addressing Mr. Laidler he said: "I don't believe in many of the things you have just advocated, but when Mr. Campbell asks you that question he puts you in a hole. He knows that the Shipping Board has tried to put all its ships in private hands. I don't know of a single vessel of the American Steamship Owners' Association, except in the Southern ports, that is engaged in the transatlantic trade. We've got to the point where we can't even give ships away. The final question is whether the Government will operate the ships it has or abandon the seas."

The Right to Criticize.

"That's not the final question," retorted Mr. Campbell. "That means communism in business. I can't understand why, after our association spends time making a complete study of this situation by experts, the Shipping Board always receives our recommendations in a temper. A little criticism does harm to nobody. I think that when these people come here and advocate business communism, I have the right to ask what they propose to do with the privately owned and operated ships now on the seas if they want the Government to run the merchant marine."

At this point Norman Thomas interrupted to say that Government ownership of a merchant marine was no more communistic than the postal service.

Private ownership was advocated by Thomas L. Stitt of the New York Freight Forwarders and Brokers' Association, Frank C. Munson of the Munson Line and John H. Milliken of the Neptune Association.

The Shipping Board will meet in Washington next Monday morning and close its hearings on Tuesday. It will submit its report to Congress Jan. 1.

M'ADOO 1928 LEADER, MEREDITH DECLARES

strengthened him materially with Democrats throughout the country?" he was asked.

Smith Strengthened, He Says.

"It undoubtedly has strengthened him; if he had been defeated, he would have been in a very poor position, indeed," he said. "Governor Smith has some friends in every State undoubtedly."

"In your opinion, then, there is no prospect that Governor Smith may be accepted by Democrats who above all are anxious to win, on the demonstration he has given of his strength as a vote getter?"

"I do not want to say 'no' in answer to that question," Mr. Meredith replied. "Let me answer it in my own way. Governor Smith is wet and comes from a State which, by the dry and progressive Democrats, who will control the 1928 convention, is looked upon as the very hub of the reactionary East."

"Do you think Mr. McAdoo will be the nominee?" was asked.

"I can answer that only by saying that I do—in any event we will nominate a progressive."

"In this vicinity," was suggested, "Governor Smith is regarded pretty much as the champion progressive within the Democratic Party."

There was no rejoinder from Mr. Meredith.

Other Democrats of prominence who have discussed the 1928 situation do not regard Mr. McAdoo's prospects for winning the Democratic nomination as very promising and there is a feeling also among Democrats from other States who have been willing to comment that the outlook for Governor Smith is not particularly bright.

With economic reforms affecting the agricultural interests likely to become an important issue in the next national campaign, Democratic spokesmen of prominence have expressed the opinion that Mr. Meredith, who has made it clear to his friends that he is not an aspirant for the nomination, would be a not unlikely choice if a repetition of the Smith-McAdoo struggle in 1928 should make it necessary for the Democratic convention to turn to a compromise candidate.

SEES SMITH OPPOSING COOLIDGE IN 1928

Dr. W. S. Myers Says Governor Can't Be Elected Because of Wetness and Tammany.

In a discussion of national politics Dr. William Starr Myers, Professor of Political Science at Princeton University, told the members of the Swiss Scientific Society at their meeting at the Hotel McAlpin last night that although he believed the Democratic Party would nominate Governor Smith as their candidate for President he did not think the Governor would be elected. Professor Myers added that President Coolidge would most likely be renominated and elected largely on the basis of prosperity.

"In this vicinity," was suggested, "Governor Smith is regarded pretty much as the champion progressive within the Democratic Party."

"If I think that Governor Smith will be selected to oppose President Coolidge, I do not believe he will be elected, for three reasons: 1. The religious consideration, which is really the least important. 2. The wet question; as the South always votes dry. 3. Because of his affiliation with Tammany Hall. Throughout the West and South, Tammany still signifies political graft and corruption, regardless of how much that organization has changed recent years."

Power From Chicago Lights Lamps in Boston; Longest Hook-Up of the Kind Ever Made

BOSTON, Nov. 19 (AP).—Electric power was received in Boston today from Chicago, the first time a test of the kind had been made over so great a distance. The experiment, which linked up the power system of the entire northeastern quarter of the country, was designed, officials said, to demonstrate the feasibility of power interchange between companies.

In addition to tying together for demonstration purposes the largest area ever covered by a working power unit, the test, it was said, was an omen of greater "superpower" developments still to come. Robert E. Dillon, head of the regenerating department of the Boston Edison Company, described it as a step in the development of the "buse," a single huge power line running from coast to coast.

Electric lamps in the Back Bay district of Boston were lighted for a time by power from Chicago, while more than a dozen light and power companies were linked in the 1,000-mile hook-up. Among the companies participating were the Commonwealth Edison Company of Chicago, the American Gas and Electric Company, the Pennsylvania Power and Light Company, the Metropolitan Company of Reading, Pa.; the Hudson Power and Light Company and the Boston Edison Company.

The line of power communication ran through the States of Illinois, Indiana, down the Ohio Valley into Pennsylvania, thence up to the Adirondacks and eastward through Vermont and New Hampshire, down into Western Massachusetts, connecting with the New England Power and Boston Edison circuits at Sudbury. All the cities and towns supplied with electricity by these companies and subsidiaries were furnished with power from the joint source.

To operate such a power line economically Mr. Dillon said a voltage of 500,000 would be required, which is too high to be practical at present. The longest and highest powered line at the present time is one 300 miles long in California, using 220,000 volts.

CALLS FOR ENDING OF PHILIPPINE FEUD

By RUSSELL B. PORTER.

tell the President that he found the Philippines in a state of economic stagnation and political turmoil and that nothing can be done to develop the rich natural resources of the country until the pending political issues are settled. He found business almost at a standstill, labor lacking sufficient employment and forced to migrate in large numbers to Hawaii and the United States and the Filipinos barring American capital and business enterprise for fear they would retard independence.

Legislature and Wood Deadlocked.

Spurred on by Senate President Manuel Quezon, its dominating figure, the Legislature has refused to adopt progressive legislation for economic development or better governmental administration as long as General Wood remains in office. Conditions have been going from bad to worse and are in danger of drifting into a state of chaos.

The suggestion that President Coolidge act at once to restore cooperation between the Governor General and Legislature obviously would imply a possibility of General Wood's withdrawal as Governor General. In view of the increasingly bitter tone of the controversy, it is regarded as extremely doubtful that either General Wood or the Legislature will "back down."

A renewal of cooperation may be impossible unless one or the other source of the friction is removed. Since the abolition of the Legislature in the absence of an overt act of treason or sedition would be unthinkable in the American system of government, only one course is possible.

Colonel Thompson will deliver with his report a memorial addressed to the President, adopted unanimously by the Philippine Legislature on the day of Colonel Thompson's departure from Manila, which declares that the present relations between the Governor General and the Legislature are "unsatisfactory," and that "so long as the causes which have created these difficulties remain it is not to be expected that the situation will improve." The memorial adds that it would only aggravate the situation to enlarge the powers of the Governor General.

Wants Experts in Office.

The Thompson report is not likely either wholly to condemn or wholly to endorse the Wood administration. If its information and conclusions appear to point toward the advisability of a change in administration this will not imply criticism of General Wood so much as it will emphasize the need for men experienced in civil administration to deal with the problems of civil government.

It would be unusual if a military man, accustomed for most of his life to high command, with implicit obedience to his orders imposed by military discipline, and surrounded by military men as confidential advisers, could get along without friction in dealing with political leaders quick to resent anything smacking of arbitrary or dictatorial methods. In the Philippines this problem is accentuated by the difference in racial and national viewpoints between the American head of the Executive Department and Filipino leaders of the legislative branch of the Government.

Colonel Thompson found resentment among the Filipino leaders against General Wood on the score of interference by the executive in purely local issues, refusal to accept advice from the native leaders, reduction of much of the internal autonomy enjoyed by the Filipinos under former Governor General Harrison during President Wilson's Administration, and a tendency to adopt an imperialistic attitude toward the Philippine problem.

The chief immediate cause of friction at present appears to be the "Cavalry Cabinet" of American army officers with whom General Wood has surrounded himself. All of these men have fine army records and are officers and gentlemen in the highest sense, but their military careers have not fitted them for the tasks they are obliged to perform as General Wood's advisers. They could not be regarded as authorities on questions of law, finance, commerce, agriculture, &c., such as the Governor General should have to advise him in the government of a country of 12,000,000 inhabitants.

"Cavalry Cabinet" Is Ridiculed.

Although Governor General Wood's friends contend that he is compelled to rely on his military advisers because he cannot trust the Filipino leaders, and because the law does not permit him to obtain American advisers elsewhere than from the War Department, the fact remains that some members of the "Cavalry Cabinet" are responsible for friction between the Governor General and the Legislature by tactless and arbitrary conduct, which Colonel Thompson had occasion to observe personally in several instances. Among Americans in business and official life in Manila, as well as in Filipino quarters, Colonel Thompson found not only resentment but ridicule expressed over the "Cavalry Cabinet."

Since the break between General Wood and the native leaders, when the Filipino heads of executive departments resigned in 1923—a climax which some Americans in Manila attribute to the Governor General's lack of suitable advisers—the Legislature has refused to pass progressive legislation and also has refused to confirm many of the Governor General's appointments. Colonel Thompson found that apparently no relief from this impasse was in sight as long as the present situation continued.

General Wood's age, 67, and his physical condition may become factors in the situation. During the five years he has spent in the Philippines as Governor General, without a vacation in the United States, General Wood has failed lamentably in health. He has noticeable difficulty with his left arm and leg. He was assisted to the rostrum at the opening of last Summer's legislative session, where he did not read his annual message himself, but remained seated while his secretary read it.

Recently Underwent Operation.

At Zamboanga, when General Wood arrived to investigate trouble between the Moros and Christian Filipinos during the reception to Colonel Thompson, the Governor General was helped up the steps of the boat landing by a friend at each arm. Shortly before Colonel Thompson left Manila, General Wood underwent an operation for hernia.

General Wood is expected to come to the United States on leave shortly. Whether his recent operation will cause him to change his plans is unknown, but before the operation he apparently had expected to make a vigorous fight before Congress in defense of his administration, and it was predicted by his friends in Manila that he would "never quit under fire."

While Colonel Thompson was in the islands, General Wood received visits from two close friends, Colonel Henry L. Stimson, former Secretary of War, and James T. Williams Jr., editor of the Boston American and special investigator of Philippine conditions for the Hearst newspapers, both of whom were outspoken in defense of General Wood. Their visits added strength to the conjecture that the Governor General and his friends anticipated a fight.

It can be assumed that the Thompson report will not fail to commend the accomplishments of General Wood at the beginning of his administration, when he is credited among other things with having saved the Philippine Government from bankruptcy after the financial débâcle at the end of the Harrison administration, with having restored its currency to par, and with having increased the administrative efficiency of the Government.

Wants Coordinated Control.

With reference to the proposal to coordinate all the overseas possessions under one head, Colonel Thompson has been impressed with the inefficiency of scattering these various dependencies among three departments at Washington—War, Navy and Interior—and the incongruity of leaving problems of civil administration in the hands of the War and Navy Departments, inasmuch as the time has long since passed when these possessions need to be governed under military and naval jurisdiction.

He has also been convinced that the United States has neglected in the past to give these possessions as much care and attention as their importance warranted, and the coordination is necessary for their proper government and development.

During his visits to China and Japan on the way back from Manila, Colonel Thompson was impressed with the vital importance of the Philippines as the key to our entire Far Eastern problem, growing more important every year because of our greatly expanding trade with the Orient.

He found that because of lack of coordination neither the American Ambassador to Japan nor the American Minister to China had any means of rapid confidential communication with the Governor General of the Philippines, although questions were continually arising of interest to all three.

Sees Need of Filipino Loyalty.

Conferences with American diplomats, business men and army and navy officers of high rank in the Far East have convinced Colonel Thompson of the imperative necessity of the United States retaining the good-will and cooperation of the Filipinos in time of peace and their loyalty in time of war.

Not only are the Philippines rich in soil and climate potentialities for producing raw materials which we need—for example, rubber, in which Great Britain and Holland have a world monopoly; camphor, Japan; coffee, Brazil, and sisal, Mexico—besides hemp, sugar, tobacco, cocoanuts and other products already grown there in large quantity; but they are also the key to our commercial and military-naval strategy in the Orient.

Without the Philippines as a commercial and military naval base we would find it very difficult to maintain our open door policy to China, to protect our sea trade routes between the Pacific Coast and the Orient and to wage a war in the Pacific in defense of our vital interests.

This does not mean that Colonel Thompson favors permanent retention of the Philippines as a dependency, but he has been impressed with the belief that in the quarter century we have owned them we have not finished our task of preparing them to maintain the responsibilities of an independent nation, and that if they received complete independence now or in the near future they would be in great danger of internal chaos or external aggression.

[A subsequent dispatch will disclose why Colonel Thompson opposes independence for the Philippines for many years to come.]

DEPUTIES SUPPORT CALLES

Pledge Backing In His Reported Intention to Resist Our Note.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 19.—About twenty Mexican Congressmen, mostly from the State of Vera Cruz, have sent to President Calles a telegram in which they call attention to a report that the proposals in the latest American note on the oil and land laws are incompatible with the sovereignty of Mexico and declared they will back President Calles in his reported determination to perish rather than yield.

In their dual capacity as Mexicans and as Congressmen of the minority group, the Deputies say, they are resolved to share with the President "all risks and sacrifices which the fatherland demands of us."

NICARAGUA INQUIRY BY SENATE HINTED

It Would Deal With Recognition in View of Alleged American Financial Aims, Capital Hears.

FEAR OF SEIZURE REPORTED

Our Suspicion of Mexico's Role In Revolt, It Is Said, May Complicate Oil Dispute.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—Suggestions were made today in quarters in contact with Central American sentiment that the Senate might be asked to order an inquiry into the attitude of the United States toward Nicaragua as exemplified in the recognition of the Diaz régime, with special reference to charges implying that this action was taken partly as a preliminary step toward American control of the Nicaraguan Bank and railways.

The accusation that "dollar diplomacy" prompted American intervention in Nicaraguan affairs was made yesterday by T. S. Vaca, Nicaraguan Liberal agent in Washington, who also charged that the Congress that named Adolfo Diaz as President was "spurious" and had ignored the constitutional provision requiring the elevation of the Vice President in the event of a vacancy occuring in the major office.

President Coolidge made a brief reference to Nicaragua at the White House today, stating to visitors that he had been advised by Secretary Kellogg that President Dias had solicited the good offices of the United States in his endeavors to restore order, and that Mr. Kellogg had decided to proceed accordingly.

Fear of Occupation Reported.

Liberals in Nicaragua are understood to fear that the Government interests of the United States in the canal strip and the Fonseca naval base, topped off by large American investments in the Nicaraguan Bank and railways, might eventually lead to the occupation of the country by American armed forces.

There is reason to believe that Lawrence Dennis, Chargé d'Affaires in Managua, is attempting to render "pacific assistance" by bringing the Liberal recalcitrants to the support of the new President.

If moral suasion should fail and revolutionary activities continue, then marines will probably be landed at Corinto and a marine guard stationed at Managua strong enough to cope with any situation that may arise. A battalion of marines is now on duty in Bluefields, and there are seven American naval vessels in or near the ports of Honduras, Guatemala and Nicaragua.

State Department officials await with some concern a reply to the note dispatched to Mexico City ten days ago, in which our demands with respect to the provisions of the oil and land laws of that country were reiterated in stronger language than had been employed in previous exchanges on this subject.

The last American note was in no sense an ultimatum, it was asserted today. Since it was sent to Mexico City the troubles in Nicaragua have become acute, with intimations that the United States considers Mexico responsible in part for revolutionary activities in that Central American republic.

This, it was said today by one familiar with the Mexican situation, had excited considerable resentment in the Calles Administration and would probably complicate American negotiations relative to mineral and agricultural lands in Mexico.

Our Note Recognizing Dias.

The text of the letter given to the Nicaraguan Foreign Office on Wednesday and extending American recognition to the Diaz Government follows:

Managua, Nov. 17, 1926.

Excellency: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your Excellency's note No. 833, Nov. 16, wherein your Excellency was good enough to inform me that, in accordance with the constitutional reorganization of the Government of Nicaragua by the National Congress, his Excellency, Senator Adolfo Diaz, having been designated by the said Congress to exercise the Presidency during the remainder of the present constitutional period, entered upon the duties of that high office on Nov. 14 at 4:30 in the afternoon.

Complying with the instructions of my Government, it gives me great pleasure, in reply to your Excellency's communication under acknowledgment, to state that the Government of the United States of America recognizes the Government of his Excellency, President Diaz, as the constitutional Government of Nicaragua.

At the same time I am authorized to express to you the gratification felt by my Government of being able thus to renew formal diplomatic relations with the Government of the Republic of Nicaragua.

The inauguration of the new Government of Nicaragua cannot fail to inspire the hope that peace and tranquility may be re-established in this country on the permanent basis of law and justice, the positive evidences of the nation's political life and institutions along the lines of the orderly succession of Governments, a due respect for the Constitution and political fair play, and the financial rehabilitation and economic development of the country.

LAWRENCE DENNIS.

More Expeditions Rumored.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (AP).—Such additional advices as have been received regarding intentions of the Nicaraguan Liberals are not encouraging. Vague reports of further unidentified filibustering expeditions to Nicaragua continued to crop up.

Mexican Ambassador Tellez called at the State Department today and the visit provoked something of a flutter in view of the recent disclosure of American concern as to Mexican connection with Nicaraguan gun-running enterprises and as to Mexican political purposes in Central America.

In the absence of Secretary Kellogg, the Ambassador conferred with Assistant Secretary R. E. Olds.

It was said later that the only subject discussed was one of routine procedure in connection with the presentation of cases before the joint Mexican-American Claims Commission.

Early Peace Move Reported.

MANAGUA, Nov. 19 (AP).—The rebels are said to be ready to attack again, although there is dissension among the leaders, who are without funds to pay their troops.

Among the reports circulating here is one that General Moncada, leader of the Liberal revolutionary forces on the Atlantic Coast, probably will agree soon to make peace with the Government.

Rear Admiral Julian L. Latimer, U. S. N., is reported to be arranging the details at Bluefields, while Chargé Dennis is cooperating with the Government here.

BRILLIANT OPENING AT NEW PARAMOUNT

Thousands, Including Leaders in Many Fields, See Great Theatre's Splendor.

5,000 INVITED GUESTS

Edison Cheered as Hays Points Him Out—100 Policemen Struggle With Times Sq. Crowds.

By MORDAUNT HALL.

After a final sprint to get everything ready for the first performance, the new Paramount Theatre opened its doors last night to an audience that included thousands of the best citizens of New York. There were bankers, authors, writers, artists, architects, many stage and screen celebrities and virtually all the motion picture notables. As they entered the Grand Hall of the magnificent structure they marvelled at the sight that met their eyes; and well they might.

The house was flooded with light, and in the auditorium the indirect lighting was a thing of amazing splendor. The panel in the dome stood out like a Persian carpet on a field of turquoise blue, and the organ grills were tremendously effective through the artistic height of the arches. Fountains played on each side of the orchestra, and the "Diamond Horseshoe" lent further effect to the scene, with its glittering lights, and back of this were seated the principal guests of the evening.

Thomas Edison There.

On the right-hand side of this balcony, in one of the loges, sat the man who was largely responsible for two of the chief features of the new theatre—the light and the motion picture. He was Thomas A. Edison, and when Will Hays in a speech from the stage mentioned Mr. Edison's name there was a loud outburst of applause.

The aged inventor, looking hale and hearty, finally stood up and bowed to the audience that must have numbered more than 5,000 persons, including those who were standing. There was another wave of handclapping after he sat down and Mr. Edison again arose and waved his hand.

The fact that Mr. Edison was there to see what the once-despised motion picture had developed into was a stirring note of the evening. He had viewed, as had many others, the wealth of Italian marble in the colonnade in the Grand Hall. He had talked with Adolph Zukor in the gorgeous music room, from the side of which there is an inspiring vista. And others who were filled with admiration for the remarkable structure were Mayor James J. Walker and Otto H. Kahn.

The crowd of gayly-clad women and their escorts in evening attire wandered for more than an hour through the various rooms in the theatre. They walked on carpets that were as soft as an old rolled lawn, and were struck by the charming color schemes to be found on all sides. There was the Hall of Nations with stones from seventeen countries, some of them having been formally presented by the foreign Governments.

From Britain there was a piece of St. Paul's Cathedral and from Ireland came a stone from the old Dublin Castle. There were stones from Denmark and also from the Antipodes. This interesting display attracted the attention of hundreds, and incidentally, although the hnilding was filled far above its seating capacity, which is 3,300, there was never any discomfort in going from one place to another in the building.

The luxury of this home of shadow entertainment almost defies description, for one is impelled to indulge in superlatives on so many of the features of the building.

Powder Puff for the Ladies.

Here was a statue of Peter Pan, and on the walls were many superb paintings—there are fifty-eight canvases in all. Sometimes the scene was reminiscent of an old Louis XVI court room with the figurantes in modern clothes.

There are elevators to take the patrons to all floors, even the persons who have seats in the gallery. Ushers greeted the guests last night with a bow and a smile and escorted persons either to their seats or directed them to the different rooms, such as the Manhattan Room, which is a lounge room for men and women. There is also the Powder Puff for women, a special women's smoking room and a promenade. All the rooms bear names so that persons desirous of meeting others can designate the room in which they will be.

After the guests had had time to look over the compelling features of the theatre, A. M. Botsford, publicity director for the Publix Theatres Corporation, appeared on the stage as the master of ceremonies. It was then about 9:15. The audience was by that time seated but still marveling over the completion of the structure and its opening on time.

Those who had seen it the day before hardly expected that things would be ready to entertain the guests. But where there had been scaffolding and plaster the day before, there was a fully finished auditorium, with the orchestra seated in the pit and the organist by his gray and gold console.

Mr. Botsford first introduced Lee J. Eastman, President of the Broadway Association.

Mr. Eastman said it hardly seemed credible that on May 19 last the Broadway Association had officiated at the laying of the cornerstone of the Paramount Building, which he characterized as one of the great monuments of the city and of American enterprise.

Mr. Hays, as President of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., was the next speaker. He spoke of Times Square as the "Crossroads of the World," and said that on this spot was built a theatre which "is not dedicated to grand opera, which is mellow with age, nor to the spoken drama, which is thousands of years old, but to motion picture."

"No story ever written for the screen," said Mr. Hays, "will ever be as dramatic as the story of the screen itself."

He referred to the new theatre as a "cathedral of entertainment." He added that its real significance lay in the hold motion pictures had obtained upon the American public. It was remarkable, he declared, "that here on the most important front footage, at the crossroads of the world, is a theatre dedicated to the screen."

Walker in Humorous Mood.

Beginning in a humorous mood, Mayor Walker said that he had received Channel swimmers, golfers, tennis players and royalty since he took office, but that not until last night did he realize what it meant for Mohammed to come to the Mountain.

"This wonderful theatre," said the Mayor, "typifies the spirit of New York. I never would have been elected your Mayor if the people of this great city were not more willing to smile than to grouch. It is hard for me to look out upon this splendid audience and realize that 300 years ago Manhattan was bought for $24. This great place of amusement tells the story of the progress that has been made in all these years."

The Mayor paid tribute to Mr. Zukor, to Samuel Katz, President of the Publix Theatres Corporation, and to Harold B. Franklin, Vice President of that organization. He said that Mr. Zukor was an immigrant and that he, Mayor Walker, was the son of an immigrant.

The Mayor asserted he was sure that Mr. Zukor could have built the Paramount Building before he did, and that "it was a sweet compliment to wait until my Administration."

The program was opened by Marguerite Pingo singing "The Star-Spangled Banner," while the audience stood. The orchestra followed with an effective rendering of Tchaikovsky's "1812." Then came a news reel, in which there was a speedy of the demolishing of the old Putnam and Westover Court Buildings and the gradual growing of the superb Paramount structure in their place.

Mr. Edison Interested.

John Murray Anderson's stage offering, "A Pageant of Progress," was evidently of unusual interest to Mr. Edison, judging by the way he leaned over on the rail immediately he saw that the old Koster & Bial's Music Hall scenes were reproduced. It was in this music hall thirty years ago that the first motion picture was shown, and Mr. Anderson has cleverly given an idea of the program of that day, prefacing his contribution with some dancing girls in the old-fashioned costumes, performing to the tunes of bygone days. "The Kiss," this early picture, was presented on the screen, much to the amusement of the audience. A few other early films also were exhibited.

The curtain bore the old-time advertisement, together with an announcement of Edison's Vitascope, the motion picture of the day, which is only a few hundred feet in length. This interesting sketch concluded with a curtain on which was a sparkling conception of the Paramount Building. An amusing feature of this number was the screening of old magic lantern slides, while "The Old Apple Tree" was sung by James Clark.

Feature of the Evening.

The pictorial feature of the evening was the film translation of Miss Dixie Willson's short story, "God Gave Me Twenty Cents," which was directed by Herbert Brenon, producer of "Beau Geste."

It has a slow start, and Mr. Brenon has rather overdone the idea of telling too much of his story by close-ups. The background is in New Orleans, and the hero, Steve Doran, is a sailor, who forgets his wild affection for Cassie Lang when he sets eyes on Mary, a comely waitress. Lois Moran figures as Mary, and she gives a sterling performance in most of the scenes. There are times, however, when the sadness of one chapter seems to have faded slightly, judging by the expression on her countenance.

Opens in New Orleans.

The opening scene depicts the Carnival in New Orleans, with Steve Doren making the most of his first hour or so ashore. His former sweetheart, a girl of the dance-hall type, has been sent to prison, but this does not dampen Steve's exuberant spirits. By the time he meets Mary all thoughts of Cassie pass out of his mind and he pursues his new fancy with such zealousness that before Cassie is liberated from her short term of incarceration he is married to the attractive little waitress.

William Collier Jr. impersonates Barney Tapman, a seaman who is eager to dispose of a wealth of jade. There are some interesting developments in the etory as it goes along, the conflict of emotoins occurring when Steve weakens and takes a drink. He finds himself once more in Cassie's clutches, and before he can get away from her it is time for him to go aboard his ship. Hence he leaves without going back home for his kit or saying goodbye to his young wife. Mary learns that Steve has taken Caesie with him on the ship and she wanders slowly along hent on committing suicide. It is her child-like notion that the seagulls that follow the ship are the souls of persons who are devoted to sailors. She believes that if she drowns herself she will become a seagull, hut as she wanders along to the water's edge she notices some white roses that cost 20 cents. She would love to have a white rose, as Steve always admired once in her hair.

Audience Is Representative.

In the audience were representatives of all walks of life, from pugilism to international banking. Among those invited to the opening were:

Admiral C. P. Plunkett, Bruce Barton, Edgar Baruch, Bernard Baruch, George Eastman, Daniel Frohman, Thomas A. Edison, E. F. Albee, Nathan Burkan, Paul Block, John M. Anderson, Frank Case, R. H. Will Extend the Sesquicentennial to Jan. 1; Reopening Next Year Held in Abeyance

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 19 (AP).—Directors of the Sesquicentennial Exposition tonight decided to extend the Exposition for one month, or until Jan. 1, 1927. The fair was to have closed Dec. 1.

The action was taken during a discussion of a proposed financial plan for reopening the fair next year, and the extension was agreed upon in order to give the directors an opportunity to study the proposition further.

It was felt, the directors said, that with the Exposition in operation, the buildings, mostly of temporary construction, would not deteriorate so rapidly and would be in better condition should it finally be decided to reopen next Spring.

Conceselonaires for several weeks have been exerting every effort to have the Exposition operate again next year from May until November. Emphasizing the fact that it was far from complete when the gates were thrown open to the public last June, many of the concessionaires asserted that they had lost large sums because of this and urged the directors to reopen and give them an opportunity to recoup their losses.

The Exposition has been a financial failure and the directors pointed out that financial aid from the Federal Government would have to be forthcoming in order to reopen in 1927. In a statement yesterday Mayor Kendrick said the deficit at the end of this month would be more than $5,000,000.

The suggestion to extend the fair until Jan. 1 was made tonight by Samuel M. Vauclain, President of the Baldwin Locomotive Works. By that time, Mr. Vauclain told his fellow directors, it could be definitely determined whether further operation would be feasible.

CROWDS IN BROADWAY.

More Than 100 Policemen Called to Handle the Curious.

Large crowds gathered in Times Square to watch from beyond extensive police lines the outside scenes attendant on the opening of the new theatre.

More than 100 policemen were called out to handle the throngs and keep them as far away from the entrances as possible. For more than two hours no one who did not have an invitation to the opening was permitted to walk along the west side of Broadway from a point halfway between Forty-second Street and Forty-third Street to Forty-fourth Street. Forty-third Street west of Broadway was also closed to the usual pedestrian traffic.

Advance accounts of the opening had foretold the coming of numerous celebrities, including many male and female luminaries of the film world, and many not fortunate enough to get invitations were anxious at least to get a glimpse of these persons as they hurried from limousines into the lobby. Half a dozen searchlights playing on the new building from across the street lighted up the scene and attracted the attention of all who were in the vicinity, causing greater congestion.

In the early part of the evening the police diverted the throngs only from that part of the sidewalk directly in front of the theatre building. When the motors commenced to pull up to the entrances and the women, in brilliant wraps, and their escorts hurried inside, the crowds grew and tried to press forward for a better look. The policemen, who were under the direction of Inspector James S. Bolan, then established the new lines, keeping the populace at a greater distance. Despite this, however, the east side of Broadwsy between Forty-third Street and Forty-fourth Street was lined five deep with the curious.

The crowd was not unruly in any way, hut there were many complaints about the diversion of pedestrian traffic. Most persons did not pause to watch long, as a stiff wind soon chilled them and caused them to move on.

G. B. HAYES DISBARRED BY REVENUE BUREAU

New Yorker, Accused of Income-Tax Evasion, Was Witness Against Wheeler.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—The official hulletin of the Internal Revenue Department reveals that George B. Hayes, a star witness for the Government in the nnsuccessful prosecution, about two years ago, of Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, has been disbarred from practice before the Treasury Department.

Mr. Hayes, whose address is given as New York City, was taken to Montana at the time of the Wheeler trial to give testimony against Senator Wheeler, which the latter denounced as perjury. The charges on which Mr. Hayes was disbarred are given in the Internal Revenue Bulletin as follows:

"Charged with failing to file income tax returns for himself for the years 1917, 1918, 1919 and 1920, with the intent and purpose of evading the payment of $233,527.40 due the United States as income taxes for said years from said respondent, and charges found proven hy committee."

George B. Hayes, attorney, of 42 Broadway, who has been disbarred from practice before the Internal Revenue Bureau, is in Havana, Cuba, on business, inquiry at his office revealed yesterday.

Associates of Mr. Hayes called the Government's action "ridiculous" and said that Mr. Hayes "never made that much money in his life, let alone enough to he taxed that amount."

STAGE IS NOW SET FOR OIL LEASE TRIAL

Case Against Fall and Doheny, Which Starts Monday, Hinges $100,000 Loan.

GREAT ARRAY OF COUNSEL

Weeks May Be Consumed in Case Which Raises Some Striking Questions.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—Washington is ready for the first of the criminal trials growing out of the naval reserve oil leases, scheduled for Monday morning in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia. Former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall and Edward L. Doheny of California will he called then to answer the charge that they entered into a conspiracy in 1921 to obtain the lease of the Elk Hills Naval Reserve for the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Company.

The whole trial will hinge chiefly on a Doheny loan of $100,000 to Mr. Fall, the Government holding that it was not a loan but a hribe, the consideration of which was the lease of Elk Hills.

Rumors persist that counsel for H. F. Sinclair, who is under indictment with Fall, charged with conspiracy involving the lease of the Teapot Dome reserve in Wyoming, will seek to have the Fall and Doheny trial postponed.

Mr. Sinclair, it is said, wants the trial postponed until after the Supreme Court decides the appeal he has made to that court in an effort to have his own indictment quashed. The appeal is on a demurrer, and there will be no surprise if the decision is handed down when the court reconvenes a week from Monday. Both Doheny and Fall, as well as the Government, will oppose any motion to halt the trial, and few think Justice Hoehling will permit any delay.

It is nearly thirty-three months since Mr. Doheny appeared before a Senate committee and admitted having loaned $100,000 to Mr. Fall. The indictment was voted by the Grand Jury of the District of Columbia in May, 1925. The defenee will be in the hands of eight lawyers, while nine will represent the Government as prosecutors.

For Mr. Doheny the lawyers will be Frank J. Hogan of Washington, Frederic R. Kellogg of New York, Joseph J. Cotter of Washington and Harold Walker of Washington. The interests of Mr. Fall will be in the hands of former United States District Attorney Henry A. Wlee of New York, Wilton J. Lambert of Washington, Levi Cooke of Washington and Mark B. Thompson of New Mexico.

Owen J. Roberts of Philadelphia and ex-Senator Atlee Pomerene of Ohio will direct the prosecution and will he assisted by United States Attorney Peyton Gordon of the District of Columhia. George G. Chandler of Philadelphia, Frank Harrison of Cleveland, Ulric J. Mengert of Philadelphia, W. L. Combs of Philadelphia, Lowell Turrentine of Cleveland and John B. Dempsey of Cleveland.

The defenss will contend that the loan of $100,000 to Fall hy Doheny was a purely personal transaction, that the charge of a conspiracy is untrue, and that the lease and Pearl Harbor contracts were made by the then Secretary of the Navy, Edwin Denhy of Detroit, pursuant to war plans drawn up and approved by the General Board of the navy and to which Fall was not a party.

The best guess is that the trial will last about six weeks, with probably an adjournment of two days in Christmas week.

Emory R. Buckner Ill.

United States Attorney Emory R. Buckner is ill at his home, 130 East Sixty-seventh Street. Returning from his office on Monday, Mr. Buckner called in his physician, who found him suffering with a severe cold and ordered him to remain in hed. He will not be out for several days.

ECONOMIC COMMITTEE ENDS GENEVA LABORS

Preparatory Body Adjourns on Adoption of Agenda for International Parley.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Nov. 19.—The Preparatory Committee of the International Economic Conference definitely adopted the agenda draft today and adjourned. In a final discourse M. Theunis of Belgium said:

"We must above all dispel the widespread misconception that we are expecting or even hoping to obtain final results from the first meeting of the conference. We should not hide the immense size of the task from any one, for we quite understand its ecope and are aware it is indispensable that we proceed by successive stages."

After comparing the conference with that of Brussels, but stressing the fact that the economic conference will deal with principles of international order, whereas that held in Belgium was restricted to the alleviation of national and internal ills, M. Theunis continued:

"International cooperation alone will bring a remedy to the economic anarchy in which we live and which, if we allow it to develop, can only lead to the worst possible results.

"The work of economic pacification will he long and will proceed hy stages, but the aim to be achieved is worthy of our efforts. It will no doubt not be our generation which gathers the fruits of all our efforts, but in the life of peoplee a few years hardly count. For thoee who are working for a high ideal the greatest recompense is to be able to feel that they have brought a worthy contribution to the collective work of humanity."

GRAND JURY MERGES TOMBS INVESTIGATIONS

Conspiracy and Prison Regime to Be Sifted Together—Guarding of Prisoners Tightened.

The regular November Grand Jury, which is investigating the Tombs outbreak in which the warden and a keeper were killed and three gunmen committed suicide, remained in session until a late hour yesterday afternoon listening to the testimony of witnesses produced by Assistant District Attorneys Brothers and Ryan. Many witnesses, including Tombs keepers, had been subpoenaed for appearance during the day, but their identity was concealed.

It was learhed, however, that the Grand Jurors had decided to join their investigation of the manner in which the three gunmen obtained pistols with the general investigation into the management of the Tombs. Assistant District Attorney Brothers said every effort would he msde to keep information about the identity of witneeses and their testimony secret so as not to hamper the investigation.

Coincident with the long session of the Grand Jury there was a general tightening up yesterday on the methods of guarding criminals in the Tombs, those awaiting trial in the Criminal Courts Building and others being taken to State prisons after sentences had been imposed.

It was intimated yesterday that the Grand Jury might return mnrder indictments next week in connection with the elaying of the warden and the keeper. These indictments, if returned, it was said, would dname persone who were alleged to have furnished the three gunmen with their pistols. Mr. Brothers said no new arrests were expected before the end of next week.

KNOXVILLE PAPERS MERGE.

Sentinel and The News Will Become The News-Sentinel

Special to The New York Times.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 19.—Joint official announcement was made today of the merger of The Knoxville Evening Sentinel and The News by these two newspapers. The News takes over The Sentinel, which was the property of Senator Laurence D. Tyson, as the result of a purchase made in Washington Wednesday. The News had been in the local field five years. The Sentinel, a member of The Associated Press, was founded nearly forty years ago. Ownership of The Sentinel passes tomorrow to The News.

The two papers will be operated separately, however, until Dec. 3, when the merged papers will be known as The News-Sentinel and published in The Sentinel plant.

To the PARAMOUNT THEATRE ..... Success!

TO MR. ADOLPH ZUKOR, PRESIDENT, his associates and members of the organization of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, our congratulations upon the successful completion of the Paramount Theatre, which, we hope, will never see the day when it isn't sold out!

AND TO THE ARCHITECTS of the Paramount Theatre, Messrs. Rapp and Rapp, to R. E. Hall & Co., Consulting Engineers, to Messrs. Warren & Wetmore, supervising architects for Kuhn, Loeb & Co., who financed the first mortgage bond issue on this enterprise, to our subcontractors, to vendors of materials, to the army of loyal workmen, and to the members of our own organization, we here express our thanks for the loyal co-operation which has made it possible to open the Paramount Theatre on November 19th, in accordance with our promise and the Owners' expectations.

CATHOLICS DEFEND VANDERBILT DECREE

Papal reecript, well recognized by canonists, which would be available in special cases."

Chnreh Rites Are Assailed.

Some of the comments in the English Catholic press on the Marlborough-Vanderbilt wedding and also on the former Duchess's second marriage are highly uncomplimentary. The Catholic Herald says of the original marriage:

"There was attendant to it all the vulgar display that wealth could provide and an American woman whose ancestors on both eides have provided many scandals for the American press, who was to become an English Duchess. But now there is a fly in the ointment. The lady wants to regularize her marriage with a Frenchman who appears to be a Catholic, though he did not show much of his Catholic training or practice hy entering into a marriage in a Proteetant church in England with a divorced woman."

The Catholic Herald thinks it amusing for Bishop Manning to interpret the annulment as an attack upon the eacredness of the marriage tie.

"Protestant churches all over the world," it says, "recognize divorce. This very marriage was actually dieeived hy Englieh courts and the man and woman thus separated are looked upon hy the Protestant churches as good Christians and entitled to enter into a eecond marriage, which they did. There was no outcry against divorce. This was taken, of course, as a good Protestant function."

"If it were true that the Catholic Church has betrayed her trust," says The Tablet, "we should, indeed, have cause to hang our heads low under the rebuke of Bishop Manning. We wish, however, not to be too hard upon our New York censor. It was in his diocese in 1895 that the wedding took place with 20,000 sprays of lillies-of-the-valley, eight miles of roses, chryeanthemums equal in bulk to a hayetack, an £80,000 trouseeau, hundreds of policemen and two Protestant Bishops.

"That Southwark and Rome should claim to undo what another Protestant ciergyman, Dr. Nelson of Cincinnati, deecribed last Sunday as a proper ceremony must look like an arrogant intrusion.

"But we would point out that Rome has undone nothing. She only ascertained and declared there was nothing to undo.

Says No Marriage Existed.

"So far as the florists, policemen and guests are concerned, there was the illusion of being at a ceremony in a church on Fifth Avenue in 1895, but it was no more a valid Christian marriage than it was edifying."

"Unless we are misinformed the Bishop of Southwark's court had before it not only the protestation of the bride, but also admissions of her mother and of the hridegroom that she was not a conseenting party nor a free agent throughout those grandiose and glittering events which were almost the only topic of American society while they were in full course. A mere child of 17 and not of precocious stock, she was cowed hy the insistence of her family that ehe should become a duchess and reign in a famous palace.

"Some of the accounts say that Miss Vanderhilt's expression of her mind at the time went much further than mere non-consent. The epiritual advisers of the Church, which—so Bishop Manning tells us—guards the sacredness of marriage ehould have taken steps to satisfy themselves that this child was not one more victim of the craze for marrying New World dollars to Old World titles.

"It was an open secret at the time that coronets on the one hand and fat dowries on the other were being copiously exchanged and bartered to the ehame of American democracy and the profanation of Christian marriage."

Cardinal Explains Procedure.

ROME, Nov. 19 (AP).—A prominent Cardinal, who has had important connections with America, emphasized to The Associated Press today that "neither the Pope nor the Sacred College can annul a marriage except under the conditions established by the canon law."

He was referring to the Marlborough case, and added:

"I challenge any one to find that any annulment of marriage has not been due to one of the 'impediments dirimenti,' as we call canonical impediments rendering marriage null and void.

"It cannot he claimed that wealth or influence has any weight in obtaining annulments," the prelate went on, "because the largest number of cases submitted to the ecclesiastical courts concern obscure people. Indeed, when these persons are poor, the proceedings of the various courts are carried out free of any charge."

The Cardinal explained that the canonical impediments rendering marriage null and void, include not only the impediment of lack of conseent, or coercion of one of the parties, as in the Vanderhilt-Marlhorough case, hut also thore existing when the bridegroom ie under sixteen years of age or the hride under fourteen, when either of the parties has not heen baptized, when either has taken sacred orders, when there is misrepreeentation about one of the parties, and when the rules imuosed hy the Church, such as the voluntary presence of a parish priest and witnesses, are not observed.

"There is not a single case," the Cardinal said, "of annulment of marriage by the Catholic Church in which one or more of these impediments were not scrupulously weighed and proved before at least two ecclesiastical courts—namely, the court of diocese to which the parties belong, and then either the Congregation of Sacraments or the Rota Tribunal.

"Although the impartiality of the judges is above suspicion, there is always supreme recourse to the Pope, who, whenever he deems it necessary, has the case tried again hy an exceptional trihunal composed only of Cardinals."

Calls Manning Over-Hasty.

The Commonweal, a weekly review published in this city, which has on its editorial council prominent Catholics including the Rev. T. Lawrason Riggs of Yale, Professor Carlton J. H. Hayes of Columbia, and Dr. James J. Walsh, coments on the annulment and Bishop Manning's statement concerning the case, as follows:

"All the elements of 'big news'—extreme rarity, eocial position of the partiee concerned, and food for discussion—have been present in the Marlhorough-Vanderhilt case. As often happens, comment—and comment from a very high quarter—did not wait upon all the facts, and in the light of the details that have gradually found their way into print from correepondents at Rome and in London, the Episcopal Bishop of New York must feel hy now that his pre-emption of the major moral shock was over-hasty.

"He is notoriously a strenuous opponent of divorce, although his own communion is a much divided body upon that queetion, and appears to benefit in individual cases by a compromise that Catholics have never been able to understand clearly. In view of the consolstion he takes and has often expreseed, in the more rigid doctrine of the older Church, it is to be regretted that the good Bishop did not evidence a little more faith.

"The eeeence of the question is simply, 'Was there a marriage or not?' If there was a marriage, i. e., all the elements preeent that conetitute a marriage—the contract stands indefectible; if there wae no marriage—i. e., eome element present that vitiated it—there never has been a true marriage. This is sound law, whether civil or eccleeiastical, because it is sound senee.

"What God has joined together, let no man put asunder, is the adamantine haels of the Catholic Church's marriage law. She has been adjudicating such matters for over 2,000 years, and assuredly knows her own husinese hetter than people undenlably of good-will hut very partially instructed in her practices and her principles.

"In the very early history of his own communion, Bishop Manning may find conclusive evidence of how impervious to expediency Rome can ehow itself when not satisfied by the evidence that even a king could procure and pre-on 1925 taxes, which the Government would send to the taxpayer in the form of a check. Secretary Mellon's explanation of the method contemplated no check transaction, hut merely a deduction by the taxpayer when he paid his taxes in 1927.

Since then President Coolidge has said that his method and that of Secretary Mellon were the same, and that the difference between them existed only in a confusion of terms. Today it was reiterated at the White House that the President and the Secretary were entirely in accord on the subject, and it was disclosed that before Mr. Coolidge made his first announcement of a proposed tax rehate he had discussed the matter with Mr. Mellon and they were in agreement as to the course to follow.

Many Expenditures Proposed.

It was said at the White Houee this afternoon that the President was receiving many suggestions from members of Congress and others for the expenditure of public money on new projects. This remark was prefatory to a short lecture that had an application to the tax reduction proposal, in that it pertained to one of the means applied in huilding up the Treasury surplus.

The White House explanation was, in effect, that if care had not been exercised in keeping down expenditures and in following a policy of strict economy there would be no surplus. The inference was that those who were importuning the President to sanction projects that would call for increased appropriations would be disappointed.

HAVE A CAMEL

When the teams are drawn up for battle on the gridiron—"have a Camel"

WHEN the college bands are playing to make your blood tingle. And the cheers and answering songs sweep back and forth between the opposing thousands of rooters. When, following that tense hush, a swift player darts out from the flashing formations on the gridiron and races across the goal for the first touchdown—oh, then, when the taste of joy is too keen to endure—have a Camel!

For Camel is the boon companion of your joys. Roam as far as you will from the prosaic things of every day, Camel will be the truest smoke friend you ever had. Not a tired taste, not a cigaretty after-taste, not a regret in a million Camels! Just full and fragrant smoke contentment, just added zest in living.

So when your team tears through for its first smashing goal today—when life seems fullest of the frenzy of happiness—joyfully apply the fire and taste the smoke that's loved by millions.

Have a Camel!

BOOK ON NOTABLES MAKES LONDON GASP

Anonymous Author's Sketches of Monarchs and Statesmen Brings Laughs and Anger.

WILSON AMONG THE QUOTED

Only One of Publishers Knows Name of Author of "The Whispering Gallery."

By T. R. YBARRA.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—Woodrow Wilson, Lady Astor, Walter Hines Page and Mark Twain figure, with European monarchs, statesmen and other world-famous celebrities, in "The Whispering Gallery," a book by an unnamed author, which, published today, is the sensation of the hour here, and is inspiring the question, "Who wrote it?" from thousands of readers who are chuckling with glee, gasping with amazement or quivering with anger as they peruse its pages.

This afternoon, its publishers, the John Lane Company, issued a statement that a clause was expressly inserted in the prepublication agreement with the mysterious author that his name was to be divulged only to one director of the firm and absolutely to nobody else.

Selling Like "Hot Cakes."

Though five Cabinet Ministers, Lords Oxford and Asquith, Lord Balfour, Lord Reading, Lord Cecil and Winston Churchill, have denied statements attributed to them in the book, and though its astoundingly frank statements concerning other famous figures of the present age are arousing furious denunciation in some quarters here, the publishers announce that they have no intention of withdrawing it. The volume is selling like "hot cakes" and excerpts from it are filling entire columns in the newspapers.

It is providing the main topic of conversation throughout London, where all sorts of guesses on the author's identity are being hazarded. He describes himself as a diplomat whose name is a household word in diplomatic circles, though not so well known to the general public. The amazing thing about his book is that it quotes again and again conversations between the author and the celebrities it mentions, including President Wilson, Kaiser Wilhelm, King Edward the Seventh, Emperor Francis Joseph, Cecil Rhodes and Lord Northcliffe. In fact, if the author is to be believed, a small army of the world's most famous men talked intimately to him on the gravest questions of international politics.

Author Genuine, Publishers Say.

Further describing the remarkable circumstances under which the volume now amazing and scandalizing London came to be published, the directors of the John Lane Company said in their statement:

"We took every possible precaution to satisfy ourselves that 'The Whispering Gallery' was a genuine work by a man who held the position which the author claims to have held, that of a diplomat, presumably retired. The book seeme to us to ring true and we still honestly believe it was written by a man in a position to tell of the people and matters of which he has written. We do not believe the author could have written the book unless he had lived in the circles in which he claims in his preface, to have moved."

B. W. Willett, Chairman of the John Lane Company, said this afternoon that if the book is a fake it is the biggest bit of cheek he ever came across.

Author's Opinion of Celebrities.

Here are some samples of the thumbnail sketches of celebrities which abound in the book:

Woodrow Wilson "quickly converted by storm and stress into weak-kneed bully. He must'nt be judged too harshly for being utterly unfit to grapple with the political brigands on whose side, to his utter consternation he found himself."

Walter Hines Page—"I shouldn't think a single human being in Christendom said less that he would wish to recant from 1914 to 1918 than Walter H. Page."

Lady Astor—"She is a strange mixture of humility and pride. She has two mottoes, 'sic vos non voble,' which [Thus you (toil) not for yourselves (and) no one attacks me with impunity.] of course, applies to the lower orders, and 'nemo me impune lacessit,' which applies to herself."

Kaiser Wilhelm—"The one thing that be was accused of throughout the war was the one thing every single person who had ever met him knew to be false. He was not and never could be a Macchiavelli. To put it bluntly, he was too much of a fool to be one."

Czar Nicholas—"Wilhelm was the sort of a boy who puts out his tongue in public, whereas Nicholas was the sort who pulls off the legs of flies in private. Nicholas was a cad, a coward, a butcher and a blackguard."

Mussolini—"He is one mass of poses, all of which have become so much a part of himself that a poseless Mussolini would now be almost an affectation. In England he couldn't exist for ten minutes, because his tricks, mannerisms and posturing would expose him to endless merriment."

H. G. Wells—"He would give his head to be a commanding influence in the world of action, and he witness inwardly at the destiny that condemns him to the impotence of the inkpot. This accounts for his childish attacks on such big historical figures as Napoleon, Caesar, &c. He envies their halo of heroism. He is the victim of an inferiority complex."

Thomas Hardy—"He is the highbrows' hero, yet he has managed to survive it."

Quotes Conversations with Wilson.

This anonymous author also quotes scores of ultrafrank remarks which he says celebrities made about each other—frequently in intimate discourse with himself.

Wilson, he says, thus described Lloyd George to him in the privacy of the Presidential sanctum before he met the British statesman:

"I doubt if I would like Lloyd George. He has a way of appealing to the emotions and not to the intellect, which I distruet."

Of Clemenceau, Wilson is quoted as saying:

"He is a man who cannot see further than the frontiers of France. He can see them very distinctly to north, south and west but his sight is misty when he looks toward the east, due no doubt to the haze that hangs over the Rhine."

The unnamed author has much to say of King Edward VII, with whom he claims to have been on terms of considerable intimacy. This monarch, who, according to the author, was described by Lord Northcliffe as "the greatest monarch we've ever had —on a race course," is said in pre-war days to have held a long conversation with his nephew, Kaiser Wilhelm, and succeeded in causing Wilhelm to disclose his plans for world domination, which included the Germanizing of all America.

The writer, who hides under the cloak of anonymity, asserts he was present at some of the world's most important war councils, where, if he is to be believed, he hobnobbed on the most familiar terms with Lloyd George, Asquith, Grey, Cecil and other luminaries.

Some of the statements he attributes to these personages have been promptly denied by some of the statesmen said to have been present.

Of the great men whom he met during those stirring days, the author remarks: "With very few exceptions, I found them personally charming but politically deplorable."

It is impossible within the limits of a cable dispatch to give more than a few of the countless startling statements with which "The Whispering Gallery" absolutely bristles. Scarcely one of its 250 pages is without some passage, tossed off casually, which has all the potentialities of literary dynamite.

More Denials From Statesmen.

More repudiations of statements attributed to them in "The Whispering Gallery" are published in this morning's Daily Mail. They come from Lloyd George and Lord Riddell. Six pages in the book are given to Lord Riddell and the author says of him:

"I first met him in Washington. We all knew him as Lloyd George's chief henchman."

"The book teems with inaccuracies and references to myself are in several instances inaccurate," said Lord Riddell.

Lloyd George denounced the book in vigorous terms.

"Imaginative balderdash" and "a pack of lies" were two expressions he used, while he declared those parts of the book referring to him to be "bosh from beginning to end."

The Daily Mail is furious in its condemnation of the book which, it declares, is made up of "outrageous slanders on the famous dead and dishonorable imputations against the living." The paper uses such strong language editorially in attacking the publishers for producing such a book that it would not be surprising if legal action were threatened.

MOSCOW, Nov. 19.—"Unless a man works neither shall he eat," runs the motto engraved on a stone obelisk facing the Moscow Soviet headquarters, and Bolshevists say it echoed across Russia and is sunk deep in every heart.

They may exaggerate, but at least it has reached the distant village of Shilka, near Chita, former capital of the defunct Far Eastern Republic. There it found response in the local Fire Brigade—four stout citizens, Martinof, Kochetkof, Golovanof and Kamenski.

With an antiquated hand pump outfit and a line of leaky hose their life was mighty hard in the Siberian village, and the firemen found that one fire every month or so at 25 cents an hour didn't feed their families.

They petitioned the village Soviet for a regular salary. The Soviet pointed out that fires were too infrequent to warrant such an expense. The firemen replied that was due to their vigilance. The Soviet refused the petition.

Whereupon these firemen put into practice the Bolshevik motto and next month there occurred a dozen fires, each demanding four hours—at so much per head—to subdue.

The Soviet became suspicious and an investigation showed that the firemen were taking turns to "create" work. Accused of arson, all have confessed, mumbling in excuse, "Firemen can't live without fires."

SOVIET CHARTERS BANK FOR JEWISH COLONISTS

Action Is Seen as Carrying Out Kalinin's Promise for Autonomy for Race.

MOSCOW, Nov. 19.—"Even without foreign assistance, the Soviet Government would cooperate in Jewish land colonization and facilitate the formation of a Jewish territorial unit," was the pledge received by the Colonization Committee and delegates from the President of the Soviet Republic, Kalinin, a few days ago. Today he announced the formation of the "Agrokustbank" for this purpose, with an initial capital of $750,000.

As the name implies, the bank will finance the agriculture and handicraft —kustarny—of the colonists. The bank is not a State concern; but a joint-stock company, of which, it is true, a majority of the shares will be held by the State Bank, the Industrial Bank and the Peasants' Cooperative Bank, but a large block has already been allotted to private holders.

Foreigners are also allowed to participate, and although the delegates to the Jewish Conference maintained a cautious reserve on the subject, it is obviously hoped that the scope and capital of the new organization will develop until finally it becomes the first national bank of the Jewish autonomous republic.

The Agrokustbank will immediately begin to handle the colonization funds from Russian and foreign sources and will undertake to transfer sums from Jews abroad to their relatives here at reduced rates.

It is understood that representatives of the American "Agrojoint" and European-Jewish Colonization Society will be offered places on the Board of Directors.

PANAMA, Nov. 19.—President Rodolfo Chiari, accompanied by 150 guests, including Dr. John G. South, American Minister, and other diplomatic officials, sailed today for the Province of Chiriqui, where they expect to arrive tomorrow night. On Sunday morning the President will lay the first rail in the extension of the Chiriqui Railroad from Concepcion to Puerto Armuelles, a distance of thirty-two miles. The extension will connect a rich coffee country with a natural deep-water harbor.

It is understood that the J. G. White Corporation of New York will be associated in the construction of the branch with a Panaman contractor.

President Chiari has been authorized to float a loan of $1,200,000 for this construction, and he is now asking the Assembly for authority to float an additional $900,000, all to be used for the same purpose except $225,000 for retiring the balance of the national defense bonds and freeing the liquor tax for use of the new loan.

Uruguay to Give Up Seized Ships.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Nov. 19 (AP).—Disposition of the German ships confiscated by Uruguay during the World War is expected to be made soon. It is asserted that the eight vessels will be given to Great Britain through a decision by the Reparation Commission. The value of the ships is to be deducted from the amount of the German debt.

FRANC RENEWS RISE AS STOCKS TUMBLE

Flood of Foreign Securities on Paris Bourse Causes Panic When Few Buyers Appear.

SELLERS TAKE BIG LOSSES

Purchases of Few Months Ago Are Sold for Fewer and Less Valuable Francs.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 19.—The franc's rapid upward progress caused another catastrophic day on the Paris Bourse today. With the exception of French rentes, French coal mines, railways and national bonds, everything was for sale and purchasers were so scarce that prices went tumbling. Something of the same panic feeling which accompanied Wednesday's selling was apparent. The dollar, which opened at 28.51, fell to 28.27 during the Bourse operations and 27.80 was offered after the Bourse closed.

Just how far the rise is due to bull speculation and how far it is affected by the return of French capital from abroad is one of the puzzling features of the situation. To some extent the original bull ring seems to have covered itself, and franc purchases now are being made by Frenchmen eager to convert their exported capital into francs before any further revalorization is accomplished.

It is estimated that the sale of foreign stock in each of the last three days has reached $4,000,000. The loss in franc value to the sellers has been between 50 and 60 per cent. of the amount invested a few months ago during the franc panic, when every one in his country was clamoring to buy foreign securities. And against that loss must be borne in mind that while the franc may have recovered in value it has lost in purchasing power.

Outside Bourse circles the effect of the unabated improvement of the national currency is, of course, regarded with unqualified approval. Questions of revalorization, stabilization and perhaps conversion are as yet only theoretical matters for the application of which the moment has not come.

In the budget which Premier Poincaré is busily getting voted through the Chamber provision has had to be made for 20,000,000,000 francs to apply on the public debt. That burden can be borne with the franc at its present value, but its increase to 25 and 30 to the dollar, which now is the ambition in certain circles, will entail the necessity of conversion of the internal debt, of which no one seems disposed to speak.

French Industry Suffers.

PARIS, Nov. 19 (AP).—The skyrocketing of the franc is hitting French industry hard. A sharp decline in the volume of retail trade in Paris, reduction of the working force in certain industries and the increased embarrassment of people who are long on stocks of countries having a high exchange are the first concrete evidences of the harm done by the recent improvement of the franc.

The French Government believes that the advance is artificial and speculative and for the sake of French industry it would not be averse to seeing the franc slide down to somewhere between 31 and 34 to the dollar, which is believed to be its present value.

The Government tried to steady the exchange market by taking large sums of dollars and pounds offered. It has failed, however, to make headway against the big speculative wave which for the moment controls the situation.

Inquiry at the principal department stores in Paris today brought out the fact that the consumers, in expectation of a decrease in prices in consequence of the rise of the franc, are buying only the bare necessaries. Business is now running about 50 per cent. below last month's sales, the stores say.

Manufacturers who use imported raw materials are watching the situation closely and are working on a reduced scale.

Franc Trading Is Lively Here.

The franc advanced ⅛ of a cent in value in the New York foreign exchange market yesterday, closing at 3.59⅝ cents. A high point of 3.62½ was reached during the day, the highest rate quoted since March 13. The franc has made a net advance of a third of a cent in the last week and is now about one and seven-tenths cents above the year's low point established in July.

New York trading in the franc was excited. While it was not possible to arrive at definite figures, it was estimated that the turnover amounted to several hundred million francs. There also was a strong upward movemsnt in French bonds here. New high records were established in the French Government 7½s of 1941 at 102¼ and the 7s of 1949 at 98⅝, while the 8s equaled their former high record of 107¼. French industrial and municipal issues all moved higher.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—Sophie Tucker, the American actress, must pay £100 and costs for breach of contract to a London producer, according to a decision rendered by a Judge here today. Miss Tucker's defense was that she was forced to return to America because of the illness of her mother. Her mother died, but the actress did not return to England to fulfill her contract in a review called "So Long, Sophie." Her evidence was taken in the United States. The salary list of the producer was read in court. Miss Tucker was to receive £225 weekly and 15 per cent. of the receipts above £1,500 weekly. Her understudy was to receive £17 10s weekly, the assistant manager £5 a week and sixteen girls £3 a week each.

LINK DISARMAMENT TO GERMAN CONTROL

Allies Feel That When This Is Solved Germany Can Help in General Arms Reduction.

SOLUTION AT BERLIN NEARER

Stresemann and Briand Are Expected to Agree Soon on Transferring Control to the League.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 19.—A complete distinction is being made by the Allies and Germans between the problem of disarmament now within the scope of the Interal Control Committee, and whatever future system of control may be organized according to Article 213 of the Versailles Treaty, which makes the League of Nations Council responsible for investigations into the subject.

France is acting as negotiator in the name of the other Allies in the settlement of the former problem, and naturally has to consider not only her own security but that of Poland, Czechoslovakia and the nations adjacent to Austria, Hungary and Bulgaria.

The negotiations are twofold. In Berlin General Walch, as head of the Interal Control Board, is in direct contact with the German authorities concerned. In Paris Herr Forster has been delegated to represent the German Government.

The conversations, it is understood, are being pursued in a friendly spirit, and much consideration is said to be shown to the domestic difficulties facing Herr Stresemann.

Although there are six points to be settled, according to the recent Council Ambassadors' note to Germany, the greatest concern is felt here over the German patriotic associations. France appreciates the German Government's difficulties in preventing organizations created nominally for physical culture and various forms of sport from actually going through military exercises, such as marching and maneuvring.

How Curb Can Be Applied.

But the French likewise feel that the German Government can prevent any relations between such organizations and the Reichswehr. It can prevent their owning, borrowing or using implements of war, for instance, by seizing whatever stocks are discovered and penalizing such practices. It can also investigate the sources of income, to prevent Government bureaus from making subsidies and seize whatever funds belong to associations which undertake the military training of their adherents.

What is more difficult is changing the spirit of the German people or any fraction thereof. In this respect the French are willing to grant as wide a measure of confidence as possible to Herr Stresemann. His promise to prevent the sale of the criticized "Reichswehr," or German army manual, shows he is doing what he can in this direction.

It is learned that Herr Stresemann will not insist on the Dec. 6 deadline set for the withdrawal of the Internal control, despite the German press campaign. Under these conditions no hurried conclusion will be brought to the present negotiations, and it is regarded as likely that the Interal control will continue until January or February next.

Entirely separate from the foregoing problem is the question of in just what form the League of Nations control will be organized. Under certain conditions the German Government has accepted the general outlines of control adopted unanimously by the League Council in September, 1924. This recalled that its general features were investigations to be made into German disarmament and special reference to control of the Rhineland in accordance with Articles 42 and 44 of the Versailles Treaty.

Germany in Discussions.

Germany will participate in private discussion of the form to be given to the League of Nations control at Geneva next month, and it is certain that the French and the British will do as much as possible to establish rules which Germany will be most ready to observe.

Likewise, it is understood that under such conditions Germany will not attempt to carry the problem before the Permanent Court of International Justice or embitter the conversations.

The French will ask retention of the plan for a permanent control committee in Geneva, with General Desticker at its head, and will probably agree on the temporary character of any investigations made within Germany, acting under instructions of the permanent organization.

Germany will, therefore, avoid any "raids without warning," and in practice probably never will be bothered by more than an obligation to answer periodic questionnaires. Then, the General Disarmament Conference feels, Germany will be able to participate on a fairly equal footing with the Allies.

With the Governments concerned thus approaching agreement in a friendly and quiet manner, the only real problem facing the diplomats is the education of their respective public opinions. The British are not directly concerned in this respect, and their press betrays only the mildest interest in the matter. In Germany and France, however, the nationalist press is severely critical of the Governmental attitude, while the democratic and radical press merely record the developments dispassionately.

From a parliamentary standpoint, M. Briand is likely to have less trouble in his policy of reconciliation than Herr Stresemann will find in the temperamental Reichstag. Viewing the situation from Paris, it is considered likely that Herr Stresemann will eventually win by finding reasons to console the German Nationalists for his failure to rid them of the mere shadow of control contemplated.

GENEVA, Nov. 19.—At Murren, the Alpine resort, a serious fire last night destroyed two principal hotels, the Edelweiss and des Alpes. Also the Palace Hotel is damaged and all its table silver melted.

The damage so far is estimated at $250,000.

The hotels were empty of visitors, but were heavily booked by American and English travelers for Winter sports during December. The firemen were hampered by a violent Alpine wind and lack of water.

The neighboring forest is still burning and threatens isolated villages.

DENY SOVIET HAS ENDED REGISTER OF MARRIAGE

Authorities Say New Laws Merely Place Unregistered Unions on the Same Basis.

MOSCOW, Russia, Nov. 19 (AP).—Legal distinctions between registered and unregistered marriages were abolished in Russia by a law passed by the All-Russian Soviet Executive Committee, the supreme governing body, tonight.

LONDON, Nov. 19 (AP).—In emphatic manner the Russian Soviet Press Bureau in London denies that the new marriage laws adopted in Russia abolish registration or introduce polygamy. It is pointed out that all the new law does is to place non-registered marriages on an equal footing with registered marriages, so far as the duties of the man and wife to each other and to their children are concerned, the object being to protect the interests of woman and children.

Far from abolishing registration, it is asserted that the new law expressly states that registration will form indisputable proof of marriage.

As for polygamy, the Press Bureau sets forth that the new law makes it more difficult, inasmuch as the legal and material responsibilities incurred by a couple in actual marital relations are not lessened by the fact of the tie not having been registered in cases where conjugal relations can be proved by other means.

Under the law marriages may still be celebrated in churches if so desired.

BRITISH COAL STRIKE IS VIRTUALLY ENDED

Delegate Conference Orders Districts to Make Their Own Agreements.

COLLAPSE COMES QUICKLY

It Is Forced by the Return of Thousands of Men to Work Under Mine Owners' Terms.

By T. R. YBARRA.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—The coal strike is practically ended. Its knell was rung this evening, exactly twenty-nine weeks since it began on May 1, when the Delegate Conference of the Miners' Federation passed a resolution recommending all districts where the strikers are still holding out to open negotiations with the mine owners with a view to reaching an agreement.

These district agreements will be subject to certain general principles to be discussed at a later meeting of the Delegate Conference, but the discussion will be scarcely more than a matter of form. It is well night impossible that they can stem the tide of surrender among the strikers.

The complete back-down of the conference today was due largely to the constantly growing stream of coal strikers returning to work. Despite the resistance among the "die-hard" element to give up their cherished idea of a national settlement of the strike, as against the district settlements insisted upon by the mine owners, there was nothing else to be done in the face of the steady current of returning miners wearied beyond endurance by the 26 days of the strike. Today 10,344 were returned to work, swelling the total of those working to 376,374, or more than one-third of the normal peace total of 1,107,000 employed in the coal mines.

Before All Other Proposals.

The momentous decision of the conference this evening came after several proposals, including one involving a general ballot, submitted by the miners' executive, had been rejected. The resolution which finally carried was moved by the South Wales delegation, and reads as follows:

"That this conference, having considered the whole of the circumstances, recommends all districts immediately to open negotiations with the coal owners in their respective districts with a view to arriving at agreements. The Executive Committee will be asked to consider what general principles should guide the district organizations in their negotiations. No district shall enter into a final settlement until a further national conference is held to receive reports of all the negotiations." the vote on the resolution was 520,000 favoring and 283,000 against it.

Those who today yielded to the inevitable realized only too clearly that next week would bring even a bigger quota back to work than this week, during which a total of 47,663 striking miners acknowledged themselves beaten and resumed work at the coal pits.

The end of the great coal strike had nothing of dramatic enddenness. For many days the strikers had been virtually beaten to their knees. Despite sporadic outbursts of "never say die" eloquence on the part of the extremist leaders, like "Emperor" Cook, the miners' Secretary, anybody could see that it was not a question of whether, bnt merely when the strikers would surrender.

Miners' Leaders Bitterly Criticized.

The position of Cook and his satellites is far from enviable. On all sides their leadership meets with bitter criticism. In the ranks of the miners there is an angry conviction that the leaders made a disgraceful mess of their leadership. Coming so soon after the complete defeat of the general strike six months ago, there is a strong feeling that British organized labor has met a setback in its struggle with capitalism from which it will not recover for many a day.

"Emperor" Cook has announced that he will soon start on a long-planned journey to Moscow. The great bulk of his followers will see him go without regret, and it is doubtful if he will be in a position to resume the reins of leadership when he returns from the stronghold of communism.

In its leading editorial tomorrow The London Times will say:

"The coal stoppage is ending as it began, in a hopeless confnsion of plans and leadership. The events of the past week have been the climax of irresolution and folly. The chief fact that emerges is that the Federation acknowledges the complete failure of its policy. Only one comment on that fact need he made. Lord Grey of Fallodon said the miners were beaten, not by the Government and not hy the owners, but by economic facts. It would be even more true to say they had been beaten by their own leadership in spite of the efforts of the Government to save them."

Secretary Cook made the following statement tonight on the decision of the delegate conference:

"I would very much have preferred that the rank and file had been consulted before the decision was arrived at, but the fact that the men are returning to work influenced the minds of the delegates present and was largely responsible for their arriving at this decision."

Cable Rates Will Be Reduced Next Week; Wireless Competition Influenced Action

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—Substantial reductions, amounting in some classes of messages to two cents a word, will soon be made in transatlantic cable rates. Certain difficulties are in the way, but it le believed these will be surmounted within a few days and that official announcement of the reduction will be made during next week.

The reduction in the press rate will be from seven cents a word to five cents, which cable officials are understood to consider the irreducible minimum.

A conference of cable representatives is now in progress in London and it is this conference which has decided on the reduction.

One of those attending the conference is Newcomb Carlton, President of the Western Union Telegraph Company. When he arrived in England Mr. Carlton said the cable companies were contemplating reductions in order to expand their business. It is also thought that the move is intended to meet certain competition in transatlantic transmission by the wireless companies.

The Marconi Company has already put in operation for the British Government between England and Canada the "Beam" wireless system, which it declares can transmit 200 words per minute continuously.

The Marconi Company itself expects to operate the "Beam" system direct to New York within six months.

A transatlantic telephone service, which will probably be put in commercial operation between England and America early in January, is another factor in the competition.

However, in the past increased business has always resulted from new inventions. For instance, the telephone and telegraph companies have never suffered from each other's competition and each has constantly grown.

The cable companies, moreover, are constantly conducting experiments tending to improve and speed up their service. These improvements, it is pointed out, invariably tend to reduce operating costs and make for cheaper service.

DOMINIONS ACHIEVE EQUALITY IN EMPIRE

London Imperial Conference Approves New Charter for Overseas States.

FILM PROBLEM NOT SOLVED

Curtailment of Foreign Movies and Increase of Own Are Left to Governments.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—The Imperial Conference has at last solved its great remaining problem and has approved a formula establishing the absolute equality of the Dominions of the British Empire with Great Britain. The formula will be published when the conference concludes its meeting next Tuesday.

General Hertzog of South Africa has thus obtained his desires, as expressed in his speech at the opening session of the conference.

The new charter of the empire consists, it is understood, of the formal acknowledgment that the Dominions possess the status of absolute equality with Britain, with ths King as the head of all. There is a preamble in which the treaty-making powers of the various parts of the empire ars defined on lines approved at the last conference, in which the powers of the Governors General are restricted to the representation of the King and not of the British Government.

The resolution was described by Dominion Premiers as the greatest contribution to empire equality ever made, and it was said ths conference of 1926 would go down in history as the most successful ever held. It was said that the new formula would clear up the atmosphere of uncertainty and friction which has existed since the war, since it grants the utmost autonomy to all parts of the empire.

Drafting the resolntion in a form acceptable to all was a very difficult task. Lord Balfour had a good deal to do with it, but the most credit for the actual drafting ie eald to be due Lord Birkenhead, Secretary for India, whose splendid legal talent was of great assistance to the conference.

The conference has decided not to do anything very drastic about the empire's films, and Hollywood as a result was breathe more easily. The general economic subcommittee, which had the matter under review, contented itself with the following resolutions, which were approved today by the conference:

"The Imperial Conference, recognizing it is of the greatest importance that a larger and increasing proportion of films exhibited throughout the empire should he of empire production, commends the matter and remedial measures proposed to the consideration of the Governments of the various parts of the empire, with the view of such early and effective action to deal with the serious situation now existing as they may find severally possible."

Various methode of assisting empire films were considered, including tariffs and preferences, legislation to prevent blind and block booking, and the imposition of a quota. The commiftee recommended that all these measures should be conoidered by the various Governmente of the empire, bnt recognized that differencee of conditions in the Dominions made the adoption of a uniform scheme impossible. The report also declared that State action to encourage empire films could not succeed unless the producers could guarantee an adequate supply of empire films of real exhibition value.

The report of the Overseas Settlement Committee, which also was accepted by the conference, announced the renewal for two years of the arrangement whereby farm laborers and household workers can sail to Canada for $15 each. Other proposals are made for settlement in Canada by British families and for the encouragement of migration to other Dominions.

FOCH REPUDIATES LAUZANNE ARTICLE

Marshal Writes King Albert That He Gave No Interview Touching on Belgian Army's Retreat.

KING CALLS MATTER CLOSED

Lauzanne Admits Article Was His Own and Defends It as Concerning Freedom of the Press.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 19.—Marshal Foch, in his reply forwarded yesterday to the letter of the King of the Belgians, completely disavows the interview which Stephane Lauzanne, editor-in-chief of the Matin, published in the New York Herald Tribune in its Sunday edition on Nov. 7, and reproduced in the Matin on armistice day.

Thus ends an incident which has raised much comment on this side of the Atlantic, because it affected both the honor of Belgium and the honor of the journalistic profession.

The Marshal's letter is very categoric. To King Albert he has written:

"Sire:

"Will you permit me to reply to the letter which your Majesty did me the honor to address to me recently.

"I did not grant any interview to any journalist and when M. Stephane Lauzanne came to see me on the seventh of October last, it was for quite another object than that which leads me to write today to your Majesty.
